Near one of the great cities of the eastern United States, there is a smaller town, typical of the age of industrial feudalism. It is owned by a great corporation. Everything, churches, schools, stores, movies, and even the postoffice, belongs to the corporation.

Mail of these suspected of union or radical tendencies is opened and read in flagrant violation of the supposed laws of this great "democracy." Spies are everywhere, factories and even in church circles. It is a regular 100 per cent company town.

But the message of Communism penetrates to the darkest recesses of American capitalist oppression, and from this town there has come a letter, accompanied by three lists of the Labor Defense Council, signed with seventy names for $103. This letter breathes that profound spirit of class feeling which will some day be the moving force of the proletarian revolution. Here is the letter:

"Dear Comrades: We want to express our deep feeling of sympathy for these comrades and the cause which they now are to defend in the exploiter's courts. The funds are not big, but you can be assured that our sympathy is honest and much greater than we might express in words or in money.

"We have no organization here. It is not allowed, as this is one man's town. But if we should accomplish such in the future, we shall see that the Third International shall be our guide.

"We also wish to tell you that among the deep masses there is a feeling here and there in our favor among those who understand among the the others who are not enlightened, there is a feeling of unrest. They feel the want of something, that something we will give them. We need more teachers who can systematically handle the people in the way of enlightment that shall lead us to a human and a new social order.

"Comrades! We know you cannot give up the struggle against the tyrants who uphold the system. We are determined to carry on the struggle together with our leaders and if necessary without them.

"We know that America in the near future must recognize Soviet Russia, but before they do so they are trying desperately to crush the Communist movement in this country. They shall not succeed!

"We are not the workers and slaves of former days. We have learned from their experiences. Altho only a little over four years old, the capitalists fear and respect us more than any other party. We are getting our nourishment out of their system. They cannot stop us from growing stronger day by day. We are fighting for a new society and we must fight to free our leaders.

"Workers thruout the land, in the factories, mines and the fields! We need these men among us and plenty more like them. This the capitalists understand, therefore they try to take them away from us.

"Let us save them! Money will help to do it. Sympathy without money will not keep our comrades out of jail. They are speaking and fighting for us, for a new society.

"Now they are in trouble for this. It is our duty to help them. In doing this we are helping ourselves toward a better social life."

Why Not Amalgamate?

The local jurisdictional strike on the Hotel Sherman annex, in which 500 workers of crafts affiliated to the Chicago Building Trades Council have been on strike for more than a week because 15 carpenters, under the direction of Jensen of the Carpenters' District Council, are setting metal trim, again illustrates the necessity of amalgamation of all building crafts into one industrial union, as advocated by the progressives and left wing workers in these trades who adhere to the program of the Trade Union Educational League.

BUILDING TRADE WORKERS DEMAND WAGE INCREASE

Washington Builders and Unions at War

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 10.—Four of the leading building trade unions here have demanded an increase in wages, and the 34 leading building concerns of the District of Columbia have organized to fight against any wage increase.

The operative builders' association, as the new employers' association has named itself, passed a resolution pledging that no member would grant an increase in wages. The builders have further refused to give work to any sub-contractor who meets the union demands, and have enlisted the financial interests, who have promised to make no loans to any contractor who raises wages.

Painters and paperhangers have asked for a raise from $9 to $10 per day, and have set the date of April 15 for this scale to go into effect. Plumbers ask a raise from $10 to $11 per day, to take effect May 7. Rough stone masons are asking the same raise as the plumbers, to take effect April 1.

The builders and contractors threaten a general look out in an attempt to starve the building workers into submission.

Tramway Workers of Mexico City Strike Against Toronto Boss

MEXICO CITY, March 11. — The Mexican Federation of Labor held a big parade Monday in behalf of the striking tramway employes. Ten thousand marchers from all the unions connected with the federation passed in orderly procession through the main streets carrying red and black banners. A thousand striking street car employes led the parade.

Several large banners in the parade referred to the heads of the tramway company, and one declared the Government would not permit "magnates" of Toronto to dominate Mexican workmen.

It is reported that the company is determined not to yield and will turn over its keys to the property to British Consul King unless the strike is called off.

The strike entered upon its second week last night with the situation unchanged. The company has reiterated its intention to refuse to recognize the labor union.

The Alliance of Tramway Workers, having failed in its efforts to make the government take over the company, now is seeking to have the government annul the tramway concession.

ILLINOIS MINE LOCAL DEMANDS WORLD UNITY

Voices Sharp Attack on Amsterdamers

By ALEX REID.

CHRISTOPHER, Ill.—At the last regular meeting of Local Union 2376, U. M. W. of A., of this city, the following resolution was adopted:

"WHEREAS, the Amsterdam International in session early in the year 1925, has once again portrayed to the world its traitorous attitude to the class conscious workers by its refusal to accept the British workers' resolution calling for an unconditonal conference between the Amsterdam and Russian unions, and its acceptance of the contemptible substitute resolution; and,

"WHEREAS, Oudegeest and Jouhaux attempted to betray the toilers of the world by shelving the proposals and plans for world unity, and with Grassman and the bourgeois representatives, misrepresented the Russian labor unions' position; and Mertens and Sassenbach, arch-traitors, even lied about the proceedings of the convention itself by stating that the British delegates, Purcell and Bramley, had repudiated the idea of a world congress, which was proven to be a lie out of whole cloth and worthy of the men who gave it utterance; and,

"WHEREAS, the rank and file of American workmen demand world unity of the workers to meet and protect ourselves against the world unity of international bankers; therefore, we hereby

RESOLVE, to uphold the British delegates' position for unconditional conferences with the Russian labor unions; and do further

"RESOLVE, that the actions of the opposition makes it necessary that the workers of the world unconditionally affiliate with the R. I. L. U. in behalf of world unity, and invite the Amsterdam International to affiliate, providing they declare their desire to do so; and, be it further

"RESOLVED, that we hereby felicitate the manly position and honorable stand for international brotherhood by our British comrades, and likewise extend to Comrade Herbert Smith, Pres., and A. C. Cook, Sec., of the Miners' Federation of Great Britain, our congratulations for their noble stand and pledge ourselves to support them in every way in our power on behalf of world unity; and be it further

"RESOLVED, that we send a copy of this resolution to the DAILY WORKER of Chicago, the London Daily Herald of London, and the Forward of Glasgow, Scotland.

Will the Detroit Carpenters Invite Victor to Lecture?

CHICAGO.—At the recent biennial session of the Illinois Women's Joint Legislative Forum, Victor A. Olander, labor faker secretary of the Illinois State Federation of Labor, spoke against the use of injunctions. He said, in part:

"There has not been a case in Illinois in 35 years that injunctions have been used for working people. They have always been used against them. In every case labor has been the defendant and the complainant's place has been reserved for the employer.

"It is a system so vicious, so un-American, so foreign to our institutions that many employers will not resort to it."

These ancient homilies are called to the attention of the Detroit carpenters, in order that they may be relayed thru the proper channels, to Olander's fellow faker, Bill Hutcheson.

The following have responded thus far: George Fiakus, Boston, Mass., 80 cents; H. Epstein, Chicago, Ill., $1.00; Aubrey C. Bailey, New York City, 50 cents; W. J. Patterson, Zanesville, O. $2.50.

Ammunition for the Workers' Arsenal

By MANUEL GOMEZ.

Women in American Trade Unions.

FIVE times as many women as in 1910 were members of trade unions in 1920.

Women in industry are not such docile slaves as many have supposed. They have shown a stubborn and courageous loyalty to the working class as a whole which the history of the American trade union movement amply testifies. They have been the backbone of great strikes, notably in the clothing industry and the textile industry. Women are getting into the trade unions in greater and greater numbers. If the union officials would devote more attention to the question of organizing women than they do at present it can be predicted with certainty that extraordinary results would be obtained.

Women Being Drawn Into Industry.

Some interesting facts for Women's Day are revealed by taking some trade union figures recently issued by the national bureau of economic research and comparing them with the latest census of women in industry compiled by the U. S. department of commerce.

Both in 1910 and in 1920 women constituted about one-fifth of the total number of "gainfully employed" persons. From 1880 on the increase of women "gainfully employed" has proceeded at a much more rapid rate than the increase of the total working population—which means that women are being drawn directly into the class struggle as reflected in industry, commerce and trade.

It should be understood that the term "gainfully employed," as used by the department of commerce, is far from being the same as usefully employed; it is not limited to workers but includes wage-earners and bosses alike. Nevertheless, 70 per cent of the 8,549,511 women listed as "gainfully employed" are wage-earners.

A Big Job Ahead.

Relatively and positively—any way you look at it—the number of working women who are also members of trade unions is small. There is a big job ahead. Only one-fifteenth of the working women are organized. This is a much smaller proportion than is the case with men—taking the American working class as a whole, it is about one-fifth organized. But with regard to the apparently poor showing of the women, there's a reason. The reason is that large numbers of women are employed as clerks, domestic servants, etc., occupations which have never been really organized, neither by women nor by men. If we consider only the women employed in manufacture we find that they are nearly one-fifth organized—despite the fact that women are not engaged in mining or in the building trades or in other important industries from which a considerable proportion of the male trade union membership comes.

All organizations but two had a larger female membership in 1920 than in 1910, and as stated in the opening paragraph the total increase for all organizations was 500 per cent.

In both 1910 and 1920 the clothing unions were the dominating item. By 1920, however, the shoe, textile, railway clerks and electrical workers had added a very large number of women trade unionists.

There has been a large drop in union membership since 1920, in the case of both men and women. Between 1920 and 1923, some 100,000 women unionists dropped out of the files. This was due to the big unemployment crisis, the post-war "readjustment" and the unprecedented "open shop" offensive of the bosses. It was also due to the spineless and treacherous attitude of the bureaucratic labor fakers—and there are labor fakers among the women as well as among the men—who refused to conduct a militant struggle when the unions were attacked.

Study the Table.

Following is the table of the national bureau of economic research showing the per cent of organization among women wage earners in manufacturing industries for the years 1920 and 1910. Note particularly the huge increases in the case of the clothing, textile, leather, printing and tobacco industries.

DIVISION OF INDUSTRY	Per Cent Organized 1920	1910
All Manufacturing	18.3	5.2
Chemical and Allied	—	0.6
Clay, Glass and Stone	8.5	0.8
Clothing	46.0	11.2
Food	5.6	—
Iron and Steel	0.7	—
Leather	42.6	8.0
Liquor and Beverage	21.5	24.4
Lumber	—	2.1
Metal (except iron & steel)	—	—
Paper and Pulp	1.3	0.8
Printing and Publishing	25.0	11.8
Textile	11.5	2.8
Cigars and Tobacco	13.5	8.0

Of recent years considerable progress has been made in the organization of women "professional workers," such as teachers, musicians, actors, etc.

EASTERN DISTRICT

TYPE SLINGERS ON N. Y. DAILIES SHOW GOOD TASTE

Every Day They're a Little Wiser

By M. O'B.

NEW YORK CITY—The DAILY WORKER is eagerly read by many members of the printing trades. In the World composing room alone, over thirty members are readers, many of them being regular subscribers.

So it is in all the great dailies; and articles from the WORKER are posted on the various bulletin boards of the chapels (shop committees of comps.) for the members to read; they are educational and excite favorable comment.

The left wingers in "Big Six" are growing rapidly.

Failure of the So-Calls.

The so-called Progressive Party of the International Typographical Union lost the last international election by a small margin.

The Progressives (who were really progressive until they captured the International offices) began to "freeze out" the radicals from their party after they took control; as the left wingers were their most militant members, the Progressive Party lost much on account of the freezing out of the Reds.

Tweedledum and Tweedledee.

Becoming as reactionary as the old Lynch crowd, they were defeated a little over a year ago.

Out of a membership of 70,000 in the I. T. U. there are over 8,000 "real progressives." They were the balance of power.

In one New York chapel alone there was over fifty blanks for the head of the ticket; these were radical votes who saw no reason to vote for either reactionary candidate.

Other radicals voted for the "Wah" (old reactionary) candidates on the basis of punishing fake progressives for their treachery to the left wing.

Need Some Team Work.

The I. T. U. left wingers are gradually graduating from the "talking stage," and when they have a little more team work will have their own ticket; as the last two elections have taught them that they can expect nothing from the "Wah" or "Prog" parties, but must put before the membership a clear-cut Communist platform with militant candidates.

When it Gets Too Bad for the Fakers, it Surely is Rotten

NEW YORK—Acting in compliance with the American Federation of Labor's executive council decision, Organizer Hugh Frayne is reorganizing the Cloth Examiners and Shrinkers Union, Federal Local No. 11680. The A. F. of L. revoked the charter of the local because of large assessments levied on members to pay union officers' special rewards contrary to the laws of the American Federation.

During the last six years members of the union have been forced to pay five to six weeks' wages, $250 to $350 per man, for the benefit of President Joseph Mezzacapo and other officials. A salary of $200 a week was paid the president in addition to the extra gifts.

In the reorganization of the union steps are being taken to exclude present officers from executive positions. There are about 300 members of the union, earning an average of $50 weekly.

Union Fights Sweat Shop Work.

NEW YORK, N. Y., March 11.—The U. S. Raincoat company of New York, a company operating under agreement with the Raincoat Workers' Union, was charged by the union with sending work to open shop contractors. The company withdrew the work from the sweat shop contractors and the men returned to work.

Embroidery Workers Win Strike.

NEW YORK, N. Y., March 11.—The Bonnaz Embroidery Workers won a victory after a short strike here. Agreements covering wages and working conditions have been made between the union and thirty-seven members of the manufacturers' association and 130 different firms.

THE FUNCTION OF THE LEFT WING PAPERS

A Revolt Against Official Censorship

By J. W. JOHNSTONE.

In the struggles of the workers against exploitation, the role played by the labor press and especially that of the trade unions, cannot be overestimated. However, there are two types of trade union press, the official organs and those papers that represent the Communists and the left wing minorities within the trade union movement.

The official trade union journals almost without exception, have been diverted from fighting the battles of the workers on the basis of the class struggle, to that of advocating conciliation, arbitration, and class collaboration. It is this corrupting of the official trade union journals that gave birth to the left-wing papers within the trade union movement.

The Censored Official Press.

If the official organs were open to free discussion upon all the problems that confront the workers, there would be no need for paralleling these journals with those that express the hopes and aspirations of the ever-growing progressive minorities.

"The Trade Union Educational League was organized because the labor bureaucrats have long since ceased to express the will of the rank and file, and the natural sequence was the launching of a left-wing press to advocate their program as against that of the reactionary officialdom.

Do You Get These Papers?

The Metal Trades Amalgamation Bulletin, the Printing Trades' Amalgamationist, the Progressive Building Trades Worker, and the Railroad Amalgamation Advocate are the left-wing expressions within their particular industry, and show the great advancement made since the organizing of the Trade Union Educational League in 1920, in crystallizing the militants in these industries upon a national scale.

The work done by this militant left wing press to counteract the demoralizing effect upon the movement of the advocates of class collaboration, is shown by the vicious attacks made by the reactionaries upon the Communists, adherents of the T. U. E. L., and those who follow their lead.

This young and ever-growing, powerful enemy of reaction should have the fullest support of all workers who call themselves militants.

Not Mere Belief—But Action Needed.

To understand the revolutionary struggle is not sufficient. Action is what is needed. And a good way to begin, if you work in any of these industries, is to subscribe for and order a bundle of these papers and distribute them among the workers in the shops and factories of their respective industries.

K. K. K. POSTS LOW WAGES AND NO STRIKE SIGN

Night Shirts Enforce Class Terror

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 12.—The methods of the ku klux klan and its plainly anti-labor character is well illustrated by these chamber of commerce guys in night shirts, in their terrorization of all labor, white and black, in the tobacco packing towns of the south. There can be no question as to which class the kluxers are fighting for, when one sees which class they fight against.

Here in Florida, the kluxers, in full regalia, ride thru the tobacco towns in parades, ostentatiously putting up warning notices to workers on telephone poles. These read as follows:

"Notice—! Contractors' Prices:

"Packers, Nailers and Cutters $3.00 per day.

"Strippers $1.50 per day.

"Sorters $1.75 per day.

"Packers $.09 per crate.

"Contractors not to bother one another's crew.

"No loafing or strikes will be tolerated.

"Ku klux klan."

The low wages paid, are to be kept low, by the "No Strikes Tolerated" threat, over the name of the klan.

A DAILY WORKER sub means another Communist.

NEW DEPORTATION LAW WHICH HAS PASSED THE HOUSE IS A THREAT AGAINST WORKING CLASS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, March 11.—The house of representatives has adopted a bill that menaces the whole labor movement of this country. The new deportation bill passed on Feb. 9, by the house provides that all aliens who on account of criminality or physical or mental incapacity are considered undesirable, shall, if convicted of offenses for which they are given sentences of one year or more, be deported.

This bill was sponsord by Representative Holaday, of Illinois, the state that has carried on such bitter attacks against the workers. The bill was taken up under rules preventing amendment and limiting the debate to 40 minutes. It passed the house by a vote of 213 to 39.

This bill, which has gone to the senate, is a direct menace to every worker, who arouses the antagonism of the bosses of this country thru their activities, every foreign-born worker who does not please the United States government, may be convicted of "some criminal act," including violation of the criminal syndicalist laws, and if sentenced to one year may at once be deported.

The government thought that by enacting the selective immigration law, it would be able to cripple the aspirations of the labor movement. But the government forgot that the foreign-born workers in this country, who were among the most oppressed, are also among the leaders in the radical and left wing movement of the country. It forgot that these alien workers who came to this country to improve their living standard find conditions that in many respects are worse than in Europe. Hence there is no alternative for them but to link up with the radical and revolutionary movement of the United States—and fight.

Now the government takes the second step, which is a threat that if the workers are considered undesirable they will be deported without any further preliminaries. They are charged with a "crime," sentenced and deported. This puts their fate in the hands of the immigration commissioner and the case is closed.

Also Menaces Unions.

This step menaces not the revolutionary movement alone. The trade union movement of this country is made up, to a great degree, of foreign-born workers. The most militant sections of the American Federation of Labor, those sections against which the reactionary officials have proceeded with such measures as suspensions and expulsions, are composed primarily of foreign-born workers. The workers in these unions today are conducting a fight on a double front—against the bosses and against the reactionary officialdom. It will be a very simple matter for the government to take advantage of this situation—at the behest of the bosses and at times of the reactionary leaders of the trade unions, to persecute these foreign-born workers and get rid of them by deportation methods.

This is one of the most serious threats that have been made against the revolutionary and militant trade union movement in recent years. It stands as a challenge to the whole working class, which dare not allow itself to be divided on the question of native and foreign-born. The labor movement must not allow the reactionary house of representatives and later the senate to follow the behest of "Silent Cal," the "best of presidents," to push this measure thru congress without the workers of this country learning something about it.

Workers Protest.

The revolutionists and the trade unions and all the working class organizations must raise their voice in protest. They must start a powerful movement that will let the men in Washington know that the workers of this country refuse to be divided, in order that the bosses may control all the more easily.

The Labor Defense Council, which is in charge of the defense of the Communists indicted in Michigan, will soon call a conference of all labor organizations to lauch a campaign against the new law. Every militant worker must take up the matter in his union. He must get the union and all fraternal organizations on record against the law. The working class of the United States must raise such a voice of challenge that the senate will not dare to make the bill a law.

No time can be lost. "Silent Cal" has his lieutenants in the senate as well as in the house. The capitalists of this country are trying to cripple the labor movement. Nothing would help them more at the present time than this new law. Every worker must get on the job. Send copies of the resolutions of your organization to the Labor Defense Council, 166 W. Washington street, Chicago, Ill.

BOSSES FIGHT EIGHT HOUR DAY FOR WOMEN AT ASSEMBLY HEARING

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 11.—Manufacturers, merchants, laundry owners, and other employers of women and girls flocked to Springfield and opposed the bill limiting the labor of women in Illinois to eight hours a day. The bill came up for public hearing before the house industrial affairs committee yesterday.

A debate was staged in Chicago between Mrs. Lottie O'Neil, member of the state assembly who supported the bill and Mrs. B. B. Benson, paid employe of the Illinois Manufacturers' Association, which is leading the fight to continue unlimited working hours for women.

INTENSIVE PARTY TRAINING SCHOOL OPENS ON MONDAY

List of Subjects and the Teachers

All preparations have been made for the successful opening of the Chicago Intensive Training School, the inauguration of which was announced several weeks ago. On Monday, Mar. 16, 8:30 p. m., the formal opening of the school will take place and classes will start promptly at 9 a. m. that morning.

It is planned to have classes run from 9 o'clock every morning of the two-week period, till one or two o'clock but the comrades in the school will be taken to observe meetings of various sort to acquaint them with the functioning of the party in every department. These trips are planned for various evenings of this two-week period.

The number of sessions of several of the courses have been lengthened in order to allow for the inclusion of more material. It is expected that out of some of these courses will grow text books for the party on the subjects dealt with. In going over the field of the various subjects to be taught, the comrades who are to teach, found that there was a scarcity of good material available in this country for use as textbooks and it was tentatively decided to so arrange the material given in the courses as to lay the basis for future textbooks.

As far as possible it will be arranged to have comrades who are stenographers in the school take down notes of the lectures given to provide a base for the textbooks. Endeavors will also be made to publish at least one or more courses as given, in the DAILY WORKER.

Courses Lenin School, March 16-30, 1925.

Elementary Economics—Max Lerner, 12 sessions.

Trade Union History and Tactics—Wm. F. Dunne, 12 sessions.

International Workingclass Movement—Max Bedacht, 8 sessions.

Party Organization and Functioning—6 sessions, M. Abern.

History of American Communist Movement—8 sessions, A. Bittelman.

Public Speaking—Thurber Lewis, 6 sessions.

Each session to last one hour, during which there will be a lecture and answers to questions on the lectures.

In tomorrow's issue a short survey of some of the courses will be given.

Students must register at the district office, 19 South Lincoln street.

Women's Eight Hour Day Law Ignored by Washington Employers

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 11.—The eight-hour law for women is not being enforced, an investigation by a special welfare organization discloses. In addition to violations of the law which prohibits women from working more than eight hours a day, and six days a week, many young children are employed at street trades.

Preliminary surveys have shown that the eight-hour law for women is generally ignored by most employers, especially in hotels, hospitals, and offices. District of Columbia officials admit that they have made no effort to enforce the law.

The Workers Party in Action

FREE TRIP TO NEXT CONVENTION OF WORKERS (COMMUNIST) PARTY IS AROUSING GREAT ENTHUSIASM

NEW YORK CITY, March 5.—The contest for a free trip to the next Workers (Communist) Party convention to the one selling the greatest number of subscription tickets for the press pageant, Sunday, March 15, at Madison Square Garden, has aroused more enthusiasm than even the most optimistic ones on the committee have anticipated.

The fact that the Young Workers League and the Trade Union Educational League will have their conventions about the same time has given additional impetus to many comrades who want to avail themselves of the opportunity to take in the three conventions without any cost to themselves. The arrangements committee has decided that no paid party official is eligible. This gives an opportunity to a rank and file member who perhaps might not have any other chance to go to Chicago.

Another and even more important point is that a comrade earning the trip will know that he has accomplished more towards the getting of DAILY WORKER subs than any other comrade in the district. With the pageant just about two weeks off many comrades have already sold over twenty subscriptions each. Comrade Razler a member of the Hungarian Yorkville branch has already sold 39 subs and is out to make it one hundred. This is what a comrade has done once he has made up his mind to sell subs. Another comrade working in an engineering office reports that subscriptions are going like "hot cakes," all one has to do is go out and sell them.

Besides the prizes for individual comrades there are also a number of prizes that will be given to branches. A $100 radio set of the latest improved patent will be presented to the branch selling the greatest number of subscriptions for the press pageant. In order to give the smaller branches a chance for the prize, however, another radio set is being offered to the branch selling the highest number in proportion to its membership. It is needless to point out the valuable use to which a radio set can be put in a headquarters. A previous story pointed out how the German comrades put to use radios which they have in every headquarters.

There are many other reasons why this affair should be boosted so that we have 15,000 at the Garden. Firstly the DAILY WORKER will thus gain 15,000 subscribers to the paper with one swoop. The entire party press will receive profits from the pageant in proportion to the amount of subscriptions sold by their respective language comrades. The Y. W. L. will receive its portion for the Young Worker and the district office.

A one-act dramatic spectacle depicting the Paris Commune has been arranged for. In this play the entire audience will have a chance to participate. This play is arranged on the basis that all modern plays are now produced in Russia. We have secured the services of a comrade who has just arrived from Russia where he directed similar productions. Comrade Alexander Arkatov. He is being ably assisted by Comrade Sadie Amter, Beatrice Carlin, O'Hanlen, not to mention the Drama League, the Hungarian Dramatic Society and the hundreds of comrades who are spending their evenings attending all rehearsals.

There will be many other numbers too to make this affair a unique event in the history of the party. The Freiheit Singing Society will be there 400 strong. The Ukrainian Chorus, consisting of 60 voices has prepared a special program of songs and dances. The Hungarian Dancers will be there. They too have promised to produce several novel features. The Hungarian and Freiheit Orchestras will furnish the music for the concert. In the evening there will be a grand ball to wind up the day of festivities. M. J. Olgin and W. W. Weinstone will speak.

Subscription tickets entitling the purchaser to one month's issue of the DAILY WORKER are only 75 cents and can be gotten at all party headquarters or at the W. P. office, 108 E. 104th St.

COMMUNARDS ARE ALSO WANTED FOR CHICAGO PAGEANT ON MAR. 29

To give proper mass effect to the big dance pageant that is being arranged for the international unity demonstration and benefit entertainment for defense and relief, at Ashland Auditorium, March 29, the help of a hundred comrades is needed. Communards and soldiers, workers and peasants are needed and all who are willing to help out in this wonderful pageant should get in touch with Emma Blechschmidt, at the National Office, Workers Party, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., phone Monroe 4712. Any organzation or individuals that have any costumes they would be willing to loan for the pageant, or members who would be willing to help sew, should likewise volunteer.

The exact summary of the pageant is, of course, kept secret. It includes, however, the fraternization of workers and soldiers in Paris, the dethronement of church and king and the dance of the "Goddess of Reason," then the smashing of the Young Commune by the Versailles, the martyrdom of the Communards, and the rise of the spirit of revolution from the ashes of her temporary defeat to go on to the final victory.

This is only one of the excellent numbers on this gala program. There will be profesional singers and dancers as well as the best ensemble numbers that our labor movement can offer. Among these are gymnasts, choruses, bands, and dancers. There will be an Irish play and a motion picture, and three very short speeches. This program will be given for the benefit of the Labor Defense Council and the Irish Workers' and Peasants' Famine Relief Fund, at Ashland Auditorium Sunday afternoon, March 29. No other affairs are permitted to conflict. Tickets are 50c each and admission for children at the door, 10c.

First Exhibit of Communist Documents in New York May 1

NEW YORK, March 11.—An exposition of International Communist literature, the first in America, will open in New York on the first day of May. All workers and union organizations are invited to take part. Comrade H. Winogradoff, organizer for the exposition, announces.

Books, pamphlets, newspapers, magazines and other documents will be exhibited. The greatest labor publishing department, the literature department of the Workers (Communist) Party, has joined the New York comrades in the exposition. The Russian State Publishing departments and other national Communist Parties will actively participate.

It will soon be announced where the exhibition is to be held.

For International Workers' Aid

THE Hungarian branch of the Workers Party arranged a ball in Washington Hall, Perth Amboy, recently and made a thoro success of it. The comrades arranged a fine program, with singers and speeches, and everybody enjoyed himself. The net proceeds of the affair, amounting to $33.04, went to the International Workers' Aid.

This young branch, which contains only 30 members, is now planning a ball in April for the benefit of the Elore, the Hungarian paper of the Workers (Communist) Party. The comrades are also going to give a dance in Cataret, N. J., part of the proceeds of which also will go to the Elore.

The success of these affairs is due to the enthusiastic work of a few comrades, who have been unfailing in their duties.

Harlem Open Forum Weekly Discussion Draws Big Crowds

NEW YORK, March 11.—Israel Amter gave a talk on Sunday evening, March 8, at the open forum of the Harlem section of the Workers Party, local New York, on the subject "Is a Revolution Possible in the United States?"

This subject brought out a great deal of interesting discussion from the audience, and as a result, the meeting proved to be one of the most interesting of the series being held at the Harlam open forum every Sunday evening, at 64 E. 104th street at the Harlem headquarters.

Carlson Next Speaks.

Next Sunday evening, March 15, there will be no forum on account of the Paris Commune celebration and huge press pageant at Madison Square Garden

But the forum will continue every Sunday evening thereafter at the same place, with Oliver Carlson leading the discussion on Sunday evening, March 22, on the subject, "Working Class Education."

Comrade Carlson's specialty is working class education, and therefore an interesting evening is assured. Comrade Carlson spent quite a long time in England and in Soviet Russia where he observed proletarian education as it is conducted under a capitalist regime and under a workers' regime. A large crowd is expected.

Max Salzman Tours Ohio.

CLEVELAND, Ohio.—The national executive committee of the Young Workers' League, following out its policy of sending a national organizer to those states which need such help, has assigned Max Salzman, a member of the national executive committee to spend the next several weeks in Ohio. This additional help and organizational work in Ohio should prove very beneficial to the Young Workers' League in this district. At the conclusion of Comrade Salzman's work in this district, we feel confident that many new nuclei of the league will have been organized and the league work in general have been advanced. Right now Comrade Salzman is attending a convention of miners in Ohio and will assist our comrades there in their work. Comrade Salzman's dates in Ohio are listed below. All sympathizers are invited and urged to attend Comrade Salzman's meetings in the cities named. Workers Party branches are expected to give their utmost assistance in making these meetings successful.

NEGRO PULLMAN WAITER BACK IN CHICAGO AFTER RESCUE FROM FLORIDA SLAVERY FARM

Henry Elligan, the Negro dining car waiter on the crack Illinois Central flyer, "The Floridan," who was kidnapped on Jan. 26 as he stepped off the train at Jacksonville, Fla., is back in his Chicago home. Elligan was spirited away to a peonage farm, where his clothes, containing $100.00 were taken from him and he was put to work cutting vegetables and building roads. Elligan was found only after a stubborn search conducted by three private detective agencies and the railroad.

Two years ago the United States convicted officials of these Florida prison camps for killing Martin Taber, a white boy who was "hoboing" thru the south. The Negroes charge that many of their race are murdered in these camps, their bodies being hidden in the swamps. Elligan's story of his capture, when interviewed at his home here, follows:

"On Jan. 26, two men drove up in an auto near the Union station at Jacksonville and told me I was wanted on a charge of vagrancy. I protested, but they put me in the car and drove off. The next morning I was sent with about eight other men to the prison farm about six miles from the city. We had no trial, but were spirited away and put in overalls to do work on the roads and cut vegetables in a big field. There were about 35 men already at work there. I talked with several of them and none had committed any offense, and said they were 'just picked up on the streets and sent out there.' We all slept on a cement floor and in the clothes we worked in during the day. The meals were horrible.

"I asked the guard to let me get some money out of my clothes that I had worn there, but he told me they had taken it for themselves and that it wouldn't do me any good anyway. When kidnaped I had over $100. After I had served about six days I asked one of the guards why they had brought me out there. He said, 'When we fall short of help we pick up all the stray niggers we see.'

Again Threatened.

"On Feb. 6, I was called into the quarters and told to 'Get the hell out of the camp.' I later learned that this sudden decision was prompted by the rigid investigation friends were making to find me. I was denied the privilege of changing clothes, and had to walk six miles to town in shabby dress. I was again threatened with arrest because of my untidy condition when I reached town, but luckily evaded it. There are men on the farm who told me they had been there for four years. They have never been tried in court. When help falls short on the farm the guards wire to Jacksonville that they need 'some more niggers' and the authorities immediately begin a round-up.

"In Florida this is the modern and legal method of slavery. Nothing is thought of this procedure by the citizens of Jacksonville, and they take little interest in protecting strangers from such vicious tactics."

TRACTION TRUST CUTS SERVICE AS PROFIT AID

fiery resolution—all for political effect, however, for the city council has not a vestige of jurisdiction over the operation of any utilities, having been robbed of all home rule by the creation of the P. S. C. and other commissions.

Appeal was made to this P. S. C. which "ordered" the I. R. C. not to discontinue service on the advertised lines and the I. R. C. reversed its previous order, "for the present." Apparently the "people had triumphed" over the arrogant officials of the I. R. C. Mayor Schwab was "elated"; Commissioner Perkins smiled; the chamber of commerce modestly shared in the credit for the "victory." But disillusionment followed when intimation came from the P. S. C. that possibly if the I. R. C. would be authorized or permitted to raise the fare, service on the five lines in question could be indefinitely continued. Gossip and speculation held the stage for about 48 hours when suddenly a decision from the P. S. C. was handed down authorizing an eight-cent fare—and the plot was out. It was seen that the whole play, from the first announcement by the I. R. C. of intention of discontinuance of service, the protests of "representatives of the people" and of the C. of C. was a conspiracy for the purpose of providing a club with which to force higher fare from the patrons of the road.

The International Railway company of Buffalo, is a scab road, and without question, is the most poorly equipped and most inefficiently managed of any road in a first or second class city in the country. The present head, Herbert Tully, is a highly paid strikebreaker imported from Philadelphia, Pa., where about eight years ago with the aid of the Pennsylvania state troops he broke the strike of the employes of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit company. His reward was the presidency of the Buffalo system. In this capacity he proded the employes into a strike which proved to be one of the most stubbornly fought conflicts in recent labor battles. State troopers were called out, and, upholding the record of brutalities of these American cossacks, they terrorized the people by clubbing them in front of their business places and in some cases following the fleeing citizens into their homes.

For months the people refused to ride the street cars but patronized privately run taxis until the courts drove these off the streets by fining the drivers and owners by the hundreds. Every municipal institution and bureau of authority were mobilized to break the strike. The officials of the road boasted that they had a fund of $4,000,000 with which to break the endurance of the strikers. They finally succeeded; they smashed the union but the finances of the road went down in the crash, and today approaching bankruptcy is written across every car and along most of routes traversed by the cars.

The rails curl and twist along the streets because of sunken roadbed and frequently jump the tracks and crash into store fronts or telegraph poles. From the greatest number of the cars the paint is pealing and they present a most drab appearance. Cracks in the floors let in the icy blasts; the roofs leak like sieves, and the motors work in jerks so that only the most rugged of the patrons can remain on their feet while the cars are in motion. In many of the cars seats lack backs and are broken so that one end of the seat rests on the floor and the other end clings precariously to its rotten support.

For a quarter of a century the system has been in a semi-bankrupt state and bankers have, by crafty "reorganization" schemes endeavored to inject new life into the dying enterprise. But the public service commission has been obliged to come to the rescue by twice permitting a raise in fares. In due time another crisis will follow and the pliant commission will again throw out the life line.

There is the usual lesson for the workers in this experience. It is one of many experiences that should convince them that their solution will be found, not in regulation, not in collaboration with the ruling class representatives, but by the seizure of political power by the workers and determination to administer municipal state, and federal affairs wholly in the interest of the workers.

BUILDERS AT WORK

A DAILY WORKER AGENT REPORTS

And We Add a Word or Two.

COMRADE Alfred E. Goetz, city agent for Detroit, who with his committee has placed his local among the best in the country for the DAILY WORKER, writes us of what he considers is "all in the day's work" of a BUILDER. He says:

> "So far we have no great plans. We are going to concentrate on renewals as that seems to me to be of the greatest importance. If we can stop the leaks in our mailing list we will always be able to make gains and I think it is more important to retain an old subscriber than to gain a new one. Secondly I am going to get some kind of a registration list out and try to ascertain what percentage of the membership subscribes to the paper. I am also going to try and arrange some kind of a mass meeting for the DAILY WORKER with an outside speaker, someone quite prominent nationally in order to get more spirit for the subscription campaign. We are also going to run another special edition of the DAILY WORKER. The distribution of the last special was a real success as almost every copy went into the hands of a factory worker."

These, he says, "are no great plans." But they are among the things that can "build the DAILY WORKER" and we offer them to other locals for action. As comrade Goetz has listed them they are: (1) get renewals; (2) check up the party membership; (3) arrange a DAILY WORKER meeting; (4) a special edition.

No "great plans" among these, but measures that require slow, hard (and heart-breaking) work that will help so much to build up the Communist movement.

LOCKED OUT WORKERS AND RUHR AND RHINELAND CHILDREN ARE HELPED BY RED AID IN GERMANY

BERLIN, Germany, March 11.—At the meeting of the enlarged German central committee of the International Workers' Aid recently held here, the work of the organization was gone into in detail.

The chairman, George Ledebour, prominent left independent social democrat, reported that special help had been extended to 36,000 locked-out workers and their children over the Christmas holidays.

He commented enthusiastically on the constant growth of membership of the International Workers' Aid, the only non-party organization in Germany, where members of differing political views are working together for a common end. This proves, he said, that such an organization is not only a necessity, but that it is a possibility.

German Children's Homes.

One of the first tasks to which the committee devoted itself was the raising of funds for the establishment of a children's home in Grossenhayn, Saxony. The district committees of Berlin-Brandenburg, Saxony, Thuringia, and Laustiz, were obliged to collect money needed in their districts. The committees for the Rhineland and Ruhr were put in charge of the home to be opened at Remscheid. A motion to name this new home the Klara Zetkin Home was carried unanimously.

Work within the factories and trade unions, whence most of the German I. W. A. membership is drawn was taken up in detail. A resolution greeting the efforts of the Anglo-Russian Unity Committee was carried. The agitation for the realization of rights conferred by the social-welfare legislation was supported and efforts will be made to get direct representation of the I. W. A. on these committees of action. During the month of March every I. W. A. member in Germany is expted to enlist a new fellow-member. The meeting closed with three cheers for international solidarity of the working class.

NEW FLARE-UP WRECKS HERRIN GROCERY STORE

Klan Gunman's Family Severely Injured

HERRIN, Ill., March 11. — H. D. Fowler and Gleen Fowler, klansmen who accompanied S. Glenn Young on many of his raids into union miners' homes, were severely injured and Mrs. H. D. Fowler painfully hurt in a dynamite explosion which wrecked their grocery store here early today.

The explosion demolished the two story brick structure, hurling the Fowlers from their sleeping quarters on the second floor into the street. The blast was heard for miles around, and brough a rush of men to Herrin from the surrounding mining towns. Huge crowds gathered in the streets.

The elder Fowler, who is now in the hospital, has been active in klan circles. He belongs to the body of business men who have no sympathy for the miners' union, and who are the backbone of the klan murders and raids here. The cause of the explosion has not been ascertained.

Two men, Escoe Landford and Paul Riddle, both of Marion, in an alleged stolen car were arrested shortly after the explosion and spirited away to Marion, it was learned. The klan authorities believe the two might have some knowledge to the bombing.

Herrin was again seething with excitement as word of the explosion penetrated the surrounding country.

Miners Like Movies of Workingclass in Bentleyville, Pa.

BENTLEYVILLE, Pa., March 11—Bentleyville is going to celebrate May Day with a working class movie show. These militant miners have run every film but one that has been offered by the International Workers' Aid, and now they want that one. Bentleyville is not a very big place and it is just as hard-boiled as any mining town or manufacturing town in America. But the workers know from experience that nothing draws as solid a working class support as a movie show with a working class viewpoint. Recently "The Beauty and the Bolshevik" was shown to packed houses and with many turned away, to the intense envy of the regular showmen who were offering the best of the movie trust pictures, at lower prices, in competition.

The May Day picture program consists of "Polikushka," "Soldier Ivan's Miracle" and "Life of Lenin."

Any local wanting to book movie films to liven up May Day or other programs should get in touch with the International Workers' Aid, 19 S. Lincoln St., Chicago, Ill.

Gas and Daggers in Geneva

A strong odor of garlic and onions pervades the diplomatic atmosphere in Geneva. The garlicky exhalation comes from the general direction of the very excited M. Skrzynski, representing the Polish delegation. The onion is a well known vegetable that sometimes brings tears. The French government handed it to Poland yesterday. It represents the new French attitude towards one of hitherto most pampered clients.

Diplomats are running around like members of an audience suddenly thrown into panic by the bursting of stink bombs. Confidence is conspicious by its absence except insofar as everybody is a confidence man. But too much of a good thing is almost worse than a famine.

What is taking place in Geneva is a new staging of the old comedy which was originally put on the boards at Versailles. It was a boxoffice fizzle but beggars can't be chosers. The producers are trying to jazz it up but the actors don't pull together. They insist on hanging separately.

The marauding powers of Europe need peace but they don't want it. The big and little bandits are atempting to accomplish the impossible in the open but in secret they are doing the inevitable. Falcon-flying was an aristocratic sport in medieval days. Exhibiting the fluttering dove has taken its place in the open-spaces, but behind the screens the rasp of daggers licking grindstones falls on the listening ear.

The first thing a diplomat does on awakening these days in Geneva is to rub his hand cautiously over his windpipe to learn if the representative of some "friendly" nation has succeeded in carving that delicate portion of his anatomy during the night. This is the mental attitude of the statesmen who are gathered in Geneva to outlaw war.

The Poles are worrying about the Danzig corridor. So are the Germans. England admits she doesn't care a hang for any other country but England. France thinks this is a bright idea and warns Poland that she expects too much from her wet nurse. This is the way the situation stands today. Tomorrow it may be different.

And while the bankrupt capitalist diplomats babble like the guests in a nut house, Soviet Russia looks on with a business smile.

The Red Army is not growing perceptibly smaller.

Three News Stories

Three stories on our front page yesterday furnish food for much thought. One tells of the menace of fascism in Germany; the second of the protest against the recent lynching of two Negroes sent to the governor of Georgia and the president of the United States.

The third tells of forty per cent reduction in the agricultural tax in Soviet Russia, of the amnesty declared for the counter-revolutionists who took part in the menshevik rebellion in Transcaucasia last year, the sowing of an increased acreage of 15 per cent by the Russian peasants, and other items that show efficiency, toleration and stability.

In this great capitalist nation black workers are burned at the stake; in Germany the capitalists are considering the emulation of Mussolini—outright terrorisation and suppression of the working-class.

From Soviet Russia the news is of a mighty and even majestic character indicating rapid and irresistible progress toward a Communist society. In Russia the interests of the individual has been subordinated to the interest of the workers and peasantry—the great majority of the population. The workers and peasants rule thru the Communist Party, their party. They have passed thru the crisis of the revolution and the country and all its wealth belongs to them.

There is no persecution of one race by another in Russia; there is no fascist army to terrorize the masses, the army is their army.

Is it any wonder that every honest worker and intellectual who spends some time in Soviet Russia is anxious to return? The capitalist press says otherwise but when we scan the list of those who denounce Soviet Russia and the Russian Communist Party we find that none of them wanted to help build the workers' and peasants' republic but hoped for its destruction.

Making It Clear to Debs

In the weekly official organ of the socialist party dated March 7, Eugene V. Debs explains that he has nothing in common with the Communists. He makes the statement that "some unscrupulous propagandists" are trying to "discredit" the socialist party "by spreading the report that I am really with the Communists and a socialist in name only."

If Debs thinks that the Communists are trying to make the workers believe that he is a Communist we hasten to tell him that he is mistaken.

The only person that ever made the statement that he was a Communist was Debs himself when he said in Canton that "I am a Bolshevik from the top of my head to the soles of my feet." We Communists never took seriously this declaration as it requires something more than oratory to make a Communist.

Debs is not a revolutionist, he is a pacifist. He is not a Communist—he is a member of the counter-revolutionary socialist party, a part of the Second International with its Abramovichs, Scheidemanns and MacDonalds.

His role at present is that of furnishing a semi-respectable front for the Hillquits, Bergers, Oneals and the Jewish Daily Forward.

It would have been far better for Debs had he died in Atlanta before he fell into hands of the slimy crew that uses him to further their attacks on Soviet Russia and the world revolution. His name then would have been a source of inspiration to thousands of workers who knew him only in the old days when his sympathy for the workers' sufferings made him their champion. He will pass away soon now and be remembered only as one of the many leaders who could not recognize the revolution when it came clothed in the tattered garments of the workers and peasants, stained with blood and hewing its path to power thru blood and fire.

No, Eugene Victor Debs, you are not a Communist. You are just a confused old fighter who could not use the new weapons of the workers and because of this you believed when the cunning yellow liars told you the Communist International was not the leader of the world revolution.

The Coolidge Star Sets

If you ask us about what happened in the senate yesterday we will say very frankly that "the strong silent man" in the White House has been the victim of a frame-up.

The redoubtable Dawes, the administration's commissar in the senate, was asleep—or says he was—when the appointment of Charles Warren to the attorney generalship was turned down. He arrived in the chamber just in time to give first aid to some of the wounded Warrenites who cluttered up the floor, but too late to be of any assistance in the fray.

We, as our readers are aware, are partial to the theory that Calvin Coolidge is slated for the scrap heap by the big capitalists who elected him. We know that the defeat of Warren, the sugar trust lawyer, will be hailed as a mighty victory for the forces of democracy by all the "progressives" and liberals, but it is nothing of the sort. His defeat is the result of Calvin Coolidge, president by virtue of the ptomaine poison concealed in a dead crab, biting off more than he could chew.

Nobody wanted Warren except Coolidge. The Michigan state republican organization was solidly against him. His record consisted of a large number of spongy spots from which oozed a sickening slime that even most republican politicians could not see and smell without nausea. But he had been one of the original Coolidge men, was active at the republican convention and Cal had to have him.

He did not get him, but to say that democracy has triumphed is to believe that men like Senator Bruce are champions of the masses.

Coolidge is going to be obliterated in the most scientific manner. He is a nuisance to his supporters because it takes too much publicity and vigilance to make him a popular hero. Dawes is the type Wall Street wants and after yesterday Coolidge probably knows that his star is setting.

There have been frame-ups in Washington before, but none so well staged. Coolidge, if it is possible for him to think of anything except paying election debts, might ponder for a few moments on the cases of Sacco and Vanzetti and Tom Mooney.

More Police—For What?

The capitalist press and other agencies of the ruling class show much ingenuity in devising new instruments for the suppression of the workers and farmers. The state police bill now before the Illinois legislature is an example.

The state of Illinois, like every other state in the union, is covered with law enforcing officials—sheriffs and their deputies, city policemen, militiamen, prohibition enforcement officers, in addition to the squads of private detectives and "watchmen" maintained by private corporations.

But the nervous capitalists are not content with this army of mercenaries. Not a session of the legislature convenes, but a demand is made for additional armed forces. For what? To take care of criminals? It is to laugh. The forces of "law n' order" grow like the green bay tree and crimes continue to increase by leaps and bounds. Policemen do not try to wipe out crime. They encourage it as a guarantee of permanent employment.

The only time all the forces of the state act unanimously and with enthusiasm is when workers are on strike or engaged in some other form of challenging the power of the capitalists. In such periods no lowly constable is so humble as not to be ordered to the joyous task of clubbing and shooting workers. The infrequent refusals of any of this ilk to smash skulls for the profit and glory of capitalism is eloquent testimony showing that they know to whom they owe allegiance.

Who wants state police? The Illinois chamber of commerce. This ought to be enough to damn the proposal in the minds of every worker and farmer and to unite every section of the labor movement in resistance to the scheme to make easier the suppression of the workers.

British imperialist diplomacy is not doing so well in Europe since the Soviet government set the fashion of publishing secret documents of that and other capitalist governments. It is very hard for liars to achieve any real brilliancy when the astute revolutionists that head a government of 150,000,000 people are checking up on them.

SOVIET RUSSIA NEARS PRE-WAR COMMERCE LEVEL

Foreign Trade and Production Increase

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 11.—A compilation of official statistics of the Soviet Union made public today by the Russian Information Bureau shows that in spite of a bad harvest affecting about one-tenth of the farming population, the Soviet Republic enjoyed a banner year in 1924 and made great progress towards equalling pre-war productivity. In most lines of production the advances planned were achieved or surpassed, and in the greater number of industries it is estimated that the pre-war level will be exceeded during the next three years. During the year Soviet finances were definitely established on a gold basis and paper issues ceased. Trade with the United States passed the pre-war figures in 1924.

The percentage figures of production, prepared from official reports and documents, are for the Soviet fiscal year ending October 1. The only commodities in which a decrease was shown from the year 1922-23 were salt, goloshes, tires, tobacco products and grain products, the last named having fallen off 9 per cent.

Basic Industries Increase Output.

The percentage of increase in some of the principal products over the 1922-23 figures were as follows:

Timber 20 per cent, coal 40 per cent, petroleum 18 per cent, martensite 80 per cent, iron ore 112 per cent, copper 60 per cent, manganese 45 per cent, textiles 35 to 50 per cent, flax fabric 35 per cent, matches 30 per cent, rolled iron 50 per cent, pig iron 122 per cent, steel 35 per cent, hides 3 per cent, raw sugar 40 per cent. The cotton crop showed an increase of 800 per cent in two years.

Imports and exports Higher.

Imports increased 100 per cent and exports 150 per cent.

In agriculture the sown area increased 10 per cent and the gross value of the agricultural produce, in spite of the disappointing grain harvest, increased 4.5 per cent at pre-war prices, or 150 per cent at current prices, due to an increase of 20 per cent in crops other than grains. Cattle-raising increased by from 5 to 10 per cent, hogs by 64 per cent.

The freight turnover increased by from 20 to 25 per cent, the goods turnover by 85 per cent. The money in circulation increased from 264 million rubles Oct. 1, 1923, to 629 million chervonetz rubles Oct. 1, 1924.

By July, 1924, the currency of the Soviet Union was established wholly on a gold basis. During the first three-quarters of the fiscal year it was necessary to issue 180,000,000 rubles (gold value) of paper money unsecured by gold to balance the budget. By July these issues had definitely ceased and during the last quarter of the year the government's finance showed a surplus for the first time. The new chervonetz currency remained stable thruout the year, being quoted generally at slightly above par on the European exchanges.

Nearing Pre-War Production.

In 1924, the population of the Soviet Union was 75 per cent of the population of czarist Russia in 1913 (owing to the post-war loss of heavily populated territory in the west); the area was 93 per cent. Heavy industry had reached from 40 to 60 per cent of pre-war production, light industry 60 to 80 per cent; in agriculture the sown was 88 per cent, grain crop 58 per cent, horses 74 per cent, cattle 90 per cent.

Taxation per capita was seven gold rubles as compared with 11 gold rubles before the war.

Foreign trade for the year, computed at pre-war prices, was 25 per cent of the pre-war figure. At current prices it would amount to over two-fifths of the pre-war figure. The foreign trade turnover amounted to close to $300,000,000 (pre-war valuation), with a balance of about $65,000,000 of exports over imports. About two-fifths of the trade was with Great Britain. During the year imports were limited by the policy of the government to achieve a favorable trade balance.

According to the reports of the United States department of commerce the trade between Russia in Europe and the United States for the calendar year 1924, was $48,280,896, as compared with $45,000,000 in 1913. In 1924, over $40,000,000 represented exports from the United States. The trade turnover showed an increase of nearly 900 per cent over 1923. The gain was largely due to extensive purchases of American cotton by Russian trade organizations.

American imports from Russia increased by over 500 per cent. The figures for American-Russian trade as compiled by the Russian trading agencies are considerably in excess of the figures as compiled by the department of commerce. They total $51,000,000 for the first nine months of the calendar year 1924. The discrepancy may be attributed to differences in valuation and the fact that the Russian figures include purchases made and paid for in America but not yet cleared from American ports.

Capitalist Tools Busy in Minnesota

trolled the party up until then. In the last election the candidates endorsed by the Communists in the farmer-labor primaries were the official nominees of the party. This again made the reactionaries realize the growing power of the left wing in the movement. The result was an effort by all of these elements to unite their forces and tear down the progressive steps that had been taken. They even convinced Mahoney, Cramer, Harmon and other centrist elements that the farmer-labor party was becoming a Communist Party and that steps must be taken to block this development.

A few weeks ago this right wing sentiment crystallized itself into a conference in St. Paul. This conference was made up of a hand picked group composed of members of the state legislature, Mahoney, Harmon, Buckler, the state chairman of the farmer-labor party, and other similar elements. They decided that the farmer-labor federation was too radical, that certain petty bourgeoise elements in the farmer-labor party could not continue to support the party if the federation continued to control.

Mahoney Lies.

This group, therefore, decided to call a "unity" convention to be held on the 20th in St. Paul. In order to appease the opposition sentiment that developed as a result of this conference, Mahoney in a speech before the Hennepin county committee of the farmer-labor federation deliberately lied to get an endorsement for his convention. He told them that in Minneapolis, St. Paul, and Duluth where the unions were strongly supporting the farmer-labor federation, that these organizations would elect the delegation to the state convention.

As usual, his words meant nothing when he saw that by permitting that procedure to be followed, it would result in the election of a left wing delegation so he, together with Buckler, issued a call for the Hennepin county convention ignoring the county farmer-labor federation entirely.

Workers Framed On.

Furthermore, this convention was called at 2:00 o'clock on Saturday afternoon when it was utterly impossible for rank and file workers to be present. The convention was attended by 38 delegates, all of whom were either office holders, business agents, or middle class politicians. The only rank and file workers in the hall were Comrades Youngdahl, and Stevens, both of whom were unseated because of their membership in the Workers Party. Watkins of the switchmen, another actual worker, was roughly set in his place when he took exception to the procedure followed by the conference. Hennepin county was entitled to 64 delegates to the state convention, only 38 attended the Hennepin county meeting, two of whom were unseated and several others left the hall in disgust, leaving little better than 30 to elect the delegation. Of the delegation of 64 that were chosen, only three could in any sense be construed as members of the rank and file or of having any progressive ideas.

Unseat Emme and Votaw.

In St. Paul they took a chance on a convention in the evening. This was attended by 68 delegates. The first official act of the convention was the unseating of Comrades Emme and Votaw. There it took some clever maneuvering to put this over as their majority was shaky. The credentials committee in making its report, held up the credentials of about ten delegates as being questionable, but recommended that neither Emme or Votaw be seated. The ten delegates held up were all left wing votes and after they had unseated Emme and Votaw, they then moved to seat the ten. A delegation of 33 was elected to the state convention made up entirely of reactionaries with the exception of three or four who may furnish some little opposition.

A nominating committee proposed the list to the convention and in the nominating committee the reactionary group stated that they would not recommend any one as a delegate to the state convention who voted to seat Emme and Votaw on the first vote. This eliminated 25 delegates from any chance of going to the state convention.

The Acid Test.

In other words, they figured that any one that would fight to seat a Communist in the county convention was not the kind of timber that would help them destroy the farmer-labor federation and turn the farmer-labor movement over to a bunch of middle class fakers. The reports coming in from the various county conventions thruout the state show that similar tactics were employed. The March 20th convention will not be a farmer-labor convention. It will be made up of the elements that in the past have been the henchmen of the corrupt democratic machine in Minnesota. These elements are the same ones that have pulled the chestnuts out of the fire for the democratic party in the labor movement in the past.

Will Sell Out Workers.

The rank and file workers in Minnesota should be on their guard against the March 20 convention. The March 20 convention is going to sell out the farmer-labor movement. All local unions would do well to notify this convention in no uncertain language that they do not recognize it as being representative of the movement that they built and insist on the calling of a state convention of the farmer-labor federation that can give expression to the desires of the rank and file of the Minnesota movement.

What is left for the Civil Liberties Union to do? Liquidate! Perish the thought. There are a few assassins, who tried to murder the leaders of the Russian revolution in Soviet jails. They were ready to throw the bomb or push the knife in return for foreign gold. Now, that Coolidge has returned this country to the ideals of "the fathers" and has transformed the department of justice into a respectable research bureau for getting information that will enable the "people" to punish "malefactors of great wealth" Roger Baldwin and his army of knight errants, will measure swords with the Soviet government.

RADICALS may take comfort from the thought that the next time they find a witness on the stand against them, he or she will not be a horny-handed fink who graduated from a sewer or a mine but a law school graduate. It will be much more satisfactory to the ego to take a "rap" under such conditions than to be railroaded on the testimony of a stool-pigeon who uses the language of a Bowery bum. Roger Baldwin is becoming militant. When pacifist get that way, they usually take it out on the revolutionists.

Two Workers Party Branches in Contest for Subscriptions

At last Tuesday night's meeting of the North West Side branch, a challenge was issued to the Mid City branch in the subscription campaign which the DAILY WORKER opens on March 15.

Several of the members preferred to take on the North Side branch, it being the largest English branch in the city, and only the assurance that what the Mid City lacked in numbers, was made up for in militancy, convinced the members that they were entering into a battle with foes worthy of their steel.

The North West Side branch has invited all and sundry to an entertainment and dance which will be held next Sunday evening from 8 p. m. to 1 a. m. at the Workers' Lyceum, 2733 Hirsch Blvd. Tickets cost only 35 cents. Refreshments will be served.

Claim New Deal in Relations of U. S. with Japan

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Diplomatic relations between Japan and the United States will enter into a new and interesting phase tomorrow with the arrival in Washington of Tuneo Matsudaira, Japan's new ambassador to the United States.

Ambassador Matsuaira comes direct from the foreign office, where he has been vice-minister, to find Secretary of State Kellogg officiating where Charles Evans Hughes officiated during the interchange of notes regarding the immigration question.

Insull Spreads Some More

FORT WAYNE, Ind., March 11.—The $20,000,000 Indiana Service corporation today passed into control of Samuel Insull, of Chicago, and his associates with the election of a new board of directors on which eastern interests have no place.

sale cut to affect nearly 650,000 employes. In the majority of cases the cut would amount to 6 shillings (1 shilling, 24c) a week.

The union demands, presented in December, include a flat rate of 16 shillings a day for engineers, a minimum of 60 shillings a week for shop laborers, a guaranteed day and week for all employes, pensions at 60 years and a shortening of the service required of clerks before they receive maximum pay.

Longer Hours Means Revolt.

"The government will start a revolution if they attempt to touch miners' hours" says Secretary Cook of the British Miners' Federation. Cook is traveling thru the mining districts attempting to clarify the miners' ideas on the agreement which terminates this year. According to Cook, "Whatever may be the condition of industry on the 7-hour day there will be no compromise."

This means a fight sooner or later, for the operators insist on a longer working day to meet foreign competition. Cook does not want a strike until he can count on the other unions. Addressing a meeting at Ardwick he said: "Because I sounded a note of warning the press says I have been advocating a strike. I am going to do all I can before July next to avoid a stoppage then. I want to test the solidarity of the trade unions before there is notice given."

Metal Trades Bosses Want Battle

Metal trades employers have told the Amalgamated Engineering Union they will not consider an increase of $4.75 a week unless the union will consent to changes in rules to lower the cost of production. They claim this is necessary to meet foreign competition.

The longstanding conditions these big employers insist on altering involve output, hours, the day and night shift agreement, and payments for overtime, night shift and double day shift work.

Whole Labor Movement Involved

The way the entire labor movement may be involved is shown by a Newcastle labor man not immediately connected with the negotiations: "We are not in this affair directly but we are all in indirectly whether we like it or not. It looks to me as if the employers are going to show us the way by driving us all to the wall again where we will have to fight together."

DAILY WORKER AGENTS IN BIG SUB DRIVE PLANS

"Every Party Member at Least One Sub"

mittee wants to set an example for the rest of the party.

Branches Responsible.

Comrade Thurber Lewis, the city DAILY WORKER agent, was instructed to send to the branches every two weeks the expiration lists of the DAILY WORKER subs. These will be sent to the branches according to mailing stations and the branches will assume the responsibility for renewals.

The meeting recommended that all branches instead of having two agents; one for literature and one for DAILY WORKER—should have but one to care for both. In branches of considerable size a committee should be elected to assist the agent.

The matter of getting to union meetings with the DAILY WORKER and other party publications was discussed at length. This work is falling off in the branches. Comrade Lewis was instructed to reassign to every branch in the city a certain number of union meetings to be covered regularly by branch committees.

Shipment of Books.

The matter of new literature was taken up. The comrades were informed that a large shipment of new English books had arrived—books that are of first interest to all party members and sympathizers and books that can be readily sold. Also, the DAILY WORKER is getting out pamphlets regularly now that must be circulated thru the branches. The propaganda committee assumed the job of getting this new literature before the membership by visiting the branches assigned to them.

The DAILY WORKER agents were informed of what members of the propaganda committee are assigned to their particular branches. The committee has divided up the branches in the city so that each member will have a few branches to care for. They are to see that competent DAILY WORKER literature agents are elected and that the branches carry on their propaganda functions. The division has been made as follows:

Bob Garver:—S. S. English, Englewood English; S. S. Scandinavian, S. S. Polish, South Slavish.

Charles Erickson:—Branches in Cicero.

Clara Gabin:—Douglas Park, English; Douglas Park, Jewish; Northwest Jewish, Russian No. 1.

Nick Dozenberg:—Lettish, Polish, N. S.; Hungarian, Italian Terra Cotta.

Gertrude Welsh:—North Side English, German, Italian 31st Ward, Armenian.

Hans Johnson:— Finnish branch, Scandinavian Lakeview, Ukrainian, N. S.

Kitty Harris:— Mid-City English, Czecho-Slovak No. 1, Lithuanian No. 77.

Paul Simonson:—Irving Park English, Greek, West Side Italian, Scandinavian Karl Marx.

Thurber Lewis:—Bulgarian, Czech-Brookfield, Italian 11th ward, Lithuanian No. 2, Lithuanian No. 5, Lithuanian No. 41, Roumanian, Ukrainian No. 5.

Because many branches have changed their meeting times lately or their addresses, branch agents and secretaries are requested to notify Thurber Lewis of the time and place of their branch meetings. The new literature department and bookstore is at 19 S. Lincoln St.

GENERAL STRIKE OF ALL GERMAN UNIONS, URGED BY COMMUNISTS, IS OPPOSED BY THE SOCIALISTS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BERLIN, March 12.—The conference between the Dawes Plan railway administration and the unions of striking railwaymen, which was to be held yesterday, was postponed until today. Each side seems undisposed to yield and the menace of a complete general strike hovers over all Germany.

The postponement was made, supposedly, to enable the unions to formulate definite proposals and to prepare to spread the strike to all German rail workers.

Socialists Try to Avoid General Strike.

The officials of the Berlin unions, who are counter-revolutionary social democrats, have refused to meet with the delegates of the shop committees of railway workers, which are rank and file organizations largely under Communist leadership, on the excuse that these shop committees are not recognized by the agreement between

THE royal German republic is in serious danger. It would be nothing short of a scandal to rob it of its fig leaf, but present indications are that the nationalists will inherit it from the socialists, who to give credit where it is due, kept the fig leaf constantly repaired. The socialists have decided to run their own candidate for the vacancy created by the death of Herr Ebert. The right wing of the catholic party are pledged to the nationalists, who hanker for the job of official undertaker to the royal German republic.

IN the meantime the German workers are getting properly fleeced to pay the Wall Street bankers for their trouble in salvaging the mark and putting a prop under German industry. The Communists have a candidate in the field, who stands for the overthrow of capitalism and the establishment of a Soviet republic. The Communists care less for the royal German republic than do the nationalists, yet they are the only real republicans in Germany. When they come into power, the German workers will have a real republic and not a sham one. They will own and control it.

LOUIS LOUCHEUR, eminent [illegible] in the sense that [illegible] are eminent, that is, eminent [illegible], in an interview published in Le Journal, declared that France needs a foreign loan of four billion francs in order to enable the treasury to pay its obligations. What a genius this man Loucheur is! And is it not strange that no other French capitalist expert thot of this solution before? It appears that the French government faces the problem of finding funds to meet the maturity of 23 billions worth of securities due this year. Four billion francs is much less than 23 billion, but it is better than nothing. The credit system may be puzzling, but you've got to hand it to a bunch of burglars who can make it work, even for a time.

SAMUEL VAUCLAIN is president of the Baldwin Locomotive Works. He is a man with a temperament that sizzles like that of Vice-president Dawes. It is not widely known whether like the explosive general, he takes an afternoon nap or not when there is an important directors' meeting. But he does a lot of talking particularly about the dissatisfied American workingman, who he declares, is the best paid worker in the world. "What we need," said Samuel, "is more of the spirit of sacrifice." This came partly thru the nostrils, much after the manner of a labor faker exuding prosperity bunk to an audience of unemployed trade unionists. A Polish woman lost her husband, he said, without specifying what kind of a husband. She lost her factory. He thought this was terrible. You could see the sad look in his eye.

VAUCLAIN went to bring her consolation. "You must feel terrible about this," he said. "No," she proudly replied, "we still have our country." If the American workers could only feel this way, when they see their jobs taken away from them, when they see their comrades killed in a preventable industrial disaster, when they see judges issue injunctions against them, prohibiting them from striking for more bread and butter, when they see their wives and children cold and hungry, while the wives and children of the employers revel in luxury and idleness—then everything would be nice. But they don't feel that way and they will not. They

Japan Seeks Aid of Coolidge to Regain Chinese Railroad

(Special to The Daily Worker)

TOKIO, Japan, March 12.—Ambassador Matsudaira upon assuming his duties in Washington, will endeavor to secure Coolidge's aid in wresting control of the Chinese Eastern Railway from Soviet Russia. In order to accomplish this, he will seek to have the nine power treaty made at Washington with regard to China put into effect. SUN YAT SEN IS DEAD IN CHINA; SOVIET FLAG ALONE AT HALF MAST

PEKING, China, March 12.—Sun Yat Sen, who died here this morning after a severe illness which became worse following an operation at the American Rockefeller hospital on January 26, was the first president of the Chinese republic.

He overthrew the Manchu rulers in 1911 and became president. However, he was forced to flee from the Chinese war lords and later established the republic of southern China with its capital at Canton.

The flag of Soviet Russia is the only foreign flag at half mast here. A conference of Kuomintang leaders of north Central China will probably be held here soon.

REYNOLDS NOT GUILTY, SAYS DETROIT JUDGE

Decides Hutcheson Has No Case

DETROIT, Mich., March 12.—In spite of all the efforts of the agents of Hutcheson to place William Reynolds, president of Carpenters' Local Union 2140, and vice president of the Detroit District Council, into jail for defying an injunction they had secured against his attendance at any carpenters' union meetings, Judge Ormond Hunt today dismissed the contempt proceedings and dissolved the injunction.

Had a Right to Violate Injunction

The defense of Reynolds was not that he had not violated the injunction, but that the injunction violated his rights. Therefore, he had refused to recognize it and had broken its prescriptions without regard to consequences.

Reynolds, however, feels that the verdict of the court is rather a matter of indifference and comes along behind time, as he cares much more for the verdict of the membership of the carpenters' union, which had overwhelmingly supported him and unanimously condemn his illegal expulsion by Hutcheson.

Fakers the Ones Who Went to Court

How the fakers feel about it, including Hutcheson alone with the local reactionaries, James Sharrock, Sam Botterill and Harold (Jelly) Fish, they do not disclose, but as they are to ones who took the matter into the capitalist court, as plaintiffs, they ought to be satisfied with the result. But they are today a disappointed looking lot of failures.

NAME OF TOOL OF TRUSTS GOES BACK TO SENATE

"Cal" Tries Again to Put Warren Over

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 12.—President Coolidge has sent the name of Charles Warren, sugar trust agent, back to the senate as his choice for the next attorney general, despite the growing opposition to Warren, and the chances that Coolidge's choice will be rejected by the senate for a second time.

Has Conference With Warren.

Coolidge made this decision after a conference with Warren. It seems that Warren has a great desire to be attorney general, and the trusts controlling Warren and the Coolidge administration prevailed.

Big business insists that a safe man be put in so that they do not have to worry in the future about anti-trust prosecution.

A lot of shady deals have revolved around the department of justice in the Coolidge administration, and Wall Street considers Warren just the man to keep these deals from the public, if not to put over a few on his own hook.

Senators Razz Dawes.

Vice-president Charles G. Dawes was subjected to a "hazing" today from both sides of the senate chamber for his absence on Tuesday, when his vote would have prevented the rejection of Charles B. Warren's appointment, and his subsequent futile dash from the hotel to the chamber to try to save the day.

Senator Norris, republican, of Nebraska, read a poem which burlesqued the vice-president's hurried taxi ride. It described the ride as being like the "Eagle's Flight" and the "Tail of a Comet."

In closing, the poem placed Dawes in the congressional hall of fame with this inscription on his memorial statue, "Oh, Hell and Maria, he has lost the

2,000 THREAD WORKERS STRIKE AGAINST WAGE CUT IN CONNECTICUT

HARTFORD, Conn., March 12.—About 2,000 workers in the American Thread Co., mill are striking against wage cuts averaging 10 per cent. The finishing department is out and hundreds of workers from other unorganized departments followed.

The strikers, members of the United Textile Workers' Union meet in union hall. Don. H. Curtis, agent of the company, attempted to minimize the strike by saying that 1,000 workers were still at their jobs. Strikers say that not more than 400 failed to come out.

30,000 DRESS MAKERS STRIKE ON THE JOB

2,000 Bosses Find Bossing Is Vain

NEW YORK CITY, March 12.—The key of successful struggle by the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union, the rank and file committee of 300, formed to organize the shops, has opened the door to a new fighting tactic in the stoppage of work, which yesterday began in about 2,000 dress and waist shops, where 30,000 workers sat idle at their machines, while bosses raged and cursed and vainly implored them to work, and about 2,000 shop chairmen met at the Stuyvesant Casino and Webster Hall.

The shop chairmen met to discuss further action to force the members of the Wholesale Dress Manufacturers' association, including the jobbing houses, to live up to the agreement they signed.

To Standarize Wages

The agreement signed last month, provided a specified price be placed on piece of work. In this way, it proposed to put every manufacturer on the same labor cost basis and cut out the haggling over prices on piece work. In many shops this part of the agreement is being ignored.

The union officials, whom the bosses have depended upon to stop any concerted militant action, repeatedly reported that they had "made efforts" to get the bosses to live up to the agreement, but could do nothing.

No Retreat from What's Won!

The stirke on the job was the result and the rank and file committee of 300, responsible for organizing the shops is determined not to lose the shops after they are organized, by permitting the bosses to violate the agreement. The shop chairmen are shaping their tactics in conformity with this purpose.

Today the workers are reporting, as they did yesterday; but today, as yesterday, they will sit at their machines without doing any work, and will continue to do this until the manufacturers come to time.

Judge Henry Walker, of the municipal court, who declare from his bench in open court that he thot "The ku klux klan is all right and I am in sympathy with it," is crazy in the opinion of the city council.

The aldermen's suspicions of Walker's sanity were further aroused when he said, "Bums and alderman look alike to me," and they also charge that they have seen him drinking beer after fining a worker heavily for the same offense. The resolution to investigate Walker's sanity was passed unanimously.

PROGRESSIVE COAL DIGGER SCORES FAKERS

Whiff of Fresh Aid Kills "Red Plot"

(Special to The DAILY WORKER.)

BELLAIRE, Ohio, March 12.—In a reply to a tirade of abuse levelled against the progressives in the United Mine Workers of America, by imported fakers, from the Pittsburgh district, J. J. Hoge, candidate for sub-district president on the progressive ticket speaking at yesterday's session of the eastern Ohio miners' annual convention, declared that the progressive elements in the miners' union alone, stood for and advocated a national campaign against wage cuts and offered a program that would solidify the miners' organization and secure for them the co-operation of the workers in the vitally important railroad industry.

Pat Fagan of Pittsburgh, one of the most loyal lackeys of John L. Lewis made a vicious attack on Alexander Howat, the man who smashed the Kansas Industrial Court act, even tho he had to spend several months in jail in so doing. It was Howat who built up the Kansas district and forced the coal operators to come to heel, until John L. Lewis and his machine in conjunction with the coal barons, railroaded Howat from office in defiance of the membership and have kept him out of office since despite the fact that 95 per cent of the members have steadfastly voted for him.

Patsy Fagan's Song.

Another point of Fagan's attack was the opposition of the Workers Party to LaFollette in the recent national elections.

LaFollette was a trade union candidate declared Fagan despite the fact that the Wisconsin senator refused to have labor write even a line of his platform or do anything else except pay the bills. If the Workers Party deserves condemnation for opposing LaFollette because he was not a representative of labor, what about Fagan's boss Lewis, who was on the Coolidge campaign committee? The Workers Party proved that LaFollette was only a bourgeois politician who represented the petty bourgeoisie and that section of the labor bureaucracy that had not made a good bargain with the republicans and democrats. The Workers Party alone stood for the interests of the masses of workers.

Ledvinka expressed his pleasure at Fagan's speech and hoped that his stuff would sink into the minds of the delegates. Fagan admitted that the Communists were the only strong opposition to the faker's machine in Pittsburgh. He lashee the DAILY WORKER for telling the truth about his rotten machine.

Report Was Alright!

The committee on reports of officers reported that the officers reports were alright. They agreed that the progressive miners' committee was a nuisance to the official bureaucrats and called it a dual organization. A delegate asked if a political party would be branded a dual organization. Chairman Hall replied that it would all depend on the policy of the political party.

Delegate Hoge differed very strongly with the official viewpoint. The plan of the reactionary machine was very carefully laid, he said. He wanted to know where or how the leaflet issued by the progressive miners in behalf of their candidates violated the miners' constitution. He wanted to know if wanting a union 100 per cent organized was treason. He favored an alliance between the railroad workers and the coal diggers. Any amount of dust raised over the fight with the scabby leader of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers would not weaken the crying need for working class solidarity, not alliances between fake leaders but between the rank and file of all labor unions, the men who do the work; not those who sit

NEW ANTI-SOVIET ATTACK FIZZLES IN NEW YORK CITY

Liberals, Socialists and Anarchists Tiresome

NEW YORK, March 12.—A meeting arranged by the new International Committee for Political Prisoners ended in the singing of the Internationale by a large number of Communists at Town Hall.

B. Charney Vladeck, the yellow socialist, who had been speaking on the same platform as his counter revolutionary-in-arms, Raphael Abramovitch, was not allowed to speak, even tho he puffed and stormed and drank cold water to cool his spleen and anger.

Meeting Drawls Along

The meeting was one of the most tiresome affairs that even liberals could arrange. Norman Hapgood, who was in the chair, acted like all liberals: this was a matter that "interest" the liberals and social-democrats, but not a matter that goes to the heart. His was the role of a jovial man bent upon fairness, without consideration of the fact that the imprisonment, torture and death of revolutionary workers and peasants are a diabolical crime against the whole working class.

The meeting drawled along, with one speaker after the other telling of the terrors of prison life in their own country and appealing sentimentally to the crowd to "awaken public opinion in the United States" to cause a change—in Spain, Hungary, Esthonia, Germany, Jugo-Slavia. An elderly reverend told about the laws that are being pressed upon the people of India without their consent. He had to be stopped by the chairman, because the audience was falling asleep.

A young Irish doctor produced the first spark of enthusiasm when he declared that the "Irish people showed how men could fight and die for their rights."

Baldwin Reads Paper

Roger Baldwin, head of the American Civil Liberties Bureau, read from a type-written statement "so that he might not be misquoted." He enumerated the enterprises that he supported in Soviet Russia and his restraint from participating in any political discussion on Soviet Russia. But now he demands that liberty of press, speech and thought be restored in Soviet Russia. Cries of "Three Cheers for Soviet Russia" filled the hall. "Long Live the Soviet government" interrupted him.

Then Vladeck, the smirking, oily agent of the capitalist class was given the floor. He immediately was booed. Between the hisses and boos, he managed to say "Friends and Comrades" —and that was the end of his speech. Each time he opened his mouth, the hall was filled with cries of contempt, and cheers for Soviet Russia. This continued for ten or fifteen minutes, while Vladeck walked up and down the platform and drank cold water—swallowing his chagrin and anger at the same time. The Communists dominated the meeting. The liberals, anarchists and socialists left the hall, while cries of "Join the Workers (Communist) Party," and cheers for the Soviet government sounded in the hall and balcony.

Cops There in Plenty

Cops were there in plenty. But the cops did not know what to do. Town hall is in a section of the city in which the police are not yet accustomed to meet with such demonstrations. They quieted the comrades who were attacked by socialists who can only use their mouths half-heartedly when speakers attempt to put proletarian prisoners in Hungary, Spain and Germany on a par with active counter-revolutionaries in the prisons of Soviet Russia, who are incarcerated for attempting and organizing to overthrow the first workers' state.

In this meeting, with its lethargy and sleepiness, is a manifestation of what the liberals, anarchists and socialist traitors can do to enlighten the "people" of this country on the brutalities and atrocities of the capitalist governments against the revolutionary movement and on the torture inflicted upon the Communists; and if this meeting is a specimen of their dastardly attempt to assail Soviet Russia and line up with the counter-revolutionary movement of the world —then Soviet Russia need not worry. The Communists will be present at all the meetings of these full and half-baked counter-revolutionaries and will demonstrate that the workers of the United States are with Soviet Russia.

Plan Meeting March 19

The Workers Party, the International Workers' Aid and the Labor Defense Council will hold a meeting in Central Opera House on Thursday, March 19, and will tell the workers of the city the truth about prisoners and prisons in Soviet Russia. The workers will demonstrate that the Vladeck, Abramovitches, Gordins, Cahans and Norman Thomases, and the anarchists and liberals, are of one type—no matter how much "sympathy" with the Soviet government they pretend to entertain.

Eight Years Ago Today

MARCH 12, 1917.— The army regiments and the imperial guard in Petrograd (now Leningrad) Russia, join the revolutionary workers. The czar's ministers are arrested. The committee of the duma is formed. A new crisis develops. The bourgeois parties of the duma, the Russian near-parliament, decided to stem the revolutionary tide by making common cause with the workers on a sort of fifty-fifty basis. The czarist power was to be curtailed. The workers were to accept the middle class leadership. The workers had not as yet realized the full significance of the creation of the workers' revolution, the Soviet; they submitted to the leadership of the moderate liberals who opened operations under the form of the provisional government, based on the parties in the old totally unrepresentative duma. Czar Nikolai II was forced to abdicate, but the moderates proposed to retain the czar's brother as the titular head of the state. The workers objected. The moderates further thought and talked of continuing the war for the old imperialistic aims. The Workers' Soviets, by this time existing in all important cities, objected. The soldiers stood with the workers. They were tired of war. The Soviets were now Councils of Workers, Soldiers, and Peasants. The Provisional Government and the Soviets were silently but clearly contending for a decisive contest. The Provisional Government, now headed by Alexander Kerensky, a vacillating, politician, feared the Soviets. The Soviets had no confidence in the Provisional Government, but weren't ready to challenge it.

GREEK RAILWAY WORKERS' STRIKE VERY EFFECTIVE

Government Broke Its Promises

(Special to The DAILY WORKER.)

ATHENS, March 12.—The railway strike which has cut off Greece by rail from the rest of Europe now is jeopardising American relief operations. Charles Howland of New York, chairman of the refugee settlement commission, and other members who left Athens for Macedonia, were stranded at Larissa when the train crew joined the strike.

The government has dispatched a special train, guarded by troops, to rescue Mr. Howland.

The strike also paralyzed a relief train operated by the American Near East Relief. Shipments of building materials and agricultural implements consigned to the refugee settlements have been held up.

The government threatens to employ refugee labor to break the strike.

The railway workers have many demands, among the leading ones a demand for the payment of the increase in pay granted by a government committee some time ago, but never put into effect. A strike was in prospect long ago, but was delayed owing to the promise of the government to abide by the award and pay the increase retroactively. But the government did nothing but promise. Rank and file control by Communists has forced the strike against the will of the reformist head officials of the union.

Reynolds, Militant, is Not Guilty, Says Detroit, Mich., Judge

Reynolds was summoned before Judge Hunt for contempt of court in disobeying the injunction forbidding him attending his own local or the district council, from whence he had been barred by an order of expulsion issued by Wm. L. Hutcheson, president of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners.

The Judge A Poor Sport

At ever session of the court, carpenters filled the courtroom and draped themselves around the windows. The hearing played to a standing room only audience Reynolds lawyer, Maurice Sugar, offered the court to leave the decision to a vote of the carpenters present, with a handicap requiring a vote of nine to one for Reynolds, but the judge was not sport enough to accept.

To the plea of the plaintiffs that the union needed "protection" from the "invasion" of Reynolds, the defense introduced the petition to the court passed by a mass meeting of Detroit carpenters, saying, "We assert that we can keep any person from our meetings whose presence we do not desire. We have demonstraid this to the plaintiffs in this case, and have satisfied the police whom they called in, that the only undesired and disorderly elements attending the various meetings, have been the plaintiffs."

The legal point of the defense turned largerly upon the right to assemble, which could not, according to the claim, be abridged by any law or court order.

IRISH RELIEF WORK ENDORSED BY ELLEN HAYES

Urges Workers of the World to Help

Dr. Ellen Hayes, of Wellesley, Mass. in a letter to the secretary of the Irish Workers' and Peasants' Famine Relief Committee at 19 South Lincoln street, Chicago, has endorsed the work of the committee to bring relief to the famine victims of the west of Ireland. Her letter follows:

Dear Comrade: Replying to yours of March 6, just received, you are very welcome to use my name in your committee's effort to reach the masses with appeals for help. Those west Ireland people are in sore straits and the workers of the world must bring help.

Yours fraternally,
Ellen Hayes.

The work of raising funds for relief in the United States is now in full swing, according to a statement issued from the office of the Irish Workers' and Peasants' Famine Relief Committee. Irish relief committees are springing up all over the country The committee points out that there will be no improvement in the condition of the workers and peasants in the famine region before next harvest, except thru outside help. As seed potatoes must be purchased for planting, money is needed at once, else the present suffering will be dwarfed by the horrors of next winter.

British Unions Help.

A letter from Mrs. Helen Crawford, secretary of the British section of the International Workers' Aid, says that the British trade unions and co-operative societies are responding to the appeal to help their brothers and sisters in Ireland. This coopperation is helping to break down the national antagonisms that have helped to make the task of British imperialism in Ireland easier.

All those who want to help in relief work should communicate with the office of the Irish Workers' and Peasants' Famine Relief Committee, at 19 South Lincoln street, either personally, by mail or by telephoning Seeley 3563.

FATAL EPIDEMIC HITS CITY ON STRIKE'S HEELS

Twenty-three deaths from respiration disease in Chicago in the last 24 hours today brought an official announcement from the health department that "The influenza situation here is rapidly approaching the proportions of a serious outbreak."

Health bulletins have been broadcast advising the public of symptoms of the new disease which differs slightly from the wartime influenza and warning them to take immediate precautions in the event of being stricken. The disease, the health department says, is characterized by aching thruout the body, burning sensations in the eyes, high temperatures, pronounced prostration and frequent nosebleeding.

The epidemic followed on the heels of the garbage collectors' and street cleaners' strike. Commissioner Sprague allowed the dirt and rubbish to accumulate thruout the city. The epidemic was predicted in the DAILY WORKER at that time and Sprague refused to accede to the strikers' demands, and the epidemic followed.

JUDGE AIDS OIL MEN IN TEAPOT BRIBERY TRIAL

(Special to The Daily Worker)

CHEYENNE, Wyo., March 12—Judge Kennedy, hearing the trial of the Tepot Domers, in the government's suit to secure the annulment of oil leases on the ground of fraud, is aiding the Sinclair oil interests by his rulings. Kennedy ruled out damaging government exhibitions on the ground that they had been executed after the Teapot Dome leases. He is also expected to rule out much of the circumstantial evidence.

Everything is being done by the government officials and the court, to allow the oil leases to stand, and to quiet down the bribery of Ex-Secretary of the Interior Fall and other government officials by the oil interests.

Roosevelt Squirms.

A laugh occurred in the court when Theodore Roosevelt, ex-assistant secretary of the navy, testified by deposition that he did not know of the oil leases because he was worn out from preparations for a fishing trip. Roosevelt made light of the fact that he took the order transferring the leases from the navy department to the interior department to President Harding who signed the order. This was the first move in giving the oil leases to private interests, in return for liberal bribes.

Two German Bankers on Visit to Morgan's Wall St.; Workers May Prophesy

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL

TODAY, a couple of German bankers wander thru New York's canyon of gold, called Wall Street, where eight years ago the great American jingo tumult as the United States entered the war crystallized into three words, "Kill the Huns."

No greater proof is needed that Morgan's Wall Street won the war, insofar as any capitalist nation was victorious, than the confession of these two bankers that, "the uncrowned king of Germany today is S. Parker Gilbert, the American who is carrying out the Dawes plan."

This was of course intended as a tribute to the genius of American financiers. But it tells the story better than whole books. The Germans had come to acknowledge their victors and to do homage to them.

• • • •

But the German bankers found many friends in Wall Street. Morgan entered the United States in the war to save his loans to the allies. Now he must keep the Dawes plan working in Germany to get the very last mark in reparations possible, to make the payment of those loans possible. The eagerness with which American bankers receive their German brothers is the best measure of the unity of the German-American bankers' alliance to exploit the workers of Germany.

It might be well to remember the names of these two bankers: Herbert M. Gutman, director of the Dresdner Bank, of Berlin, and presented as "a director in 40 of Germany's largest industrial corporations," and F. Neuerburg, director of the Kommerz- and Privatbank A.-G. of Hamburg, also intimately associated with large German corporations.

They say they come merely to exchange greetings with American bankers who rceently visited Berlin; but at the same time they mention that long-term credits are much more preferable to short-term credits, which is supposed to be a hint dropped in the right place. The hint finds a quick "Amen!" among the right American financiers. The U. S.—German bankers' alliance against the German workers is complete.

To be sure these German bankers said nothing about the widespread railroad strike that is even now sweeping Germany as a direct protest against the Dawes plan. That might darken their financial outlook. Perhaps that is taken up behind the scenes. It does not get into the Wall Street press.

No mention is made of the recent mine disaster at Dortmund, where 141 coal miners went to death under the Dawes plan; that these German miners had written with chalk on the black coal face where they died: "WE ARE LOST. FIGHT FOR BETTER CONDITIONS. AVENGE US ON THE CAPITALISTS, OUR MURDERERS."

• • • •

American bankers do not like to be called "murderers." They have a whole list of state anti-syndicalist laws to protect themselves in this country against class crimes much lesser than this. Yet those German coal miners certainly hurled their indictment as much against American as German bankers and industrialists.

That conditions in the United States are not much different in some respects than they are in Germany is seen in the item appearing on the first page of the New York World, published a few steps away from Wall Street. It was in the issue of March 11 and reads:

> "I'M FINISHED," LAST WORDS.
> Dropping a polishing rag with which he was working yesterday in the National Republican Club, No. 54 West 40th Street, Patrick Norton, sixty-four years old, of No. 2538 Eight avenue, gasped, "Some one else will have to do my work now, I guess. I'm finished." He died before the arrival of Dr. Dwinnelle.

• • • •

Those German miners, Communists, in the Ruhr, went to their deaths with a plea for a new day, for the near victory of a German Soviet Republic upon their lips. Perhaps there was also a plea in the dying words of the aged worker who died as he polished the brass in Wall Street's political headquarters. At least some workers, even now, may make the prophecy that "Cautious Cal" may get the brass polishing job, with the workers in control in West 40th St., having changed the National Republican Club into a meeting place for workers, as they should do in the not far distant future, just as the two German bankers, under a Soviet regime, may get a job digging coal and getting acquainted with the dark places. So the German bankers had better make themselves at home in Wall Street and sun themselves at the National Republican Club while they may.

Progressive Coal Digger at Meet Scores the Fakers

with their feet under the same table as the bosses.

Hoge said that the only chance for the union to grow and become more powerful was to organize the unorganized. He denounced the officials for their splitting tactics, for creating dissension and thus weakening the union. It is true they opposed the officials because of the official policy is leading the union to disaster. The reactionaries are now on trial before the membership so a red herring is drawn across the track in the form of an attack on the progressives. Hoge declared that he belonged to no dual union and was steadfastly opposed to dual unionism. He was loudly applauded when he finished.

A first class stunt that would make a fitting climax to the red-baiting that has taken place since the convention opened was badly damaged by the publicity given in the DAILY WORKER to the fake telegram, alleged to have been sent by a member of the Young Workers' League to a militant in the eastern Ohio district. It is reported that the fakers intended to spring it on the delegates after the red barrage was carefully laid down and the long and short hands of the official clock indicated the zero hour at which the machine boys were to go over the top "an' get the reds."

This telegram was sent from Cleveland to a small mining town in which the telegraph office and everything else is owned by the coal company. It urged the Communists to be at the sub-district convention and put their ideas across. The telegram was phoned to the addressee from the telegraph office. It caused considerable speculation in the little town.

The man whose name was signed to the telegram denied ever having sent it. The mystery was pretty thick by this time, and a Sherlock Holmes might be found necessary to run down the plot but for the fact that sub-district President Ledvinka was in Cleveland on the very day the wire was sent to the little mining town.

The cat was half way out of the bag. The bag was finally emptied when the rumor got out that the sub-district officials had something to spring on the convention after it got under way.

The plot will remain unsprung. It was a perfectly good plot in its way, but not the first one that was murdered in cold blood by a little publicity. Are the fakers sore? I'll say they are. They are as sore as boils in the process of being massaged by a chiropractor.

So sore were they that they invaded the convention hall, where the DAILY WORKER reporter usually sits and ordered three persons out. Two of them were visitors and the third was a member of the union. This was not so clever as the fakers found out to their cost when they were obliged to apologize to the delegate at the next session of the convention.

YOU NEVER HEARD LEWIS TALK LIKE THIS, DID YOU?

Cook, Head of British Miners, Means It

If any American miner is so discouraged as to think that all miners' union officials are just naturally and necessarily crooked, like Lewis, and wants to know what a genuine fighting militant would act like, if Lewis were given the gate, let him read the following from a speech of A. J. Cook, secretary of the Miners' Federation of Great Britain, spoken before an audience of railwaymen at York, on February 22. He said:

"We shall demand a living wage, and we shall seek the assistance of all the trade unions with that end in view.

"We must, however, act quickly. We require industrial organization, 100 per cent strong, both nationally and internationally: that must be our immediate object.

"The master class will fight you as they fight the miners. The miners' struggle for a living wage is also the struggle of the railwaymen.

"We are all members of the same great working class fraternity; no one must be allowed to stand in the way of our close co-operation and unity.

Force Needed

"I do not desire strikes and suffering, but I know from past experience that we can only achieve our desires when we are strong enough to take what we want.

"We hear that the miners and their families cannot be fed on propaganda. Neither can they be fed on these everlasting inquiries which lead to no tangible result.

"The miners will not agree to longer hours and lower wages; they will not help the employers in this everlasting struggle of competing with their fellow miners abroad."

"Deliver The Goods"

"The aims and objects of the workers' movement were to help and finally to emancipate the working class.

"Was every individual who dared to recommend proposals for bringing the movement into line with current economic events—national and international—to be charged with being a disrupter?

"The true test of any movement is, does it function when necessity arises?

"The rank and file are calling upon the leaders to deliver the goods. The goods must be delivered.

"Either the labour movement, politically and industrially, is different from other movements has a distinct and clear programme and policy, has a mission to perform, or we are an organized band of frauds and hypocrites.

No Faith in Spirits

"Nowadays, to become a sane, sensible, respectable trade union leader, one is expected to repudiate past ideals and beliefs and all one has hitherto lived and worked for.

"One has to tone down to be a 'statesman.' It is a virtue to go slowly, very, very slowly; it is a virtue to be reactionary, and a vice to be progressive.

"... One leader has said that all is well as long as the spirit of socialism is with us. Well, I have little faith in spirits, I want to be fed on facts.

"Either capitalism is good or it is bad; the conditions of the workers provide the answer.

"The fact was that capitalism—national and international—continued to exist only at the expense and suffering of the working masses."

We Remind You

We remind you that A. J. Cook, head of the British miners, is a Communist, and that John L. Lewis, head of the U. M. W. of A., expels Communists.

Little Teddy Was Always Ready "to Send in Troops"

Federal troops were ready to be rushed in against the striking teamsters in Chicago in 1905, it is revealed in a letter written at the time by President Theodore Roosevelt, now published under a Charles Scribner's Sons' copyright.

"Of course I earnestly hope I shall not be obliged to send in troops," Roosevelt wrote to Henry Cabot Lodge, "but I shall do it AT ONCE if the need arises."

The strike lasted from April 6, 1905 to July 22 and ended in compromises, with the employers having the edge. Teamsters, freight handlers, express drivers and department store drivers were involved at different times. Mayor Dunne had policemen ride on the wagons of strikebreakers. No troops were used.

JURISDICTIONAL ROWS LEAD TO DUAL UNIONISM

But Hutcheson Fights Amalgamation

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., March 12.—The building trades department of the A. F. of L. has served an ultimatum upon the State Building Trades Council of California to reorganise itself and to change its laws at its next convention to be held at Monterey, Calif., March 18, 1925, to conform to the laws of the building trades department.

The California State Building Trades Council was organized upon its present basis by the notorious labor faker P. H. McCarthy. It is just now that the building trades department has found out that the laws of this state organization conflict with those of the department. This fight against the California Building Trades Council is part of the ruinous jurisdictional dispute between the carpenters and the sheet metal workers over the placing of hollow metal trim in buildings.

Not A Solution But Dissolution

The solution of jurisdictional disputes offered by the building trades department and Wm. L. Hutchenson, president of the carpenters' union, is to conduct ruinous jurisdictional wars, which means that either the carpenters' union or or the sheet metal workers' alliance is destroyed, or so weakened that they will give up their claims on this work.

The fight itself naturally weakens the trade union movement as a whole, demoralizing and destroying whatever little unity there now exists between the building trades unions, thus strengthening the employers' position and laying the basis for the "open shop" in the building industry.

It is no secret that the forming of independent dual carpenters organizations is being encouraged by those who support the sheet metal workers in this suicidal battle. Hutcheson is silent in the face of these attempts to create a rival carpenters' union. He is too busy expelling the Communists, members of the T. U. E. L., and all his political opponents.

Who Helps Dualism?—Hutcheson

And the excuse offered by him for these illegal expulsions is, generally, that those expelled advocate dual unionism. This is spite of the fact that the progressives within the carpenters' union are the only group which consistly fights against the dual union theory, and has been actually responsible for holding within the carpenters' union large numbers who, sickened with the corrupt and crooked Hutcheson administration, would have otherwise lent a willing ear to the dualistic propagandists.

The progressives within the building trades point out the only solution for these demoralizing jurisdictional disputes, amalgamation.

Amalgamation of all the building trades into one organization covering the entire industry upon a department basis, is the only method by which the unity of the building trades workers can be achieved and jurisdictional disputes eliminated. This is one of the planks of the progressive carpenters' program and one of the reasons why Hutcheson is expelling them without hearing or trial.

Notes on the Los Angeles Movement

LOS ANGELS—According to Brother Koffman, business manager of Bakery Local 453, the Bakers' joint board of Los Angeles and vicinity is arranging a bazaar and dance to take place on Saturday, April 11, in the Los Angeles Hall, 1956 E. First street. A number of theatrical acts will be presented.

The Bakery Workers fight the following firms: Los Angeles Pie Co.; M. & M. Pie Co., Murray Baking Co., Hulsom Bread, and R. B. Ward company:

Support of the labor movement is needed. Everybody should visit the bazaar and help mak the affair a rousing success.

Remember March 21st!

Capmakers and Millinery Workers will have jointly a dance at Co-operation Center. The four left wing branches and Workmen's Circle will have their dance March 28 at the Co-operation Center.

Painters' Campaign.

The fourth general vice-president and two general organizers of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paper Hangers have been directed by that organization to come to Los Angeles and conjuct an organization campaign. They will receive the complete co-operation of the local organizations.

JOBLESS SHOULD STAY AWAY FROM BUTTE, MONTANA

Central Labor Officials Tell of Unemployment

The following letter has been sent out by the Butte Central Labor Council:

"During the past few months various interets have been flooding the country with literature telling of the unlimited opportunities that are being overlooked in the state of Montana.

"These advertisements are misleading, and, in common with other like movements, are but misrepresentations for the purpose of separating the unwary from their coin and crowding the industrial centers with unemployed.

Abandoned Farms.

"As far as land is concerned, all land of any value has been taken up, and much of it is now in the possession of exploiters.

"One may go into almost any part of the state and find abandoned farms and this is particularly true of the country immediately surrounding the city of Butte, the state's principal industrial center.

"Every winter thousands of farmers come into the industrial centers to try and earn a living, something most of them have been unable to do on the farm. Speaking of Butte, this council wishes to inform anyone contemplating coming here for the purpose of bettering his condition, to investigate conditions before coming, and not be influenced by the lying advertisements sent thruout the country by agencies hostile to the organized labor movement.

Heavy Unemployment.

"At the present time there is a large number of unemployed in Butte. These men cannot find employment here and it will be some time before work opens up on the outside. Wages are lower than in many other places and mining is the chief industry, and hundreds of men are rustling the mines and unable to find a job.

"At the present time there is very little building activity, and no large amount of work in sight for the coming season.

"Hundreds of buildings are vacant Many are totally abandoned to vandalism. Anyone contemplating going into business can easily find locations in the very heart of the city. Suitable storerooms seem to be a drug on the market. We therefore advise anyone coming here to make sure they can pay their way and at all times have the price of a return ticket in their possession.

"Fraternally yours,
"PETE CONNORS, President.
"CLEM BURKARD, Secretary."

Buzzle-Hornism in Politics of Central Council, Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—The Los Angeles Central Labor Council is again demonstrating the political treachery of the so-called Gomper's slogan "Rewarding friends and punishing enemies".

Recently the Chamber of Commerce called a conference for the purpose of nominating a "non-partisan, efficient business man" for mayor. There were forty-eight organizations present at that conference, and among all these parasitic organizations the Central Labor Council was also represented. Of course it is needless to say that the left wing delegates apposed it.

What Is A Buzzle-Horn?

However, Sec'y. Horn and President Buzzle who represented the Central Labor Council stated that they were somewhat disappointed, as they had hoped that they would not dare to nominate injunction Judge Bledsoe and would nominate Gregory Cryer for re-election for mayor.

It must not be forgotten that Mayor Cryer is not a fool. Prior to that Chamber of Commerce Conference he appointed Bro. Horn, Sec'y. of Central Labor Council, as a member of Civil Service Commission, which is considered one of the highest political gifts that could be given to a loyal labor leader(?).

Take Your Choice—Both Bad

So as it stands today, organized labor will support Mayor Cryer for re-election and organized carpenters will support the candidate nominated by the Chamber of Commerce.

At the Central Labor Council the following motion was offered by Brother Caplan of the Office Employes' Union: "Moved and Seconded that this council go on record against supporting, assisting or endorsing on behalf of the labor movement, any candidate for any political office in the forthcoming civic election unless that candidate is a member of organized labor and if to date any such candidate has already been endorsed that the endorsement be withdrawn."

Brother Horn and others argued against the motion. Brother Globerman, of the Cigar Makers' Union, supported the motion. He said, "The present mayor is no better than Judge Bledsoe. If Mayor Cryer would be elected for judge, he would also issue injunctions, and as long as you will not trust yourselves you will get to nowheres." Bro. Weich, of Cap Makers' Union, also supported the motion.

Other delegates opposing the motion argued that we want to elect a "good boss", and Mayor Cryer is a "good boss". This is the caliber of organized labor "leaders" in Los Angeles.

Needless to say the motion was defeated.

PULLMAN HEARS OF WAGE CUTS DESPITE COPS

3,000 Leaflets Given Out at Carshop Gates

PULLMAN, Ill., March 12.—After 3,000 "Strike Against Wage Cut" leaflets had been distributed to workers in the Pullman car shops today, a flivver squad attempted to arrest two comrades who were in charge of the distribution.

The Pullman-owned cops followed the two girls who had been giving out the leaflets in front of the main gates of the Pullman works at 111th street for about eight blocks to see that no more were handed to the workers. In spite of this, however, the comrades managed to drop a huge pile of leaflets under the nose of the officers, and the workers scrambled for them, altho the officers threatened them.

Institute Wage Cuts.

A series of wage cuts was put into effect in the Pullman shops recently. Almost every department of the large works suffered heavily, whether the workers were employed on piece or time jobs.

Beginning Monday, March 16, the hours in the Calumet shop at 115th, (part of the Pulman works employing 1,500 workers) are to be lengthened from eight to nine. The wages are to remain the same. The workers all express dissatisfaction but there is no unified opposition or organization in the shop that can back up a fight against this virtual wage cut.

In view of these conditions prevailing in the Pullman shops the workers seized the leaflets eagerly when they heard what they contained. Many words of encouragement were given the comrades passing out the leaflets.

Men Keep Literature.

None of the printed propaganda was thrown away by the men. This was observed by a large number of Pullman detectives and policemen who chased away the children who were helping in distribution at several of the gates. They threatened to arrest two girls who were at the main gate. Nevertheless, a street car conductor who had witnessed the distribution and read with some sympathy the leaflet which was handed to him, came up to the girls as the policemen were talking to them and took some of the leaflets. He said, "No cop can scare me out of reading these. This is Foster's stuff, isn't it?"

Against Wage Cuts.

At the 115th street shops where two young Italian comrades were distributing the leaflets, a well dressed man waved them aside. "I'm against that," he said. A shabby worker in back of him looked at him with a grin and said, "Well, I'm against you. Give me one, kid."

The Pullman City Central committee had ordered 5,000 for distribution, but because of the unusual interest shown by the Pullman cops, this plan could not be completely carried out.

Bookbinders Election in Court.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 12.—Whether a writ of mandamus shall be issued on the election board of the Bookbinders' International Union, whose headquarters are in Washington, to throw out the vote of Local 25, New York City, and declare John B. Haggerty of St. Louis, to be elected international president, will be determined by the supreme court of the District of Columbia within a few weeks.

Walter N. Reddick, incumbent president, claims re-election by a margin of 475 votes in a total of over 10,000 cast. The point at issue is whether Local 25, which went overwhelmingly for Reddick, was in good standing when its vote was taken and counted. Haggerty's chief strength in the election was in the big locals in New York St. Louis and Chicago.

EASTERN DISTRICT

MINERS SUPPORT A PROGRAM, NOT POPULAR MEN

District 1 Miners Tired of Fake Progressives

On February 27, the T. U. E. L. section of the DAILY WORKER published the Progressive Miners' District No. 1 election statement. The miners of District 1 in their last election supported and put into office Rinaldo Cappellini because he was popularly known as a progressive. However, his progressiveness turned out to be nothing but a thin election veneer which soon wore off when once he occupied the district presidential chair.

This election is being conducted upon the basis of a program. The following letter explains the method of campaign being carried out by the progressive miners of District No. 1:

To all local unions, District No. 1, U. M. W. of A.

"Dear Sirs and Brothers:—District No. 1 of the United Mine Workers of America is again about to choose the leaders of the union for the next two years.

"In the past we supported and elected men who were popular or knew how to make fine speeches at union meetings.

"Rinaldo Cappellini is the latest example of our choice based on the popularity of leaders. The day after the election, he and others in the past, have betrayed the miners and combined with the corrupt Lewis machine.

"The Rank and File Nominations Committee calls upon the membership of your local to nominate men who stand for principles and a program, men who for years worked as miners and understand the problems and the needs of the rank and file.

"These men are but little known outside of their local unions, but, these men stand upon a program that holds solution for the problems of the miners in District No. 1 as well as for the miners in the entire country.

"Enclosed you will find the progressive program upon which we ask you to nominate and support these candidates.

"Read the program, and if you agree with it, pass a motion to nominate these men as candidates for district president, vice-president and secretary-treasurer.

"For district president, Bernard Zaleskas, L. U. 838, Nanticoke;

"For district vice-president, John Witcunas, L. U. 846, Nanticoke;

"For district secretary-treasurer, Phillip Sabatelli, L. U. 306, Old Forge.

"Support and nominate a program and not a popular man.

"Please notify us of your action. Fraternally yours,

"Rank and File Nomination Committee, 175 S. Meade street, Wilkes Barre, Pa."

Knit Goods Workers Open Organization Drive in Philly

PHILADELPHIA, Pa.—Philadelphia Knit Goods Workers' Union has launched an organization drive in the knitting industry of this city.

The Knit Goods Workers' Union was organized about six months ago by a group of militant workers as a first step to offset the sweatshop conditions existing in the many textile shops since the former union was dissolved several years ago.

Negotiations are being carried on with the International Ladies' Garment Workers for affiliation and a charter is expected within several weeks. It is expected that affiliation with the I. L. G. W. U. will help to strengthen the union considerably, but, the membership of this small fighting organization realize that a charter will not organize the trade.

The present organization drive has been carefully planned and will be opened up with the distribution of circulars at the shops and followed up with a number of mass meetings. The Young Workers' League has been invited to help in this drive and an enthusiastic response to this invitation is assured. The office of the union is located at 1018 Cherry street where further information about the union can be secured.

Chicago, Notice!

On Sunday afternoon, March 29, at Ashland Auditorium, there will be an international unity demonstration and benefit entertainment. No branch is permitted to arrange any conflicting dates of any kind whatsoever. Affairs already fixed must be changed. The complete strength of the party must be mobilized at this affair as a fitting answer to the Abramovich attack.

Miners Will Fight to Stop Violations of Agreement by Bosses

McDONALD, Pa.—Officials of the United Mine Workers are responsible for the deplorable conditions in the mines here today. They continually refuse to adjust the grievances and allow the operators to break one clause of the agreemnt after another.

The agreement calls for one loader to a room or two men for two rooms, but in place of this two men are put in one room. This method is a favorite of the operators to weaken the organization in Western Pennsylvania

The rooms being low, two men shoveling at the same time results in many accidents by hitting one another with the shovel. Beside the danger in this method the miners also lose much time in waiting for the cutter to make a cut in their room.

For this forced idleness, they should get paid at the rate of $7.50 per day, but instead they must hang around until most of the day is gone before they get any coal to load and not a cent for the time they put in waiting.

The local pit committee is unable to put a stop to this condition, because the operators know that the men will not be supported by the district officialdom in any kind of a fight. When the grievance is brought to the attention of the district officials, the only answer that the men can get is that "nothing can be done at this time;" and the alternative that the miners have is either work under those conditions or quit their jobs.

It is up to the miners themselves to take the leadership away from such officials and put men at the head of their organizations who will at all times fight for the men in the pits.

And the way by which we the miners can take the leadership away from officials is for a rank and file mine committee, representing everyone in the mine and elected to fight, be created and coupled up with other such mine committees, and a militant movement formed which will not be fooled or tricked or beaten by bosses or fakers.

Barbers! Why Don't You Organize the Manicures, Also?

NEW YORK CITY, March 12.—The Barbers' International Union, is making an effort to organize the 2,000 workers in the beauty parlors of the metropolis. Masseurs, masseuses, cosmeticians and hair dressers are to be lined up.

The organizer says, "Everybody in the beauty parlors, with the exception of the manicures, is included. The women in most of the places are poorly paid and there are conditions that call for improvement."

RUSSIAN WORKERS RAPIDLY MAKING INDUSTRY GROW

Progress in All Lines Over Difficulties

GERTRUDE HAESSLER
For the Federated Press

MOSCOW.—The opinion expressed by optimistic economists toward the end of last year, that Russia will be able in the course of two years to bring her production back to the prewar level without any financial aid from foreign countries, is now beginning to be generally accepted since the economic improvement achieved during the first quarter of the new fiscal year (October-August), 1924-25 has become felt.

Crisis Overcome

The supply crisis in light industry, caused by the low level of production in light industry has been overcome All during last year there was almost chronic famine on the market with regard to manufactured goods, for increased agricultural production on the one hand, and an unexpectedly rapid development of the net work of distribution, especially of the cooperatives on the other, caused an extraordinary demand for the products of light industry which the latter was unable to meet. It has however increased its production to such an extent that the supply practically meets the demand.

As far as heavy industry is concerned, the prospects are even brighter. The most important of these, the metal industry, fulfilled the first quarter of the program of production some time ago, and is now working on a program increased by 15 per cent. This is also giving the coal and mineral output a great impetus.

Certain industries, such as the manufacture of flax products, are not increasing their production so rapidly but the enterprises engaged in the manufacture have already reached the pre-war level, and the demand for its products is subsiding.

Financial Trouble Being Solved

One of the greatest handicaps to the rapid recovery of industry, the difficult domestic financial situation, is beginning to be overcome. At the beginning of the year many of the light industries could not expand sufficiently because it was impossible to grant them sufficient state credits. A great deal of money was tied up by the co-operatives, which had received extensive credits but could not pay their debts, their default amounting to about one half the monthly production.

At present the co-operative societies have liquidated their indebtedness to a great extent with the result that industrial enterprises have increased their deposits in the banks and decreased their indebtedness to the workers to whom wages were due.

A good harvest would give a still greater impetus to the rapid recovery which Russian industry is experiencing, but it is impossible to make any predictions at the present time.

MORE CARPENTER LOCALS ENDORSE DETROIT DEMAND

37 Demand that Expulsions Stop

The fight against the expulsion policy of Wm. L. Hutcheson is receiving the support of the rank and file of the carpenters' union everywhere. So far, 78 local unions, covering 32 states, and two Canadian provinces, have reported to the T. U. E. L. section of the DAILY WORKER that they have endorsed the resolution sent out by Local Union 2140 of Detroit against the expulsion policy and demanding the reinstatement of the expelled.

Last week we published the list of those received up to that time. Following are those received since then. Undoubtedly hundreds of locals not recorded here have endorsed the resolution. Read last week's and this week's list. If your local is not mentioned notify the T. U. E. L. section of the DAILY WORKER.

Mexican Labor Fakers Revel in Government Class Collaboration

WASHINGTON. — Canuto Vargas, first labor attache to be appointed by the Mexican government, which has originated this type of diplomatic office, returned to his desk as secretary of the Pan-American Federation of Labor at Washington to resign from the latter position. A Spanish-speaking worker, presumably from Mexico, will replace him in the secretaryship.

When Vargas moves to the Mexican embassy he will receive from Ambassador Tellez his official instructions. He anticipates that one of his responsibilities will be looking after the industrial welfare of the many thousands of Mexican citizens employed in the United States. Another will be reporting to his government the development of labor organizations and institutions throughout the country.

Theses for Agitators on Day of March 18th, "Paris Commune" and International Red Aid

Amnesty for Class War Prisoners! Aid for the Victims of Reaction!

WITH a demand for amnesty of all class war prisoners and for combined efforts to come to the aid of the tens of thousands of victims of reaction in capitalist prisons the revolutionary proletariat of the world pays homage to the heoes of the Paris Commune on the 54th anniversary of that first great victory of the proletariat.

And well may that be so. The victims of capitalist reaction and counter-revolution, the class war prisoners of today, are worthy successors to the Commune fighters of 1871 who fell victims of a bloody revenge of the French bourgeoisie. And we comrades and workers still free and unwounded in the battle lines can not pay homage in a more fit form that in dedicating this day to the aid of our imprisoned comrades.

THE workers of the United States, too, have all reason to pause for a moment and remember those of their comrades that are languishing in prison for their cause. The United States may not yet have its Gallifet. But it has its criminal syndicalist laws with "good" capitalist judges enforcing them. It has its frame-up system which brought Billings, Mooney, Sacco, Vanzetti and countless others to the stairs of the hangman's scaffold. It has its department of justice which hunts down "undesirables" and tears them from their families, often leaving these families im misery and hunger. It has its Legion which, as was the case in Centralia, goes on a rampage of destruction and then perjures the victims into penitentiaries just because they defended themselves and their belongings. The United States does not have its wall of the federals but it has its Ludlow and its Calumet. It does not have its bloody May days of 1871—but it has its November days of 1887.

CAPITALISM reigns supreme in America and consequently the American workers suffer the exploitation, oppression and persecution of capitalism.

On the eighteenth of March, the workers of the world honor the Communards of 1871. What better method is there of honoring the dead of the class war of days gone by than to aid the wounded of the class war of today?

LONG live the international solidarity of the workers of the world!

Demand the opening of the prison gates behind which linger your fellow workers for no other crime that that of having fought for their, for our class interests.

Collect aid for the defense of these victims and for the support of their dependents.

On the Day of the "Paris Commune" and International Red Aid.

1. During the month of March, and especially on March 18, the proletariat of all countries remembers the heroes and martyrs of the revolutionary uprisings of the working class, aimed at the overthrow of the thrones of the czars and kings of the bourgeois social order.

The February revolution in France and the March revolution in Germany in 1848, the uprising of the Paris proletariat, the proclamation of the Paris Commune on March 18, 1871—these are the first milestones in the struggle of the working class for power.

The Russian revolution of 1905, the overthrow of czarism in March 1917, are the next stages thru which the proletariat went prior to October 1917, to the triumph of its dictatorship, the Soviet state, in the realm of the former czarist Russian empire. Its power extends over one-sixth of the globe.

2. In June 1848 and in May 1871 the bourgeoisie, with the aid of their Generals Caveignac and Gallifet, suppressed the uprising of the working class. Tens of thousands remained on the battlefield, thousands were tortured to death in prisons and by compulsory labor. In December 1905 the Russian czar suppressed the uprising of the proletariat, and like his fore-runners, the executioners from the camps of the French and the German bourgeoisie—was convinced of the certainty of his victory.

BUT the class conscious proletariat did not forget the great cause of the liberation of humanity proclaimed from the barricades of Paris, Berlin and Moscow in 1848, 1871 and 1905. It repressed its hatred and desire for revenge, and when, in consequence of the sufferings of the war and the disorganization resulting from the bloody battles of 1914 to 1917, the patience of the toiling masses came to an end, the workers of Leningrad, under the leadership of Lenin and the Russian Communist Party—the Bolsheviks—courageously proceeded to the realization of the bequest of the former revolutionary generations, and with the overthrow of the power of the bourgeoisie, an epoch of the international socialist proletarian revolution was entered upon in one country.

The day of the Paris Commune, as well as November 7, are therefore international revolutionary holidays of the entire proletariat, which mark the first concluding strokes of the 75 years of history of the revolutionary fight and the lessons drawn from the defeat of 1871 as well as of the victory of October 1917.

3. The revolutionary workers of all countries are conducting their present struggle for the abolition of the power of capital and for the dictatorship of the proletariat under the leadership of the Communist International and its sections. Revolutionary Marxism, Bolshevism, Leninism—is the only direct continuation of the life-work of the first great teachers of the working class, Karl Marx and Friedrich Engels, the direct participants and leaders of the fight of the proletariat in 1848 and 1871.

Social democracy, the Second International, has rejected the continuation of the revolutionary fight which was begun in the preceding revolutions. They turn to the workers with the request to reject the class struggle. They themselves stand at the head of bourgeois governments or aid directly in their activity. From their midst have arisen many executioners such as the German social democrats Noske, Ebert and Hoersing, the Hungarian social democrats, the Esthonian, Finnish socialists, who, with their own hands, organized the military slaughter of the revolutionary uprising of the working class.

THE working class, which carries on the work of the cause of the Paris Communards, must conduct a determined, ruthless struggle against the whole bourgeois front, and with unflinching will, drive from their midst the social democrats, the watch dogs of the bourgeoisie, who weaken the revolutionary energies of the working class and deliver them defenceless to their enemy class.

Only if the working class unites in the only workers' party, the Communist, will it be prepared for and capable of meeting the decisive struggle against the bourgeoisie. Only then will it be able to prevent a repetition of the mistakes of the Parisian Communards and be able to achieve an equally decisive victory as that which the Russian proletariat achieved in October 1917.

4. The Paris Commune of 1871 bequeathed to the revolutionary proletariat the first experiences in the sphere of the organization of its power, its dictatorship.

The Paris workers realized that they could not complete their liberation if they built on the foundation of the existing bourgeois state. They overthrew this state and gave their power a firm basis. Simple workers, absolutely unknown up to that time, courageously took into their hands the lead in the revolutionary commune, beset on all sides by enemies.

Two armies were against the commune which until the day previously had still been fighting each other; the armies of French and German capital. But the defeat of the commune can be ascribed in the final analysis to the vacillations in the ranks of the Communards, their refusal to make the decisive attack against fortified Versailles, where the bourgeoisie with their leader, Thiers, had taken refuge.

The defeat of the Paris Commune was actually a consequence of the weakness of its military organization. Heroism, courage and flaming enthusiasm of the Paris Communards did not suffice alone to secure victory: the French proletariat at that time did not yet possess an internally firm revolutionary mass party, which might have led it without a pause to decisive victory.

DURING the present period between two revolutionary waves, the revolutionary working class, which learned from the experiences of this defeat, is preparing for fresh decisive battles, is directing all its energies to organizing its forces, to the creation of a strong Communist Party, to preparing it for the armed struggle.

The Russian proletariat has already avoided the mistakes of the Paris Commune, and created a revolutionary party long before the uprising, organized the Red Army, the army of its class, which is armed in accordance with all the rules of the latest military technique and absorbed all the experiences of the military struggle.

5. The cause of the easy victory gained by the bourgeoisie over the Paris Commune was the fact that the Parisian workers were not supported by the workers of France and the workers of other countries.

The fact that the French peasantry, which stood apart from the fight of the Parisian workers, not only did not support the latter, but even sided with the French bourgeoisie, helped the latter to defeat the revolutionary working class.

Following the teachings of Lenin, the revolutionary workers entered into direct alliance with the peasants fighting against the yoke of imperialism, they support them in this struggle and strive to bring about the revolutionary alliance of the workers and peasants, which conquered in the October revolution of 1917 and which will help the workers and peasants of the countries of the West to attain victory, and every day bring it nearer and nearer.

6. The revolting Parisian workers during the March days of 1871 had no illusions about and no confidence in the bourgeoisie and its governments. Their slogan was the revolt of the working class, the fight for power. Neither does the advance guard of the revolutionary proletariat of the present day harbor any illusions and deceptive hopes.

The past year, however, has destroyed these illusions in the broad masses of the proletariat. The "democratic-pacifist era," proclaimed a short time ago, very quickly came to an end. The bourgeoisie of all countries adopts the undisguised policy of fascist violence against the working class and prepares for fresh imperialist wars.

THE parties of the Second International also support this fascist policy of the bourgeois governments, just as they supported the "democratic-pacifist era" preceding it.

In Great Britain the conservative government is militarizing the railways in the fight against striking workers, proclaimed recently the transition to a protective policy, which will increase the prices of all articles of consumption of the working class, and is conducting an open, violent campaign against the revolutionary movement of the peoples of the East and of the colonies, subjected to British imperialism.

THE "pacifist" and "democratic," Herriot, supported by the socialists, is trying to disguise with phrases his open desertion to the imperialist policy of force introduced by Poincare.

Under Herriot reprisals against the Communists have begun and are becoming more and more intensified, the military occupation of the Cologne district was prolonged, but with respect to the Soviet Republic, the policy of the British conservatives has been imitated.

IN Germany, as a logical result of six years of social democratic betrayal of the coalition government, power fell into the hands of heavy industry and the Junkers, the party of the German nationalists, of the monarchists. The characteristic phenomenon in the sphere of international politics, is the general offensive of world capital against the colonial and semi-colonial peoples, under the slogan of the "united front" of the whole bourgeoisie, organized the British conservative government.

PACIFIST phrases are completely unmasked by the increased armaments on land, sea and air with recourse to the destructive chemical means for future wars; the refusal, in spite of the Versailles treaty, of the allies to evacuate the Cologne district; and the preparations of world capital for an armed attack on Soviet Russia.

In view of the increasing reaction in all countries, and the breathless preparations for fresh imperialist wars, the working class must close its ranks and march in a solid united front under the leadership of its revolutionary vanguard, the Communist Party, and the Communist International.

DURING the revolutions of 1848 and 1871, the bourgeoisie had already manifested that unlimited cruelty of which it is capable in the fight for the maintenance of its privileges and its power against the working class which ventures to rise up to secure its own liberation.

And at present also, the more determined becomes the will of the vanguard of the working class to overthrow the bourgeoisie by revolution, the more ruthlessly does the bourgeoisie deal with the fighters for the cause of the workers, no matter whether the bourgeoisie in question is a monarchist, a fascist or a republican power.

THE prisoners of capital who fell into the hands of their class enemies at the defeat of the Hungarian and Bavarian Soviet Republics, are still languishing in the prisons of Bavaria and Hungary under the most unendurable conditions. The prisons of Germany are filled to overflowing with prisoners who were imprisoned after the revolutionary fights of 1920 and 1921 in the Hamburg uprising and during the other fights in October in 1923.

The prisons of the colonial countries of Great Britain and France are filled to overflowing with revolutionaries who fought for the overthrow of the imperialist yoke imposed by the European bourgeoisie on the colonial peoples of the East.

The republics of the German social democrat Ebert and of the Polish socialist Pilsudski, the monarchies of Roumania and Jugo-Slavia, the "free" republic of American capital, vie with each other in the effort to invent the most outrageous persecutions against the Communist vanguard of the working class.

THE social democrats of Esthonia, whose ranks the Reval uprising of the Esthonian workers penetrated, together with the wealthy peasants and the speculators, and with the full endorsement of the Second International, before the eyes of the whole of Europe, mass execution of workers are organized, in most cases simply because they belong to the working class. Cynically and insolently the Hungarian social democrats, under the pressure of the workers, publish their notorious agreement with the bloody Hungarian ruler, Horthy, while a special commission sent by the Second International to "investigate" these base dealings of the Hungarian socialists, openly endorses the part played by their friends in the bloody settlement of accounts with the Hungarian working class.

THE total number of victims of the white terror during the period from 1918 to 1924 amounts to half a million. In the uprisings in Germany, Finland and Hungary (without counting the victims of white terror in Russia), etc., 100,000 people were killed, 150,000 were compelled to leave their country, tens of thousands are in prison (7,000 in Germany, 6,000 in Poland, 5,000 in Italy, 3,000 in the Baltic border states, and 4,000 in the Balkans.

The working class must put an end to this white terror.

In the course of the last year the fight for the liberation of political prisoners assumed a violent character. On March 18 our slogan "Liberate all the political prisoners who have suffered in the fight for the cause of the workers and for the liberation of oppressed peoples," must resound more powerfully and unite millions of workers in street demonstrations and processions.

8. The German bourgeoisie and the social democrats, who are preparing a new campaign against the Communist Party of Germany, the battering-ram of the proletarian revolution, are having recourse to the great provocative "Tcheka tarial."

Spies and provocateurs of the German criminal police flooded the ranks of the Communist Party of Germany during the period of the revolutionary events in October 1923, and under instructions from the social democratic head of the police, organized a number of the most senseless and provocative acts of terror, murder, etc.

The German reactionary state administration, with the approval of the German social democrats, laid all the blame on the Communist Party of Germany in order to provide a formal excuse for fresh mass arrests and a further prohibition of the Communist Party of Germany.

THIS was one of the most insolent provocations of the bourgeoisie Revolutionary Communism, Bolshevims, never had recourse to the methods of individual terror and has always conducted its preparatory work for the rising of the working class under the slogan of the struggle and solidarity of the broad masses of the proletariat. "The liberation of the working class is the work of the working class itself."

The adventurous policy of perpetrating individual acts of terrorism against the enemies of the working class during the period of the first Russian revolution in 1908, was not characteristic of the revolutionary Marxists, but of the petty-bourgeois party of the Russian socialist revolutionaries, who belong to the reformist Second International, and are friends of the German social democrats.

THE masses of workers will not allow themselves to be misled by the provocative methods of the German social democratic secret police. And the renewed attempts to suppress the Communist Party of Germany will prove to be as futile as the former.

This attack of German reaction on the German workers will result only in the growth of the sympathy of the workers of all countries for the fighting German workers, in further strengthening the slogans against the white terror, we must issue the following at our demonstrations on March 18, in all countries: "Down with the provocation of the German bourgeoisie and social democrats," "Long live the German Communist proletariat."

9. The Russian proletariat, armed with the experiences of all the preceding revolutionary fights of the workers of all countries, which carried out the behests of the Paris Communards who died in the struggle, has already reached the eighth year of its power in its tremendous country waich it has united into a Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

In spite of the pressure of world capital, which at present is leading the attack with all the weapons of the economic fight, as well as with lies and denunciations which are spread by the socialists of all countries in alliance with the Russian white emigrants abroad, the Soviet Republic lives on, its economy is becoming more stable every day, and it is demonstrating to the whole world the increasing ability of the working class to organize the administration and economy of a tremendous country.

10. March 18 is the day of International Red Aid. This revolutionary working class, mass organization unites millions of workers in its ranks who realize the necessity of struggle against the white terror, and the necessity of aiding all the victims of the white terror who were thrown by the bourgeoisie into prison or driven into exile. The bourgeois governments and the social democrats persecute the International Red Aid with deep hatred, called forth by the fatc that Red Aid is one of the strongest supporters of the revolutionary struggle.

"Support International Red Aid;" "Workers, join in the ranks of the International Red Aid;" "Help the political prisoners"—these must be the slogans of every worker on March 18.

PRESS PAGEANT PROMISES TO PACK MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, MAR. 15

NEW YORK, March 12.—Advance sale of the special DAILY WORKER 75c one-month subscriptions which carry with them as a premium a ticket to the Paris commune pageant, concert and ball to be held in Madison Square Garden on Sunday afternoon and evening, March 15, indicates that the historic old garden will witness another overflow crowd on that date.

Branch after branch is calling for more subscription tickets to sell. Party members who never before sold anything have already sold several sets of five each. Numerous individuals that are not members of the Workers Party or the Young Workers League have taken out the subscription folders and are helping. Over three thousand folders are now in the hands of willing workers, many of whom have already disposed of thirty and forty subscription tickets each.

The names and records of individuals selling will be kept confidential until the close of the subscription contest at 9 p. m., Sunday, March 15. The winners will be announced at the grand ball in Madison Square Garden that night, and the complete list of all comrades selling subscriptions and the record of every branch will be published in the party press immediately thereafter.

So many comrades are making a real effort that it has been decided not to limit the third and fourth prizes to two, but to give the gold plated Lenin watch charm to each one that sells at least fifty and the silver plated Lening watch charm to every one that sells at least twenty-five of the subscription tickets. These watch charms will bear a suitable inscription and will be mementoes worth keeping and handing down to posterity.

To make correct decisions when the contest closes 9 p. m., March 15, it is absolutely essential for the comrades who have charge of this campaign in the various branches to keep exact record of members selling subscription tickets, to collect for all subscriptions sold, and to bring this record to the Garden.

Our Thanks to Uj Elore.

The DAILY WORKER New York agency has received from our Hungarian sister daily a first class office desk as a donation. The DAILY WORKER accepts this with thanks as a token of good will from the Hungarian comrades.

Our appreciation is also due to Comrade M. Bortnick, who has made several advertising signs for the DAILY WORKER, donating his time, and who has just done some very artistic lettering on the DAILY WORKER office door, Room 21, 108 East 14th street, New York.

Bring in the Cash.

All workers selling subscription tickets for the Paris Commune Pageant, Concert and Ball, Madison Squar Garden, March 15, are advised that altho the contest does not end until March 15 they should turn in all the cash possible by the 14th at the district office. Only one point will be allowed in the prize contest for each subscription ticket paid for on March 15, whereas one and a half points are allowed for every subscription ticket paid for at the district office, 108 East 14th street on or before the 14th. Subscriptions paid for after the 15th will not count at all in the contest, and will not be taken into consideration in figuring the percentage of the proceeds to go to each paper.

Members are therefore instructed not to hold their money until the finish, but to turn in the cash as fast as the subscription folders are sold.

BAYONETS PROD HAITI PEASANTS INTO SLAVERY

America's Marines Are Spreading Terror

WASHINGTON, March 12.—Haiti's "progress" under the urge of American bayonets is shown in the annual report of John H. Russell, military dictator of the republic under his title as American high commissioner. This report, dated January 1, has just been given out by the state department.

It appears that stabilization of Haitian finances is still under way, after eight years of occupation, and that the national railroad is still under process of reorganization.

However, "The state of peace which the country has enjoyed since the American intervention, and especially in the past three years, has continued undisturbed thruout the year 1924, with the result that the Haitian people's feeling of security has been fortified. This is most favorable to agriculture, for the native peasant, certain of peace and security, has been enticed back to the soil and the resumption of cultivation. Encouraged by the feeling that they can now till their lands without fear of damage to their property or harm to their persons, the peasants, during the year just closed, have placed under cultivation much additional arable land. To a traveler thru the interior the contentment and well-being of the peasants are obvious."

Yet only a few weeks ago Secretary Hughes said that Haiti would not be evacuated by our marines until the people showed a willingness to keep the peace. Russell ignores the fact that the killing, looting and general demoralization of native life in Haiti in these years of the occupation has been credited to American terrorism and reprisal.

CZARISTS GIVEN MONEY BY NEW YORK 'SOCIETY'

Parasites Hold Dance for Russia's Enemies

NEW YORK, March 12.—More money will be raised here tomorrow in the interests of the deposed czarists, when the wives and daughters of the exploiters of American workers, hold a ball for the benefit of counter-revolutionary Russians who would again impose the yoke of czardom on the Russian people.

The dance, given under the auspices of the "Russian Refugee Society of America," will be entitled, "Dance of the Cherry Orchard," and will glorify the period before the Russian revolution, when the aristocracy enjoyed luxury and the expense of the toiling Russian peasants and workers.

"Grand Duchess" Maria of Russia, "Baroness" A. L. Fredericks, "Princess" Yousoupoff, and "Princess" Irina, are patronesses of the ball, side by side with the American society parasites. Included among the Americans who are helping to raise money for a further attack on the workers' and peasants' government of Soviet Russia, are Mrs. George Gordon Battle, Miss Margaret Woodrow Wilson, Mrs. J. Boarden Harrison and Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson.

Italian Rail Union Headquarters Burned by Fascist Gangs

ROME—On the night of January 3, a band of fascisti invaded and sacked the headquarters of the Italian Railwaymen's Federation at Bologna. The usual methods were employed. After forcing the door the furniture was thrown out of the windows, sprayed with petroleum and set on fire.

The building was also seriously damaged, and not one of the eight rooms is in a state to be used. The damage is estimated at 100,000 liras.

In a report the committee of the federation states, "The result of 30 years' constant effort has been destroyed at a single blow. We are left with nothing but the faith and will that have hitherto helped us to overcome all difficulties and carry on with our work. We shall carry on in the spirit of the Italian railwaymen who honor us with their confidence."

WASHINGTON STATE SUPREME COURT DECLARES ALL PICKETING ILLEGAL IN UNANIMOUS DECREE

OLYMPIA, Wash., March 12.—The supreme court of the state of Washington by unanimous decision practically forbids picketing. It forbids the unions to place any signs, or to post pickets carrying any signs within 100 feet of the entrances of the place being picketed, and declares that there is "no such a thing as peaceful picketing."

This reverses the lower court's decision which merely prohibited the pickets from trespassing on the property picketed, or from blocking entrances.

The Name Doesn't Matter.

The case at issue was that in which John Hans, who operates four scab second run, ten cent movie houses in Seattle, is fighting the Musicians' Union. The fight against his scab houses has been dragging on for over two years. The Seattle union has tried to evade the anti-picketing law of 1919, by placing "observers" to report on union men going into the shows. The decision says that the name don't matter.

This decision follows one handed down in 1922 by the Spokane courts in the case of Dempsey's Pastime restaurant vs. the Cooks' and Waiters' Union, and reverses the King County court decision in the Dans case.

All Picketing Is Violation of Law.

If allowed to stand, it means that picketing is made wholly illegal. It is somewhat doubtful if it will go unchallenged by the unions.

Hanz operates four theaters, two uptown, one downtown, one on the skid road. His audiences are made up chiefly of workers. His Star Theater, on the skid road, is always crowded, neither the A. F. of L. boycott on the theater, nor the I. W. W. boycott on California movies seeming to interest the workers.

Lumber Trust Gives Lessons on How to Beat the Law

SEATTLE, March 12.—Announcement has been made that at the annual meeting of the Douglas Fir Exploitation and Export company, E. C. Griggs of Tacoma was re-elected president.

The federal government started action against this company as a "combination in restraint of trade," about a year ago, but with no results to date.

The reason for no results may be that Griggs, a democrat, was running for congress last fall on that ticket. Then, when it was too late to put anyone else up, he withdrew, leaving the fields clear for the lily of reaction, Johnson, the author of the anti-foreign-born immigration bill.

WOBBLIES ARE PARDONED BUT STILL HELD

May Still Be Deported, Tho Unaccused

NEW YORK, March 12.—The cases of the five Industrial Workers of the World, war-time political prisoners who were pardoned by President Coolidge but are still being held held for deportation by the department of labor, will be argued in the federal district court in Chicago on March 17.

Attorney Isaac Shorr will represent the wobblies and endeavor to have the men released. He argues that there is no justification for the deportation warrants since the president has pardoned the men, cancelling their alleged offenses. Herbert Mahler, Joseph Oates, Pietro Nigra, and William Moran are the men involved.

If the federal judge decides against the men and remands them to the department of labor, writ of habeas corpus proceedings will be instituted immediately for the release of the men.

According to the New York branch of the general defense committee the department of labor is unwarrantedly blocking the release of the men which should have followed the president's pardon.

Sabotage of Bosses Is "Good Business"; of I. W. W., a "Crime"

(Special to The Daily Worker)

VANCOUVER, B. C., March 12.—Pacific coast logging production is to be cut one-half for the next two months by agreement between loggers, lumbermen, and bankers of British Columbia, Washington, Oregon and California. This is necessary in order to keep prices high on building material, and the logical result of an economic system based on production for profit, as in America, not for use, as in Soviet Russia.

This is clearly a combination in restraint of trade, but needless to say neither the American or Canadian government will bother to interfere. They are too busy framing up cases against rebellious workers.

When a worker slows down on production, he gets fired. When the working class organizations agree that slowing down on production would be a good idea, as the I. W. W. has been accused of doing, they are charged with sabotage, criminal syndicalism, etc., and are apt to be sent to prison. When the bosses do exactly the same thing, it shows what good business men they are.

This is typical of capitalism which makes laws to oppress the workers, but protects their exploiters.

PLENTY OF REAL PERSECUTION IN THIS COUNTRY

83 Communist Cases Alone in 5 States

That the criminal syndicalism laws of the various states of this country have not been dead letters on the statute books, is proven by the fact that since the war there have been at least 83 Communist cases alone on which indictments have been secured in at least five states.

This has been gleaned from a recent survey made by the Labor Defense Council to determine the extent to which prosecution under the criminal syndicalism laws has gone on. This estimate does not include many cases in which people have been seized and held under the criminal syndicalism laws of various states for numbers of days, and have been released because of the complete lack of evidence.

From Coast to Coast

The eighty-three cases include only those where indictments have been actually secured and where the cases have either been concluded or are still pending. Of these eighty-three cases, there have been thirty-two in Michigan, eighteen in Illinois, sixteen in Pennsylvania, five in New York, one in West Virginia and eleven in California. California, of course, has imprisoned scores of I. W. W. under this law.

Due to the fact that the defense of these cases has been spread thru the period since the war, it was not definitely known until this survey was made how far-reaching the prosecutions under these laws were. In fact, this survey is in itself as yet not complete, inasmuch as there are cases in a number of states, the complete details of which have not yet been received.

U. S. Not Behind in Persecution

Taking into consideration the many hundreds of deportation cases, a comple survey of which has yet to be made in the future, also a number of cases coming under an assortment of other laws which have been utilized for the purpose of prosecuting those who have opinions other than those of the powers that be, we find that the United States is by no means the last among those countries which have a tremendous mass of political prosecutions to their credit.

An outstanding fact of great importance is that there are still forty-three cases to be tried in the courts, that there are at least three cases that are being appealed to various state courts and three that are on appeal to the United States supreme court. Couple of this with the news already published several times, that various states, among them notably Idaho, are putting even more teeth into their criminal syndicalism laws than they have at the present time, this brings home the nature of the work that still has to be done both morally, and financially as far as concrete defense is concerned, to keep these political defendants from jail and to fight the criminal syndicalist laws.

New York Tenants Demand Action on Housing Crisis

NEW YORK, March 12—In spite of the fact that statistics show that the number of dwellings in New York is 434,175, and the number of families 1,555,000, the legislature at Albany has failed to provide any rent or housing regulations.

The Audobon Community council, the Washington Heights Tenants' association, and the Tenant-Taxpayers' Protective league have sent resolutions to the legislature protesting against that body's inaction in the face of the New York City housing crisis.

English Firm Gets Zinc Concession from Soviet Russia

HARBIN, March 12.—The conclusion of a big contract is reported for the exploitation of the Tetukhe zinc ore mines, by which the concessionaire, Brunner, undertakes to set up a blast furnace and generally to run the enterprise in such a manner as to have zinc exported as a finished product and not in the shape of crude ore, as it was done before the war of 1914, when the said mines were worked by a German firm.

WORKERS CO-OPERATIVE OF GARY RUNS MODEL RESTAURANT, USING PROFITS FOR EDUCATIONAL WORK

GARY, Ind., March 12.—One of the main activities of the Gary Workers' Co-operative Society, which holds a mass meeting here on March 15, is the running of a co-operative restuarant at 1733 Broadway. The society charges ten dollars per share for its stock, but in order to keep the organization entirely in control of the workers, allows every member only one vote, regardless of the number of shares he holds.

No protfits are allowed shareholders, and no interest is paid on the stock. The food is sold at low prices, and is kept at a high standard of quality. The profits are put into educational work among the Gary workers, and for mutual aid to the workers belonging to the society.

All workers interested in furthering the interests of their class are invited to attend the mass meeting which will be held at 2:00 p. m., March 15, at 215 West 18th avenue. Speakers will tell of the work of the co-operative in both Russian and English languages. Admission is free.

All workers are invited to buy a share of stock in the Gary Workers' Co-operative.

Papers Lie About "Prosperity," But Poor Seek Charity

TACOMA, Wash., March 12.—Tacoma papers constantly tell of the steadily increasing prosperity of this city. But the county charity commissioners office proves that they lie.

The past eleven months show 584 cases of outdoor relief and 1,905 county hospital cases. This almost doubles the figures for the preceeding fiscal year. This February shows double the expense of last February. There is a long waiting list of applicants who wish to enter the county hospital and the county poor farm, both of which are overcrowded now.

And this relief does not reach the hundreds of migratory workers who drift thru the city, vainly seeking work, sleeping in box cars, pool halls, etc., and begging for food. Their only job is keeping cool with Coolidge.

Steel Workers Lose $1,500,000 to Bosses By Clever Little Cal

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 12.—President Coolidge did not sign the bill, passed by the house and senate, for payment to the former workers in the Bethlehem Steel company's plant the raise in wages granted them by the war labor board and repudiated by Chas. M. Schwab and his company. Some $1,500,000 due these steel workers is involved. Payment was to have been made from the treasury, and the government was then to have sued the company for reimbursement.

UNEMPLOYMENT IS EXTENSIVE, STATE REPORTS

But Points Hopefully to 4,301 New Jobs

Factory industry, at least, is expanding slightly in Illinois, according to the estimate of the general advisory board of the Illinois state department of labor. But the report admits that there is "extensive unemployment."

The 1,188 manufacturers who report to the department, had on the pay roll for the week ending the middle of February, 285,298 workers, or about 40 per cent of the factory workers of the state. This is an increase of 4,301 workers since the previous month's report.

Some Very, Very Thin Gains

The report says, "of forty-four out of fifty-five industries, practically all recorded a gain." Presumably, however, the 4,301 re-employed workers, when spread over these forty-four industries, make the gain thin in each, or very thin indeed in most. The department does not elucidate these figures except by indirection.

The leading increase was in the metal industry, automobile and accessory products adding 11.6 to the January payroll. In agricultural implements, the report states, "In recent months the payrolls have been steadily increased until operations are now 47 per cent above the low point reached in August 1924.

The Rate of Men to Jobs

"Operations of the free employment offices showed there were 173 persons registered for each 100 jobs in February, as compared with 188 in January.

"In Chicago, 1,418 building permits authorized $27,220,450 worth of work, which was about $9,000,000 over the figure of February 1924. In the residential suburbs of Chicago, principally Oak Park, Evanston and Berwyn, the new projects were exceptionally extensive."

Silent On Miners

The report is as silent as the grave on the terrible unemployment rife among the coal miners of the state of Illinois.

In explaining, "the anomaly of expanding industry and extensive unemployment," the report says; "When business after a period of decline changes for the better, all the workers are not taken back at once, but the process is slow and gradual."

Coolidge Demand for Discharging Workers Hits Printers' Union

WASHINGTON, March 12.—Columbia Typographical Union has protested to President Coolidge the sudden dismissal of 175 of its members from the government printing office, which is almost solidly organised.

Public printer Carter is accused by President Smith of the union with violation of the law in this summary move in the so-called "economy" program. The fact that veterans of the world war are among those laid off is further complicating the situation.

Carter replies that he was ordered to reduce the force to 4,000 men, and that he did so as humanely as was possible. The White House demanded a reduction in operating costs; it is now up to Coolidge.

Wages, Prices and Workers

Wholesale prices have risen 10 per cent since August of last year.

This means that without lockouts, wage cuts or furore of any kind, the wages of the American working class have been reduced ten per cent. In Chicago the price of pork and pork products alone has risen ten cents per pound in the last three weeks.

In the textile and coal mining industries, to speak only of these two instances, there is a well organized drive against the workers' wages. It is plain that under the wage system the worker is never secure. The bosses reduce his money wages by unemployment and wage cuts, his real wages—purchasing power—are reduced by increases in the prices he pays for food, clothing and housing.

In the old days of competitive capitalism price increases could be discounted by wage increases. Today monopoly control of basic industry is able to make inroads on the living standard of the workers by price fixing and wage cutting at one and the same time. It is true that the average wage of the workers always tends towards the bare subsistence level, but the process by which this movement is forced is plainer than ever before.

The working class no longer overcomes in "good times" the losses suffered in bad times. The living level sinks lower and lower even in the United States where the ubiquitous "tin lizzie" gives an impression of working class prosperity.

Competition between the national capitalisms is keener than ever before. The capitalist class of every country is impelled to war on the living standards of the workers. Every wage struggle is therefore a major political struggle in that upon the success of its wage slashing campaigns depends the immediate future success of the capitalist economy.

It is because capitalism is no longer able to grant wholesale wage increases to the working class that the whole power of the capitalist state is mobilized to put down wage movements; it is also for this reason that the yellow socialists and trade union officialdom play such an important role in the class struggle of the present period. Their refusal to fight the most elementary needs of the working class is not simply a lack of interest in the workers but an actual betrayal of them to capitalism. They mouth revolutionary phrases, but they support capitalism.

The Communists understand the vital nature of the conflicts over wages and hours. Their attitude is not the static one of mere sympathy for the workers who are involved, but dynamic in that Communists encourage these struggles on the part of the workers, participate in them and try to give the whole working class movement a concrete program and direction that leads it to pride in itself, hatred of capitalism and the will to triumph over it thru the organized power of the workers and farmers.

The Reynolds Case

The quashing of the contempt charges and the dropping of the injunction secured by the Hutcheson machine of the Carpenters' Union against Comrade Reynolds of Detroit as a result of his militant activities in the union, is an example of what organization of the workers' forces and mass pressure on the courts can accomplish.

Comrade Reynolds and the rank and file that supported him never backed up one inch. The moment the injunction barring him from attending union meetings was issued it was violated. When called into a capitalist court to answer the charges of contempt of its orders the militants turned the trial into an exposure of Hutcheson and his payroll gang of fakers.

The rank and file of the union attended the hearings en masse and never for a minute was their attitude in doubt.

The defeat of the union reactionaries will strengthen immensely the Workers Party and the Trade Union Educational League in the Detroit labor movement and nationally. The militant carpenters are not resting on their laurels, however. They are pushing agitation and organization and using the interest that has been aroused by the case to build a bigger and more conscious left wing.

Japanese women invaded the meeting of the imperial diet the other day and made the rafters ring with demands for equal rights.

If the men are as active and fearless as the women, Japanese tyrannical government is going to have a lot of trouble.

The Breach Widens

France is threatening to form an alliance with Russia and Japan if her demands for a security pact against Germany are not granted.

Great Britain retaliates by circulating rumors in London to the effect that the balance sheets of the Bank of France are forged and that $100,000,000 more than the amount of paper money authorized has been circulated. If continued, the disastrous effect on the franc of this campaign can be easily imagined.

France would allow Japan, as the basis of the proposed alliance, to use her Indo-China ports in the event of war with England or America, thus making the British Singapore base of little value. Such an alliance, however, would be in direct opposition to Polish interests and the fact that France even mentions it as a possibility is a corroboration of our prediction that Poland is going to be left to shift for herself one of these days.

The alternate proposal, that Germany be one of the signers of the security pact is just as distasteful to Poland. She insists that if Germany is taken into the allied family that transportation of munitions and troops across Germany must be permitted in the event of war with Russia.

German nationalism hates and fears Soviet Russia, but Poland is the immediate enemy and Germany will hardly consent to be another Danzig corridor to the enemy on her eastern frontier.

The British dominions have washed their hands of the whole affair and any guarantees made to France by Great Britain will not be endorsed by South Africa, Australia and Canada.

In this welter of capitalist diplomatic strife it is of interest to recall the statement of the French press quoted by us recently saying that "France must now choose her allies in the Far East." It should be recalled also that during the recent internal strife in China, French and Japanese imperialism united in support of the same Chinese general.

The only thing certain in this complicated European situation is that national rivalries are becoming deeper and the breach between the conflicting imperialist nations wider.

As a result of this, Soviet Russia stands out more and more definitely as the great power without whom even no important temporary settlement can be made.

The workers' and peasants' government is the biggest force in European affairs.

The grape fruit will not be the sourest article at the breakfast party of Warren and Coolidge.

"State Police Facts"

State senators and representatives in the Illinois legislature have been handed a questionaire entitled "State Police Facts."

The first question is: "Why does Illinois need a state police force?"

The answer, written by some unconscious humorist or a living Sherwood Anderson character who has never been in the metropolis, begins:

"To patrol our public highways and give everybody in the state the same police protection as is now enjoyed in Chicago . . . "

It is pretty well a matter of record that the only people who get police protection in Chicago are unfair bosses, strikebreakers, gunmen and criminals. The most patriotic Chicago babbitt cites this fact as a matter for local pride. Whatever was the intention of the compiler of the questionaire he has certainly made clear the purpose of the state police bill. For "protection" read "persecution" and we are reasonably accurate.

Another question asked and answered is:

"Will they (the state police) arrest strikers?" Answer: "Yes, if they break the law; no, if they don't. In other words, they will be treated just as all other citizens."

This would be good news—if it were true. If strikers could be sure that they would be treated exactly like "other citizens" owning mines, factories and natural resources they would not care how many police there were. But strikers are always outlawed. If there is no law to cover a particular strike there is always the injunction, automatically followed by police or troops.

The state police bill is just another attempt to create a stronger band of mercenaries for the capitalists of Illinois. They admit this themselves.

When this sinister measure has been branded as an assault on the unions and the working class in general one has said all that can be said.

It must be fought just as the injunction and all other special measures of repression are fought—as part of the class struggle.

The German railway workers are on strike against the low wage system of the Dawes plan. The workers of Great Britain face a new drive on their unions and wages. The textile workers and coal miners of America are confronted with wage cuts and an open shop offensive. The class struggle has the same basis the world over.

As our cartoonist shows, the foreign-born workers are the left arm of American labor. Let the rulers cut it off with House Bill 11796 and they will soon be hacking at the other arm—the native-born workers.

The government of Belgium has refused to let Eamon de Valera speak in that country. We hope the Irish workers who fought to preserve "the neutrality of Belgium," will note the success of their efforts.

What could be more appropriate than to have a vice-president named Lackey come to Chicago to fight the militant members of the Carpenters' Union?

The Commune Celebrations

THE anniversary of the proclamation of the Paris Commune and the celebrations, demonstrations and mass meetings held to commemorate it, have taken on a world wide revolutionary political meaning since the Russian revolution and the organization of the Communist International the historical offspring of the First International and the revolutions of 1848-71.

The Third (Communist) International has dedicated the anniversary of the commune to the victims of the class war. In all the celebrations held it is the extension of the terror of international capitalism and capitalist government that must be the subject first on the order of business.

NO mere recital of the events leading up to the commune and the slaughter of the workers of Paris is permissible. Horrible as was the mass murder of the revolutionists of the Commune, modern history, contemporary events, furnish just as horrible examples in the rivers of blood pouring from the shattered bodies of thousands of workers and peasants who have risen against capitalist tyranny.

The anniversary of the commune is a day for hammering at the doors of the jails and dungeons of world capitalism. The prisons of the capitalist rulers are filled to overflowing and the crack of rifles, the rat-tat-tat of machine guns, the thud of clubs, the shrieks of the dying and tortured victims of reaction resound thruout the globe. The death toll of workers rolled up before the wall of Paris is small compared to the list of workingclass victims written in blood by capitalism since 1917.

THE end is not yet. There is no unemployment among the jailers and executioners.

On March 15 in Madison Square Garden, New York, in Ashland Auditorium, Chicago, March 29, will be held two gigantic commune celebrations. A party member who absents himself betrays those of his class who have been jailed in the world revolutionary conflict.

On page 4 of today's issue we publish a "Thesis for Agitators on the day of the Paris Commune and International Red Aid."

Every member of the Workers (Communist) Party, especially those comrades who are in charge of these demonstrations and those who will have the privilege of speaking to the masses that will assemble there, should study the thesis with the utmost care.

THE days are past for academic discussion and oratorical glorification of the revolutionary heroes of yesterday. We learn from their lives, their struggles and their deaths, but as Communists, we live in the present and face a future which is ours. It is the struggle of today that must be the major theme at the commune meetings. Nothing is of more importance to the world revolution than the army of working class victims of the world wide white terror and the struggle in which they died or were sent to a living death.

The commune left for its glorious monument the graves of thousands of workers who died rather than surrender to their oppressors. It was the first breach made in the walls of capitalism by a conscious working class. We remember these heroic victims with love and gratitude.

BUT we must not forget that the battle line has been lengthened since the commune. Regiments, brigades, whole armies of the workers are on the front where only the handful of Communards once stood. Like the Communards, the workers of Germany, France, Italy, Poland, Bulgaria, Esthonia, Finland, Lithuania, Spain, Egypt, India, China, Indo-China, Java, Philippines, all the countries of the far east, Mexico, Haiti, Chile, even of "democratic" England and America, have had their blood baths—have seen their comrades with whom they fought shoulder to shoulder handed over the brutal turnkeys of the ruling class.

On the anniversary of the commune we do not look back with puzzled wonder that such atrocities could have happened. We live in a world that has lost all characteristics of the comparatively peaceful period when capitalism was in its prime. Our world is a bloody world, our rulers' hands are stained a deeper crimson than in 1848. It is the same class that rules except in Soviet Russia.

IT rules again by blood and iron. The same class crushed the 1905 revolution. The same class tried to drown in gore the revolution of 1917. It faces now a world wide revolt and its methods are the same in all countries—murder, torture, tombs for the living, shallow graves for the dead.

For those workers who gave their lives in the fight we can do nothing, but honor their memory and pledge ourselves to see that they did not die in vain.

But for the living victims we can and will do something. We will let millions of workers know of the obscene tortures they undergo because they are revolutionists and place the interests of the workers and peasants first.

WE will demand freedom for them and organize to enforce our demands.

We will teach the lessons of the commune by the living examples of today. We will number and name the nations whose jails are filled, we will show the working class what capitalism has in store for those who will not be slaves and we will organize our class for disciplined action in a war that it cannot evade except by allowing shackles to be welded on its limbs.

THE day of the commune is the day of International Red Relief. It is the day on which the workers mobilize to free the working class victims of the white terror.

On the anniversary of the day when the Communards challenged the capitalist rulers we renew the challenge and drive against capitalism for freedom for the imprisoned heroes of the working class.

Down with capitalist terror!

Freedom for all workers and peasants jailed in the revolutionary struggle!

Support the International Red Relief!

Long live the Commune!

Communists Urging General Strike of All German Unions

the Dawes' plan management and the rail unions.

The real reason, however, for the refusal of these socialist leaders of the Berlin unions in other industries than railway work, to meet with the shop committee delegates of rail workers, is that these Communist controlled rank and file bodies are determined to spread the strike beyond the railway workers into all industries. They openly announce the purpose to tie up all traffic and all production.

Dawes' Plan Strikes a Snag.

The Dawes' plan management precipitated the conflict by raising the salary of the higher officials at the same time they refused the modest demand of the lowest paid workers for an increase of three pfennigs an hour and a re-establishment of the eight-hour day which the Dawes' plan stole from the German workers.

In this demand the lower circle of railway officials, clerks and foremen are fully supporting the demands of the manual workers, their organization yesterday having voted to ally itself with the strikers.

Complete General Strike Developing.

With the militant leadership of the Communists within the unions, the situation is such that if a general railway strike is ordered after today's conference, the Communist program for a walk-out of all union workers in other industries as well appears certain to develop within forty-eight hours.

English Spy Spews Lies About Russia

Frederick A. McKenzie, the English spy who was thrown out of Russia for his lies about the workers' and peasants' government there, will speak tonight at Orchestra Hall.

McKenzie, who is being toured thru the country by the Russian czarist and counter-revolutionary mensheviks who are also supporting Raphael Abramovich, spoke recently in Chicago before an audience of white guard Russians who fled Russia rather than go to work. Many interruptions occurred during McKenzie's talk.

Most of the few remaining Chicago socialists are expected to be at the spy's meeting tonight.

Workers Taxed For Ebert's Death.

BERLIN, Germany, March 12.—Frau Ebert, widow of the first German president, will receive a pension of $141.00 a month. The reichstag assumed the cost of the funeral of Ebert on behalf of the nation. The Communists protested on the grounds that Ebert represented not the masses of the people, but the German bourgeoisie. Ebert's funeral cost over $10,000.

German President Sworn In.

LENIN SCHOOL STUDENTS COMING FROM EVERY SECTION OF STATE

The Chicago intensive Training School which will open Monday morning, 8:30 at 722 Blue Island Ave., is assured of a representative student body from all over the state. Many of these comrades, among whom is Comrade Voyzey who ran for international president of the miners' union and received 66,000 votes, against Lewis, have written in enthusiastically about the necessity of this course and signified their great willingness to take advantage of this excellent opportunity.

Most of the comrades coming from out of town are active members of the left wing of the trade union movement who come to equip themselves so as to better fight the reactionaries in their organizations and carry on more effective party work.

Comrades attending the school, come from St. Louis, W. Frankfort, O'Fallon, Zeigler, Christopher, Decatur, Dowell, Sesser, Springfield, Gary, Milwaukee, Verona, Waukegan, Orient, etc. Among these comrades will be such active workers in the miners' union as Staples, who beat Phil Murray in the state of Illinois in the international miners' elections, Reid Corbisley, Young, etc. There will also be members of the Young Workers League coming from Detroit, Cleveland and from the rest of the district. To be included in the above, of course, are also quite a number of Chicago comrades.

Will Aid Party Work.

Among other things, the wide representation from all over the state makes it certain that not only the school will be a great success but that the work of the party will be materially aided in that the comrades from all over the district will give the district office first hand information of the work going on in their localities and will in turn carry out plans laid down by the district as a unit when they go home from the intensive training course.

There is also, no doubt, that after the intensive course is finished that all the comrades attending will in turn aid in the establishment of educational work in the localities from which they came, and thus make the educational program as well as the other work increasingly effective.

We are now able to publish the outline of the course on Leninism, which will be given in eight lectures.

This course will be a sort of connecting link between the various other courses given as well as bring forth a great amount of new material of its own.

Comrade M. Gomez who heads the research department of the national office of the party teaches this course and will prove very valuable to the comrades attending.

Course in Leninism.

1. Introductory—The Elements of Marxian Theory—(Dealing principally with the dynamics of Marxism—dialectic materialism, the class struggle, etc.)

2. From the Diluted "Marxism" of the Second International to The Revolutionary Doctrine of Lenin. (Distortion of Marx's teachings during period of parliamentarism and stabilization of capitalism. The world war, Leninism, the Marxism of the present revolutionary epoch; the Marxism of revolutionary action.)

3. The State and Revolution—(Theory of the state; the state and revolution; decisions due to lack of understanding of the nature and function of the state—Germany. I. W. W., etc.)

4. Imperialism The Final Stage of Capitalism—(Economics of imperialism; present view of the world; American imperialism; catastrophic climax of imperialism.)

5. "The Vanguard of the Proletariat" (Role of a revolutionary political party; what kind of a party; complete severance from opportunism; mobile, discipline and democratic centralism; the Russian Communist Party; the Communist International.)

6. (a) Workers and Farmers—(The farmers as allies of the struggle, necessity of linking up the farmers' movement against big capital with the proletarian revolution.)

(b) The Exploited Colonial Peoples—(Importance and necessity of linking up wars for national liberation with the proletarian revolution; historical and economic forces on which the Communist colonial program is based; the colonies in modern world economy.)

8. Theory and Practice of the Proletarian Dictatorship—(Marx on the Paris Commune: former vague ideas of the revolutionary machinery; the capitalist state and the workers' state, historical apeparance of the Soviets as the form of the state; the period of transition to Communism; the party in the dictatorship; lessons of the Russian revolution.

8. Strategy and Tactics of Communism—(Lenin's theory; "One step forward, etc., "left sickness;" need for complete severance from opportunists; the united front; Lenin's practice, Brest peace, etc.)

Olgin Speaks on the Third International

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., March 12.—On Sunday, March 15, the workers of Philadelphia will have an opportunity to hear M. P. Olgin, speak on "The General Staff of the World Revolution," at the Workers (Communist) Party open forum. It is not necessary to add that by the general staff of the world revolution is meant the Communist International.

Comrade Olgin recently returned from Soviet Russia, after having attended the Fifth Congress of the Communist International. While there he came in contact with the many Communist delegates from all countries, and had an opportunity to study many of the Communist Parties.

Altho a large hall has been secured for the meeting, a capacity audience is expected. The forum meets every Sunday evening in Grand Fraternity Hall, 1628 Arch street.

IT is rumored that the prince of Wales will get married after his return from his trip to South Africa and South America. The British ruling class are very anxious over the prince's objections to the matrimonial knot, tho they know he is no woman hater. The fact is, if reports are reasonably correct, that he likes them not wisely but too well. King George is seriously ill and a king without a queen would raise the dickens with royal society. One of the nuts the prince must have to crack is getting a wife whose religion will harmonize with the creed of the house of Wettin. Most of the available unhitched princesses are catholics.

ANOTHER rumor turned loose in England is that Ramsay MacDonald will return his endowed automobile to the tory millionaire biscuit manufacturer, Sir Alexander Grant. The auto was accompanied by an endowment fund of $150,000, enough to keep it in gasoline. The sight of the auto is not pleasing to the eyes of the British working class, and as MacDonald is not willing to lose his leadership, he may let the auto go. Sir Alexander might let him hold on to the $150,000 worth of stock until his turn to board in Downing street might come around again. If MacDonald relinquishes his hold on the biscuit shares he is the first social democrat that ever did such a thing.

THE fascisti press in Italy is joyous over the deep friendship existing between Mussolini and the American ambassador at Rome. Mussolini is ill, very ill. Ambassador Fletcher is constantly inquiring about him. So pleased was Benito over this, that he called for the largest picture of himself that could be found, signed it and sent it to Fletcher. Last year when Wall Street financiers began to hammer the lire, Fletcher wired to the state department to call off the wolves. This was done. It should not be forgotten that Fletcher's predecessor Child, was one of those who gave Mussolini support in his march on Rome.

PUSH WAGE CUT AGAINST MINERS

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

THE WORLD COURT plan which is so dear to the heart of President Coolidge was sent into retirement by the senate committee on foreign relations. The irreconcilables hold that the plan like its step-brother, the league of nations, would involve the United States in European entanglements. Nothing daunted by the senatorial opposition, Wall Street sent three bankers to Europe and got a half-Nelson on Germany's industries. A big part of Europe is now hewing wood and drawing water for Morgan and company, just as if this country was officially and inextricably entangled in the league. But the senators will continue to babble that they have kept the U. S. out of entangling alliances.

CALVIN COOLIDGE can act promptly at times. When Fall and Denby were transferring the naval oil reserves into the possession of Messers Doheny and Sinclair he was making hay on his father's farm in Vermont or reading the bible in the "little green house on K street." When the crooks were smoked out and it was discovered that members of Coolidge's cabinet were the chief conspirators in looting the fuel supply of Wall Street's navy, "Cal" was extremely patient. Only when he feared that further inaction would interfere with his ambition to be elected president of the United States did he take action, and relieve a few of the crooks of their duties.

BUT when the senate failed to confirm his nomination of the saccharine statesman, Charles Beecher Warren, he was moved deeply. Showing a belligerency which is strange to him, he shot the nomination a second time up to the senate floor. Perhaps Warren insisted. "Cal" owes the sugar trust lawyer a good deal. Perhaps it was in the bond that the president should reward him. The chieftaincy of the department of justice is a nice plum. It is true the salary is not large compared to what a corporation pays as a retainer, but the salary is not everything. If you hear a noise sounding suspiciously like an explosion coming from the direction of Washington one of these days it will be the Coolidge myth going up.

CHARLES HINMAN, one of Heart's literary scavengers, gives a friendly warning to those who may expect a big rush of business immediately after Russian recognition. Hinman does not think so and fears that worse things may happen to a bourgeois nation than slack business. For instance, Hinman says, when any country recognizes Russia, it is immediately flooded by Bolshevist agents who foment strikes and even revolutions. Who ever heard of strikes in happy America, until the Soviet government came into existence? To answer such a question would be an insult to the intelligence of the DAILY WORKER readers. But this kind of moron-food is read by many and believed by some.

A FEATURE writer on one of the Washington dailies had a different story to tell a few days ago. He branded the opponents of Soviet recognition as "tit-wits" and mental defectives. He showed that Japan had won a big victory over the United States thru the treaty with Soviet Russia. This writer declared that the government is now being bombarded with telegrams by American business men demanding that the administration sit on a tack and wake up. Yes, Soviet Russia will be recognized, not because of capitalist love for the workers' republic but for business and po-

WORKERS PARTY FLAYS ENEMIES OF RED RUSSIA

Baldwin's Defense of Abramovich Exposed

Roger Baldwin, director of the American Civil Liberties Union, has joined the reactionary cohorts of the stoolpigeon Rafael Abramovich in the campaign of slander that was opened by that czaristic apologist on his recent arrival in the United States.

Under the subterfuge of a movement for the release of the assassins of world capitalism, now in jail in Soviet Russia, for making open war on the first workers' republic in history in order to turn the victory of the working class into a charnel house of death and destruction for the workers and peasants thru a restoration of the bloody rule of capitalism, the yellow socialists, under the leadership of the unspeakable capitalist scavanger Abe Cahan, have mobilized their forces in an attempt to injure the workers' republic.

The New Don Quixote.

Into this unholy company Roger Baldwin, long associated with the movement for release of political prisoners from capitalist dungeons has been inveigled. He feels that the protests made by the American workers against Abramovich are an infringement on the rights of free speech. He blames the Workers Party for having organized them, and then essays the role of a Don Quixote by tilting at imaginary windmills.

Roger Baldwin has suddenly become quite popular with the capitalist press. The reason is obvious.

The central executive committee of the Workers (Communist) Party of America, in the following letter to Roger Baldwin shows that the director of the Civil Liberties Union is not acting in the role of a defender of free speech, but as an active enemy of Soviet Russia:

Letter to Baldwin.

Chicago, Ill., Mar. 12, 1925.

Roger Baldwin, Director,
American Civil Liberties Union,
100 Fifth Avenue,
New York, N. Y.

Dear Baldwin:—In reply to your communications of March 3, and 11, the central executive committee of the Workers Party of America makes the following statement:

As we foresaw, the demand for "free speech" on behalf of Mr. Abramovich, enemy of the workers' government of Russia, has turned into a fight, not for free speech, but to slander and discredit Soviet Russia—to assist the capitalist governments of the world to intimidate the workers and prepare for new warfare against the stronghold of the world's workers.

No other conclusion is possible when we see the New York Times jubilantly making common cause with the friends of "free speech." We are not surprised that the capitalist papers suddenly throw open their news columns to you, and even their editorial pages, for you are rendering their owners a great service. You are being placed in a position of sponsoring the lies which they have been unable to make the workers of America believe.

You demand that the Communists shall grant free speech to Abramovich. But we are not the ruling party in America. We have not closed Mr. Abramovich's halls. We have not jailed his supporters and beaten them up in meetings. No! These very things have been perpetrated upon us. The Workers Party is a persecuted political organization of the conscious workers, fighting every day for its

WORKERS OF SAXONY, GERMANY, SEND DONATION FOR IRISH FAMINE RELIEF

BERLIN.—(By Mail.)—At a mass meeting held by industrial workers in Saxony, the sum of sixty pounds in British money was forwarded to the British section of the Workers' International Relief to be applied to the relief of the starving workers and peasants on the west coast of Ireland.

Accompanying the contribution went the following note: "This meeting attended by industrial workers, as well as by representatives of small peasant farmers, remembers the numerous acts of fraternal solidarity, by which the British working class assisted us during the winter of 1923-24.

"As the means of the German working class are very limited, we regret that we're unable to send more at the present moment than 60 pounds. We send it as proof of our international solidarity and ask you to forward it to our Irish brothers."

MINERS OF NOVA SCOTIA FIGHT WAGE CUT AND STARVATION SCHEME OF BRITISH EMPIRE CORPORATION

GLACE BAY, Nova Scotia, March 13.—The strike of the miners of District 26, United Mine Workers of America follows on a period of slow starvation deliberately forced upon them by the British Empire Steel corporation. Besco, as the corporation is known here, is determined at all costs to force a wage cut of ten per cent on the miners. Knowing that when it came to fighting the miners were more than a match for both Besco and the thugs provided by the Novia Scotia government, the corporation resorted to the starvation method to reduce the miners to he proper sate of humbleness necessary to get them to accept the cut. Since the first of November the miners here have not worked more than 15 days on the average. Particularly the leading militant locals connected with mines 2, 4 and 6 have suffered under this starvation process.

That the corporation was deliberately starving the miners is proven by the fact that last week the company stores cut off all credit, which means cutting off the food supply of the miners and their families. This situation was promptly met by the district executive committee with the following letter sent to J. E. McLurg, vice-president of the corporation:

"Dear Sir:—We called your attention to conditions of want amounting virtually to starvation at the collieries of your company, especially collieries 2, 4 and 6 in the southern area. We call your attention to our statement to the premier of Nova Scotia that these circumstances of privation, combined with cancellations of credit at your stores sufficient to give the bare necessaries of life to our workers at these collieries, will precipitate a crisis. In the face of this statement, your corporation continues to keep idle collieries 2, 4 and 6, and you have

APPEAL FOR LIVES OF VICTIMS OF THE WHITE TERROR IN SPAIN

MOSCOW. Feb. 23.—(By Mail.)—An appeal of the Red Trade Union International says:

"White terror rages in Spain. Hundreds of workers are languishing in prisons; the court martial are handing over the most valiant of the proletariat to the executioner. These classic terrorist measures do not appear to have the effect of keeping down the rebellion of labor, therefore Primo de Rivera has taken the two best trade union fighters in Spain, Comrades Maurin and Arlandis, as hostages. Maurin's life is in imminent danger. The Spanish bourgeoisie and Spanish military dictatorship have determined that he should die. Will you, workers, allow this despicable deed to be carried out? If you do, you are signing your own death warrant. Arrange protest meetings, let your voice be heard in front of the Spanish embassies, send protests to Primo de Rivera. The most terrible crime of the Spanish dictators must be prevented. Save the life of Maurin and his comrades!"

Isle of Pines Goes to Cuba 21 Years After Being Signed

WASHINGTON, March 13.—After being pigeon holed for 21 years, the Isle of Pines treaty was ratified today by the senate.

The treaty cedes the island to Cuba.

Opponents charged the treaty would work hardships on American citizens holding property on the Isle of Pines.

The island will still be controlled by American capitalists who are virtual dictators over the Cuban government.

WANTS TO TALK WITH THE JAPS ABOUT SOVIETS

Kellogg Nervous at Jap Trade Rights

WASHINGTON, March 13.—Secretary of State Kellogg will discuss Russian recognition issues with the newly arrived Japanese ambassador, Matsudaira, before beginning discussions with a spokesman of the Soviet Union.

Kellogg wants to know about the application of the "open door" policy of American commercial imperialism to Siberian resources, in view of the recent treaty between the Soviet Union and Japan. It is known that Japan is negotiating for big concessions of timber in Siberia, and for a lot of oil from Baku.

The state department has refused to recognize the concession of an oil monopoly by the Albanian government to the Anglo-Persion Oil Co., and it has fought the legalization of the Japanese claim to a radio monopoly in China.

Kellogg and Matsudaira will also discuss the rumor that some sort of military alliance is hidden in secret annexes to the Soviet-Japanese treaty.

Governor Small has been requested to approve the plan of giving these detectives "complete charge of affairs in Herrin."

MOSCOW SHOWS BRITISH AID TO ANTI-TURK WAR

An Attempt to Restore Imperialist Rule

MOSCOW, Feb. 26.—(By Mail).—The insurrection of Shiek Said against Mustapha Kemel is looked upon in Moscow as an attempt at restoration on the part of reaction and imperialism. Kemal represents on the whole the national movement of liberation, aspires towards a democratization and an emancipation of Turkey from feudal remnants, and from the influence of the Moslem clergy. Against Kemal are arrayed: (1) imperialism; (2) the feudal landlords; (3) the clergy; (4) the commercial middle class of the ports allied to foreign capital.

Lately, the reactionary forces of Turkey organized themselves into the so-called progressive republican party, which has led the attack on Kemal. The insurrectionists are enrolling, thru the clergy, the fanatical nomadic tribesmen, and are using religious watchwords. The insurrection broke out in the eastern vilayets, where landlordism prevails.

Behind the insurrection stands Great Britain, which is interested in the Mosul question, that is, in the oil question. The date of the insurrection was determined, first, by the inquiry into the Mosul question thru the commission of the league of nations; second, thru the intention of the government to abolish the aschar, that is, the church tax, which sometimes fluctuates between 10 and 80 per cent of the crop.

The beating down of the insurrection is rendered difficult owing to bad communications, weather conditions and the nature of the class struggle, which this conflict implies. The class struggle of the Kemal government, based on the petty and middle bourgeoisie of the towns and upon some peasant elements, and directed against the big landowners, the clergy and British imperialism, has now reached a critical stage.

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 13.—With the arrival of four train loads of Turkish troops every day in Kurdistan, the Kurds are dashing toward the Mosul frontier.

THREAD STRIKE FORCES TRUST TO SHUT MILL

Even the Firemen Refuse to Work

WILLIMANTIC, Conn., March 13.—The American Thread company strike shocked the company officials. They were amazed at the complete tie-up in the mill. They had expected that only a few hundred would go out and be beaten back into quick submussion.

Agent D. M. Curtis, when he saw the strikers march by on Tuesday morning on the picket line, said: "I never thought it would come to this!" And even some members of the union never dreamed of the solidarity displayed. But the mill is tied up.

Cut Brings Complete Strike.

The cut which was announced on January 12, put into effect a ten per cent reduction on the excuse of "meeting competition." The United Textile Workers of America, which existed here since the war, met and voted to strike if the cut was not revoked.

Agent Curtis got out pressing orders, but on March 9 the strike was declared. It took just two days to tie up the plant completely. This was remarkable since there were only about 800 organized out of 2,500 when the strike was called.

Curtis hal told the negotiation committee that it would be foolish to strike, and had taunted them—"You are not sufficiently organized." But the finishing and works departments went out on Monday morning. Even the officers of the company admitted that the finishing room was completely tied up, but they insisted on keeping the mill open.

Firemen Prove True to Their Class.

Tuesday noon the company decided to close down the mill, because several hundred in the manufacturing department stayed out, and because the firemen refused to man the boilers.

The officials were brought to their knees and the determination to keep the mills open was abandoned.

Proof in the hands of the DAILY WORKER correspondent shows that the company made regular profits in Willimantic, that the company is controlled by British capital, that stock was watered in 1919, that profits have been so large that the company desired to conceal them in this watering, and has declared several huge stock dividends, with big cash dividends thruout 1923.

A One Company Town.

The DAILY WORKER correspondent asks that all radical and labor organizations aid the strike financially. The Carpenters' Union of Willimantic has given $100. The spirit of the strikers is splendid. They have endured so much from the company that the wage cut was th last straw.

Th composition of the strikers racially is mostly French Canadians, then Polish, Irish and Russian is order. The American Thread company controls the town. You work in the mill or you work nowhere. A shoe concern which tried to locate here was not allowed in. It is a textile prison and most have full control over its inmates. Children graduate from school into the mill at fourteen years of age with nothing ahead but standing at the loom or at the dye vats the rest of their lives.

MRS. BRYKLA, TEXTILE STRIKER OF UTICA, WINS AN ARGUMENT

UTICA, N. Y., March 13.— Mrs. Josephine Brykla and her husband, two textile strikers of the Utica Steam Cotton mill, were dismissed when they appeared in the municipal court to answer a charge of assault in the second degree against a plain clothes cop.

On Thursday of last week, Mrs. Brykla was arguing with a few persons on the street. Officer William Kelly, who thought it his business to interfere with an argument between workers, even if peaceful, ran up and began to push and shove folks about.

As he was in disguise and showed no sign of authority, the Bryklas didn't know he was a policeman. They resented the unwarranted interference and violence, and showed their resentment physically.

Policeman Kelly claimed that Brykla jumped on him and that Mrs. Brykla dug her finger nails into his face, while her husband punched him. Officer Kelly offered his face as an exhibit. He said that he drew his revolver and fired to attract help. Also, some one phoned, and eight detectives and cops were rushed to the rescue and arrested the pair of strikers. Mrs. Brykla won the argument.

FASCIST UNIONS DESERT LEADERS, 15,000 STRIKE

Communists Active in Metal Trades Walkout

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ROME, Italy, March 13.—Deputy Maffi, the Communist member of the chamber of deputies, exposed the violence instituted by the fascist leaders against the workers of Italy in a speech in the chamber. Comrade Maffi showed how the fascist leaders had made themselves rich thru their alliance with the capitalists of Italy. He showed how the brutal suppressions instituted by the fascisti were the sole means of keeping the workers from gaining power.

The rank and file of the fascist party, meanwhile, broke with their leaders, 15,000 metal workers coming out on a general strike under the leadership of Communists, whose influence has penetrated the rank and file of the fascist unions.

The fascisti previously had ruthlessly broken up the workers' unions, and carried on violent raids among the organized workers. But with Mussolini too ill to direct the fascisti in their anti-union campaign instituted at the order of the big industrialists, the fascist unions themselves balked, and walked out on strike.

The strike began in Brescia, where several thousand metal workers walked out, but soon the rank and file members of the fascist unions in Milan and other cities also walked out, and when the employers failed to accede to their terms, the Communists taking an active part in the strike injected a revolutionary turn to the strike.

League Council Sticks to Protocol Like Gum to a Stenog's Chair

GENEVA, March 13.— The council of the league of nations clung tenaciously to its protocol with which it hopes to assure world peace when it unanimously adopted a resolution today to adjourn discussion of the proposal until the meeting of the assembly in December.

The protocol will remain in status quo, as the council adopted a resolution to cease all preparations to carry out the protocol until the September assembly.

COAL BARONS WILL TRY TO BREAK PACT

To Meet in Cleveland on Next Tuesday

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PITTSBURG, March 12.—Steps will be taken at the Cleveland conference of the bituminous coal operators which meets next Tuesday to break the Jacksonville agreement with the United Mine Workers of America, according to a report issued here today and credited to the officers of the Western Pennsylvania operators.

To Meet Tuesday.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, March 12.—Coal operators in the bituminous coal fields of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and western Pennsylvania will meet here next Tuesday to consider the "condition of the industry" and the constant reduction of the tonnage in union fields it was learned here today.

Reports from Pittsburgh that the meeting was designed to take steps to break the contract with the United Mine Workers, which runs until April 1, 1926, were denied by operators here, but it was admitted that under the present conditions, with vast fields in West Virginia and Kentucky unorganized, coal was not being produced at a satisfactory rate in the union fields and that the tonnage was constantly becoming less.

When the conference, scheduled to take place in Cleveland a few weeks ago was postponed until March 17 and again indefinitely postponed. The DAILY WORKER [illegible] was not [illegible] that consultations were being held between the leaders of the big coal barons with a view to reaching agreement on fundamentals before coming to the conference.

It is evident from the Pittsburgh report that an attempt will be made to break the Jacksonville pact. While the operators are uniting their forces there is no let-up in the campaign of the fakers at the head of the United Mine Workers of America against the radicals.

Government Accuses Itself in Mock Trial of the Teapot Domers

CHEYENNE, Wyo., March 13.—The mock trial of the government's suit for the annulment of the Teapot Dome oil leases on the ground of fraud has turned into an attempt to keep as much evidence of graft among the highest government circles out of the court as possible.

The lawyers for the Sinclair oil companies, who seem likely to prevent annulment of the leases, have argued against the submission of ex-secretary Fall's bank account records.

They have so far succeeded in suppressing evidence which incriminates high government officials.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., WORKERS RESENT ABRAMOVICH LIES

Attack on Soviets Is Big Failure

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ROCHESTER, N. Y., March 13.—Professor Raphael Abramovich scored another bull's eye here last night in his remarkable series of outstanding failures to convince the American working class that capitalism, disguised as counter-revolutionary menshevism should, and by right ought to be, the ruling power in Russia. He had to adjourn himself from the stage, while the audience was taken over by a Communist who, from a chair, called attention to the brilliant strategy of Primo de Rivera Abramovich, and many other things not so brilliant.

Workers Don't Like Lies

Despite the efforts of the combined socialist party and the police force, the workers refuse to listen when the lies began to fall. The hall of the Workmen's Circle Lyceum packed with workers, who were peaceful enuf until Abramovich began his dirty work. Then hisses and shouts drowned him out, while cheers for Soviet Russia and the song of the Internationale completely shut out the menshevist's slanders.

The meeting started late, owing to the late arrival of the leading character of the drama from the most aristocratic and scabbiest hotel in Rochester.

A Little Promise Broken

The directors of the Circle Lyceum had rented the hall to the counter-revolutionary socialists, on the express condition that no police be present at the meeting.

The chairman, Messenger, one of the leading local reactionaries of the socialist party, opened the meeting by introducing the Daily Freiheit, in order to pacify the members of the revolutionary Workers (Communist) Party.

Stick to the Truth Raphael!

He begged those who were opposed to Abramovich to permit the meeting to go on peacefully, but said that if the workers present would not permit Abramovich to spill all his lies, then the police would be called in to help the socialist counter revolutionary professor.

Immediately cries of "Don't threaten us!" "Let him see, then, that he does not dirty the name of Soviet Russia; then we will be quiet!"

When he finally came around to his point, attacking the workers' government of Soviets as a "failure" due to the Bolshevik leadership, pandemonium broke loose. Questions from all parts of the hall were thrown at him.

What Workers Think

"Liar! Traitor!" shouted the workers, "You can speak like that before capitalist henchmen, but not before us!"

Here the police were brought in, but they were utterly helpless before the general indignation that seethed everywhere throut the hall. The literature agent of the Workers Party Comrade Emil Honiger, was ejected by the police.

After repeated efforts by Abramovich to make himself heard, he was forced to give up and he adjourned the meeting.

Sine Die, Sine Gloria.

Then the singing began of the International, cheers for Soviet Russia, and one comrade explained from a chair, despite the remonstrance of the police, the counter-revolutionary character of Abramovich and his mission in the United States.

After the adjournment of the meeting the Workers Party held a counter demonstration in Lithuanian Hall, where, amid vociferous applause, speaker after speaker exposed the lies of the renegade counter-revolutionist, and the crowd adjourned with more singing of the International.

Osborne Wood, Off on a Souse, Nearly Missed Boat Home

CADIZ, Spain, March 12.—Osborne C. Wood's last night in Cadiz read like a chapter from an imaginative Hollywood underworld scenario. Only an all night search by his friends, who finally called for police help, succeeded in finding him in time to get him aboard the freighter which is taking him back to America.

His friends got him abroad at 7 a. m. Thursday ten minutes before the West Chetac departed.

The son of the Philippine Islands dictator, Gen. Leonard Wood, who left 35,000 francs in gambling debts in France, according to charges of the Biarritz Casino, went aboard the shipping board freighter Wednesday afternoon. It was scheduled to sail that evening.

Wood learned at 5 p. m. that high winds would prevent its sailing. He insisted on going ashore again and friend had to ask police aid to find him and get him back aboard the boat.

Miners of Nova Scotia Fight added the farther essential of grave trouble by cancelling credit at your stores yesterday.

"In these circumstances, with your knowledge of the situation, we must accuse you of a deliberate attempt to provoke riots and uprising in this community. We lack serious respect for your administrative ability, but cannot conceive of such a total absence of it as would allow you to pursue this course and yet expect results other than tumults and disorder. Lacking courage to produce those unfortunate results by attempting a cut in wage rates, you have taken the circuitous, but equally effective, method of producing them by starvation.

"With all due allowances for incompetence on the part of your corporation, it still remains perfectly clear that it is your policy, for some reason unknown to us, temporarily at least to wreck the coal indusury in this island. We can conjecture that your president desires it as an easy way for him out of a business which he appears incapable of successfully managing.

"Whatever ulterior motive there may be, the glaring fact is that the situation, with all its unfortunate consequences, is right upon us.

"If you have authority and desire personally to save the situation, we sincerely recommend to you the following steps:

"(a) Forthwith re-establish credit in your stores.

"(b) Give immediate orders for commencement of work at the above-named collieries for a minimum of four (4) days a week.

"It is senseless for your corporation to anticipate that the protective men engaged at the collieries who are members of our union, will continue to function while your corporation slowly starves their brothers into a state of submission. You must realize that, in view of your treatment of us as we have outlined above, it is an easy matter for us to declare your conduct a lockout of our members, which means a lockout of all classifications of labor in and about the collieries. And it is easy for anyone to observe the inevitable and almost incalculable loss which may thereby accrue to the coal industry here, and generally what damages the workers in it.

"Thus it is that we hesitate to take any steps that may lead to irreparable damage. Failure by your corporation, however, to take the steps indicated above will produce this result, irrespective of what we can or may do.

"We ask you to give this matter the most serious consideration possible and to take action in connection with your decision within the next twenty-four hours. Tho it may benefit the situation little, yet it appears our duty to pass a copy of this communication to the premier of Nova Scotia.

"Yours truly,
"J. W. McLeod, President,
"Alex. A. McKay, Sec.-Treas.,
"District 26, U. M. W. of A."

Strike Is Complete.

The refusal of the corporation to agree to the requests of the executive committee brought on the strike. The strike is complete—every miner being out. Because the mines are submarine the corporation is always able to precipitate a great howl in its press because the pumpmen are withdrawn and they pretend that the mines will flood beyond repair. However, in the past when the pumpmen were withdrawn the mines were able to stand for three weeks at a time and not suffer irreparable damage.

This time the corporation is again raising a howl about the destruction of the mines, and the white collar stiffs from the company's offices, who are not organized, are being drafted to keep the pumps going. However, this is merely a publicity stunt on the part of the astute politicians at the head of the corporation who are thus providing startling copy for the kept press which will result in the government shipping troops by the thousands into the district to intimidate, not the miners, but the wives and children of the miners.

That this is the game of the corporation is shown by the statement of the minister of militia of the dominion government, himself a lawyer depending for a great part of his income from the corporation, that "The government is ready to supply sufficient troops to preserve order when they are needed."

In spite of the fact that the miners have already appointed their own police to preserve order, and the saloons have been shut down tight by order of the miners' locals, the only time they are ever shut down, the corporation in co-operation with its lackeys in the government will find sufficient reason for the shipment of troops into the district to preserve "law and order." This means, as in the "outlaw" strike in 1923, that the troops will ride down women and children and beat up miners when they can find them in small groups.

The greatest danger confronting the miners is that John L. Lewis, president of the U. M. W., will line up with the corporation as he has done on previous occasions, and order the miners back to work on pain of losing their charters. This favorite stunt of Lewis is for the purpose of forcing the miners to forfeit their charters and thus eliminate themselves from the miners' union. Lewis would be very glad if he were able to accomplish this, because he has had the misfortune of being defeated every time he attempted to subdue the fighting miners of this district.

Labor Fakers Give No Aid.

The officials of the Canadian Trades Congress have not taken a single step to aid the miners of this province in keeping with their past actions when the miners were fighting the corporation. Tom Moore and his gang are not interested in helping the workers succeed in their struggle for the preservation of their standard of living, and show this by always lining up with the corporation and its government at Ottawa against the workers.

National Action Needed.

The miners here have only one hope and that is that the militants in the U. M. W. in the United States will recognize that the struggle that is going on in Nova Scotia is only part of a concerted drive against the miners' union on this continent and that they will do their utmost to force the reactionary Lewis administration to take steps to fight the encroachments of the operators on the union.

Lewis has proven time and again to be a lackey of the operators, but the militants of the rank and file must take the initiative into their own hands in face of the threatening situation confronting the miners of North America and mobilise the rank and file for a determined struggle against reductions in wages and the offensive of the operators against the union.

The miners of Nova Scotia are now battling against starvation, they are fighting for the preservation of their union, they are carrying the burden of the fight for the miners of the rest of the continent. The victory of the miners of District 26 will mean a victory for every miner. What is needed is a general strike, a militant hundred per cent strike of the miners of the entire continent to put the operators in their places and stop the attacks on the wages, conditions and the miners' union.

FAKERS ATTACK RADICALS; PLUTES WAR ON UNION

Thugs Had Planned to Slug Reporter

BELLAIRE, Ohio March 13.—The report of the committee on officers reports, recommending that members belonging to dual organizations be expelled from the United Mine Workers of America, was accepted by the convention of the Eastern Ohio miners in session here, after a lengthy discussion.

Tho the Communists are the most staunch opponents of dual unionism the fakers in control of the district of the United Mine Workers of America insinuate that the Workers Party comes under the heading of a dual union.

The report published in the capitalist papers that two DAILY WORKERS reporters were ejected from the convention hall is false. The fakers had planned to slug the DAILY WORKER reporter but the plot went off on the wrong track.

Egypt Elects 101 Zagloulists

CAIRO, Egypt, March 13.—Followers of former premier Zagloul Pasha have elected 101 members to the Egyptian parliament, while the opposition parties also elected a total of 101 candidates, the official returns in the parliamentary elections show.

ABRAMOVICH, SOCIALIST FRIEND OF CZARISTS, TO SPEAK HERE SUNDAY

Rafael Abramovich, the menshevik agent of the Second (socialist) International, will speak in Chicago Sunday afternoon, March 15, at 1:30 p. m., in the Garrick Theater, 64 West Randolph street.

Abramovich is speaking under the auspices of the yellow socialist sheet, the Jewish Daily Forward, and the Jewish branch of the socialist party. He is taking part in the campaign against Soviet Russia, along with such czarists as "baroness" Wrangel, the English spy McKenzie, and the remnants of the dead czar's family.

Abramovich has not had much luck in the spreading of his anti-Soviet lies so far, in spite of much help from the police.

SUN YAT SEN TO BE BURIED IN A SOVIET COFFIN

Request for Casket Like Lenin's Is Granted

PEKING, China, March 13.—Sun Yat Sen's body will lie in state for several days in Central Park, Peking, pending the arrival from Moscow of a coffin like that of Nicolai Lenin, which Sen, first president of the republic of China, had requested he be buried in. The Soviet embassy has ordered the coffin by wire, and as soon as it arrives Sen will be buried on Tiger Hill, Nanking, where the revolution of 1911 began.

Sun Yat Sen left a document addressed to his Kuomintag followers, detailing his forty years fight for a republic in China. Sen was always a thorn in the side of the war lords, and the foreign imperialists who used the emperors and war chiefs to divide and oppress the workers of China.

Following the attack on the republic of which Sen was made first president, the republican leader set up the south China republic, with Canton as its capital.

SENATE AGAIN SLAPS COOLIDGE AND TRUST TOOL

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 13.—President Coolidge was again rebuked in the senate when the senate judiciary committee reported unfavorably on the nomination of Charles B. Warren for attorney general. It was noticeable that Warren made no attempt to defend himself against charges that he is an agent of the sugar trust, and did not request to answer the charges before the judiciary committee.

Senator Borah, who was earlier taken to see Coolidge in a White House limousine, voted against Warren in the judiciary committee, in spite of the pressure exerted upon him by Coolidge.

The vote was 9 to 7 against Warren and makes almost certain a second rejection of the sugar trust lawyer by the senate.

President Coolidge's open warfare with the senate over the Warren appointment may have far deeper ramifications than are apparent to the surface.

Administration leaders frankly admitted themselves worried over the fate that may be in store for other matters on which President Coolidge has set his heart.

Particularly do they feel concerned over the two big taxation "reforms," to which President Coolidge has pledges his administration. These "reforms" embrace the abolition of the federal inheritance tax, and reduction of sur taxes to a minimum of 15 per cent as compared with 40 per cent in the existing law. These "reforms" aim to abolish taxes on large incomes.

OKLA. MORONS SWITCH COLORS ON STATE FLAG

OKLAHOMA CITY.— Irritated because the red in the state flag reminded them of the future, the babbitry of Oklahoma under the leadership of the ku klux klan, rushed thru the senate a bill providing for a new emblem. The state military forces have objected to the present flag on the ground that it is taken by many for an emblem of Communism.

The new flag consists of a buff Indian warrior's shield in the center of a field of sky blue. That is not all by any means. But conspicuously missing is a fiery cross and a lynched Negro hanging to the limb of a tree, with a blazing fire underneath and a mob of howling 100 per cent Americans licking their chops in anticipation of a mental feast.

Klan in Peoria Court.

PEORIA, Ill., March 13.—A $25,000 damage suit, said to be an outgrowth of the friction within the Peoria branch of the ku klux klan, was on file her today against 21 former members of the klan. The "knights of the ku klux klan" is the plaintiff but the praecipe does not state whether it is the local, state or national body.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 13.—Copies of a resolution adopted by the Indiana Egg and Poultry association at its annual convention here condemning embargoes against Indiana poultry, were sent today to officials in charge of enforcing the embargo in New York.

GIBRALTAR, March 13.—Riff tribesmen fired on the British cable ship off Morocco, according to advices here today. A Spanish gunboat intervened.

Workers Must Expose Senate's Sham Battle Over Sugar Trust Agent

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL

TODAY, it is well that the workers and poor farmers be thoroly warned against any flare-up of so-called "progressive" enthusiasm over the repeated rejection of Charles Warren, the sugar trust pirate, as attorney general. This will no doubt be heralded as a victory for "insurgency" that should sweeten the prestige of some senators in the eyes of the masses. But the workers and poor farmers should be quick to prick this ambition.

• • • •

The best insight into the exact situation in Washington was given when Senator Brookhart and Vice-President Dawes met the other day in the senate corridor. The report given of what transpired was as follows:

"I am perfectly willing to let bygones be bygones," Dawes told the Iowa insurgent.

"I'm glad to hear that," Brookhart replied. "So am I. Let's shake hands on it."

They did and ended a political fight that raged thru the last campaign after Dawes called Brookhart a "peewit" and the senator retaliated by calling Dawes a "peewit plutocrat."

It will be remembered that Brookhart even went so far as to urge that Dawes be withdrawn from the republican ticket.

• • • •

It will be noted that Senator Borah, of Idaho, not Senator LaFollette, of Wisconsin, or any of his direct following, led in the attack on Warren. Borah got support from Senator Johnson, of California, who dodged the vote on the ousting of the Michigan multi-millionaire, Newberry, for spending too much money in buying his election. It is difficult to see what difference Johnson discovered between Warren and Newberry.

The new Borah-Johnson bloc, which is supported by the LaFollette outfit, the latter having accepted its leadership, is best typified in the Pacific coast senator, Johnson, more responsible than any other one man for keeping Mooney and Billings, and hundreds of other workers in prison in that state, and for the continuance of California's labor crushing criminal syndicalist laws. But, if Johnson keeps Mooney and Billings in prison, it will be remembered that Borah was the chief prosecutor of Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone, in the efforts of the western mine owners to crush the Western Federation of Miners. Most excellent leaders for the "progressive" tendency in the grand old party of Wall Street. Excellent and "safe"!

The LaFollette alliance with the Borah-Johnson grouping may prove the means of maintaining the party regularity of those timid insurgents who shouted so loudly about a third party in the last campaign. Already the republican caucus has decided that no senator is bound by the caucus decision. Another entente cordiale, even more interesting, is that the four LaFollette "progressives"—LaFollette, Brookhart, Frazier and Ladd—would not be deprived of their patronage. It is the power to bestow jobs on their following that is the dearest asset of a senator or representative, and the republican party is going to allow the insurgent quartette to retain this beloved, fence-building privilege. They are respectable republicans. They have kissed the tail and tickled the snoot of the G. O. P. elephant, uttering the sacred password, "Let bygones be bygones."

Thus the workers and poor farmers may get the real significance of the words spoken by the railroad chiefs at the recent gathering in Chicago of the Conference for Progressive Political Action. It was claimed that reaction had triumphed; that the best policy to pursue was to refrain from open warfare against reaction, to let reaction do its worst during the coming four years and then get busy in 1928.

But these fraudulent friends of the workers and poor farmers, conducting a sham war against Warren, just as they wage their Don Quixote war against capitalism, expose their collaboration with the worst enemies of the workers politically, even as the reactionary labor officialdom unites with the bosses in the industrial struggle.

Against this anti-labor bloc the Workers (Communist) Party inspires the exploited in the cities and on the land to new struggles. It calls upon them to join in the fight NOW and at all times until the triumph of labor over capitalism is achieved.

WAR MAY COME, DON'T 'BROOD', IS AUSTEN'S ADVICE

GENEVA, March 13.—A requiem for the Geneva protocol was said today by Austen Chamberlain, British secretary of state for foreign affairs.

Addressing the council of the league of nations, Chamberlain announced that Great Britain was unable to sign or ratify the protocol in its present form as it was not believed the protocol provided the best method of accomplishing the task of making peace. He said this decision had been reached aftre consulting with the British dominions.

Great Britain Disarmed.

"Great Britain has not contended itself with preaching disarmament. It has disarmed to the limit of national safety," Chamberlain said.

He said England was interested in knowing how far the protocol would increase responsibilties of members of the league, adding that it was Britain's opinion that it would mean new responsibilities and therefore he must recall that "all the world is aware that the league in its present shape is not the league designed by its framers."

"They did not foresee difficulties might arise from non-inclusion of the most powerful nations of the world," he continued. "Least of all did they foresee that among those not included would be the United States.

"The work of the league goes on—beneficient, full of promise. Tho the United States remains in friendly aloofness, individual Americans have helped both by sympathy and service, while the American public has greatly aided some causes of the league.

"Problems which even the weakened league had to face never overstrained its machinery," he said.

Chamberlain then criticized the protocol's provisions for controlling land armies. He said that the protocol's means for controlling sea forces virtually required that nations give up their inalienable rights of defense.

Sees Possibility of War.

He said Britain did not "think it wise to embody generalities in dogmas of inflexible rigidy," and therefore was opposed to the provisions stating that an aggressor state must pay the cost of war while it is protected against a change of its frontiers.

One fault of the protocol, he said, was the fact that aggressors were protected from losing anything but money. The protocol suggests, he said, that the league's business is to organize war. The time may come when the league may have to conduct war, he said, but he believed it would not be good to "brood" over such tragic possible necessity.

One hundred and fifty men were added to Chicago's army of unemployed workers when the Illinois Cooperage company's plant was destroyed by fire. The factory at 135th St. and Blue Island avenue, was burned to the ground.

TEXTILE STRIKE HEAR THEIR FI COMMUNIST TA

Treat to Mill Work Who Applaud Simon

WILLIMANTIC, Conn., March 13.—At a mass meeting of one thousand striking textile workers of the American Thread company mills, Wm. Simons, district organizer of the Workers (Communist) Party held the platform for forty minutes in a speech which met with loud applause and unanimous approval of the strikers.

He showed the huge profits of the thread trust, and its control by English capital of the English Sewing Cotton company owning nearly all the common stock, the dividend of which was really twenty per cent, altho concealed by financial juggling into showing only ten per cent which is robbery anyhow.

The case would be no different if American capital controlled, and the whole case proves the international character of capitalism and the necessity of world unity of labor.

Loud applause was given when the speaker demanded that the so-called "reserve fund" of the company be used to pay increased wages instead of its present use to pay profits.

The practice of the company in using child labor was scored, and the fight of the manufacturers against the reduction of hours and their control of the government against the worker showed the necessity for a government of workers and farmers, which would fight against the capitalists and for the workers.

After an invitation to speak again was extended to Comrade Simons, Organizer Kelliher announced that prominent officials of the United Textile Workers would speak soon.

LANDLORDS PUT TWO FAMILIES INTO STREETS

Starving Children See Homes Wrecked

Police found Anna Martinka, 23 years old, and her five small children, on the sidewalk surrounded by a pile of furniture in front of 2520 North Marshfield Avenue.

Mrs. Martinka has been evicted, following her failure to pay the rent. Her husband was sentenced to a year in Bridewell, by the court of domestic relations, following Mrs. Martinka's attempt to force him to secure regular employment.

Mrs. Martinka scrubs floors in a loop building, but in spite of the long hours she works, could not pay her rent. She returned home and found her furniture dumped in the street, and her children also evicted.

Mrs. Margaret Flaherty and her three small sons were also evicted from their rooms at 1921 Warren ave. They had been without food for several days.

Coolidge Praises Ebert, Traitor to the German Workers

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 13.—In welcoming the new German ambassador, Baron Ago von Maltzan, President Coolidge praised the late social-democratic president of Germany, Ebert. "President Ebert succeeded because his vision was clearly fixed on right and duty," Coolidge said. "He had within him the power of growth which year by year made him a greater force."

Baron von Maltzan, in turn, praised Coolidge and the Dawes plan which is enslaving the German workers.

Couzens Accuses Mellon.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 13.—Senator James A. Couzens, multi-millionaire ex-partner of Henry Ford, today charged from the floor of the senate that the treasury department had levied a new $10,861,131.53 tax assessment against him because of his activity in investigating the government department.

Couzens accused the treasury of obtaining the tax computation in 1922 from a New York law firm for the purpose of using it "against Henry Ford," in the latter's campaign for the senate against Senator Truman H. Newberry.

CELEBRATE THE PARIS COMMUNE ON MARCH 29TH

Great Meeting for Class War Prisoners

A demonstration for the release of all class war prisoners who are in prison for defending the interests of the proletarians and peasants will be held Sunday afternoon, March 29 at 2:30 p. m. at Ashland Auditorium, Chicago.

Famine has struck the west of Ireland affecting tens of thousands of enslaved peasants and workers with the result that immediate aid is required if thousands of children, men and women are not to starve for lack of food. Capitalism will not aid its victims. The workers, therefore, must render aid. Hence the International Demonstration on March 29th in Chicago will also raise funds for the famine stricken in Ireland.

The First Proletarian Rule.

This International Unity Demonstration will also commemorate the heroic uprising of the Parisiene proletariat which set up the Paris Commune, the first attempt of the workers to seize political power.

From the historical sixty days during which the brave Communards held Paris against enemies from within and the capitalist aids outside of France, many lessons have been learned which have gone a long way in aiding our movement, among them being the necessity of the workers to take and to hold complete state power in their own hands, to the exclusion of other classes, and, further, the necessity of an alliance with the poor peasantry with whom common cause can be made against the exploiters.

Soviet Russia—Heir to the Commune.

The struggle of the Communards was not in vain. The grand battle of the Paris Commune is symbolized in the victorious Russian revolution and the existence of an international organization leading the workers of the world against the capitalists. That organization is the Communist International.

Today, as before, and as long as classes have struggled and continue to struggle, capitalism finds its victims, and only thru the action of the workers can we release the imprisoned comrades and bring them back into the movement where they can continue their work.

Hence, March 29 is also a demonstration on an international scale for the release of all working class politicals, industrial or class war prisoners. The Communist International and its sections, the Communist parties, are leading the demonstrations and struggles. In Chicago, the Workers (Communist) Party has arranged for this demonstration of international unity of the workers and protest against the capitalists.

Many Features and Speakers.

Many features will be on the program for that afternoon. The speakers are well known. Among them is William F. Dunne, the editor of the DAILY WORKER, widely known as one of the revolutionary labor leaders in the United States, who has taken many blows and has given many more in return. Also, there will be Robert Minor, well-known labor cartoonist.

There will be revolutionary features given by various language sections of the Workers (Communist) Party, Local Chicago, among these being the Russians, Lithuanians, Finnish, Jewish, South Slavic, Ukrainian and many others. The Young Workers (Communist) League Orchestra, an established institution, will be on hand.

Co-operating with the Workers (Communist) Party, Local Chicago in this international demonstration is the Labor Defense Council, which is carrying on a strong campaign to defend Michigan defendants, and the Irish Workers' and Peasants' Relief Conferences.

Admission to this auspicious gathering is 50c. Tickets for same can be obtained at the local office of the Workers (Communist) Party, 19 So. Lincoln street, and from comrades in various party branches.

SIX FAT AND SIX LEAN MONTHS THIS YEAR SAYS BABSON

NEW YORK, March 13.—The American standard of living will be at stake in the coming cut-throat world competition, George E. MacIlwain of Babson's Service tells the National Trades Assn. Continued improvement thru the first 6 months of 1925 followed by slacking up in the last six is his forecast.

"I believe," he said, "that we are headed toward a period of very intense competition, internally and internationally, in all lines. It will go far and cut deep. Internationally it is at its lowest point now, but after 1926 it will become intense."

Who Shall Run Motor Buses?

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 13.—A conference to determine whether street railway men or members of the Teamsters' and Chauffeurs' Brotherhood shall operate motor buses for street railway companies, was held at American Federation of Labor headquarters on March 12, as prescribed by the El Paso convention.

UNION ACTIVITY SPEEDED UP BY BALTIMORE REDS

Party Members Fired for Organizing

BALTIMORE, Md., March 13.—A serious "shake-up" is now taking place in the Baltimore local of the Workers Party which promises to put new life into the Communist movement in this important industrial center. New party headquarters were secured at 1012 E. Baltimore St., room 6, and Comrade Thomas Owerking was elected the new city secretary. He is to devote to party work at least four full days a week.

Organize Shop Nuclei.

The work of reorganizing the party on the shop nuclei basis is now given serious consideration and it is expected that within one month's time functioning nuclei will be established in several important shops of the city. Special arrangements are being made for the coming special campaign for the DAILY WORKER subscription drive.

A general "shake up" is also taking place in the industrial department. A special meeting of industrial organizers and members active in the unions was held in the presence of the district organizer and plans were adopted for intensive industrial work. A special industrial trial board was elected whose functions will be to investigate and to take action against those party members who neglect their industrial work, who fail to attend their union meetings and against those who fail to join a union. Several drastic steps were taken in order to establish a more rigid discipline in the local and in order to centralise the party work in the city.

Young Workers Fired.

A three days' program was adopted for the May day celebration—a mass meeting on May 1, a banquet on May 2, and a picnic on the third. The Y. W. L. shows considerable activities. Several Y. W. L. members were thrown out of their jobs for attempting to organize the Umbrella Workers' Union in their shop. This has not discouraged the league members who are determined to continue their work of organizing the young workers who are being miserably exploited in this city. A united front anti-child labor conference is called by the Y. W L for March 22, at the party headquarters which promises to be a great success

While the militant young workers were fired from their jobs by the owners of the umbrella factory for their efforts to organize the workers of the shop a member of the party, Comrade Wilkins, was taken off the job by the officials of the A. C. W. A. for the sole "crime" of distributing the appeal of Local 5 of the Amalgamated explaining "Why We Were Expelled."

Comrade Wilkins is a member of long standing in the union, a member of the joint board. The workers of the large shop were prompt to show their indignation against the action of their union officials and the joint board, realizing this, decided to permit Comrade Wilkins to return to work.

In order to extend the activities to other centers of the state of Maryland a party subdistrict conference of representatives of Baltimore and Washington, D. C., was called for March 8, where plans were adopted for the organization of party branches in various towns of Maryland. A subdistrict committee of five was elected with Comrade Owerking as sub-district organizer.

All comrades and branches are called upon to co-operate with the C. C. C. and the sub-district committee in the difficult tasks before them.

Asks Al Smith to Listen to Troubles of New York Tenants

NEW YORK, March 13.—Members of three of New York's tenants' leagues ask Gov. Al. Smith to send a comittee to hear the complaints of poor tenants on housing conditions in the big city.

Capt. Harry Allen Ely, leader of tenants' organizations recently involved in a libel suit for calling a rent-court judge a "nincompoop," is forwarding the tenants' associations' complaints in a formal protest resolution which blames the legislature for failing to enact housing and rent legislation to relieve the situation.

The municipal court of New York is attacked for the practices of its justices and their effort to increase their salaries unnecessarily.

Michigan Opposes Electrocution.

LANSING, Mich., March 13.— The state of Michigan was on record for the third time today as opposed to electrocution as a means of punishment for capital crimes. The McEachron bill, which provided such punishment was defeated in the house of representatives 54 to 46.

CHICAGO DEFENSE AND RELIEF COUNCIL WILL MEET TODAY AT 3:30 P. M.

The Chicago Council for Labor Defense and International Workers' Relief will meet Saturday, March 14, at 3:30 p. m. at 722 Blue Island avenue.

Every delegate is urged to be present on time.

TEACHERS' UNION BACKS KLEINFELD SALARY MEASURE

School Workers' Place Demands Before Solons

ALBANY, N. Y., March 13.— The Teachers' Union, supported by representatives from many of the teachers' associations of New York City, thru its delegates in the joint salary committee, appeared before the senate education body to urge the passage of the Kleinfeld-Rickard bill now before the state legislature.

The opposition bill, which provides for taking the teachers' salary matter out of the hands of the state and giving the city of New York full control has been defeated.

Plenty of Arguments.

The joint salary committee has been working hard against that bill and for the Kleinfeld bill, and between 40 and 50 delegates stormed the hearing with arguments in behalf of the 26,000 teachers in New York who are greatly underpaid.

Assistant corporation counsel of New York City was there to object, saying that if the Kleinfeld bill passed it would add $17,500,000 to the budget which would mean that fifty per cent of the budget would go to to the teachers. Mary E. Brady of the Junior high school association also attacked the bill because it did not put her department next to the high school grade. Hendrie wanted the higher officials to get a bigger increase and opposed the bill because it did not favor them.

The teachers' joint salary committee which helped draft the bill showed that much less is asked in salary increase than the increased cost of living since the last raise would warrant. Kindergarten to 6-B grade teachers are now getting $2,875. If their salaries had kept pace with the cost of living, they should now be getting $3,920, but they only ask $3,450. There are 18,000 in this department. The next group teaching the seventh and eighth years should get according to the same standard $4,363. They asked for $3,950 instead of $3,250 that they receive at present.

Walling butted in with a further objection saying that this bill would be mandatory legislation and therefore bad for the state. Also that the main source of revenue would have to come from increased dock charges and that would hurt big business. So the teachers in those charge the children of the city is placed must not ask too much. Big business first.

The representatives of the Teachers' Union pointed out that the workers' children were entitled to the best and that organized labor had gone on record to support every measure that aimed at better schools and better conditions for the teachers.

Mayor Hylan who was up state lobbying beamed politely and politically on the teachers and said he was with them, but that he could not help them support the Kleinfeld bill because it would be hard to get the money for the increases asked.

All labor thruout the state is behind the bill and much pressure is brot to bear on its passage. It will be disposed of in a week, it is expected.

Suppress Income Figures.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—There may be no publicity of individual income taxes for 1924.

Treasury officials declared that it was unlikely individual returns would be available for public inspection before next November or December.

The supreme court is expected to render a decision as to the legality or illegality of publication prior to that date.

DEPORT SCORES FROM CANADA AS 'PUBLIC CHARGES'

Railroads Bring in More Immigrants

WINNIPEG, Man., March 13.—While scores of familes are being deported from Canada and particularly western Canada as public charges because they are unable to find work both the dominion government and the all-powerful Canadian Pacific railroad are still carrying on their campaign to get new immigrants to come to this country.

Twenty-three persons were recently sent east from Winnipeg alone under deportation orders which listed them as public charges. They were all public charges because they had been brought here from England by rosy promises of prosperity only to find that they could not get jobs. The suffering among these people is intense. They try all sorts of ways to dodge the immigration authorities and the deportation orders only to be finally forced to surrender and go home in defeat.

Play Double Game.

While these people are being shipped back to their home country the dominion government is subsidizing various foreign language papers in attempts to get new immigrants. The Canadian Pacific railroad wins out on these government efforts three ways.

When the immigrant comes here he usually comes on Canadian Pacific boats and then uses the C. P. R. to get to the west. There as a new arrival and a member of the army of the unemployed, he helps to beat down wages. Then if he is deported as a public charge, he travels at government expense on the C. P. R. trains and boats.

Lie to Foreigners.

The dominion government is being charged with keeping the Swedish paper Narrona and many others going just to induce workers abroad to go to Canada, "the land of prosperity." Solicitors go about among the foreign settlements of Canada getting the names of friends and relatives of the settlers who are still in the old country. Then the department of immigration and colonization sends these papers abroad. Needless to say, the paper boosts Canada and carries nothing but government propaganda.

It is charged that the dominion government pays one Swedish paper alone $3,200 a week to carry on "prosperity" propaganda.

Work For Nothing.

City men who come to western Canada are usually given the opportunity of working for a month or two on the farms for nothing to "get experience." Then they are paid about $25.00 a month. Jobs where both a man and wife work on the farm are being grabbed up when they pay as little as $40 a month.

Organized labor here is appealing to organised labor in England to fight the propaganda of the Canadian Pacific railroad and advises workers to "Keep away from Canada."

Plan Another Try for Collins.

CENTRAL CITY, Ky., March 13.—Another effort to recover the body of Floyd Collins, cave explorer, imprisoned in sand cave near Cave City, Ky., January 30 is to start about April 1, W. H. Hunt, local miner, has announced following the signing of a contract for the work with Homer Collins, a brother of the cave victim. Hunt, who was one of the workers engaged in the rescue efforts abandoned when Collins was found dead February 16, says he believes he can bring the body out in about two weeks. Efforts to recover the body were abandoned originally because of the danger attendant upon such an enterprise.

WORK OF LENIN SCHOOL WILL BE AN INVALUABLE AID TO THE PARTY

By MAX LERNER.

Two more days and the Chicago Lenin School, inaugurated by the Chicago district, initiates an experiment which will give us a goodly amount of material and experience that will be invaluable in the future educational work of the party.

It has been well said that this will be one school in which not only the students will learn but also the teachers, for the school is after all the first of its kind we have tried in this country and most of the courses to be handled involves the compilation of new material which we hope to make the basis of future text books.

In going over the matter at hand for the various courses we have discovered that, surprisingly enough, there is a great dearth of material for the conducting of systematic series of courses which will equip comrades within a short period of time for better and more complete work in the party. To date there have been various courses given by numerous comrades in different parts of the country, but this had not yet resulted in the creation of a series of correlated textbooks or summaries for the carrying on of such work as we are attempting in this school. Thus far our material is widely scattered.

If we succeed thru the school in hammering out such summaries and textbooks with the aid of any material that may have been used, we shall have certainly accomplished an excellent bit of work for our movement aside from equipping the comrades attending with the requisite knowledge.

The excellent feature of this school is the fact that the comrades attending will not be only from one city or from a single industry, but come from all over the state of Illinois and from several of the large cities in nearby states, such as Detroit, Milwaukee, Cleveland, St. Louis, South Bend, etc.

These comrades come fresh from the mines, mils and factories, most of them actively engaged in the struggle against the reactionaries within their unions, and bring with them many problems and viewpoints which will furnish the school with much fresh material.

Training in Fundamentals.

All possible effort has been made to conduct the school in such a way that the courses given will not be of an isolated character. It is essential that the comrades attending do not merely get a bit of knowledge here and a little there, but a unified, well knitted conception of fundamental Communist education and work. To accomplish this has not been such an easy task as might seem in view of the fact that every one of the comrades composing the teaching staff is overloaded with work of their other party tasks. But we are glad to say that good progress in this direction has been made.

The comrades composing the teaching staff have been chosen to teach the various subjects with a view to their former experience and knowledge of the work. This makes the courses of a practical and thorogoing nature which will prove invaluable to the comrades themselves engaged in the practical work of the movement. In Comrade Dunne, editor of the DAILY WORKER, for instance, who teaches the course in Trade Union History and Tactics, we find one of the most experienced fighters in the trade union movement in this country.

Course in Communist History.

There are very few who know the history of our movement in this country like Comrade Bittelman, who is at present secretary of the political committee of the central executive committee, and who teaches the course on the History of the Communist Movement in America. Comrade Abern, former national secretary of the Young Workers League, and now organizer of the Chicago local as well as member of the C. E. C., has had long years of training in the work that he is to teach, that is Party Organization and Structure. And the same can be said of Comrade Gomez, district educational director and head of the research department of the party, who teaches Leninism. Thurber Lewis, in charge of the DAILY WORKER in Chicago and street speaking bureau of the Chicago local, who teaches Public Speaking, and Comrade Bedacht, member of the C. E. C. and long in close touch with the international revolutionary movement who teaches on that subject.

We look forward to Monday morning and the two weeks' stretch after that with a great deal of expectation. We feel certain that this experiment will lead to many more similar ones which, based upon the experience of this first stride forward, will lead to an established course of considerable length to train ever more comrades for active work in the party.

More Land Under the Plow Each Year in the Soviet Republics

All Europe is below the prewar standard in production, transportation, standard of living, etc., says Anna Louise Strong (Anise), the Federated Press Russian correspondent, who is touring America to raise funds for the children's colonies that are beginning to dot the workers' republic.

"The industrial pickup in Russia is general," Anise reports. "The Soviets do not maintain a few factories for show in Moscow to delude visitors and concessionaries. The best factory I saw is in Kharkov toward the Caucasus. Here the government is competing with the German factories for the Turkish orders for electrical equipment and beating the Germans almost invariably. This model factory belonged before the war to the A. E. G., the German General Electric.

"Industrial production is one-third greater than in 1922 but still below prewar. Transportation is very satisfactory. I would rather travel in Russia than anywhere else in Europe.

"The government oil trust is selling to all the big companies of the world. To show how the oil profits are used by the government I can cite that there are now 62 schools in the Baku oil district compared with 28 before the war.

"Tho there have been bad harvests due to the lack of rain for three of the five past years, more land is under plow each year. Livestock has increased 25 per cent in the past year. The older uneducated peasants are a problem for the Communist regime but the young peasants who have benefitted from the new education are the hope of the land. As their numbers increase and their training develops the big internal human problem of the government will begin to solve itself."

Irish Republicans Defeated in Recent Free State Elections

DUBLIN, March 13—The Free State government has won seven and possibly eight of the nine seats up for election to the dail, according to latest returns today of the by-elections held on Wednesday. Mayo, a republican stronghold, went free state, while substantial majorities were rolled up for the government in Dublin and in the provinces.

Dropping the Mask

It is no accident that the liberals, philosophical anarchists and more of the ilk not so philosophical, among them one Roger Baldwin, whose devotion to civil liberties is well known, together with yellow socialists like B. Charney Vladeck, have suddenly interested themselves in the welfare of political prisoners in Soviet Russia.

The prospects for Soviet recognition by the United States government are good. The irresistible force of Soviet Russia in world affairs compels some acknowledgement on the part of capitalist America. It must be understood that recognition will be granted reluctantly and every effort made by the imperialists to extort concessions.

This is the moment chosen by an element which cares nothing for the working class, for the labor movement or the world revolution, to unmask. They are trying in the interest of a warped idea of modern social forces to apply the same standards to Soviet Russia, where the workers and peasants are in power, that they apply to capitalist nations. Free speech, especially for these self-appointed advisers of the working class, is good in the United States, therefore it is good in Soviet Russia. American capitalist government jails individuals for believing in and working for its overthrow. The Civil Liberties Union applies the doctrine of the right of free speech to these cases and aids the defense. Ergo, the workers' and peasants' government of Russia should not jail those who seek its overthrow.

It is customary in some circles to dismiss these vagaries with the comment that they represent middle-class confusionism, but this is only partly true. The confusion is there right enough, but it is confusion deliberately cultivated and with a deadly purpose. These confused individuals have a very clear idea of what they want. They prefer capitalism to the dictatorship of the working class and they also prefer to have the working class disorganized, feeble and ineffective so that the intelligentsia can appear as the big-hearted saviors.

It will be noticed (history is full of such instances from the uprisings of plebians in ancient Rome to the victorious revolution of the Russian workers and peasants) that as soon as the masses organize, demand and fight for power, establish their own code of ethics and begin to take charge of things, these elements begin to lose interest in the working class and end finally by becoming its most cruel and unscrupulous enemies.

In the United States we are witnessing the development of this historical process. Thanks to the Russian revolution we have an opportunity of assuring ourselves by actual observation of the essential anti-working class character of this group without any serious damage.

We will most certainly combat their attempts to weaken the influence of revolutionary Russia on the American working class, but we should welcome the fact that these embryonic counter-revolutionists have exposed themselves before we enter the final struggle for power.

Chalk up another credit mark for the workers and peasants and the Communist Party of Russia. Their struggle and their victory has given the workers of all the world a new method of measuring their strength and of ascertaining who is friend and who foe.

No Baldwin or Vladeck will ever play a Kerensky role in the American revolution.

Deportations

Secretary James J. Davis of the department of labor is speaking in Chicago today. He talks on his favorite subject—persecution and deportation of foreign-born workers.

We have been carrying a series of cartoons satirizing the provisions of House Bill 11796, designed to make easier the deportation of any foreign-born worker who gets in bad with the bosses. All such bills are directed more at the labor movement than at its revolutionary wing. Their chief aim is to so terrorize the foreign-born that they will remain entirely outside the unions and be forced to take anything the capitalists may choose to offer them for their labor.

This results in weakening the unions and demoralizing the whole working class.

Foreign-born workers who are also revolutionists, members of the Workers (Communist) Party of America, are always objects of persecution by the agents of American capitalism. The party has at all times to defend these comrades.

But the officials of labor unions, if they are not entirely the tools of the employers, should know that the Communists are a comparatively small section of the working class and that the full strength of the labor unions should be organized to force the defeat of House Bill 11796 if transportation out of the country is not to be the fate of active members of American unions who happened to be born in some other land.

The Pacific Naval Maneuvers

What the war and navy departments unite in declaring "a program of naval and military operations without parallel in the peace-time history of the United States," is in progress off the Pacific coast. One hundred and fourteen craft, 40,000 marines, 25,000 sailors and all the air fleet are engaged in the maneuvers.

Following the completion of the maneuvers the Pacific fleet of ten battleships, four cruisers, twenty-six destroyers and a large number of auxiliaries will begin a cruise that will take it to all the ports of the Far East.

Those innocent persons who think that a navy is for "defense" will do well to ponder the facts set forth on the front pages of the capitalist press. The expedition of the battle fleet is for two purposes—to acquaint its commanders with the Far Eastern ports and defenses and to display the imperialist might of the United States.

Imperialism does not spend untold millions in maneuvers of this kind for fun. The rivalry between American and Japanese imperialism, between American and British imperialism leads straight towards war and the instruments of destruction are being made ready.

Not one single voice has been raised in the house of representatives or the senate in protest against this huge imperialist enterprise. The LaFolletteites who during the election campaign occasionally warned of the danger of war are silent now. They would have been just as silent if LaFollette sat in the place of Coolidge.

In all America only the Communist press tells the masses that the rulers are plotting another gigantic conflict to decide whether American or British imperialism will rule the world.

Britain and France in Europe

Austen Chamberlain's obituary speech over the Geneva protocol has the liberals and pacifists by the ears. He is denounced, according to European dispatches, as a "butcher of great and generous ideas," his statements are termed "departmental criticisms evolved by the admirality and war offices."

All of this may be true, but we fail to understand the surprised attitude of the pacifists over what has been apparent to every student of international affairs for a hundred years—that the British admiralty and war offices fix foreign policy.

Austen Chamberlain speaks for the most powerful section of British imperialism—the heavy industrialists and the bankers. This section was willing to go along with the league of nations if it could be used to further their interests and did so. But the internal rivalries in Europe have reached a point where no further pretense at a community of interest is possible.

British imperialism demands a strong Germany as an instrument against France and her European policy aims to build German industry. France wants Germany as a colony surrounded by French-controlled states.

There can be no middle ground on a question of policy upon which depends the life of Great Britain and France as great nations to say nothing of the fate of Germany.

Only one thing can prevent another capitalist conflict in Europe as a result of this basic divergence of French and British interests—the overthrow of the capitalist governments and the taking of power by the workers and peasants. The revolution is coming. It would save millions of lives if it could come before the capitalist war—but come it will.

The Chicago School

Monday morning the Intensive Training School of District 8, Workers Party of America, will begin the first of its two-week sessions.

The courses have been outlined, the pulpils are arriving and everything is ready for them. They will be lodged with members of the party and while in Chicago will participate in the party life in this great industrial center to the greatest possible extent.

That the school is going to be a success there is no doubt. Even the instructors, to whom the two-weeks' course of lectures mean additional work of the hardest kind, are enthusiastic. The school will draw the best elements in the district much closer to the party and the party itself will gain a much clearer idea of its tasks in this territory.

With the limited resources of the district the school, altho of only two weeks duration, is a big undertaking. That it will pay in big returns in better knowledge and understanding is shown by the way the comrades have thrown themselves into the preparatory work.

The Willimantic Strike

The workers in Willimantic, employed by the American Thread company, are in revolt. More than 2,500 textile workers have struck and tied up the largest plant of its kind in the United States.

The solidarity of the workers is shown by the fact that altho only 800 are organized in the Textile Workers' Union, they struck to a man even the firemen refusing to scab for the thread trust.

Such resistance to wage cuts of workers who are mostly without union experience is more than encouraging—it is proof that given any kind of fighting leadership and a program the textile workers will stand together. It refutes entirely the defeatist propaganda of the officialdom of the American labor movement.

The program of the Workers (Communist) Party and the Trade Union Educational League for a united front of the unions and workers in the textile industry is no visionary scheme. It is eminently practical. It is the only method by which the textile barons can be beaten and a powerful industrial union organized in the industry.

FAMINE SCENES IN IRELAND ARE TOLD BY WRITER

Correspondent Visited Hunger Area

Note—This is the first article from the pen of a well known writer who has agreed to furnish the DAILY WORKER with stories of the situation in the famine region in the west of Ireland. Others will be published from time to time as they are received. This supplements our wire service which has enabled the DAILY WORKER to keep its readers informed of vital happenings in Ireland as well as in other countries.

DUBLIN—(By Mail)—Much is being written of the situation of the Donegal and Connemara peasants. Some writers assure the world that the destitution and misery consequent on the continuous failure of potato crops, the failure of fishing by the inroads of steam trawling, the deterioration of fishing gear, and lack of money to replace it, together with the long spell of bad weather, which has soaked the turf until it is impossible to use it for fuel, have produced conditions only to be fairly described as famine. Other writers and some eminent persons in state and church assure us that the people in those mountainous areas are inured to destitution and that conditions altho bad, do not depart calamitously from the normal.

If the conditions which I saw in West Donegal, at Kilcar and Teelin, which are no better and no worse than hundreds of these villages, are normal or approaching to normal, then a crime has been permitted, which should make every responsible body and representative wear sackcloth and ashes forever.

Maybe it was that I am tender hearted and too easily impressed by starvation looking out of the faces of little children and haggard men and broken women. Yet, I have been inured to poverty since ever I can remember and have met it stark and naked at home and abroad. I have been thru depressions in trade. I have helped to manage and sustain soup-kitchens, I have acted on relief and distress committees, I have been down to the depths in strikes and know the hungry path of the unemployed, but I have never seen more pitiful sights nor more hellish conditions of lingering death, misnamed life, than those upon which I looked in West-Donegal. The Kaffir in his kraal is living comfortably by comparison. The Russian peasantry, even the poorest of them, after years of war, civil insurrection, and revolution, are gloriously off, when compared with Biddy Donaghue, and her five children in her tumble-down shack perched on an inhospitable hillside in Teelin.

Were I gifted with the tragic pen of Ireland's poets, I would surely burn the shame of Biddy's terrible lot into the hearts of all. The father had gone to try to catch some fish or forage for a handful of twigs to help the fire. And what a fire—it made one shiver, at its fitful attempt to burn. And oh, the pitiful wee faces and shivering forms, which no photograph can ever reproduce effectually, of little Michael, James, Annie, Mary, Bridget, and the tiny wee mite of a Norah—all beautiful children, but hungry and cold, with the mark of the "white scourge" already upon them.

The mother—heaven help her, if the workers don't—what a task and what a fate to overtake a sister of ours in any land. What a commentary on a "Free State" where politicians prate of their capacity to conduct the (lack of) finance of their country, while on these black hillsides their countrymen and women, with their offspring endure in all to patient misery, unspeakable hardship.

Representing the Workers' International Relief we were enabled to travel in the car of the Workers' Union of Ireland, at no little inconvenience. We had consigned, thru the Irish Agricultural Wholesale Society, tea, sugar, milk, etc., and had the satisfaction of seeing it delivered into the hands of local committees, which were at once formed. The only thing we want now is goods and money, money and goods.

Workers unite in a concerted effort to bring relief without distinction or discrimination from toilers to toilers. A Dublin committee is in course of formation and already includes Miss Despard, Mme. MacBride, Vincent Atkinson, Mrs. Sheehy Skeffington, Margaret Skinnider and others. All trade unions, co-operatives and individual workers are invited to participate in our work. Bob Stuart of the executive committee of the W. I. R. is in charge. Helen Crawford has been working night and day to get out our appeals to the praise of all countries. Now for a long pull, a strong pull and pull altogether to build a relief fund strong enuf to allay present misery and to guard against the future.

BUILDERS AT WORK

Absolutely Essential!

Every local and every city and branch have been given all "the inside information" on the Second Annual Sub Drive to begin Monday, March 15. A full page ad on this date will carry all details.

But what have you done? Have your agents met to map out a plan for your local? Has your branch decided ways and means in which this campaign is to be conducted? To "build our daily" these things are absolutely essential.

We have received letters from all the live locals advising us that this has been done. New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Detroit, Kansas City—in fact in every place where the problem of building up the DAILY WORKER has been considered, committees and agents have already taken, or are taking, steps to begin the Second Annual Campaign with all possible energy they can muster.

But we want everyone in it. Every reader of the DAILY WORKER, every branch of the Workers Party and every class conscious worker will be asked to join in the campaign to double the size of the paper that has contributed in such great measure to every struggle of the workers in this country during the year of its existence.

The task of building the DAILY WORKER is the task of every militant and for three whole months we are going to hammer away on the task of building the DAILY WORKER until it has at least fifteen thousand more subscribers so it can better serve the working class in its second year. Whether agent or reader we want you to begin on Monday after you read of our plans and then—let us build. Remember,—it CAN be done by Communists!

Workers Party Flays Soviets' Enemies

very life against the combined forces of the capitalist government, its lackeys, and the misleaders of labor. In spite of our comparative weakness in numbers and power, however, we are strong in our position as the only champions of the interests of the workers and their protectors against the political poison of the Abramoviches.

Reverses Position.

We not only have the right but also the duty to raise loud protest against the activities of Abramovich, tool of imperialism. You yourself have twice definitely stated your opinion that the workers are entirely in order in "heckling" at meetings and expressions of disapproval of what he has to say. That is precisely what the workers have attempted to do at the Abramovich meetings. There would therefore, seem to be no need of any conflict between you and us. But because the Abramovich agents have themselves physically attacked Communists, have beaten them up with weapons inside the meetings, have used the capitalist police systematically, and have thrown dozens of Communists into jail for the crime of heckling and expressions of disapproval—you, instead of protesting against this outrageous abuse of workers, appeal to us to protect "free speech." It is a most astonishing thing. It is senseless unless what you are really asking of us is to drop our political struggle for the interests of the workers against the treasonous Abramoviches.

Abramovich has completely failed to sway any considerable portion of the workers to his purpose. But it seems that he has succeeded in entangling some liberals, making them into tools (we hope unconscious ones) in the hands of the bitterest enemies of Soviet Russia and the militant workers of America, in the hands of the New York Times, of Abramovich's Second International which stinks to high heaven with the stench of Barmat corruption and murder and imprisonment of workers thruout Europe, and of American and world imperialism. That is the meaning of the formation of the so-called "International Committee for Political Prisoners." It is a weapon directed against Soviet Russia, and if Roger Baldwin does not know it, at least Vladeck and the New York Times do.

International Red Aid.

You have known for some time that there is an international organization that is doing tremendous work in the interests of the prisoners of capitalism thruout the world, the International Red Aid, represented at this time in America by the I. W. A. You received a letter from its secretary, Rose Karsner, some weeks ago, which also states the position of the Workers Party. In that letter you have been offered an opportunity to co-operate with the American section of the I. R. A. in securing relief for the victims of capitalism abroad. Every intelligent and sincere friend of political prisoners is co-operating in the work of the International Red Aid, which has done immeasurable service in this field. Your new "committee," whatever the purpose of some individuals in it, will not result in helping the prisoners. And that is not its real purpose—it is intended as a weapon against Russia and when it has served that purpose we venture to predict that it will be allowed to quietly die.

The Workers (Communist) Party of America and the sympathetic workers grouped around it in the International Workers' Aid and kindred organizations, is the only organised body in America that has always and everywhere done its utmost to protect the victims of imperialist persecution, not only in America, but thruout the world. What assistance has been given from America to the hundreds of thousands of victims of European reaction and imperialism has been organized and led by the Communists. We will continue this task, along with the kindred task of fighting against the servants of the white terror, the Abramoviches, and will not be swerved from the struggle by threats or trickery.

We call upon every worker and poor farmer and every sincere enemy of capitalist oppression to rally to the International Red Aid for effective support of the victims of capitalist reaction thruout the world.

Central Executive Committee,
Workers Party of America,
Earl R. Browder,
Acting Secretary.

CHILD LABOR IN ILLINOIS

By HARRY GANNES.

ILLINOIS has over a hundred thousand children between the ages of 10 and 16 who work. Unlike most of the states, the majority of working children in Illinois work in factories, shops, stores, mines and mills.

There has been no investigation of the children under 10 years of age who are at work, nor of the thousands engaged in street trades.

The 1920 United States census, which admittedly underestimates the number of children working thruout the country, reports that at the time the census was taken there were 36,933 children working. The census was taken when farm operations were practically at a standstill; and about 70 per cent of the child workers work on farms. Hence the United States figures, if anything, hide the real conditions of the working youth.

Fake Figures.

Of the 36,933 children working in Illinois, reported by the census, 31,132 are employed in factories, shops, or other such occupations, while 5,801 were reported working on farms. With Illinois, one of the leading corn states in the country it is farcical to declare that out of about 1,000,000 children between the ages of 10 and 15, only so small a number as 5,801 are employed in agriculture.

The child labor law in Illinois is very lax. It permits the employment of children 14 years of age in any, except a few so-called "dan- for the first offense and not more than $25.00 for any offense.

The number of children employed in Illinois increases constantly. Frances Lathrom Schott, a bourgeois female politician, writing in the Bulletin of the Illinois league of women voters (Jan., 1924) says:

"Since 1922 statistics show an increase, nearly three times the number of children being employed in 'dangerous' industries; and yet, the not too-clearly sighted United States census takers found nearly 300 children between 10 and 15, working in mines in Illinois."

Children Work Nights.

Children 16 and over are permitted to work nights, an unlimited number of hours; children 16 and over, are allowed to be engaged in all manner of dangerous occupations, and there are thousands of them so employed. There is no law prohibiting street trades, newspaper peddling, bootblacking, etc. The number of children so employed can only be estimated.

The education requirements for working children are low. A child who has had a sixth grade education can be sent to work.

FASCISTI TURN CENSORSHIP ON CHURCH LETTER

Cardinal's Pastoral Edict Suppressed

(Special to the DAILY WORKER.)

ROME, Italy, March 12.—The fascisti have suppressed the pastoral letter of Cardinal Maffi, archbishop of Pisa, which the fascist rule of Mussolini thinks is directed against it because of its title—"Thou Shalt Not Kill."

The newspapers referring to it have also been suppressed, and even the Vatican publication, the Osservatore Romano, dared only give it the barest mention in one issue.

Fear Wrath of God.

Particular anger of the fascisti was directed at some of the paragraphs, one of which was supposed to refer to Mussolini and his recent illness as a punishment from supernatural sources, saying: "Oh, dynasty of Cain, continue if you will, but know that where men fail God comes to the rescue, incessantly pursuing the culprits and crying out, 'Accursed!'"

The Vatican paper published excerpts from it only with reluctance and delay, hardly daring either to defend Mussolini or completely suppress the pastoral letter of one of the most eminent dignitaries of the church. But it omitted some of the most biting sentences, such as that directly condemning "two atrocious assassinations last December." This referred to the fascist murders of ex-soldiers at Pisa.

Risorgimenti Suppressed.

The most recent paper, and a new one, to venture to criticize the fascisti, the Risorgimenti, has been suppressed by the censor on its first issue.

THE ku klux klan is almost as disorganized as the democratic party tho not as poverty stricken as the socialist party. George Biggerstaff, reputed to be the highest officer of the klan in Kentucky, is charged with squandering thousands of dollars taken from the members of the klan. It appears that the K. K. K. officials collected a total of $3,000,000 from the morons of the state, for dues and regalia. What is taking place in Kentucky is typical of the condition prevailing all over the country. When morons get wise to grafters there is everything but peace.

SEVERAL preachers met a few days ago and wept on each other's shoulders over the regrettable progress agnosticism is making among the youth of the nation. The funny part of it is, that colleges endowed by religious organizations like the methodist church are hotbeds of atheism. This is not surprising. Knowledge is the greatest foe of religion. The pope has at one time or other placed the works of the world's greatest writers on the index expurgatoris, but this did not prevent superstition from going to the mat. The superstition that we are most anxious to get rid of is the myth that but for the capitalists the people would all die of hunger.

INSURANCE companies in France are issuing policies against revolution. Tho there is no unemployment to speak of in France, the financial situation is extremely delicate and an explosion is liable to take place at any moment. The Communist Party is growing in strength. On the other hand the catholics allied with the fascisti elements are becoming more militant. Europe is sitting on a volcano. A financial panic would not alone paralyze French industry but that of the entire continent.

THE break of the French government with the vatican was widely advertised, but, tho the ambassador to the pope was withdrawn by Herriot, it is reported that he will appoint a member of the left bloc, French commissioner to the holy see for Alsace-Lorraine. This means that the connections between the French and papal governments will be left unbroken unofficially. If the Herriot government is overthrown and the Poincarists return to power it will not be difficult to re-establish the old relations.

Party Construction in the C. I. Sections

By OSSIP PIATNITZKY.

PARTY construction and the building up of party organizations in Europe and America have differed greatly from the structure of our Russian party organizations which came into being with the very commencement of a labor movement in Russia.

In other countries at the dawn of the labor movement, there were, comparatively speaking, suitable political conditions which gave the workers an opportunity to organize legal political parties of the working class, as well as to establish local and provincial branches. The latter had the right to convene party meetings and workers' mass meetings. They could also have their own party press. Therefore party organizations led from the beginning an existence apart from factories and workshops This was perfectly comprehensible, for why should the German social democratic party organize workers' public meetings and party meetings in the workshops and factories (besides, the German capitalists would not have allowed them) when they could easily convene them after working hours, and in any locality where the workers lived, meetings which were actually very well attended by the workers.

IT should also be said that in New York, Paris, London, Berlin and other large towns the residential quarters of the workers are not in the vicinity of workshops and factories and that in some places there are few late trains. The latter circumstance is even now a great obstacle to making the workshops and factories the main center of Communist work.

There were also two other features in which the party construction and party work of the social democratic parties of other countries differed from the construction of our Russian party organizations. Side by side with the political proletarian parties of Germany, Austria, France and Italy there existed trade unions. Between these two forms of labor movement there was so to speak a division of labor; the trade unions had to make a stand for all the economic demands of the working class, while the social democratic parties stood for their political interests. The social democratic parties cultivated "high" politics and left it to the trade unions to settle all conflicts between the workers and the manufacturers. (In some countries the trade unions, altho connected with the factories and workshops thru their treasurers, did not hold their trade union meetings in the factories and workshops.)

THE other differentiating feature was that all the political parties of the proletariat (social democratic) in Europe aimed at conducting "the struggle" with capitalism within the framework of the existing order, chiefly by means of the vote (at present it has become an established fact that all social democratic parties are no longer "opponents" but defenders of the capitalist order). Therefore the constituency was the basis of working class organization.

In Russia conditions were utterly different. The Russian working class, even before it made its appearance on the political arena, was deprived of the right of having its own press and its own party and trade unions. Neither did it enjoy the right of meeting. Therefore, the only places where workers could discuss their needs, the political situation of Russia and the tasks of the working class were the factories and workshops where class-conscious workers had an opportunity to agitate, to carry on propaganda, and to form their small factory and workshop political organizations.

AS trade unions in the European sense did not exist in Russia (except during the short period 1905-1907) until 1917, the political social democratic organizations in the factories and workshops and the local committees of the party, which co-ordinated the later, entered into all the details of the employers' exploitation of men, women and young workers, formulated the demands of the workers and took the lead in their economic strikes. Moreover, the social democratic organizations of Russia connected the economic demands of the workers with the political struggle of the working class against the feudal-bourgeois czarist regime of Russia.

Owing to the above-mentioned facts union was established between the political organizations in Russia before the February revolution, and also after the revolution of 1917 this union was maintained when trade unions were organized which brot nearly all the workers of Soviet Russia into their ranks.

UNTIL 1905, there were no parliamentary (duma) elections in Russia, and even after 1905 workers elected their duma representatives thru factory and workshop electoral colleges. Moreover, Russian revolutionary social democrats used the duma election not as an aim in itself, but only as one of the means for the overthrow of the czarist regime thru armed rising and thru the establishment of proletarian and peasant dictatorship. Therefore, party organizations were built up territorially in accordance with the workers and party members place of employment, and not on a residential qualification.

REVOLUTIONARY social democrats (now Communists) in Russia built up their party organizations on the basis of factories and workshops, offices, shops, barracks and schools situated in the respective ward, district or small township. But in other countries, working class organizations were based on the constituency in which voters resided. This difference must be taken into consideration when studying the party

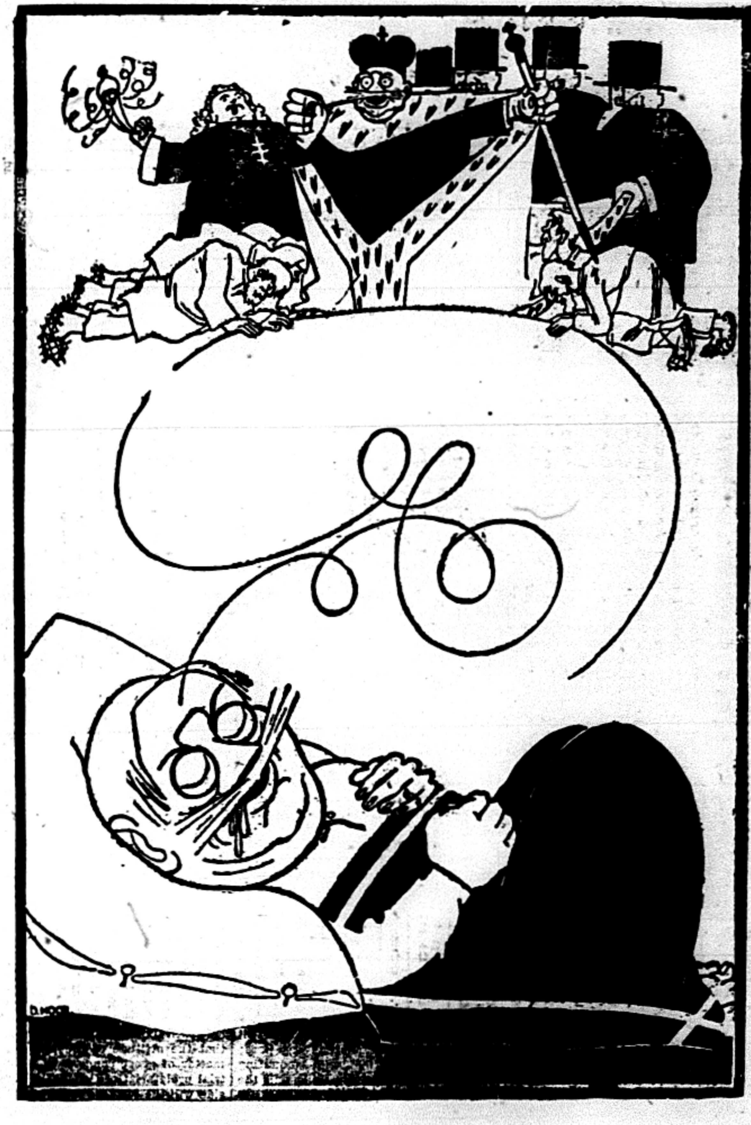
The Dream of the Counter-Revolutionist



"The Tin Lizzie Peasantry"

By H. M. Bartholomew

CAPITALISM places a premium on dishonesty. Its progress is landmarked by milestones of fraud and deceit. Hypocrisy is its hall-mark of success.

Now, here is this so true as in Western Canada. The history of the North West is a sordid tale of thievery and corruption. Land grabbers and railroad promoters; banking barons and corrupt politicians—it is an unbroken record of the most sickening hypocrisy and of the rankest thievery.

The blackest pages in this black history relate the story of luring the new settlers to "the golden west".

Railroad corporations and land companies, aided by corrupt governments, vied with other in the game of "landing suckers". They out-barnumed dear old Barnum! Western Canada was painted in the most glowing colors; as a land "flowing with milk and with honey"; as the new El Dorado of fabulous wealth and a new-found freedom. Wondrous tales of great riches were told with bated breath. Even the silver sheen of countless lakes seem to tell tales of treasures concealed beneath.

THERE was coal, and gold, and silver, and copper, and pulpwood, and iron. And above all the wide-flung prairies beckoning to millions of plowmen—and to be secured for the mere asking! Such wealth and such opportunities!

There grew up, as a result, the myth of "the golden west." The destitute of many lands regarded Western Canada as a haven of refuge; as the New Jerusalem of the lost tribes of the workless and landless.

Feverishly they would pace some drab city square in an endeavor to visualize a quarter-section of land—and in a trice, as if by the touch of a magician's wand, the ugliness of the city gave place to oceans of grain touched by a western sun into gold.

IN tens of thousands they packed their grips and "hiked" west to the land where "dreams come true." They came west—only to find capitalism as firmly entrenched as in the lands they left behind. They came west—only to find their dreams turn into a veritable nightmare of grim reality. They came west—the hapless victims of a colossal fraud.

The Impoverished Farmers.

THE new settlers toiled early and late. They cleared the forests and broke the virgin soil; built houses and constructed railroads. They performed prodigies of toil—but the dice were loaded against them in the struggle for existence.

Toil they ever so hard they sank further into the morass of destitution. Mortgages mounted and overdue bills increased—driving the vast majority to the very brink of utter bankruptcy and poverty.

Today, ninety four per cent of the western farms are heavily mortgaged, and the total indebtedness is far in excess of one billion dollars. The load of mortgages and debts has become so heavy that tens of thousands of farmers have given up the struggle in despair; tens of thousands more face the future with ill-concealed anxiety and fear.

THE province of Saskatchewan is famed the world over for its wheat fields. It is known as "the bread basket of the British empire." It is the greatest wheat-producing area in the whole world. But the tillers of the soil find no abiding grace and saving virtue in these facts—the great mass of them are confronted with destitution and menaced by the shadow of the sheriff.

In this single province the average indebtedness of a half section of land (320 acres) is in excess of five thousand dollars. The per capita indebtedness of the whole province is estimated at $480! In three rural municipalities alone no less than 180,000 arces of land were seized for arrears of taxes—a fairly good indication of the deplorable condition of affairs.

Manitoba farmers are in as bad a plight. Recent reports indicate that the bonded indebtedness of the average half section of land is more than $4,700. Nearly two hundred rural schools have been forced to close because the farmers could not afford to pay the required taxes.

IN "sunny Alberta," the impoverished farmers are in desperate conditions. Last year, in a single month, six and a half million acres of farm lands were for sale because of arrears of taxes alone—a greater area of land than was seeded to wheat in the province! The indebtedness of the province is in excess of $715,000,000—a colossal burden which threatens the farmers and the workers alike with lowered living standards.

Nor are the fruit farmers and "stump ranchers" of British Columbia in better plight. Despite the most terrible toil, they are finding it increasingly difficult to eke out a bare existence. Last year the berry-farmers were compelled to leave one-third of their crops upon the trees—for want of a profitable market!

From the Great Lakes to the Pacific slope the farmers are sinking further and further into the morass of destitution. The burden of mortgages and debts is making life one continuous round of heart-breaking toil and mind-wrecking poverty.

EVEN returned soldiers are not exempt! The last report of the Soldier Settlement Board reveals the astounding fact that eighteen per cent of "the heroes of yesterday," have been forced to abandon their farms—and that the percentage of civilian failures is even higher. So that once again capitalism stands condemned as the greatest impostor in history. Think of the fascinating stories of politicians about "we cannot do too much for our heroes in the trenches"—and then remember the fact that eighteen per cent of them have been forced to abandon their farms in five years.

So terrible is the destitution that the farmers, in a frantic effort to make ends meet, have enslaved their wives and children. Unable to meet their obligations and pay wages for hired help, the farmers have enlisted their children—thus depriving them of the scanty educational opportunities afforded by the average rural school. On the soil as well as in the factory, capitalism demands the slavery of the youth.

IN addition to the dull drudgery of domestic toil, the farm-women do countless "chores." Many a farmstead is kept going by the "cream-cheque"—a significant proof of the wretched struggle for existence imposed upon the mass of the farmers. And it must be added that tens of thousands of farmers only continue in the struggle because of the enforced labor of their wives and children.

Thousands of farmers have abandoned their farms in despair—and have "hiked" for the cities, there to swell the ranks of the unemployed. Their deserted farms stand as silent sentinels of warning—growing rank with noxious weeds, and the buildings crumbling from disues. Yes! And thousands more of the tillers of the soil await the future with misgivings and fear; hanging on in the vain hope that Dame Prosperity will "turn the corner" once again.

IT is small wonder that the disillusioned farmers are cursing those who dangled fair promises and extravagant hopes before their bewildered eyes in "the old country." They have been the hapless victims of a colossal fraud. The promised prosperity and freedom has crumbled in their hands—and they find themselves slaves of the soil.

A Great Illusion.

But capitalism is responsible for a fraud much more subtle than the one exposed in the preceding paragraphs.

Visit the wretched "shacks" of these farmers of the Nor'West. You will find the whole family busy as bees; the father worried with mounting mortgages and overdue bills and the mother haggard with terrific toil. But you will find, too, that the whole family is filled with the pride of possession. They actually believe that the farm is "theirs." Property concepts still color their viewpoint.

No matter how heavy the load of debt or how large the mortgage, the average farmer will speak with pride of "his" farm and "his" crop. It is one of the strangest illusions of present-day life.

SPEAK to an average farmer of the need for better conditions and he will agree. But tell him of the sins of private property and of the necessity of social ownership and control, and he will let loose a string of western invective which would turn a Billingsgate porter green with envy. "Dogonit, none of yer damned socialism for me. Do you want to take this farm from me? No, sir! I broke this land in '97 and it is mine. And I'll be darned if any highfaultin' scoundrel is going to take it away from me." And this, be it remembered, from an individual who is one remove from the sheriff at any time.

Ninety-four per cent of the farms mortgaged—and the mortgaged farmers still talking of "their farms"! If there was not grim tragedy back of it, the situation would be a farce worthy of the satirical pen of a Shaw.

WORSE yet! Even honest and militant members of the labor union movement are obsessed with this property concept! They regard the farmers as propertied employers of labor, who, with faces of flint will "dicker" for lower wages and longer hours of labor. "The darned old Shylock," they will cry indignantly, "wants me to work twenty-five hours a day for my board—and wants me to eat nothing but pork ad skilly at that." And this very attitude raises the ire of the farmers, who regard the city workers with ill-concealed suspicion and contempt; and labor unions as agencies of the devil!

Yet the facts are plain for those who will see! The farmers, far from being the possessors of the land they till, are the hired foremen of finance capital. Tear the mask of proprietorship from off the face of the farmer and you will find—a landless peasant who masquerades in the role of a propertied employer of labor. He is the hapless slave of finance capital; a mere cog in a profit-grinding machine; a landless peasant wearing a mask.

NEVER was there a greater illusion than this; never a more imposing fraud! Millions of farmers and workers firmly believe that the tillers of the soil are independent proprietors—only to find, beneath the mask, the utmost servility.

And it is one of the greatest tasks confronting the youthful Communist Party to dispel this illusion and to tear the mask of proprietorship from off the faces of the slaves of the soil. Only struggle against capitalism in all its manifold manifestations will serve in this respect.

It is because of this great illusion that the farmers think in terms of "next year." No matter how desperate their plight they firmly believe that "next year" conditions will improve and they will come into their own. Moreover, this terrific illusion serves to keep the workers and farmers at logger-heads and snarling at each other. For these and for other reansons, it is imperative that the illusion be dispelled by the bitter experience of struggle.

Towards a Farmer-Labor Alliance.

IT is imperative that the revolutionary artillery be trained upon this colossal illusion. The national economy of Canada is predominantly agricultural. One half of the people of the dominion gain their living directly from the soil, whilst a very large section of the industrial workers are indirectly dependent upon agriculture for their livelihood.

It will be readily seen, therefore, that the attitude of the farmers is a matter of great concern to the industrial proletariat of Canada. On which side will the farmers fight? Will they fight on the side of the banking barons and against the workers? Or will they struggle side by side with workers against capitalist dictatorship? These are questions of paramount importance to the Communist movement of Canada, because it is in their answer that the success or failure of the revolutionary movement is largely determined.

A proletarian revolution with the mass of the farmers in active and organized opposition is wholely impossible. 'Tis true that the industrial proletariat must provide the most active elements in such a struggle; but it must also be backed by the support of (at any rate) a considerable section of "the tin lizzie peasantry."

THE Communist Party of Canada correctly raised aloft (in company with all other parties of the Communist International) the banner inscribed with the slogan: "Towards a Farmers' and Workers' Government." Realizing that the "tin lizzie peasantry" constituted an important factor in the revolutionary struggle for power, the Communists took steps to wean the farmers away from the leadership of capitalism.

Every opportunity was seized to encourage joint action of the workers and of the farmers. The joint struggles were localized; of short duration and upon no spectacular issues—nevertheless a small beginning was made in the direction of a farmer-labor alliance. The farmers' struggles for a wheat pool brought support (at the behest of the Communists) from some of the Trades Council and unions; whilst one of the farmers organizations reciprocated, in kind, by passing strong resolutions demanding the withdrawal of the soldiery from Nova Scotia during the steel strike.

In another part of the country a joint executive meeting between a labor and farmer organization was held, and an attempt made to arrive at an understanding regarding elections. Nothing spectacular to be sure—but nevertheless steps leading to a future alliance of all who toil.

EVERY opportunity, of such a character, must be seized by the Communists. And out of the joint struggles, thus developing, an honest endeavor must be made to broaden the struggles so as to embrace larger and larger sections of the farmers and the workers; thus making possible an organic alliance between the slaves of the city and the country with the end in view of booting the fraud of capitalism from off the stage of society, and replacing it with a virile workers' and farmers' republic.

Social-Democracy Strips Itself Naked

WELS AS WITNESS.
"Stop Such Things at any Price!"

WITNESS Otto Wels (chairman of the German socialist party): The first meeting which I attended, took place on Jan. 30 at Friedrichstrasse station. I was alone there, as there was a meeting of the party committee on the same morning, and Ebert was there holding an address on the strike. I also took part in a second meeting in the Lothringer Strasse, at which Ebert and Schiedmann were present.

We had not had the intention of attending any more strike committee meetings, but we had received information that certain elements were endeavoring to aggravate the strike. We did not believe this, but were determined to stop such things at any price. At the meeting on Feb. 2, efforts were made to persuade me to take sharper measures, but we representatives of the S. D. party declined to do this. We occupied ourselves with the strike solely for the purpose of securing the national defense.

Our attitude towards the strike during the war was not adopted for the special occasion, but was traditional.

In reply to a question from Dr. Landsberg, as to why Wels published the newspaper Die Fackel, the witness declared that the party had to have a mouthpiece, and the official organ, the Vorwarts, had been closed to them by the Independent editors.—(Vorwarts, Dec. 17.)

Landsberg's Speech for the Defense of Social Treachery.

WHEN the war broke out on Aug. 4, 1914, the social democrats made a declaration in the reichstag: "We shall not desert our country in the hour of danger." At that time it was hoped that the division of the parties into national and anti-national, into friends and foes of the reich, would be put an end to once for all, and that a German would never again doubt the honorable patriotic feeling of another German. This hope was frustrated, tho the party of the coplaintiff (Ebert's party) was not to blame for this, for this party never forgot its duty to the fatherland during the whole frightful war. One man belonging to this party (Karl Liebknecht) endeavored to thwart its aims, and tho he bore a name highly honored in this party, he was expelled from it. There were internal struggles in the party; the reichstag fraction and the organization dwindled; but in spite of all, Ebert as leader of the party, tho he had to calculate with the possibility of losing mighty troops of followers to the radicals, never vacillated for a moment but held to his conviction that his place was in Germany's camp, and that his party stood for an honorable peace.

Ebert—"The German Man."

Ebert remained the tower of that wing of the social democratic party standing for national defense. For him this was the pivot of the disagreements with the other socialist party. Under his leadership the social democrats voted for the auxiliary service law in the interests of the defense of the country. The characterization of Ebert as given by General Field Marshal von Hindenburg is perfectly justified. During the war Ebert proved himself to be the German man whom Hindenburg designates, and this letter honors both writer and recipient. When the admission of the social democrats into the cabinet was demanded later on by Prince Max of Badun, it was again Ebert who succeeded in attaining this object, altho the other leaders in the party committee were first opposed to it.

He did not gain any specially high honors by his conduct, he merely did his duty as a German, and therefore it is a very deep insult to him if he is reproached with having acted unpatriotically and contrary to duty. Ebert did not do his duty in war merely for tactical reasons, as one witness has maintained here, as little as Ludwig Frank went voluntarily to the front, from which he never returned, merely for tactical reasons. (Vorwarts, Dec. 20.)

LANDSBERG (for the defense): It was the subject of relentless condemnation that our brothers at the front might be exposed defenceless to the fire of the enemy by a strike on the part of the munition workers. In 1917 the party committee, co-operating with the trade union commission, had been able to prevent a threatened strike of armament workers.

Ebert has announced that he joined the strike committee with the firm determination to put an end to the movement as quickly as possible. It has been ascertained that the action had been secretly prepared by the revolutionary leaders. The social democratic workers were told nothing beforehand, for it was the object of these wirepullers to put the revolutionary leaders in the place of the trade unions. This is the final and the actual reason of the strike.

At that time the danger for the state did not lie in the strike itself, but in the possible realization of the aims of the revolutionaries. The seeds of revolution had already germinated to such an extent, that Captain Miersmann was right in saying that a few days' abstention from work during the war was not the worst evil, but the fact that embers still glowed among the ashes, and the workers had lost all desire to work. The social democratic leaders were taken by surprise by the outbreak of the strike. (Vorwarts, Dec. 20.)

"No Allies" of the Strikers.

LANDSBERG (barrister). How could they (the social democratic leaders) know of it, when not even the minister of police, Drews, with every auxiliary of news service at his disposal, believed in the strike on Jan. 26. Ebert, as the credibile witnesses here have testified, declined to lie on the bed which others had made. Or do you really believe that the social democratic leaders were pleased to co-operate with people who were their bitterest enemies, who abused the social democrats? They would not have done it, had they not been pressed to do so by their own party comrades. And was not the radical wing of the strike committee perfectly aware of the fact that when Ebert, Scheidemann and Bauer joined the committee, the latter were no allies but men endeavoring to settle the conflict as fast as possible? It is not possible to speak of high treason because men who had recognized the enormous immediate danger to the country now approached the elements who were ready to throw a spark into the powder cask at any moment. It is not necessary to be a social democrat to recognize the purposefulness of this line of conduct, as it was for instance recognized by the Bavarian minister who openly expressed his thanks to the social democrats, in the Bavarian diet, for their efforts towards the speedy settlement of the strike. (Vorwarts, Dec. 20.)

"The Restoration of Peace."

LANDSBERG (barrister): Richard Muller wished the strike to culminate in a revolution. Amongst other demands, the leading one was for the amnesty of all political offenders, so that a pistol could be held to the head of the government, and all negotiations rendered impossible and hopeless from the commencement. The social democrats at once required the alteration of the seven known demands of the radical strike committee, but this was refused. Mr. Wallraf would have done better to receive the deputation of striking workmen.

He would have helped the men in the strike committee who were exerting their utmost endeavors for the restoration of the so necessary economic peace.

He refused to receive the deputation, and now the cart was stuck fast in the mud. It was necessary for the social democrats to join the strike committee, for it was necessary to watch over and slow down this rash set of people, if the worst was to be avoided. But the men who undertook this thankless task do not deserve that an effort is now being made to twist their conduct at that time into a rope for their destruction. (Vorwarts, Dec. 20.)

Ebert, Savior of the Fatherland.

LANDSBERG (barrister): Now as to the meeting in the Treptow Park. The dignity of the witness, Ebert, prohibits my inquiring whether he is a more credible witness than a Syrig or a Gobert. It would be perfect madness to assert or assume that Ebert, who lost two sons in the war, should have publicly called upon ten thousand people to refuse to obey when called up for military service. The best defender of the president of the reich is the witness Lenhoff, the sole witness able to repeat Ebert's speech in detail. At that time Ebert employed the whole of his authority for the purpose of making it clear to the strikers that the strike was dangerous and detrimental, both for the front and for home. This speech was a deed in the truest sense of the word. It showed a strength of character of which the man, whom I have the honor to defend, may be proud. It was his endeavor not only to end the munition strike, but to remove the ground from under the whole strike movement during the war.

BUT Ebert would have been lost for all time had he not added to this deed—that of disapproving of the strike—some few sentences sounding pleasant to the workers. I have had the honor, during the most difficult period of Germany's history, of standing by the side of the man who has to fight for his honor before this court today, a man whose life would not have been insured by any insurance company, so great were the risks and dangers threatening him.

If this man, who has to defend himself today against the most serious reproach which can be made against a German, the accusation of high treason against his country—if this man is a traitor to his country, then I wish that we had some tens of thousands of such traitors in Germany. In ancient Athens the men who had served their country were banished.

I hope that in Germany there is no place for ostracism.—(Vorwarts, Dec. 20.)

CELEBRATE THE 18th OF MARCH!

By LUDWIG LORE.

IN spite of the comparatively short history of the revolutionary working class movement, its calendar presents a surprising number of days upon which the class conscious worker feels impelled to meet his comrades to commemorate its great events.

Of these none is more fitted to be the occasion for a huge celebration than the 18th of March, the anniversary of the Paris Commune, the day on which the starving, desperate proletariat of Paris dreamed their short, but glorious dream of industrial and political liberation, the great and glorious attempt that represents the climax of the First International, that first epoch in the history of the revolutionary, international working class.

The organizers of the Madison Square Garden demonstration have, in their program, caught the romantic spirit that characterizes our conception of the Paris Commune. There was a time, when the 18th of March was a day of sorrow and mourning, when the international working class came to their meetings with heads bowed in sorrow and speakers choked back their tears when they spoke of the men, women and children that were mowed down by the guns of a terror-stricken bourgeoisie. That time is passed. To us, today, the Paris Commune, in spite of the precious lives that were sacrificed at the altar of its failure, has become a day of pride and rejoicing, pride in the courage and the fervor of those who dared in the face of invincible odds, rejoicing at the thought that today, while hundreds still live who remember the Paris Commune, the working class of the largest nation in the world has succeeded in creating where the French working class was doomed to failure, because we have been strong enough, great enough to learn by the mistakes that they had made, that the working class of the world is strong enough, virile enough to grow and to conquer in spite of the terrible defeat of that 18th of March.

The Boss Gives a Lesson on "Civilization"

By ROSA LUX.

NEVER before was I tempted to analyze the meaning of civilization, until lately when I had the opportunity to meet a certain boss who called my attention to it. When a group of workers, including myself, entered his place of business without having asked his permission first, he delivered a lecture on civilization to us. Had we been buyers he surely would have said, "How do you do, gentlemen? What can I do for you?" etc., but surely would not have lectured them on "Civilization," as he did to us.

BUT it happened that we were salesmen, not of the kind who come to sell manufactured goods, but who were compelled to sell their labor power as a commodity. We came there to speak to our fellow salesmen about the market price of labor power and advised them not to sell the only commodity they possessed at a lower than the standard price established by the union.

THE "civilized" boss who understood immediately that we came to organize his workers, became furious when he realized that his lecture fell upon deaf ears. He ordered us to get out and at the same time he summoned the police to have us arrested. The police station as a resting place for tired workers did not terrify us. To the order of the boss we paid but little attention, but the order of police meant "law" and as "law"- abiding citizens we permitted ourselves to be escorted by the police without protest. We knew it was no use arguing with them. The bosses paid them, and paid them well.

AFTER receiving that instructive lesson by the "civilized" boss I was led to analyze the meaning of civilization. I also learned thru experience that those who rob on a large scale legally are considered respectable and "civilized." But we, the workers who try to organize in order to obtain fairly decent living conditions are looked upon as tho we were savages. The bosses and the police actually called us "gorillas."

SAVAGES, we are indeed. For were we truly civilized, we would not demand fairly decent living conditions but the full product of our labor. Ours is the earth and its natural resources. Ours should be the control of industry. But as we are savages, that two-legged beast of a boss who thrives on the blood of human beings, who enslaves people, who is a Russian immigrant himself, had a right to tell us that if we acted as respectable people we would be treated accordingly. If not we should go back to Russia, for America is a "civilized" country.

THE bosses' civilization means that one of a group of people shall have the right and privilege to decide for the vast majority how to live when and how long to work and above all else, to receive for their toil as much as the bosses deem sufficient. Such an arrangement is not only "civilization," but democracy as well. They say, "This is a free country and everyone has the same opportunity to work himself up." But as a matter of fact, those who say so never work themselves, but make others work for them.

THIS so-called civilization in the U. S. reminds me of a scene in Austria. Often I observed several cows on a field of pasture fighting each other for the same plot of grass, altho there was sufficient pasture space for all. The field was large, and yet all stood on one place pulling the grass from each other's mouths and at the same time getting sick from over-feeding. Why did they fight with each other? Because they had no brains, did not know the fields were large enough and that nature provides for all living creatures.

BUT neither do the so-called "civilized" people act any better than those cows. Cold storage plants burst with food; great quantities of food is dumped in order to maintain the high prices while thousands of people starve. Warehouses are filled up with clothing while millions go about raggedly, especially those who weave the cloth and sew the garments. New York City alone has thousands of vacant apartments because of too exorbitant rents. While thousands of people are compelled to live and sleep, four to six in a room. The hospitals and insane asylums are overcrowded and the jails are filled with convicts. On the streets we meet many cripples, some without legs, others with one arm, and still others who had been gassed on the battlefield.

AND we call this "civilization"! I wonder whether my "civilized" boss ever had a taste of real "civilization"?

Letters From Our Readers

Turning Toward Communism.

Dear Comrade:—It is you who are kind to write to me. I shall feel ever grateful to you for influencing me to subscribe to the DAILY WORKER. When I become affluent enough to do so (which I hope will be next week) I shall also subscribe to the Workers' Monthly, and to the Communist International.

I am trying to persuade my friends to do likewise. The attitude in this immediate vicinity is very hostile toward anything that smacks of radicalism, but perhaps such editorials as, "Wheat, Flour, and Bread go Up in Price as the Thieves Take Earnings," (in the Jan. 31, D. W.) will be effective among some of the farmers here. At least in trying to broadcast it, as it were.

I, too, wish we could talk, for writing is very unsatisfactory. I shall read the A. B. C. of Communism by Bucharin just as soon as I can secure it.

Until only a few years ago, I was very gullible, swallowing the editorials in the Saturday Evening Post, and in numerous metropolitan dailies with implicit faith. I shall not burden you with the story of the evolution of my attitude. Sufficient to say that speeches by Roger Baldwin, Mrs. Elizabeth Flint, Upton Sinclair, Scott Nearing, and Ruthenberg started me doubting.

A course under Prof. Ferdinand Schevill, the friendship of Ruth Pearson (farmer secretary of the Federated Press League) and the reading of the Federated Press Bulletin are a few of the things which influenced me. The biggest single factor was attending "Youth and the War Makers; a Next Step Conference," under the auspices of the university of Chicago Liberal Club, the Northwestern university Liberal League and the Northwestern university Student Forum. It was a three-day conference, held at Waukegan a year ago last June. Martin Abern and another comrade from the Y. W. L., together with such speakers as Arne Swabeck, Moritz Loeb and Carl Haessler opened my eyes to a new world.

I was not the only one so benefited. An earnest serious girl from Rockford college, who had had far less radical influence than I, was completely changed. And the Northwestern "38," who were so ridiculously misrepresented in the press last spring, were, I think, a direct outcome of the conference. It was there that Alice Hanson and Wesley Cooker, who were, I believe, the leavening influence of the "38" first realized that international warfare is concomitant upon our present economic system.

Another conference was held last June. It was attended by a larger number of people, and the program was a wee bit more ambitious than the preceding one, but I doubt if the results were as far-reaching. The group was a little too congenial and took matters too lightly, so little enthusiasm was worked up, and little earnest thought was contributed.

One of the girls active in the Liberal club at the university this year writes that she hopes they can have a conference this year, but that they all feel rather green at it. They are very eager for help and suggestions. If I am in Chicago this spring, I shall be very glad to aid them in any way that I can as regards clerical work, etc., realizing what a burden such work is upon anyone who is at the same time closing college work. I also wish that I could give them some valuable suggestions.

About this time last year we began preparing for the conference. We sent out form letters to a large number of college students, asking for suggestions as to topics, speakers, ect., and the replies that we received, tho often interesting, were seldom helpful. Some suggested that we cover a wide range of topics in order to attract a wide range of students; others that we limit the conference to some very specific problem.

We think that our problem this year is first, how to attract a large number of students, and second, how to jolt them into thinking about fundamentals when we get them there. Have you any suggestions? I should like to know how to attract as many conservative students as possible. I feel certain that we can muster enough able young radicals out there so that we can have some really sincere discussion, so that may of the conservatives will undergo a change of attitude.

If you have any suggestions as to how to reach the students, speakers, topics, etc., I should much apreciate them.

This year the Liberal Club has affilated with the L. I. D. Of course, their help will mean much to us.

Sincerely yours,

M. A. W.

The Army Blesses the Kluxers.

To the DAILY WORKER: This evening I stopped on the corner to hear the Salvation army pray and preach, and tell me of the reward I will get in heaven. The collection was started and everything was coming along nicely when all at once a loud voice sounded from the third story window. "Take the money but bring the sack back. It is from the ku klux klan. Be sure and take the bills out there are some in there. God bless you for your wonderful work." The men threw down a sack, and the army captain, thankful at this windfall, called back asking that god also shower blessings on the kluxers.

The crowd in the street stopped giving immediately, and the old saying that I heard long ago when they used to stuff religion into me whether I wanted it or not, came true. "All will be changed in the twinkling of an eye."

The klan gift was about twelve dollars, and if this gift were taken from workers it would have been very good, as wages are none too high here. Twenty people asked for aid last month here on account of "insufficient wages." Which shows that the klan creed, "I believe in a closer relationship between capital and labor," doesn't take root here in South Bend.

But if the gift was from capitalists it was very small. The captain said it seemed to excite the crowd, but it did not excite him. He had a man die on his hands, and it did not excite him, he said.

After several urgent appeals, he was able to collect a little more "to carry on the wonderful work." I have been giving a little each week to the salvation army as I realize under this system it gives some of the workers at least a place to go to and get a feed now and then, after they have been cleaned, not by Christ, but by capitalists. However, I have stopped donating money to an organization that fights and dopes the workers.

As the klan believes in free speech I want to say this: That I was in the army all thru the war not an "honor boy," as I enlisted in 1916. I am a native born American.

When the workers of the world wake up and see that their interests are alike the world over, regardless of color or nationality, there will be no more wars. And we will be able to sing, "I didn't raise my boy to be a soldier." A Worker, South Bend, Ind.

Wherein Lies the Strength of the Pravda?

By ALEXANDER BITTELMAN.

PRAVDA in Russian means truth. It is is the name of the official organ of the Russian Communist Party. It is being read by hundreds of thousands of Russian workers and peasants. It is the pride of the international revolutionary working class movement.

Wherein lies its strength?

It is a good paper. Undoubtedly one of the best and most brilliant political papers of any in the world. But this does not explain the real strength, the secret of the power and influence of Pravda. There are other Communist dailies in the world that are good, interesting political papers and yet they seem to be lacking something which is of the very essence of the greatness of Pravda.

What is that secret? It is the fact that the Pravda is the collective product of the efforts and intelligence of the entire revolutionary working clas of Russia. The Pravda is not made alone by capable Communist journalists. The Pravda is made by hundreds of working class correspondents and of peasant correspondents. The strength of the Pravda rests on two institutions which are known under the names of Rabcor and Selcor.

Rabcor stands for the institution of worker correspondents to the Pravda. Selcor stands for the institution of peasant correspondents to the Pravda. There are hundreds of workers and peasants in all parts of Russia regularly corresponding to the Pravda on the life and struggles of the masses in their respective localities. These correspondents are not merely journalists. They are much more than merely correspondents to a newspaper. They are militant, uncompromising fighters in the cause of Communism. They expose corruption. They propagate the ideas and policies of the Communist Party. They bring education to the masses. They build the newspaper. It is no exaggeration to say that the most significant phases of the class struggle now in Russia, the struggle between the class conscious workers and peasants on the one hand against the petty bourgeoisie and rich peasantry on the other hand, revolves around the activity of the Rabcors and Selcors.

Thru these two institutions the Pravda has rooted itself in the everyday life of millions upon millions of toilers in Soviet Russia. This is the reason why the Pravda is so dearly loved and appreciated by the workers and peasants of Russia.

Another secret of the strength of the Pravda is the fact that every party member is an active builder of the Pravda. To get subscriptions for the Pravda, to spread the paper among the workers, is considered one of the supreme tasks of every member of the party. One of the methods by which the Pravda is built is the following: Every working class and peasant club—and there are thousands of such clubs in every nook and corner of Russia—organizes periodical collective readings of the Pravda. They read and study the news, special articles and editorials. They discuss these, pass resolutions expressing their opinions, transmitting them to the Pravda. Thus an intimate bond is established between the toiling masses and their fighting organ.

Let us remember these things when we think of our DAILY WORKER. Let us decide once for all that we shall try to make the DAILY WORKER mean for the American toiling masses what the Pravda means to the toiling masses of Soviet Russia.

Letters From Soviet Russia

To the Workers of Western Countries. (From a worker of the "Dynamo" engineering works, Moscow.)

DEAR COMRADES: Having just returned from a visit to the villages of the volost, I should like to tell you about the present conditions in the villages and the social work accomplished there.

I must remark that we workers of the "Dynamo" works have become the "ideological-cultural patrons" over the peasants of one of the volosts of the Mozhaisk uyezd of the Moscow gubernia. During our six months' patronage, we can place on record the following achievements: ten villages reading rooms (3 of which have been opened by the workers themselves as a model, while the others owe their existence to the peasants); 14 village schools; 5 dressmaking schools (with the necessary equipment); 3 bootmaking workshops, one carpentry workshop, 15 Young Communist League nuclei, 16 Pioneer corps and one traveling cinema.

WHEN we took over the above-mentioned patronage, a "patronage commission" was formed in the works comprising all the factory workers and the clerical staff (1,500 people). A bureau of eight was appointed which is in charge of the entire patronage work. Our contact with the village is kept up by having a permanent patronage representative in the village, while the peasants send a representative to our bureau. Thru these "plenipotentiary representatives" constant and animated relations between us and the peasants are maintained. Recently the peasants of the Chentsovo village invited a delegation of workers to their "festive session" held to inaugurate yet another village reading-room which has been opened, thanks to the initiative and efforts of the villagers themselves.

I ENCLOSE a characteristic document—a decision made at the general meeting of the peasants of the Chentsovo village. Progress is coming into its own. At the well-attended meeting of, what would be called by people some "village louts," a peasant made a report on the history of the initiative and opening of the village reading-room—the pride of the village.

It is significant that the opening of this reading-room was due entirely to the initiative and activity of all the inhabitants of the village who had the assistance of the local Young Communist League nuclei (consisting of 10 young fellows and 12 "wenches") as well as of the Young Pioneer Corps.

THE necessary means were obtained by organizing "Voskresniki" (Sunday labor) unloading goods wagons at the railway junction. The peasants who have horses came with their carts to the station. I am sending a photograph of the peasants, men and women, at the "Voskresnik." When a collection was made even the poor peasants contributed a quarter of a measure of oats each.

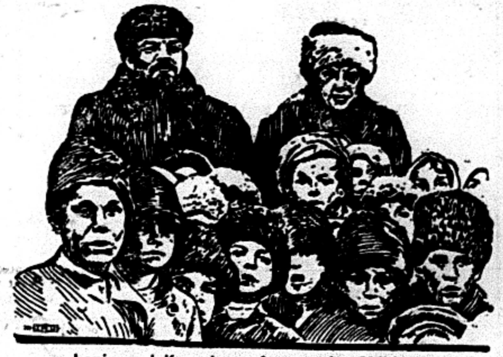
We must say that the uyezd authorities, for instance, the Mozhaisk executive committee also responded to our appeal and contributed 150 bricks and 25 boards, etc. The workers of the patron—the "Dynamo" works also made considerable contributions and thanks to all these efforts, the villagers have an A. 1 reading-room. A youth of the Russian Young Communist League spoke, and proudly spoke of his league's satisfaction that "at last they will be able to meet all of them under a roof instead of meeting in ravines." After addresses of welcome from the works' delegation and speeches by a number of peasants, men and women, there was a cinema performance.

THIS is a sample of a Soviet village festival, and such festivals are of frequent occurrence in the villages of the volost under our patronage.

Frequently a group of peasants pays a visit to its patron in Moscow. They take a keen interest in the work of our factory and in the life and conditions of the workers. I also enclose a photograph of the peasant delegation taken under the memorial tablet of the works which bears the signature of our dear Ilyitch and of other leaders of the revolution who have visited our works. By the by, would not the honorable Mr. Chamberlain like to study the right fascimile of the signatures of our leaders and compare it with the signature of the "Zinoviev letter." It is a pity that the sleuth hounds of the "intelligence department" of "his majesty's government" do not know the exact titles of the comrades who have signed their names.

WELL, to come back to the peasants' visit to our works, the latter's festival was made to coincide with the celebration of the anniversary of the October revolution.

A workers' delegation went to the station to meet our visitors and bro: them to the Lenin village (comprising from 7 to 8 factories) and where a Lenin memorial was at that time being erected. After that the peasants joined in with the ranks of the workers and marched to Comrade Lenin's mausoleum. On their return a concert-meeting was held on the premises of the works where the big motors are manufactured. A number of comrades arrived from the center and spoke on the International Situation, etc.



Lenin and Krupskaya Among the Children.

IN addition to the general secretary of the central committee of our Communist Party and to the brother of Comrade Lenin—Dmitri Ilyitch— a 60 years old peasant delegate, Comrade Blinov was elected to the presidium (on the photo he is the second on the left). He was greeted with loud applause and spoke enthusiastically on behalf of the villagers of the volost under our patronage.

AT the time of their last visit the peasants spent two days with us (they were holidays). Our workers gave them hospitality and showed them the sights of Moscow.

With proletarian greetings,

I. GUINESSIN, Metal Turner.

Agricultural Commune "Seyatel"

TO the DAILY WORKER:—In 1922 some ten small farmers and a few industrial workers at Kirkland, Wash. decided to go to Soviet Russia so they organized an agricultural commune by putting together their small savings. They sent delegates to Russia to locate a favorable place to practice grain raising with modern machinery. After finding a place a group was formed consisting of about eighty members (children included). They choose the name Seattle after the city from which they left; altho afterward the name was slightly changed to a Russian word 'Seyatel' meaning 'Sower.' Thus our home Commune Seyatel started to exist.

Our place is located 100 miles southeast of Rostov on the Don on the Vladicaucasian railroad. We have secured a track of fertile land containing about 13,000 acres. At present there are 135 people in all, 67 men, 27 women, and the rest children, (six members are on a furlough.) All these people are gathered together from different parts of America between New York and Nome, of five different nationalities. 50 per cent are western loggers, 10 per cent small farmers, 10 per cent miners and the balance is composed of people who have different trades.

Grain Raising Takes Lead

Before the war this place was the home of well-known cossack horses. Cattle and sheep raising was carried on quite extensively also. Grain raising was only a side line then but now it takes the lead. We came to Russia with the latest American agricultural machinery amounting to $120,000.

So far our attainments have been: the first year's crop area about 950 acres; the second years crop area 3,540 acres and our plan for next year is 5,400 acres. Our largest and only income so far has been grain, principally wheat. Even if we were in last summers drought area we were able to supply the surrounding peasants with twenty carloads of seed wheat. Our live stock consists of 115 hogs, 15 horses, 800 fowls, 390 sheep and over 100 head of cattle. This is only a start but take into consideration that this district was in the path of Wrangel's army and other less noted counter-revolutionary armies who destroyed most of the live stock and practically all of the buildings. So the cattle must be raised from young and buildings built up from ruins.

We manage our affairs by electing a Soviet composed of six members and a chairman who is the manager of all the business affairs. All of the work is divided into different departments all with their own managing committees. These committees form the general work council.

No Child Labor There

All the children under eighteen attend school, which we have in our commune. The first thing we had to learn was the Russian language. Now we are taught grammar, botany, chemistry, etc. The teaching is done by the new school method.

We have a Y. C. L. nuclei here with eleven members. As yet our work has been weak on account of the language and inexperience. Our work therefore, has for the greater part been limited to only among the commune youth. Now as we are beginning to learn the language and tactics we are starting to extend our organization work among the neighbors, in fact already we are conducting our propaganda work in the vicinity to quite an extend. Our place being a center the peasants come from near and far to our meetings and celebrations. Once a week and on holidays we have moving pictures. The films are a great help here to enlighten the peasants for most of the films circulated in the country places are of agriculture, stock raising, and useful hints of the every day needs of the peasant.

They Are Eager To Learn

The Y. C. L. members' present task in Russia is to learn the teachings of Marx and Lenin thoroly so as to be able to put them into practice for much work must yet be done among the peasants, not only in the political line but also agricultural. It is a great task so each and every member's time is taken up in completing the work leaving no time for nonsense and cheap kind of fun that was so common in America. For instance we have different circles: A dramatic circle; educational committee; political circle; wall paper bureau; and lectures on scientific agriculture, home economics and all other important subjects. Also we have "smitchkas" with the peasants. These "smitchkas" are parties where comsomols and nonparty youth get together.

We work and learn. We see the great future for such a vast majority have dictatorship over the "nepmen" and "kulack." Naturally terrorism is not practised altho the capitalist press seems to find so much of it here.

Last summer Comrade John Williamson was here at the Y. C. L congress in Moscow so we waited for him to come here and visit our commune, but he did not come. When some one comes from there next time we ask you to come and visit us.

With comradely greetings,

Rose Leino.

DEAR Comrades!

It is 8 a. m. The factory sirens call the workers to their jobs. At the electrical power station the second shift comes on duty (the station works the whole 24 hours).

The stokers and mechanics who have come off duty take off their overalls, wash and disperse to their hostels. The screenfitter Akimov puts on rubber shoes, examines the apparatuses very carefully and takes down in a notebook their indications. He is at his post. He is entrusted with important work—keeping account of the expenditure of energy. Every half hour he takes down the indications of the apparatuses, going from one to the other, like a sentry he walks up and down in front of the screen until 4 p. m. At 4 o'clock another shift comes on.

The working hours are over, but not Akinow's working day. He goes home to a hurried dinner, for at half past five he must be at the courses for electrical fitters. At 7 p. m. he has to attend a class of political training and after 9 p. m. must prepare a report for the next day on the work of the International Red Aid Nucleus (he is the secretary of this nucleus).

Akimov's working day is not over until late at night when he goes to sleep on his bed with a book in his hands.

Dear Comrades, do write and tell us how you live and spend the day.

INTERNATIONAL NOTES

GERMANY

BERLIN—The German Communist Party has published a manifesto vigorously denouncing the yellow trade union leaders and the social democrats who have been doing a lot of talking about the preservation of the eight-hour day and the ratification of the Washington agreement, but have taken absolutely no action in the matter.

It calls attention to the fact that the social-democratic fraction in the reichstag has not even as yet put forward a measure in regard to this ratification, and declares that only the united struggle of the workers in the shops can force the reintroduction of the eight-hour day in Germany where the 12 and even 14 hour day is now in force in many industries.

Instead of working to protect the workers from the terrible assaults being made upon them under the Dawes plan, the social-democratic party is devoting all its energies to violent warfare upon the revolutionary workers and the Communists seeking thus to conceal their own corruption and treachery to the working class which is being so startlingly brot to light in the trial of the international swindler, Barmat, in which all the leading lights of the social-democratic party are involved.

In an article appearing in the Rote Fahne, Ruth Fischer, leader of the Communist reichstag fraction, declares that the time has come to transfer the question of the eight-hour day from parliament to the shops.

All over Germany the workers are taking the fight for the eight-hour day into their hands. Harbor workers in a number of ports are carrying on a determined fight for this principle, as well as for wage increases proportionate to the steadily rising cost of living.

Apart from the question of the terrible overexertion to which the underfed workers are being subjected to by the excessive hours of work, the eight-hour day is an imperative necessity owing to the fact that several thousand harbor workers are now unemployed.

In this connection it is interesting to note that the dock-yard bosses recently received a subsidy of 50,000,000 gold marks from the state treasury, ostensibly for the prevention of unemployment and the protection of the unemployed. Despite this fact unemployment is steadily on the increase and it is hardly necessary to add that the bosses are not wasting any of the money on the unemployed.

Harbor Workers' Agreement

HAMBURG—The harbor workers of the ports of Hamburg, Bremen and Emden are carrying on an energetic fight for a new working agreement the fishers of the whole north-east coast of Germany joining them in the struggle. The chief point at issue is the re-establishment of the eight-hour day. At a conference of harbor and dockyard workers the following demands were made: the re-establishment of the eight-hour day, and rejection of all overtime work; a 50 per cent wage increase; bringing the wages of non-skilled closer to those of skilled workers; abolition of the present regulations in regard to sailors. In addition, the conference sent out an order to workers to quit work after the eighth hour.

The men have unanimously rejected the wage increase of 6 marks to 6.50 marks an hour fixed by the arbitrator, in favor of their demand of a 50 per cent increase.

Negotiations between the Stettin harbor workers and employers have been broken off because of the latters' refusal to comply with the men's demands in regard to working hours.

Communists' Trial.

HAMBURG—The trial of eight Communist leaders of the Hamburg insurrection of October, 1923, has just come to an end. In a speech, that will remain a Communist classic, the principal defendant, Comrade Uhrbans, gave a remarkable survey of the conditions leading up to the insurrection, proving conclusively that it was not a "putsch" engineered by the Communists, but a spontaneous revolt on the part of the workers against their intolerable exploitation at the hands of German capitalism in which the workers naturally turned to the Communists for leadership For having "prepared a conspiracy involving high treason," Uhrbans was condemned to 10 years imprisonment and a fine of a 1,000 marks; and the other comrades to sentences ranging from two and a half to six years.

CHINA

SHANGHAI—In the Shanghai district 30,000 cotton-mill workers are on strike against their merciless exploitation by the Japanese capitalists who own the mills. The strike is daily assuming a more serious character, and there have already been a number of clashes between the workers and the police in which many workers were wounded.

Yada, the Japanese consul, is trying to whitewash his bosses by accusing the Kuomintang (Sun Yat Sen's party), and the Communists of having provoked the strike.

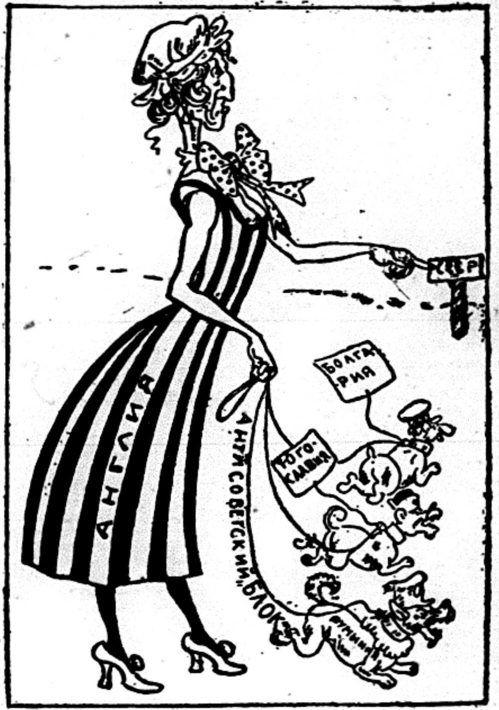
Britannia and Her Poodles



The Anti-Soviet Block.

GREAT BRITAIN

LONDON—The pressure of the Minority (left wing) Movement in the English trade unions and its wide propaganda for a united wage struggle of miners, metal workers and railwaymen is showing very definite results. The Miners' Federation of Great Britain has sent a proposal to the National Union of Railwaymen, the Transport Workers' Federation and the Amalgamated Union of Engineers asking for a new alliance between these organizations, the most powerful unions in Great Britain. The former alliance existing between miners, railworkers and other transport workers was practically dissolved after the great betrayal of "Black Friday" in 1921, when the labor bureaucrats of the transport unions refused to call a strike in support of the miners.

Lanarkshire Miners' Strike.

GLASGOW.—The Lanarkshire miners are making an organized fight for the resumption of the 5-day working week. About 30 collieries have already stopped work, and union pickets are on duty at all those remaining open.

The union secretary declared that the miners would continue striking work after the fifth day until the five-day week became the general practice. Another official said that there were over 4,000 miners unemployed in the county of Lanarkshire, and he believed that the adoption of the five-day week would lead to these men finding occupation.

The mine-owners are replying to these tactics on the part of the workers by numerous lock-outs, but the miners are persisting and believe that they will win out.

Northumberland Miners.

LONDON — The Northumberland miners have formulated a number of demands to form a basis for the new national agreement between the Miners' Federation of Great Britain and the mine-owners that will take the place of the present one when it expires next July.

Special attention is paid to the question of giving the workers a voice in the mine management, and to the exclusive employment of union labor. In the former connection, the miners demand that the new national agreement shall provide for the constitution of joint pit committees, district committees and national board, "so as to give the workers thru their representatives a voice in the direction of the mine, the sale and delivery of coal and other mine products, and in questions affecting the coal industry as a whole."

The following are the principal wage demands: That the 1914 rate of wages be increased from time to time by the percentage increase in the cost of living over 1914; that a subsistence wage be established for adult piece-workers, to be not less than 2 shillings a day over that provided for day-wage men; that all departments at present excluded, such as by-product works, etc. (which are highly profitable) shall be included when ascertaining the working results with a view to fixing wage rates; and that owners' costs in compensation cases and the cost of health and unemployment insurance shall be excluded from "other costs" and not charged against the industry for wage purposes.

In regard to shut-downs the miners demand that before any colliery owner closes down temporarily any pit, he must receive the consent of a committee representing owners and workers, and this consent shall be given only after that committee has investigated the financial position of the mine, and has found that such closing is an economic necessity.

AUSTRALIA

MELBOURNE—After a struggle which has lasted for many weeks the Australian Dockers' Federation has won a complete victory, forcing the ship-owners to cease from employing any but union labor. The victory of these dockers and longshoremen is due to the remarkable solidarity displayed by the workers, during the strike. The 49 unions affiliated with the federation all obeyed the strike order, and in a number of ports shipping was completely paralyzed.

The strike was called because of the attempt of the ship-owners to establish overseas bureaus to recruit scabs in order to break up the federation. The strike became a leading question in the Australian parliament, and Prime Minister Bruce did everything in his power to aid the ship-owners in breaking the resistance of the men.

The capitalist press of Australia New Zealand and Tasmania, which carried on violent propaganda against the strikers, is commenting bitterly on the fact that the upholders of direct action have been strong enough to break the combined resistance of the ship-owners and the state.

How Much Longer Will They Stand It?

By SINBAD.

An incident which aroused some comment in the correspondence section of the Shanghai newspapers has various aspects which make it necessarily of interest to these chronicles.

A foreign woman was crossing Honan Road at the wrong time, i. e., when traffic was not proceeding along the same road. A cyclist (Chinese) was propelling himself along the thorofare when he collided with the lady and they were all precipitated to the pavement. A tall heavy foreigner seeing the accident came running over and not taking into consideration the fact that the entire blame rested on the woman used what is known in ring colloqualism as an uppercut and felled the poor Chinese to the ground after he had gotten up from his first fall and was offering his most ardent apologies to the lady. The foreigner was dressed in the uniform of a member of the S. V. C (Shanghai Volunteer Corps.) The lady threw a smile to her chivalrous (?)knight, hailed a ricksha and rode away. The Chinese was picked up by some of the sympathazing onlookers (Chinese) a bleeding mess and wended his way rather dizzily home (some hovel most probably which he knew as home).

It resembles the Middle Ages when some gallant knight ran an unoffending peasant thru the heart with his rapier because the wheel of his lady's carriage had brushed against him and received a gracious smile from her as a reward.

A brief glimpse into the conditions or rather into the details of domineering foreign oppressions of the ricksha coolies is necessary to the person who is interested in the condition of the coolie classes in China. He (a ricksha coolie) resembles a horse or is treated like a dog by the foreigner in China.

It is a widely known fact that the duration of the life of one of these slaves is comparatively short after the commencement of the slow killing occupation, ricksha pulling. The reason can be stated in a few words The strain on the heart, lungs, in fact the entire body is so great as to cause death anywhere from 2 months to 8 years after the beginning of the pulling.

When I was living on Rue de l'Observatoire in the French concession there was a French woman living in the adjoining house. She would make it a habit to go from Bubbling Well Road near the Olympic Theater up to her home, a distance of about 2½ miles. She would get off the ricksha and give the coolie about seven or eight coppers and between two of the coppers she would leave a piece of white paper. Then she would go inside and lock the gate. The coolie by this time having noticed the mistake (?) began to holler and shake the gate, all to no avail. In time he would go away. We witnessed the same thing quite often.

The following was related to me by a friend who came into the house one day well wrought up with furious indignation:

A big heavy Englishman had gotten off a ricksha and an argument had ensued between the coolie and himself as to the payment for the services rendered. The Englishman had cheated the coolie. That was evident because the coolie would not have dared risk the probable blow if he had had no grounds for his claims. The inevitable happened. The bleeding coolie raised himself rather groggily from the ground and received another blow. He again fell and once more rose. The former cossack now hired by the French authorities to keep law and order in the French concession came running over and gave the coolie a kick and a not over gentle prod with has baton and then took him away from the immediate vicinity and as a farewell administered another kick. This transpired on Route Voyron, a street adjoining Koukaza Gardens.

Events such as these are occuring every day. A German friend of mine declared quite proudly that he was in court almost every other day as the result of fighting with ricksha coolies which brings us to the attitude of the court towards happenings of this nature.

I was a witness once in a case when an American school boy, an acquaintance of mine, had beaten one of these poor slaves until he had smashed the coolie's nose and had knocked three of his teeth out of his head. The sergeant after hearing the case laughed sardonically and made the following statement. "Well since you yourself have already administered corporal punishment I will fine the coolie fifty cents and take away his license and dismiss him." So it was done and nobody heard anything more of the matter. The attitude of the court in such matters is clearly defined by the above example.

And in closing this brief glimpse into the situation I have one more remark to offer. In almost all the cases the coolie takes the beating or cheating as it was in the first case, as if the foreigner had the divine right to beat the coolie without retaliation. The fire is only smoldering but when it suddenly flares forth into the darkness . . . Foreigner beware!!

Help Wanted!

By ASSAD.

IT is well known that in New York most of the workers looking for a job have to look for it in the columns of The World, and anybody who, like me, has been unfortunate enough to be on the search for a long time, or for periods of time running through the most prosperous years of the war, and the industrial depressions that followed it, will readily understand, only by looking in the help wanted columns.

IN order to find out how the industrial situation is, and my chances to find a master, I have only to look in the help wanted pages, not columns, nor ads, mind you. There was a time when you needed every bit of an hour or more to look thru the ads in this department. There were even times when two sections had to be reserved in many papers for this particular matter.

What is the situation for the last three or four years?

1. There is hardly a page or two of "help wanted" in any morning or evening paper.

2. Most of the ads in this one or two pages mean nothing to the workers. (a) Fake schools, ads calling for help to learn a trade, (mind you, help for the school), (b) Agencies help, extorting enormous prices after discrimination for jobs that most of the time you'll lose as soon as you got thru paying your fee. (c) Stock or other kind of selling, that even very well trained salesmen are unable to perform, sometimes losing your time, besides so many carfares taken out of your lunch or dinner money. (d) Of the remaining ads to the great majority you have to write telling them your whole history and 99 times out of a 100 you don't hear from them, there also you have to stand some expense, stationery, postage, etc.

3. Now come the jobs that you can apply for personally. They are so very few that you have to look for them with a microscope. And conditions, wages and hours are enough to let anybody with any common sense understand where we are. Here is a typical one taken from The World: Young men, 18 and over, factory work; department; $14.00 to start, advancement; references, etc. And this one is not the worst; taken at random. Here is another one from the same paper: young men, 18 and over, factory work; 34c an hour; 53 hour week, etc.

SOME people might think that nobody would apply for this job You'll be surprised how many people of all ages apply for every one of these jobs. I have seen as many as 100 to 150 answer where one was needed.

Since the election, it seems to me things have gone from bad to worse we got Coolidge and "prosperity," Dawes and the open shop.

Let us join the unions, and let us try to make them powerful industrial unions.

LET us unite under the banner of the only organization that fights only for the workers; the Workers (Communist) Party.

Let us unite to hasten the day, when all this misery of job hunting, unemployment and poverty will be a thing of the past.

How We Live and Work

Editor's Note:—This paper is printed for the workers, poor farmers and those who work and sweat under the present system of society. It is a paper of the workers, by the workers and for the workers. We want to reach every corner of this country where labor is being exploited for private gains, for profit. We want the workers and farmers all over the country to read the DAILY WORKER. In order to make it more interesting and be able better to reflect the life of the wide laboring masses, WE WANT OUR READERS TO WRITE TO US. This new department "HOW WE LIVE AND WORK" will appear as often as there will be sufficient letters from our readers about the life and working conditions under which our masses struggle. Try to make the letters interesting bringing out facts which may not be known to workers in other sections of the country. Try to make them short and to the point.

Communist Killed in San Pedro.

To the DAILY WORKER: It has been well said that a period of "peaceful" capitalist production will kill and maim as many workers as a capitalist war. Every day we read of violent deaths of workingmen in the mines, on the railroads, and on the wharves. The greed of the ruling class for profits, the feverish speed up system, the repression of organization, are responsible for the majority of these casualties.

San Pedro is notorious for industrial accidents and San Pedro is also notorious as a town where organization of the waterfront workers into unions is severely stamped out. As a result of lack of organization, the bosses can practically do as they please with the men who work on the wharves. In this port no known union man can get a job.

All applicants for work on the docks have to undergo the scouting and the survey of the slave market dicks, or "fink hall," as it is called locally—a bosses' institution which looks into a man's past history.

Victim of Bosses' Greed.

These fact are strongly brot out by the death of our comrade, Ulrich Grill, who, while working on the steamship, Steel Trader, discharging steel beams, fell into the hold, a depth of forty feet, fracturing his skull. He was taken to the hospital in Los Angeles and died four days later, never regaining consciousness.

Comrade Grill was for many years connected with the working class movement, having been a former member of the socialist party. Six months ago he joined the San Pedro branch of the Workers (Communist) Party.

Comrade Grill's loss is much regretted by all the comrades here, knowing as they do that the responsibility for his death must be laid to the present economic system.—J. Stevenson, secretary, San Pedro branch, Workers Party.

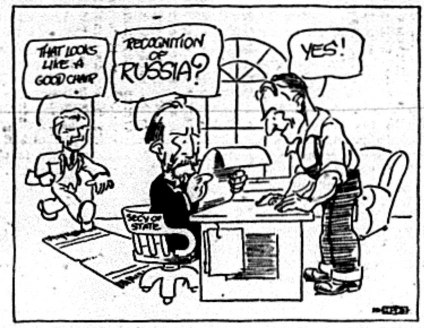
The Workers Monthly—A Review

By WALT CARMON.

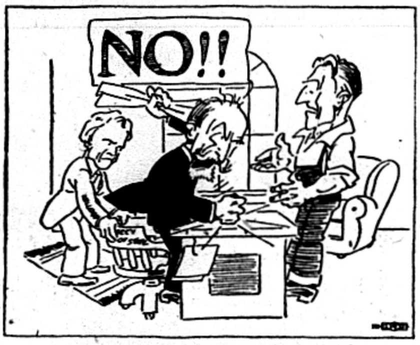
THE great success of the Workers Monthly from its very beginning five months ago is a measure as to how well it has served as the expression of the militants in the Workers (Communist) Party and the Trade Union Educational League whose official organ it is.

The March issue is sure to gain further favor. A striking cover by a new revolutionary artist well expresses the struggle pictured in the contents of the magazine that reflect the American and world advance of labor. Led by a report of Wm. Z. Foster on the recently held Unity Conference in England, at which the author was present and giving a picture of the forces playing in the wave of support for the minority movement that threatens the old leadership of British labor, the issue contains articles on the American struggles of the miners, clothing workers and carpenters, illustrated with photographs of the militants the battles have thrown to the forefront. There is inspiration for every worker in these well pictured struggles.



THAT LOOKS LIKE A GOOD CHAIR
RECOGNITION OF RUSSIA?
YES!
SEC'Y OF STATE

Charlie Had a Very Comfortable and Dignified Seat.

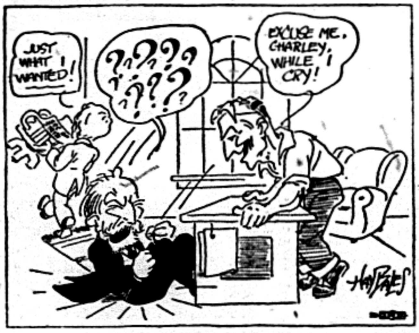


But He Got Up to Show His Authority.

In the article "The Communists Take the Lead in Minnesota" by C. A. Hathaway, you will find a characteristic picture of the struggle that is assuming shape in every unit of organized labor in this country.

As the organ of the militants leading each battle, the Workers Monthly supplies the theoretical expression so necessary to the conduct of every step of the militant. The serial publication of the Communist classic "The History of the Russian Communist Party" by Gregory Zinoviev, president of the Communist International, has attracted well merited interest and attention. The installment in this issue of the Workers Monthly, on the struggle between Populism and Marxism in the Russian Communist Party, is of particular historical and theoretical interest.

The contribution of Lenin to Marxism in the article "Lenin and the New Wave of Marxism" by Manuel Gomez, adds weight to a splendidly balanced issue which includes also on this side of the ledger, the article of keen political analysis by Alexander Bittelman and one of thoro analysis by Earl R. Browder—all crammed full of facts and each one enuf to make the issue outstanding.



JUST WHAT I WANTED!

EXCUSE ME, CHARLEY, WHILE I CRY!

And When He Sat Down!
(Cartoons from March issue of Workers Monthly.)

The article by Wm. F. Dunne "Negroes in American Industry," is not only a splendidly written one but contributes in great measure to an understanding of the problem of one-twelfth of the total population of this country. Harrison George's article on "The Prison Story of the Wobblies" has both color and pertinent observation on a once great militant organization. A pleasant addition is the greater number of photographs and cartoons that brighten up everyone of the 48 interesting pages; a double-page centerpiece picturing with drawing and photographs "March the Month of Revolution" and including a proclamation of the Paris Commune and a historical summary of the famous events of this month, is a credit to the editing of the issue.

To everyone who reads this number, the reviewer hastens to bring to their attention a few things of real beauty that are such modest space users, that they escape your attention. These are four poems by Robert L. Wolf, Jacqueline Perrault and two by Langston Hughes, whose work has appeared in previous issues. Each poem is "a thing of beauty" to such measure that they deserve repetition and reprint—and preservation by all means.

Whether you agree with this review of what in our mind is truly "the best yet" issue of the Workers Monthly or not, we prophecy that you will read to all your friends (and memorise perhaps) that splendid bit by Jim Waters, "An Administration Delegate Reports," on page 205, and "wax enthusiastic" as the reviewer has done. We are going to pester the editors of the DAILY WORKER until they reprint this gem by Jim Waters.

This, in brief is the March issue of the Workers Monthly—an issue of facts and theory, photographs and cartoons, poetry and humor—and the stuff that will send a thrill of pride down your spine and make you a more informed and better fighter for your class.

construction of the Communist parties of other countries.

It would be as well to point out yet another difference between the Russian Communist Party (formerly the Russian Social-Democratic Labor Party—Bolshevik) and the Communist parties of Europe and America, altho this difference has perhaps no direct relation with party construction.

BECAUSE of its 20 years illegal existence the Russian Communist Party produced a type of professional revolutionaries—"The Lenin Guard," which has gone thru "the ordeal of fire, etc." The members of this Lenin Guard have gained great experience in the building up of party organizations dependent on political conditions.

This experience was lacking in the former members of the social-democratic parties of Europe. It is for this reason that our brother Communist parties find it so difficult to adapt their party organizations to the illegal conditions which have been forced on them by their bourgeoisie.

Nearly all the Communist parties thruout the world were formed between 1918 and 1920 from the left elements of the social democratic parties (and the French and Czech Communist parties formed from the majority of the French and Czech socialist parties). Altho the Communist parties aim at the conquest of power by the working class and at the organization of production on a Communist basis, they have taken over, by social-democratic force of habit, the old social democratic organizational forms of building up party organizations. This being so, they have been unable to form strong party organizations of the right type and to get into contact with the factories and workshops.

THE ideological influence exercised by the Communist parties of Western Europe over the working class was enormous; at the time of the Hungarian Soviet Republic, Austrian workers organized in Vienna enormous demonstrations before the premises of the central committee of the Austrian Communist Party, suggesting to the latter to become the leader of the mass movement.

The seizure of factories in Italy in the year 1920 would have taken a different turn if the Italian Communist Party had had a proper and adequate leadership, and finally, if the Communist Party of Germany had had for its basis the factories and work shops, the German October events in 1923 would have had better results, not only for the German but also for the international proletariat.

THE old social-democratic organizational methods in building up party organization did not give our brother Communist parties an opportunity to consolidate organizationally their ideological influence over the masses. The above statements are not mere theorizing, but are based on numerous facts of which the organization department of the E. C. C. I. has the documentary proof.

CHICAGO REJECTS ABRAMOVICH

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

EVIDENTLY the Italian workers, who were led into a phantom utopia by the promises of fascism a few years ago, are coming to their senses. There are big strikes in Italy, in the heart of the industrial section of that country. The so-called fascist unions are co-operating with the non-fascist unions. 100,000 workers have downed tools. They are not peacefully inclined. They do not spurn violence as something unethical. That is one lesson that the fascisti have not untaught them.

THE employers are angry. "You are biting the hand that fed you," is what they are saying to the fascisti leaders. Signor Federezoni, acting head of the fascisti government (Mussolini is said to be dying), has called a meeting of employers. He tells them that they must compromise in order to save the fascist regime. Just as the president of the United States would call the coal operators or the rail magnates together and advise them to surrender a little to the strikers until after the election. The slack could be pulled in later.

BIG events are destined to take place in Italy soon. Fascism does not feed the hungry stomach of the worker. Fine phrases about the glory of Italy do not magically resolve the class struggle into nothingness. The old battle remains, the battle between the exploiter and the exploited for the difference between the pay envelope and what goes into the employers' jeans. The dictatorship of the bourgeoisie in Italy, under the leadership of the fascisti, is doomed to failure. It is collapsing. The dictatorship of the workers and peasants in Russia under the leadership of the Communists is destined to succeed. It is succeeding.

THE capitalists are only a small minority of society. While the great masses were inflicted with the slave mind, ruling the many by the few was an easy task. But capitalism, besides developing the machinery of production, also developed the minds of the workers. Education of a sort was necessary if the complicated machinery of production was to be managed. The workers learned to read. They read more than the capitalists bargained for. But all their knowledge did not come from reading. Most of it came thru experience in the daily struggle for bread.

THE workers are fast losing that feeling of inferiority. They have seen the Russian workers and peasants throwing off one of the most powerful and oldest tyrannies in the world. They see them slowly but surely marching onward to a greater degree of comfort, gained thru their own efforts. They have seen them defeat a world in arms. It has a cheering effect on the morale of the workers of other countries. The socially useless minority can no longer convince the workers that but for their brains and generalship the industrial machine would go to smash.

THE black dictatorship in Italy is going to smash. But it is not likely that it will go without a struggle. When the workers come into power there and establish their dictatorship, many of those allegedly "progressive" people who now attack the fascisti because they have trampled on the rights of free speech and free press, will turn their guns on the dictatorship of the proletariat of Italy as they have on the government of Soviet Russia.

ONE would think by reading the effusions of the liberals and the hypocritical yellow socialists, that the

TODAY SEES OPENING OF THE SECOND ANNUAL "BUILD THE DAILY WORKER SUB CAMPAIGN"

One year ago, the American revolutionary labor movement, smaller then, weaker, less experienced—gave its energy to better establish it, new born champion—the DAILY WORKER. It built to the best of its ability, adding six thousand new subscribers to the only English Communist daily newspaper in the world, to better fight it's battles, to be the standard bearer of the growing, militant left wing in every step of it's progress in the year to come.

How Well the Workers Built—

can be attested by the great service the DAILY WORKER had given in every struggle for the working class in the year just passed. No battle of the American workers proved too small for the DAILY WORKER to champion—no struggle so large the DAILY WORKER would not dare to enter.

All this aid to the American workers was rendered by a militant newspaper that was all this time struggling to grow, to gain strength and life—and oftimes giving most of it's energy to fight for existence alone!

That fight is over! The successful campaign for funds has insured the existence of the DAILY WORKER for the coming year—but it has insured it's existence alone!

In the Year to Come—the DAILY WORKER must grow! The puny youngster of yesterday, is the youth of today. The DAILY WORKER fed with the life-giving strength of thousands of new subscribers will be the giant of tomorrow! Only with ITS strength will come the strength of the Communist movement in this country. The revolutionary movement today will grow—only with the growth of the DAILY WORKER.

You—Militant Labor!

Your field for action is the field that will bring most to revolutionary labor. "Build the DAILY WORKER," in this campaign to be your greater standard bearer in the future. Make it stronger, and it will fight your battle better in the days to come—until the day! The eyes of the world revolutionary labor will watch you!

GROWING POWER OF PROGRESSIVES ANGERS FAKERS

Renegade Socialists in Control at Bellaire

By MAX SALZMAN.

BELLAIRE, Ohio, March 15.—The ever growing power of the progressives in sub-district 5, District 6 of the United Mine Workers of America, has had the same effect on the officials of the Ohio miners' union as a red rag on a bull.

Never in the history of this sub-district has these been such a well-oiled machine, bent on putting out of the miners' union, its most militant membership, because it gave opposition to the renegade socialist, reactionary leadership.

From the opening of the convention, every speech made was a direct attack on the progressives. From the report of Frank Ledvinka sub-district president, former yellow socialist.

JOHNSTONE EXPOSES CARPENTERS' UNION SECRETARY'S LETTER

So widespread has become the revolt of the rank and file of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, that the fakers of the general administration are being pressed to the wall. Proof of this exists in the circular letter, forced out of Frank Duffy, general secretary in the Hutcheson machine, now being sent to scores of locals and district councils which have joined in the protest at the outrageous expulsion policy against the members of the T. U. E. L. and all other progressive carpenters.

The Duffy letter tries in great detail to "explain away" the inexcusable autocracy of the Hutcheson policy, and advances the hoary lie about the T. U. E. L. being a "dual union," and numerous other fabrications designed to cover up the iniquity of each case of an expelled member.

The DAILY WORKER, in its Trade Union Educational League section, beginning Tuesday, will run a short series of articles by J. W. Johnstone, assistant secretary of the Trade Union Educational League, answering the various items of the Duffy diatribe, and exposing that liar for what he is.

NEW YORK, March 15.—It was a man by the name of Sullivan, the not of the firm of Gilbert and Sullivan, who framed the statute making it a violation of section 1897 of the penal code, of the state of New York for an alien to carry arms. Sullivan was not a pacifist, but he was particular as to who should carry the artillery.

Sullivan being dead, the DAILY WORKER reporter was unable to get his views on whether he had intended that antique iron-ware, antedeluvian cutlery, or pre-Volstead steins came under his conception of lethal weapons. Anyhow, three members of the Workers Party are under arrest charged with planning to overthrow the government of the United States.

MINERS' CHIEF AGREES WITH COAL BARONS

So Does U. S. Department of Commerce

With President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers of America and the United States department of commerce substantiating their contention that the bituminous coal industry is badly in need of relief the coal barons who meet tomorrow in Cleveland to consider ways and means of breaking the Jacksonville agreement, have everything and everybody on their side except the rank and file of the miners' union and the progressives led by the Trade Union Educational League.

Condition of semi-collapse exists in the bituminous coal industry, according to the department of commerce, which made public surveys covering all the fields of the country.

A Sorrowful Tale

The industry is over manned and over produced, according to the government surveyors, and the mild weather in February further contributed to the decline that is generally noticeable thru the entire industry.

Remedial measures will be discussed next week at Cleveland where operators of the central competitive field are to meet.

Among the most pessimistic reports were from the Illinois and Indiana fields. In the former state mine operation for February was described as amounting to a collapse as compared with January. Demand, output and price decline with apparently no better prospects for this month.

Non-Union And Union

In the Indiana district operators complained that "coal is being sold in abundance from non-union fields at prices which cannot be approximated in the union fields." The non-union fields were said to be still making further reductions in an effort to capture the market.

This agrees with the position of the coal operators. Now, let us hear from John L. Lewis.

FORT-WHITEMAN REPLIES TO LIES OF MACKENZIE

Tells What He Saw in Workers' Republic

Editor's Note—Lovett Fort-Whiteman, who writes of the Mackenzie lecture, is one of the contributing editors of the Chicago Defender, and a well-known Negro writer and lecturer who has just returned from an eight months' trip that took him to every section of the union of socialist Soviet Republics.

As a member of the Negro race, active in the work of combatting the oppression of his race in the United States, Lovett Fort-Whiteman went to Russia to study the methods by which the race problem has been solved by the Soviet government. He saw many other things as well and he saw them from an entirely different angle than did he capitalist newspaper correspondent Mackenzie.

By LOVETT FORT-WHITEMAN.

Frederick A. Mackenzie, correspondent of the Chicago Daily News, in his much-advertised lecture given on Friday evening at Orchestra Hall, proved to his own complete satisfaction that the dictatorship of the proletariat, as applied in Russia today, is a bad thing.

It is bad for the hundreds of big and petty capitalists, of Russia, who

DAWES PLAN TRIES TO FORCE RAILWAY CLERKS TO SCAB ON STRIKERS

BERLIN, March 13—(Delayed).—The strike on the German railways became more widespread today when the Dawes' plan management tried to force the clerical workers to scab on the freight handlers.

At once these clerical workers walked out on strike, and the shop committee movement led by Communists succeeded, in spite of the efforts of the yellow social democratic union officials to prevent the walkout, to tie up all departments in the Berlin freight houses.

TO ANSWER LIES OF ANTI-SOVIET SPIES MARCH 29

Forte-Whiteman, Dunne and Minor to Speak

An eleventh hour campaign to halt the recognition of Soviet Russia by the United States is now in progress on a dozen fronts. The out and out reactionary papers and magazines, such as the Chicago Tribune and the Saturday Evening Post, hardly ever skip an issue without full measure of attack against the workers' and peasants' republic.

The campaign of the socialist, Raphael Abramovich is well known to the workers, and is being answered everywhere as it deserves. Instead of creating sentiment against the Russian Communists he is the means of raising favorable issues in the trade unions and Jewish fraternal organizations and of crystallizing dormant sympathy into militant action in defense of Soviet Russia.

McKenzie Suppresses Facts

A more subtle attack is that of pseudo liberals who pose as friends of the Russian revolution and then proceed, from comfortable pulpits and rostrums, to tell the Bolsheviks how a revolution ought to be run. Thus F. A. McKenzie, correspondent for the Chicago Daily News, gives "fair" accounts of Russian political prisoners, while suppressing the fact that the International Red Aid has offered to arrange an exchange of all such political offenders for working class leaders held by the capitalist governments of other countries.

In a moment of unguarded frankness Mr. McKenzie admitted that the Cook county jail, famed scene of the Red raids of 1919, was much worse than the Russian prisons, both in physical and recreational facilities. Such facts, however, are distasteful to the Greenwich Village anarchists whose worship of the forms of bourgeois democracy makes them view the safety measures of a proletarian revolutionary government in the same light as the atrocities of the fascist and social-reformist defenders of capitalism.

While nominally in favor of Soviet Russia their emphasis upon the "unfairness" of imprisoning counter-revolutionists gives the most reactionary elements in this country a last fig-leaf excuse for delaying recognition and trade. Thus in America also, the liberal and the progressive give invaluable service to the old order while voicing the phraseology of the new. Anti-revolutionary service from the liberal pulpit or from the reformist cabinet is a difference only in degree, and not in kind.

WORKERS FILL STREET SINGING 'INTERNATIONAL'

Dunne Addresses An Open Air Meeting

The batte of the Garrick theater, on Chicago's rialto, will go down as another struggle between the working class and the counter-revolutionary socialist Second International, in which the proletariat emerged victorious, with heads bloody but unbowed, as a result of Rafael Abrámovich's attempt to slander the name of Soviet Russia before an audience. But it was only an attempt.

In the greatest demonstration staged in Chicago for many years the workers, gathering in thousands outside the theater, filled the streets for blocks around, cheering Soviet Russia and refused to yield to repeated charges of police who rushed to the scene by request of the socialists with auto loads of rifles.

Instead the workers stood their ground, tho beaten with clubs indiscriminately used on men and women, while "Bill" Dunne, editor of the DAILY WORKER, and member of the central executive committee of the Workers (Communist) Party, spoke to cheering thousands that packed the streets from curb to curb.

Inside the theater, pandemonium reigned among the thousand or so in the audience, only one-fifth of whom seemed actively sympathetic to the counter-revolutionary murderer of the Russian workers, while many hundreds were just as actively raising opposition to his lies.

"Heroes" Attack Women.

Literally scores of workers, particularly women and girls, were brutally assaulted by black jacks in the hands of the brave "heroes" of the socialist party, who dared not to speak, let alone to answer, the challenges of the men.

At the hour of going to press the DAILY WORKER learns that the following were among those arrested after being atrociously beaten by the socialists and the police: Max Lerner, Katherine O'Flaherty and Maurice Chilofsky. The names of the others

GERMAN POLICE MURDER 7 REDS AT HALLE MEET

Ten Thousand Workers Ordered to Disperse

HALLE, Germany, March 15.—Seven Communists were murdered here by Prussian police, seven others are dying and thirty-seven were severely wounded when the police fired into an audience of ten thousand Communists listening to speeches of Comrade Ernest Thalmann, Communist candidate for president, and other Communists.

The police, under orders from their chief, the conservative Prussian minister of the interior, whose party is exerting desperate efforts to retain control of the Prussian parliament, fired into the densely packed crowd. Two women were among those shot down by the police.

The police fired following the speech of Comrade Thalmann, while French and English Communists were about to speak. The police ordered the foreign Communists not to talk, but they refused, insisting on their right to free speech. The police, without warning, drew their revolvers and fired. Five men and two women were killed. At least four policemen were severely injured in the battle that ensued.

A check-up of casualties indicated that the total list of injured will run above 100.

METAL WORKERS' STRIKE SPREADS THRUOUT ITALY

Fascist Workers Defy Leaders and Aid Reds

ROME, Italy, March 15.—One hundred thousand metal workers are now on strike in northern Italy. The socialist confederation of labor has joined forces with the members of the fascisti labor unions, and the Communists are everywhere taking a leading part in the strike.

In the same zone where the Communists fought the fascisti for possession of the automobile, radiator, typewriter and other Milan and Turin factories, two years ago, the fascisti union workers and Communists are fighting side by side against the metal manufacturers.

Ultimatum to Bosses.

The unions have given the employers' association notice that a settlement must be effected within twenty-four hours. The leaders of the fascist party, who came into power by forming an alliance with the employers, have been forced by the rank and file fascist union workers to break the alliance, at least in appearances. Deputy Farinacci, secretary general of the fascist party has been forced to issue a statement indorsing the strike.

Minister of the Interior Federsoni is making frantic efforts to save the employers and end the strike. He has called a meeting of the employers, to ask what concession the manufacturers are willing to make to send the men back to work. The employers are exerting pressure on the fascist leaders, pointing out that they have made the fascist regime possible by their support.

The strikers themselves are in no compromising mood, however. The fascist workers, the Communists, and all the trade unions are co-operating in the first great strike since fascist rule began. The strikers demand an increase in wages, to keep pace with the increased cost of living. Several of the independent manufacturers have given in to the demands of the strikers, but the manufacturers' association has made no move to settle with the hundred thousand employes still out.

Whether the fascist leaders like it or not, thousands of the rank and file are working under the leadership of the Communists in the strike, and are already talking of taking control of the industries.

The strike was started ten days ago in Brescia by the labor unions.

Junior Group Leaders Meet Tuesday Night

A very important meeting of all the group leaders of the Juniors will be held Tuesday, March 17th at 8 P. M. at Comrade Borgeson's home, 321 North Avers Ave.

This is a special meeting of the Junior Leaders where the work of the Juniors will be thoroughly discussed. The matter of the complete reorganization of the Junior Groups into school nuclei, the Parants' Councils, the educational activities, the summer camp and the securing of more leaders for the groups will be discussed at this meeting.

There will also be present comrades from the city executive and from the national committe in order to effect a closer co-operation between the committees so that the work can go forward at an even greater speed among our Communist Children's groups.

BRITISH RAIL UNION HEAD LAUDS PROGRESS OF RUSSIAN TRANSPORT

MOSCOW, Feb. 15.—(By Mail)—Fred Bromley, the secretary of the British trade union delegation which recently visited the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, has sent a lengthy letter to the people's commissariat of ways and communication, in which, in the name of the delegation, he favorably comments on all the progress in railway transport in the Union witnessed by the English delegates.

oily charm. As you may remember, these instructions were, that the revolutionists should organize in groups of ten. This did not look so good to Gegan, but he pulled a copy of "Hot Dog" out of his pocket and discovered that farther down Zinoviev had instructed the ten to elect a sub-committee of three to do the dirty work, which perhaps consisted of such soul-tickling diversion as boiling the enemy in oil, disemboweling him or if he is a member of the ku klux klan making him take a drink of liquor from a catholic bartender.

Saved the Country.

"I've got it," shouted Gegan, to the raiding army. "I have saved the country again. Get out of the way until I get pictures taken, surrounded by the conquered foe, his artillery and carving instruments. I hate like the devil to get my picture in the papers, but I've got to hold my job and do my duty."

Every embattled dick seized a gun as the photographers began to click their cameras and the news hounds began to grind out the horrible details of the planned overthrow.

Finally it occurred to a reporter to ask one of the grinning culprits when the bloody event was going to start. When he learned that it was on the seventeenth of March, he said, "Aren't you sure your name is not Roderick Kennedy of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, who is one of the principal cavalry men in the parade up Fifth avenue, which will be led by Al Smith?" He turned to the detectives and said, "Gegan, if you have made a mistake, it will cost you your job."

It was authoritatively learned, however, that the prehistoric swords and antique rifles were being used in preparation for a pageant depicting the Paris Commune which will take place today in Madison Square Garden.

Dicks Got Publicity.

The newspaper reporters thot it was a publicity stunt, but the detectives did not care. They would come in for their share of it anyhow.

Be it as it may, three members of the Workers Party were taken to police headquarters. They are Henry Winogradoff, Sol Zalon, and Aaron Dimen.

They were arrested at 17 East Third street but the heavy part of the artillery was found at Workers Party headquarters, 108 East 14th street.

The Civil Liberties Union, tho it does not believe in the use of arms on general principals, decided that it would not hold strictly to the letter of the law in this case, seeing that the guns were old and more or less useless for shooting purposes. In fact had the Communists intended to use them on an enemy it is quite likely that the guns would have kicked like any pacifist.

Plutes Indorse Dawes.

In a formal resolution the Illinois Manufacturers' Association, of which the vice-president is a member, indorsed Charles Dawes' stand in favor of limiting senate debate. Dawes' position is in line with Coolidge's policy of increasing the power of the executive office.

working because organized cloakmakers are not involved in the piecework problem. Otherwise the tie-up is complete and union heads assert that it will remain so until the jobbers put the uniform wage schedules into effect.

To Standardize Pay

In the new agreement the jobbers finally accepted responsibility for maintaining uniform minimum wage rates regardless of piece work rates in all contractors' shops. The jobbers are the wholesalers, design the garments, often cut them and send them in cut bundles to the contractors, who are actually only foremen or the jobbers and hire the workers. The Left Wing Fighting Plan

The left wing of the local won control of the offices in the last election and has maintained the position thruout negotiations that whatever agreement was signed it should be enforced. The new agreement turned out to be favorable to the workers, with average 15 per cent wage increases which the jobbers then tried to evade.

The local is also introducing a new method of organizing non-union shops is insisting that all unorganized shops be brought into the union. A rank and file committee of 300 workers volunteered to get after non-union shops. Workers from these open shops who strike to get the union agreement signed are being paid by the union to go into other non-union shops to organize.

So far the new policy has been justifying its introduction. This organization work is being carried on with increased vigor during the stoppage and is aiding the effectiveness of the stoppage a great deal.

Bosses Reluctant

The jobbers are reluctant to grant union demands and are calling for modification of schedules. They have tentatively agreed again to accept the principle of uniform wage schedules but are not yet ready to put into effect those provided in the February 2 agreement. The jobbers are temporarily benefitting from the stoppage in the increased buying up of their limited stocks by retailers who fear their Easter trade may be lost.

CAL PUSHES WAR ON WORKERS OF FOREIGN LANDS

Government Patrols Border States

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 15.—The Coolidge administration, following eight months of enforcement of the law barring foreign-born workers from entering the United States unless specially selected, is further clamping down on immigration. The government is establishing a force of inspectors in Canadian and Mexican seaports. A police force of 250 border police to "guard the country" has recently been established.

Deportations have sharply increased. In the last six months deportations were 4,448, or an increase of 30 per cent over any similar period in the history of the country.

Chicago Rejects Abramovich And Cheers for Soviets will be given as soon as ascertained.

The meeting of Abramovich adjourned in total disorder after two hours of continual but fruitless efforts to convince an audience of workers that Soviet Russia should be overthrown by the counter-revolutionary mensheviks.

At the beginning the array of force was formidable, fifty police and a crowd of "socialist" white guards blocked the entrance, turning away hundreds who looked intelligent. But despite the censors, the crowd which packed the gallery and most of the pit, were demonstratively opposed to Abramovich.

Inside, and outside as well, thousands of leaflets, exposing the Second (Socialist) International and Abramovich as enemies of the workers, literally covered the great crowd, raining down from the gallery on to the outraged petty-bourgeois business men in the boxes.

The devil of Bolshevism had laid a course upon the socialists, and even before Abramovich took the floor, the first item on the program, a violin solo, was a failure. Professor Mendel, like his friend, Professor Raphael was pursued by bad luck. Dressed in a cut-away coat, white tie, fancy waistcoat with pearl buttons and displaying spats, the violinist broke his bow, and had to wait for another.

Like Sheep to Slaughter.

When Abramovich came on, he came like a sheep to the slaughter. He tried to tell the audience that the "revolutionary" parties had control of Russia under Kerensky, and that everything was going along lovely until the interference of the awful Bolsheviks.

Similarly, everything was lovely until he attacked the Bolsheviks, then pandemonium broke loose, and continued despite the black jacks of the socialists and the clubs of the police. Once in a while, Abramovich managed to get over a few words, then another and another fifteen or twenty minutes of riot.

Women screamed as they were struck down by the socialists. Yells of these cowards mingled with the cries of the men, rushing to the protection of the frail women victims. Steadily, by ones and twos, the victims were beaten and ejected, joining the gathering throngs on the street.

Defense an Offense in Land of Fruits and Famous Frameups

SACRAMENTO, Cal.— Tom Connor, innocent victim of a jury tampering frameup, who obtained a retrial after commitment to San Quentin prison, is in Sacramento county jail again, over a week after the legal limit for the transfer expired. The California authorities are using every pretext to hold him confined beyond the time allowed by law. They are now holding him under the 60-day provision that may elapse before trial, when they might release him on bail. His offense was distributing defense leaflets by mail from San Francisco, one of which happened to fall into the hands of a man who was on the jury list for a criminal syndicalism case, but who did not serve Yet Connor was convicted of jury tampering.

Fort-Whiteman Replies to the Lies of Mackenzie

before the revolution were fattening on the toil of the millions who now rule this same country. It must be annoying for the students, sons and daughters of formerly wealthy parents, who are being taken from the universities of Russia to make room for the sons and daughters of bricklayers, printers, day laborers. It is certainly maddening for the swarms of petty bourgeois "intellectuals," who cannot or will not accept the new order, who find no market for their trash, and who cannot work. It is certain that many of the former nobility and shop keepers are in sad straits. Why not, when they have only choice of rooms, restaurants, food—when the workers have "first whack" at everything.

He Saw Liberated Labor.

I, too, was in Russia for many months. I returned only a few short weeks ago. I, too, had the advantage of extensive travel, of intimate contact with proletarians and peasants, with government heads and with factory workers. I saw, I think, more than Mr. Mackenzie, or perhaps, I tell more than Mr. Mackenzie, paid agent of the capitalists, could tell with safety to his job.

I saw the workers of the country, no longer oppressed by the curse of a working day of ten, eleven and twelve hours, enjoying for the first time in their lives leisure to think, to study, to live and to help in the creation of the new order. I saw peasants free of the fetters that a few years ago bound them as near serfs to the wealthy land owners. I saw in Moscow a student body larger than the student body of any city in the world. I saw Mohammedan women throw off the veil, and I saw former christian and Jewish women throw off the old fetters of which the Mohammedan veil is only the oriental symbol. I saw races of men—Jews, Turks, Tartars, living in perfect equality and perfect freedom, where a few years ago they knew only persecution, burning, lynching.

Wants Only One Side.

Mr. Mackenzie, no doubt, saw these things for himself. Or he may be afflicted with the same temperament as one of his chiefs, the news editor of the paper for which he writes. This editor, when approached some time ago by a woman who said that she could tell him a different story about the "Reds" in America than the one he was publishing in the Daily News, answered coolly that he "didn't care to hear about such things."

Perhaps Mr. Mackenzie doesn't care to hear about "such things," either.

Mr. Mackenzie, altho he has traveled far and wide in Russia, evidently saw nothing of the daily life of the workers and peasants—those for whom the revolution did the most. He heard how the czar had been murdered—and he dwelt long and lovingly on the details of that execution, hoping to stir the superficial emotionalism of his hearers. He saw a cross of gold replaced by a red flag. He saw the forty times forty Greek orthodox churches of the city of Moscow turned into forty times forty clubs for the workers and recreation rooms for the children, and he shuddered at the horrors and atrocities of the Bolsheviks. Even the liberals in the audience were surprised that Mr. McKenzie should take up the defense of the Russian church. Certainly there was no country whose masses were more priest-ridden, more borne down by the burden of clerical taxation, than were the masses of czarist Russia.

Mackenzie Has Poor Crowd.

Mr. Mackenzie cited to his audience Meyerhold's famous drama, "The Destruction of Europe," in which a huge tunnel is being built from Moscow to New York, the workers all the while singing the International. He told them that this is no dream, that only this year C. E. Ruthenberg, secretary of the Workers Party, speaking at a mass meeting in Madison Square Garden, in New York City, in memory of Lenin and was cheered and applauded by 16,000 people.

(It might be mentioned right here that Mr. Mackenzie had no such audience. In spite of extensive advertising, Orchestra Hall was practically empty. Many of these people broke into wild applause, but only at the mention of Lenin, Marx, Zinoviev and the leaders of the Bolshevik republic.

That the czar and his family suffered, that a few hundred of capitalists and landowners are now dispossessed, that the priesthood has fallen—all this we know. We know also that under the old regime it was not the hundreds, but the thousands and the millions who suffered, and that these millions are not suffering today.

It is their turn now.

Steel Cells for Labor, Cozy Hotel Room for Shepherd, Millionaire

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL

TODAY, William D. Shepherd, heir of the McClintock million, under the shadow of the death of young "Billy" McClintock last December, is being domiciled by the state's attorney's office in a "loop" hotel. State's Attorney Crowe is very solicitous for his millionaire prisoner.

Workers haven't much to interest them, on the surface, in this fight for a million dollars. Chief Justice Harry Olson, who claims his own brother died under mysterious circumstances, it is inferred at Shepherd's hands, is trying to prove that Shepherd inoculated young McClintock with typhoid germs, causing his death. That crime is murder. Murder has often been committed to get money. But as long ago as last December, nearly three months ago, the charges against Shepherd had gone so far that young McClintock's body was taken from its grave for an autopsy. All this time Shepherd has been allowed his freedom to go and come as he chose.

Workers are, therefore, very much interested in the fact that the prison cell that Shepherd gets, three months after serious charges are hurled at him, is a comfortable room in a fashionable "loop" hotel, for detention purposes only.

Let the workers remember Sacco and Vanzetti, thrown into prison on the flimsiest circumstantial evidence and held while a frame-up could be completed against them. They sill sit in prison in the shadow of the electric chair, altho their innocence has been established.

Let the workers remember Mooney and Billings, serving life sentence in California's state prison. They were put behind bars immediately they were picked as the chosen victims of big business. They are still in prison in spite of the fact that every legal attack upon them has been squarely met and shattered.

Let the workers remember Ford and Suhr, also victims of the ruling class of California, toilers in the hop fields of that state, thrown into prison as one means of keeping their fellows in submission.

Let the workers remember the raids on the Michigan Communist convention, in Michigan, when workers were crowded into a filthy county jail, and there held for a long period before their release could be secured on the outrageous bail demanded. Then the only crime charged against them was that they had "assembled with" each other.

It is well that the workers remember these facts, along with many others that show the workings of class justice. It cannot be brought too often to their attention. They cannot be told too often that there is one law in this country for the rich, another for the poor; one for the members of the working class, another for members of the capitalist class.

Shepherd has the million. He can hire good lawyers. It is charged that he has a private detective service in his employ. He will be well taken care of. He has committed no crime against capitalism. Instead, to get your pile is considered a laudable achievement under the present social system. Once having got it, it isn't often that the methods are questioned. Shepherd's case is a rare exception.

Shepherd is in the custody, in a "hotel room," of State's Attorney Crowe, the anti-labor prosecutor. How different when Crowe goes after the labor unions and their members. Then he has his police patrol wagons backed up to the buildings that house union offices; workers and their belongings are seized and carted off to one of the filthiest jails in the land, the "north side" prison. They are held without bail, usually incommunicado, third-degreed and a long time after, if at all, indicted and charged with some crime framed against them.

Their big crime, of course, is the class crime of organizing the workers, of building labor's power. State's Attorney Crowe is ever ready to invoke capitalist justice against workers, just as his predecessor, Maclay Hoyne, conducted the raids against the Communists in 1920, because the capitalist class feared labor's militant spokesmen.

• • • •

The Shepherd-McClintock case should help the workers understand a little better the class justice that assails them.

Capitalists are not worried o'ermuch if a few millions, more or less, fall into the wrong pockets.

But they are worried if the capitalist system of private ownership falls into the hands of the working class, to be destroyed and succeeded by the Communist society that knows no capitalists, no classes, no class justice.

It should help them to organize better to fight the capitalist system that breeds favors for the rich, persecution for the poor. It should help them resolve, and fulfill the resolve to destroy that social system.

clares that the miners are over-manned to the tune of 150,000 men which is 50,000 less than the figure given by him at the last convention. He said that numbers of miners must pick up their picks and look for jobs somewhere else. He did not say where. Lewis said the country could not afford to operate mines in such an uneconomic manner. Let the miners stave! What of it? The law of supply and demand cannot be tampered with.

No Government Interference

Lewis was asked if he favored government ownership. He answered in the negative, tho admitting that the U. M. W. of A. is on record in favor of the nationalization of coal mining, but he sneered at this position intimating that it was a dead letter as he did not believe in government interference with industry. The law of supply and demand would drive the 150,000 miners out of the industry and close down the poor mines.

Asked why the law of supply and demand had not accomplished this already, the brilliant bonehead declared it never had a chance owing to strikes and other "unnatural" causes. The theory behind the three year contract, agreed to at Jacksonville was, according to Lewis that a long term pact would enable the big coal companies to drive the small fellows out of business and also the 200,000 surplus miners who were earning their living digging coal but were an eyesore to Lewis and the bosses.

An Inside Agent

Lewis declared that in a few years power would be produced at the pit mouth, which would eliminate the cost of haulage and no doubt a few more hundred thousand miners. It never occurred to him that the miners had any right to the earth, out of whose bowels they dug the fuel that keeps the wheels of industry moving. He did not say how many mines he owns, but no doubt when the rank and file of the U. M. W. of A. gives him his walking papers, he will blossom out as did his predecessors T. L. Lewis as the most savage union-baiter among the coal operators. Better that than a coal baron's tool on the inside as he is now.

SENATE WANTS VOICE IN RULE OF WALL STREET

Contest Cal's Bid for Dictatorial Powers

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 15.—At two-thirty o'clock this afternoon the senate will decide whether or not Charles Beecher Warren, sugar trust lawyer, is to represent big business as Coolidge's choice for attorney general.

The senate is up in arms against Coolidge's challenge of their "constitutional right" to pass upon the president's selection of cabinet members.

Senators Get Sore.

"The president says to you, 'The constitution gives you power to advise and consent, but I will override that power. I will wait until you adjourn and then I will put in office the man you said was unfit,'" said one senator.

He was referring to President Coolidge's personal message to the senate, which declared, "The president is making every effort to secure the confirmation of Mr. Warren. He has decided on no other appointment. He will offer him a recess appointment."

The republican senators are loathe to continue the fight for confirmation of the sugar trust lawyer. Their speeches on his behalf have been halfhearted and apologetic. Coolidge's decision to select agents of the large corporations for places on the cabinet, and supreme court is not so objectionable to the senators. Many of them are themselves multi-millionaires, as for instance, Senator Couzens.

For White House Rule.

However, following upon "General" Dawes' ultimatum for a change in senate rules that would curb the minority's power, the senators see in Coolidge's insistence on Warren a determination to direct the rule of Wall Street solely from the executive mansion. The senators do not object to the rule of Wall Street, but they want to help direct that rule. They want a hand in the graft.

Even the speech of Senator George Wharton Pepper of Pennsylvania, in favor of Coolidge's sugar trust agent was half-hearted. Pepper admitted that Warren has spent his life as a servant of big business. "Warren could turn around and pursue relentlessly combinations which twenty years ago he would have considered innocent," Pepper said. "If you translated him to the attorney generalship, would he be capable of performing the duties of his office in relation to combinations outside the law?"

On Side of Corporations.

"The trouble is he won't conceive any corporations to be outside the law," a democratic senator interjected.

The senate will convene at 10:30 this morning, an hour and a half before the usual time, and will vote for a second time on Warren at 4:30, after four hours of debate, each senator being limited to thirty minutes.

Vice-president Dawes was absent from the senate during the exciting debate which was provoked by Coolidge's message of defiance.

In spite of the exposure of Warren's unbroken record as a tool of the trusts and in spite of the fact that Warren attempted to make no defense of the attacks before the senate judiciary committee, Coolidge praised Warren's "excellent qualities," in his statement.

Warren was rejected by the senate last week by a vote of 41 to 39.

ANDREW OPENS SCHOOLS TO BIG BUSINESS FIRMS

ut Refuses Teachers Voice in Education

By M. J. T.,
(A School Teacher.)

It seems that under the present "progressive" school administration e teachers as a body may not have moment to discuss school matters at concern the pupils but may have l the time asked for by any mere mmercial concern to listen to pure- advertising addresses. I have just me from a school assembly hall in hich the upper grade pupils were tening to an address by the People's s company.

There was absolutely nothing in is address of any value to the stu- nts whatever. They were told what beneficial concern the People's Gas mpany was—how it was owned and anaged by the public, how many les of gas mains it possessed and w much cheaper and better it was use gas than any form of light heat.

For this the pupils were excussed om lessons for 45 minutes. No doubt ery other manufacturing concern in e city will follow suit since McAn- ew and the board of education have oved themselves such able agents the chamber of commerce. They ve cut out every free moment of teacher's time even to look over hool papers, but there is all the ne in the world for any money mak- concern to use the school sys- m as a cog in the wheel of a blind, eedy, dishonest commerce.

I send this to your paper as I know the other papers are owned by is same greedy and dishonest com erce that regards mankind as exist- solely to pile up profits for them.

COMMUNIST WORK IN THE UNIONS IS URGED AT CLEVELAND, OHIO

CLEVELAND, March 15.—Seven members at large were admitted and six new branches reported organized at the last District No. 6 executive meeting of the Workers (Communist) Party.

It was decided to give publicity to all branches that have remitted the district tax and in this way call attention to those branches that have not yet sent in their tax.

The district organizer was instructed to initiate a campaign for finances upon the basis of the important Communist work to be done in the coal, steel, rubber and other industrial centers. Every party member in the district is to be requested to collect a minimum of one dollar upon a contribution list, which will be issued for this campaign. This proposal to initiate a money raising campaign is now before the central executive committee for approval.

Leaflets opposing the state military police bill and the compulsory bible reading bill are now being printed. An announcement will soon be sent all branches. These leaflets must receive a wide distribution, especially among members of labor unions. Locals should appoint comrades who are members of labor unions to address the labor unions in opposition to this proposed legislation, pointing out the role of the capitalist state in the class struggle. If time allows before the adjournment of the legislature, united front conferences with labor unions and other workers' organizations should be called. A special letter will go forward to the branches regarding this activity of the party.

A committee of three was elected to report to the next D. E. C. meeting upon the possibility of establishing a party training school in Cleveland for the purpose of instructing and training party workers.

So that the party work among the steel workers may be intensified and receive party direction, a meeting of party members who are members of the Amalgamated Association of Steel Workers is to be called, the Pittsburgh district to co-operate.

Max Salzman, national organizer for the Y. W. L., was requested by the district organizer to consult with the subdistrict organizer in the coal subdistrict and to assist in the party work incident to the coming convention of miners in Bellaire.

Immediate steps must be taken to organize shop nuclei among the rubber, steel workers and the coal miners. The district organizer visited Warren last Sunday and spoke upon the transformation of the party structure to the shop nuclei basis. It is hoped to have several large steel nuclei in operation there shortly. A rubber workers' nuclei was organized in Akron some weeks ago, but it has not assumed its full functions as yet. Branches must continue their discussion of the shop nuclei from of party organization so as to educate the entire membership upon this question.

The editor of the DAILY WORKER has called upon all locals and branches to name worker correspondents. The DAILY WORKER must portray the struggles of the workers in the shops and mines and in the unions. Towards this end, locals are asked to send in names and addresses of party members and sympathizers who might act as correspondents and with whom the DAILY WORKER editor can correspond and give directions to. All the news in this district of conflicts between the workers and the capitalists as well as news of internal union politics and left wing activities must reach the DAILY WORKER.

Max Salzman, national organizer for the Y. W. L. will tour this district as follows: Cleveland, March 12 to 20; Akron, March 21 and 22; Canton, March 23 and 24; Youngstown, March 25 and 26; Warren, March 27 and 28; Cleveland, March 29; Erie, March 30 and 31; Conneaut, April 1 and 2; Ashtabula, April 3 and 4; Cleveland, April 5 and 6. All party branches should co-operate to make these meetings successful. Where no Y. W. L.'s now exist a serious effort to organize must be made. The organization of Junior groups must also be given attention.

The party work in the unions must receive more attention by the district locals. Only at two points is there activity in the T. U. E. L. work at this time, Cleveland and East Liverpool. In Cleveland the T. U. E. L. work is taking a new spurt forward, trade group meetings are being called work is being planned and programed. We suggest that all district locals call a meeting of all its labor union members within the month, the meeting to have as its purpose the education of our party members in their Communist duties in the labor unions.

The work of increasing the subscribers to the DAILY WORKER must go on unceasingly. No meeting of a branch should pass without one or more comrades reporting new subscribers secured.

The district organizer is prepared to address mass meetings for the locals. Subjects: The Next World War; The Labor Movement in the Orient; The United Front Policy for the Workers; The Colonial Nationalist Movements.

Pay your district tax today!

Alfred Wagenknecht,
District Organizer.

JINX PLAYS TAG WITH RAFAEL IN DETROIT, MICH.

Elks, Rain and Angry Bolsheviks Rule

By EDGAR OWENS.

DETROIT, Mich 15.—The Abramovich meeting in Detroit Friday, Mar. 13, (jinx day) proved to be a complete failure. There was a steady downpour of rain and snow which kept the attendance of the supporters of Abramovich down to a minimum and besides and more to the point, it rained Bolsheviks.

Hundreds of workers, sympathizers of Soviet Russia, clamored for admittance, but they were passed upon by the counter-revolutionary committee at the door and denied entrance. Every effort was made to prevent the sort of reception from the workers that has been handed Abramovich on his other public appearances while in America. A tremendous crowd gathered around the Elks' Temple, ready to convert the situation into a demonstration for Soviet Russia.

The "Best People" Smell a Fight.

It was then that the management of the Elks' Temple began to grow suspicious. Their Babbitt souls revolted when they saw the committee turning down perfectly good half dollars which the crowd was anxious to pay for a sight of Abramovich. They made inquiries, and were told that the uncouth outfit on the outside were Bolsheviks. Visions of riots within the confines of their beautiful hall disturbed their peace. A way out of the difficulty must be found.

These Detroit Elks are patriots above all else. No language shall be spoken in their hall other than English. They flatly stated to the committee in charge that the meeting must be conducted in the English language. Here was a condition that the wily disciple of counter-revolution could not meet with the result that the meeting had to be called off.

Five uniformed policemen guarded the entrance and were stationed at strategic places in the hall, while a squad of fifty was held in reserve at a nearby police station to answer any emergency call that might be sent in. However, the management of the Temple prevented any need for police reserves by firing those who had arranged the meeting out of the hall.

A crowd of about 100 persons, many of whom were sympathizers of Soviet Russia who had managed to get by the committee at the door, filed out of the hall. Some were in deep dejection. Others were highly amused at the turn events had taken. A mighty shout of "Long Live Soviet Russia" and "Down with the counter-revolutionary Abramovich" came from the hundreds on the outside. Limousines and sedans drove up to take the befurred little business men and their fat wives away. Laughs of derision followed them.

The Abramovich meeting in Detroit was a complete failure and the outfit who arranged to bring him here will not be allowed to forget it.

JAPANESE WORKERS IN APPEAL TO THE WORKERS OF THE WORLD

Japanese Workers in Appeal tothe Workers of the World — — The Anti-Class Legislation League of the All-Japanese Labor Unions has issued the following proclamation to the workers of all other countries, calling on them for aid in the war on Japanese reaction. The Workers (Communist) Party recently issued a declaration calling on the workers of this industry to respond to the plea of the organized Japanese labor movement. The plea of the Japanese workers declares:

• • • •

To the Proletariat of the World!

COMRADES: Three years ago we sent you an appeal against the infamous "Anti-Radical Bill" so-called. With your co-operation we successfully defeated it. But now again, the present cabinet, the "Mitsubishi Money King Cabinet," is fully prepared to introduce the same old thing under a new name, "Public Peace Bill." The bourgeois-militarist bureaucratic coalition is determined to get it passed, as "compensation" for the manhood suffrage and the peace with Soviet Russia, which they are now compelled by us to give.

The proposed bill seems to incriminate any person who may contemplate an action, or even express an idea, in any sense against the established order of exploitation. He is to get seven years' imprisonment and hard labor.

The bill is an incarnation of the rulers' desire to crush the working class political and economic movement which is bound to develop as a logical outcome of an extended franchise, and to strangle the hope and inspiration which the Japanese proletariat may derive from the peaceful relation with the workers' republic. This anti-social law is now to be added to, and enforced by, the world-famous police-gendarme system of the empire!

Freedom, progress, and life threatened, we the Japanese workers, have arisen to shatter the masters' scheme. We call upon you! All those struggling against the common enemy! Let this fight against the white terror be upheld and strengthened by all of you, with every means at your disposal. Our victory, indeed, depends much upon your aid and support. We recall how readily and effectively you acted on the previous occasion, bring pressure upon the Japanese embassies in your capitals, cabling warnings to the Japanese government, declaring boycotts against Japanese goods, etc., etc.

The fate of the bill, and so of the working class of this country, has to be decided in a few weeks' time. The urgency demands your immediate action.

Workers of all countries, unite and act!

Down with the class-legislation!

Down with the reactionaries of the capitalist world!

Tokio, Japan, Feb. 5, 1925.

How We Live and Work

Editor's Note:—This paper is printed for the workers, poor farmers and those who work and sweat under the present system of society. It is a paper of the workers, by the workers and for the workers. We want to reach every corner of this country where labor is being exploited for private gains, for profit. We want the workers and farmers all over the country to read the DAILY WORKER. In order to make it more interesting and be able better to reflect the life of the wide laboring masses, WE WANT OUR READERS TO WRITE TO US. This new department "HOW WE LIVE AND WORK" will appear as often as there will be sufficient letters from our readers about the life and working conditions under which our masses struggle. Try to make the letters interesting bringing out facts which may not be known to workers in other sections of the country. Try to make them short and to the point.

WHERE WORKERS ARE HONORED

(And Waiters Must Not Be Tipped)

(We reprint this article from the London Daily Herald for the vivid picture it draws for us of how workers live in Soviet Russia This letter comes from a collection by H. E. Toogood, a present living in Moscow. He is not a Communist.—Editor's Note.)

I STAND dumbfounded before the gigantic machine of the Bolshevik dictatorship. It is titanic, colossal. Its iron hands are fast-clutched over every department of life. It is so strong that no power on earth can break it. (Our emphasis.) The blockade did not break it; the combined forces of counter-revolution aided by foreign states did not prevail against it. It defied them all, and still stands erect and defiant.

Bourgeois Like It.

Many of the bourgeois are now glad of the revolution. They find their lives more interesting now they are doing useful work and not employing servants to do it. Others have not yet become reconciled to the change, and, perhaps, never will be; but all classes come at last to respect a power that is being used for the good of every member of the state.

Here the worker is honored. He is no longer the last person in the state; he is the first. For instance, I came to Moscow as a private person, and not a worker; so, being regarded by the state machine as a bourgeois, I have to pay double or treble what the worker pays. I go to a restaurant with a Russian friend; I pay 90 copecks and he only 60. When I ask why, he shows me his co-operative card.

Worker Comes First.

Were I a worker, I could get a room for 2 rubles (1.25) per month; with water and ample electric light for another ruble. But, as a private person, I can only get a room at a hotel, for which the lowest charge is 200 rubles per month, or $120.

The worker is favored in every way. Here is a state founded definitely upon work, and recognizing only the worker.

The working day consists of eight hours for manual workers, six hours for clerical work, as being of a more nerve-racking character. In the dangerous trades a recent decree fixes the working day as low as three hours in the most dangerous—with a month's annual holiday, instead of the usual fortnight. Workers from 16 to 18 are looked upon as apprentices, and must attend school after work hours.

The people don't get all their wants satisfied, it is true, but such a healthy, happy people it would be impossible to find in the east end of any English city. There are no rich to flaunt their riches in the faces of the poor, and there is not a private car in Moscow, save those on hire, and they are few.

Deport Parasites.

Only last winter 5,000 persons were deported from Moscow. They were gambling parties, some of the remaining bourgeoisie, who idled in the cafes, and insulted the poor by the display of their remaining wealth. As there were workers wanting rooms, these idlers had to go and make room for them. It was cruel, but it was just. If a man has money he cannot erect a big house in Moscow, but must be content with one or two rooms, according to the size of his family. All house space is carefully allotted, with especial regard for the worker.

The Waiter's Dignity.

Communal feeding is general in Moscow. Meals are served at cost price, so that it is as cheap to feed communally as it is privately. In every large house, or "dom"—I mean a house with 100 rooms—there is a "stolovayah," or dining room, where dinner is served from four to eight p. m. Other meals which require little preparation are taken privately. Even for these boiling water in a giant urn is always ready.

The former palaces of the rich are now inhabited by the workers, or are thrown open for their inspection and enjoyment on holidays. One interesting result of the revolution is the abolition of tips. Posters are displayed, such as:

> "To the Visitor:—If you respect yourself, respect also the waiter, and refrain from lowering his dignity by offering him a bribe."

Sports, gymnasts, etc., are being encouraged on a large scale. Bungalows, or rest houses, for workers and children, occupy what were formerly the gardens and grounds of the nobles. The manual workers are entitled to a week's holiday at full wage at the end of every five and a half months. Thousands of children spend the whole summer camping out in the country.

A keen social life is kept going in Moscow. Cinemas and theaters abound. Shops are open and brilliantly lighted till midnight. Droskies galloping past, tramcars everywhere.

BOSTON, Mass., March 15.—The Junior movement all over the United States is well known to you. We, the Young Workers' League of New England, who are playing a huge part in that movement, can come now and show the results of our work. It is only one year since we began to consecrate our most active members of the Young Workers' League of New England to the Junior field.

Now we have nine well functioning Junior Groups in Boston and vicinity. The summer is arriving and we are confronting a great deal of outside work, such as sporting, hiking, camping, and the like. Four our first annual celebration all nine Junior Groups are arranging a play and concert for Friday, March 27, at Dudley Street Opera House.

present themselves. Avowed enemy like Abramovich, or fair-minded critic like McKenzie and Gordin and their kind, all look alike if they feed the fires of reactionary attacks on the workers' revolutionary government of Soviet Russia.

Our answer to these reactionary manifestations is in working class mass demonstrations for Soviet Russia. The workers' faith in their revolution has not wavered and they prove it in hundreds of cities and towns in this and all other countries of the world.

Chicago, the industrial heart of America, has been the scene of a particularly active campaign. McKenzie on March 13th, Abramovich on the 15th, Gordin's articles in every Sunday's paper, and so on. The workers have not been slow to take up the challenge.

Mass Demonstration

On March 29th, Sunday afternoon, they will counter with a mass demonstration that will pack Ashland Auditorium to the doors. Three speakers, particularly effective on this special subject, will voice the workers' answer. Lovett Fort-Whiteman, celebrated Negro author, just returned from an eight months' tour thru Soviet land that took him deep into the back country where few Americans have ever trod, will answer the lies spread about our revolutionary government.

William F. Dunne, editor of the first English Communist daily in the world, and Robert Minor, inspiring labor artist, co-defendants in one of the latest capitalist raids for American political prisoners, will be able to tell from personal experience what the American brand of "personal liberty" really means.

A very full and interesting program has also been arranged. There will be singing and dances, dramatics and movies and gymnastics by workers organizations. Some of the talent is professional of the highest class, most of it is the best that the Chicago labor movement has developed in seventy years of work. Doors will be opened at 1:30 p. m., Sunday, March 29th, Ashland auditorium, Ashland Blvd. and Van Buren St., Chicago. Admission for adults 50 cents, for children 10 cents. Come early if you want to be sure of a seat, the hall only holds 5,000. Come early to this demonstration to answer the villifiers of Soviet Russia.

who during the war shouted for every worker to go to war, while he made sure he kept on this side of the fighting, down was a bitter attack on those men who have given the best years of their lives to the miners' organization.

After Ledvinka's report, which was one of class peace, having nothing but a discouraging outlook, an additional report was read which condemned the progressive candidates in the last election, for having issued the following statement:

To the Miners of Sub-District 5 of District 6, U. M. W. of A.

Dear Sirs and Brothers: The brothers whose names are signed to this program faithfully accept and endorse every word in the program of the Progressive Miners on which Brothers George Voysey, Arley Staples and Joseph Nearing are running for president, vice-president and secretary-treasurer.

If you want to see our organization grow and all miners organized 100 per cent in one powerful union, if you want an alliance between the miners and our brother railroad workers, if you want nationalization of the coal mines. If you want to organize every miner in the United States in the United Mine Workers of America.

If you want our Brother Dominic Venturatto to get proper support as well as the rest of our brothers in the Moundsville prison you will agree with us and endorse this program by voting for the following names on our sub-district ballots and for Brothers Voysey, Staples and Nearing.

For Sub-District President—J. J. Hoge, Local Union, 1840, Bellaire, O.

Vice-President—Frank Blahovec, Local Union 2059, Hopersville, O.

Secretary-Treasurer— John Gross, Local 2262, Dilles Bottom, O:

For Sub-District Board Members—Frank Sepich, Local Union 3562, Neffs, O.; Con O'Kraska, Local Union 2526, Neffs, O.

For Auditing Committee—Joe Kobylak, Jr., Local Union 2059, Hopersville, O.; Jack Kostel, Local Union 971 Yorkville, O.; Daniel Spehar, Local Union 1696, Yorkville, O.

For Trustees—John Buska, Local Union 971, Yorkville, O.; Dominic Sambuco, Local Union, 430, Bellaire, O.

Red Baiting Speeches.

An attempt was made to brand this statement as villifying the officers but any one with an ounce of understanding can see that there is no attacking of the officials in the above statement. Making a red-flag waving speech worthy of that enemy of workers, W. J. Burns, Ledvinka, did all he could to whip the delegates into a state of frenzy against the Communists and the Progressives. He attacked nationalization of the coal mines. He was against an alliance between the railroad workers and the coal miners, in spite of the fact that union railroad workers have been hauling scab coal. He said it was time to put a stop to the progressives.

He was followed by Vice-President Cinque whose report almost exceeded in its class collaboration recommendations, those of his superior officer. He told the men that there is seldom a cause for a strike, and this in spite of the fact that the bosses have been continually violating the agreement.

Mines Closed Down.

At the very time the convention was in session a number of mines were shut down because the bosses violated the agreement in relation to the check-off. When the mines are being shut down one after another, while one coal company after another is announcing that they are going to close their mines on April 1, the officials conveniently forget that the constitution states that one of the purposes of the United Mine Workers is to establish the 6-hour day from face to face.

Vice-President Cinque went on with his report telling the men to use the union label. He praised it as an American development. He neglect: to mention that the reason other countries did not use the union label is because their unions were better organized. He forgot that the very paper that the union officials had their letterheads printed on altho printed by union printers is scab made.

Altho the state law calls for wash houses in the mines and after some of the mines have been without wash houses, and many more in a filthy condition he recommends caution. He even blames the miners in part when the wash houses are not in a sanitary condition.

For Class Peace.

He recommends in his report a centralized hospital and loan association to which the rank and file of the miners are bitterly opposed.

Then the report of the secretary-treasurer, who is a member of the state legislature, drawing pay from both the state of Ohio and the miners' union, all in the same vein, all smacking of class peace with the bosses, in spite of the fact that at this very time the bosses are planning to break the miners' union. Instead of preparing the miners for the struggles that will take place soon after the convention, they talk peace, they do not prepare for struggle.

The miners have worked very few days. Half of the miners in the state and there are about 50,000 miners are out of work. The rest work two, three or four days per week. The resources of the miners are nil. The coffers of the mine owners are full. They are preparing with their gunmen, with their control of the state government. And yet the officials talk peace. Yet they hint in their reports that progressives who want to prepare the miners should be put out of the unions. The leaders of the miners are former socialists.

SOVIET RUSSIA HA SMADE GOOD SAYS PURCELL

Admits He is Biased on Side of Workers

"I went into Russia with a working class bias in 1920, and again in 1924, and I returned with my views confirmed, that Russia is bound to make good," said Mr. A. A. Purcell, a member of the British trade union delegation to Soviet Russia, in a speech at Manchester, England, recently.

"I endorse and reaffirm," Mr. Purcell continued, "the view so frequently expressed and made much of in the capitalist press, that 'we may have the strength to carry thru similar great changes for our class.'

"The trade unions have accomplished wondrous things—the workers' clubs—with their circles for the liquidation of illiteracy, preparation of trade union workers, reading of newspapers, libraries, art and music classes, study circles, plays and living newspapers, lectures and reports on political, industrial, co-operative and economic subjects, together with the medical department, exposing the horrors of the dread disease syphilis.

Classes for Children.

"Then," Mr. Purcell went on, "there are classes for the improvement in technique of those boys and girls who are working in the factories as apprentices and learners, and from this stage those showing suitable ability are encouraged to go further, and the way is made quite easy for them to go to the highest technical schools or workers' faculties, and even to the great universities.

"The question of cost of fares, books, clothing and lodging does not arise, as these are all arranged between the trade union and the education department."

Mr. Purcell went on to deal with the important question of the technicians in industry.

"It was my good fortune," he said, "to attend a conference of these in 1920, and I got to hear that they were holding a meeting in December last, which I attended. The chairman and the mover of the vote of thanks spoke in English.

"These workers are all members of their particular T. U., but the technical men hold occasional conferences, and the delegates are drawn from the technical membership of all the unions.

"It is this body which the Soviet government is straining every nerve to strengthen and increase numerically. These are the men who give you the impression of high enthusiasm for their work.

Electric Development.

"Numbers of huge electricity undertakings are raising their towers, with house boilers from Babcock and Wilcox in Britain, and firms in Checho-Slovakia, together with electrical equipment from Metro-Vickers, and so on.

"Thus," Mr. Purcell summed up, "in education, training of the young, encouragement to the technicians, the Russian working class is moving ahead of all other countries in Europe.

"This is what they are doing," said Mr. Purcell, in conclusion. "But so much is said about what they are not "The anti-Jew pogroms have gone. doing, I will add my quota.

There were no Lena Goldfield massacres, and no Armenian massacres. Foreign capitalist moneylenders and exploiters of the farmers and peasants are non-existent. There are no prisoners in the fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul, not great army threatening the peace of the world, no police organization of widespread prostitution, no provocation with violence by police and spies under the auspices of the government.

"In 1908, Kropotkin wrote in the Times that there were from 60 to 90 executions per month, most of which were for the merest offenses.

"These and many other horrors have passed away, under the workers' republic of Russia, and, as a consequence, I say, long live Russia! Long live the International working class!

"May we be given the strength everywhere to do likewise."

—London Daily Herald.

Soviet Officials in Turkestan

MOSCOW, Feb. 20.—(By Mail)—It is reported from Tashkent, Turkestan, that the president of the general committee of the Russian Socialist Soviet Republic has arrived there to take part in the work of the first congresses of Soviet of Turkestan and Uzbekistan and get acquainted with the building up of the newly-formed republics.

BUILDERS AT WORK

AN INTERESTING EXPERIMENT

And a Story of What Happened in Our Office

Today the DAILY WORKER branch and city Agents are the propaganda directors of our Party. But they are still not fully conscious of this fact. For instance, we do not know of a single agent in the country who has gone to visit the subscribers of the DAILY WORKER and the Workers Monthly in his city in order that they buy literature from the catalogue he has. These subscribers are not all party members—not by two-thirds!—and here is a real field for action where you can also secure names of their friends for getting other subscriptions and making further literature sales.

Let us tell you what happened only yesterday.

A man swept into the office with the gusto of a March wind. He wanted all the articles that were on hand dealing with Russia He stated that he was a worker, feeding for long on the self-acknowledged "world's greatest newspaper," the Chicago Tribune. But even as he read, strange to say, he had common sense enough left to know that the "news" printed about Russia was merely "fiction," and bad fiction, at that.

Accidentally, he had picked up a DAILY WORKER on the street car. He read "As We See It," and he SAW IT!

When he went away, he was loaded down with five copies of the WORKERS MONTHLY, including all the back numbers containing Zinoviev's "History of the Communist Party;" two old issues of the Soviet Pictorial, copies of "Why Russia Should Be Recognized," and Foster's "Russia in 1924," as well as a receipt for a subscription to the DAILY WORKER! And a copy of "Leninism or Trotskyism."

The readers of the DAILY WORKER and the Workers Monthly are already interested in Communist principles and practice. If they are not party members—you can learn why not. And whether they are on not—just pull out a few of the new pamphlets from your little grip and "talk literature."

Try this experiment on your little sub list!

LABOR DEFENSE COUNCIL CALLS FOR UNITED FRONT AGAINST THE SYNDICALIST LAWS IN 34 STATES

In its last press service, the Labor Defense Council presented its survey of the Communist cases under the criminal syndicalist laws. In order that a greater estimation of the survey of the Labor Defense Council of the Communist cases under the criminal syndicalist laws may be gotten, it is necessary to briefly analyse the nature of these cases.

The first group of Communist cases, which arose under the criminal syndicalism laws of the various states, were those which grew out of the organization of the Communist parties in 1919 in California, Illinois and New York. Many prominent individuals who took part directly or indirectly in the formation of the left wing group of the socialist party which resulted in the organization of the two Communist parties at that time in this country and those who took part in the organization of these parties were seized and put on trial.

Defended Themselves.

In California, eleven were put on trial, and after a long period of struggle in the courts, three were finally convicted and the rest of the cases were dismissed because of either disagreement of the jury in the case of the others, or the dropping of the cases for other reasons.

In these cases the outstanding figure was Dolson, one of the defendants who defended himself and a number of his co-defendants. In the case of Miss Anita Whitney the matter has been appealed to the United States supreme court and has been there for four years. The other two served their sentences.

I. W. W. Suffered Severely.

Of the California criminal syndicalist law, little need be said here as everyone knows what prosecutions have been carried on since under this law. The I. W. W. suffered severely under this law and time and again Communists have found this law a weapon used against them. The fame of California, its criminal syndicalist law and other laws inimicable to the labor movement has spread to every part of this country. There is no need to point out the necessity of a concentrated united front on this field.

Eighteen Convicted in Illinois.

In Illinois there were eighteen tried and convicted for participation in the formation of the Communist Party in 1919. Of these eighteen, seventeen served for a time, but were shortly released by a pardon from the governor. The other one (Comrade Katterfeld) served time for over a year in Joliet and is now out for a year's parole.

The fact that there was a pardon from the governor in the case of these eighteen, among whom were many prominent in the labor movement in this country, does not in any way soften the nature of the law which is still on the statute books of the state of Illinois. Of this law the judge who dissented on the original conviction, Judge Carter, himself states:

"The law of this state is so drastic and far-reaching in its provisions that many public utterances of the great leaders in our past history would have been punishable under its provisions."

The above quotation is enuf to rally all elements for its abolition and against any further attempt to use it against the labor movement.

New York Groups Served Time.

The third group under the early indictments of the criminal syndicalist laws is the New York group, convicted for taking part in issuing a manifesto for the left wing which finally resulted in the building of the Communist and Communist Labor parties. Of this group all served sentences of at least two years. The cases of two were finally nolle-prossed after this long sentence, those of Ruthenberg and Ferguson, and the cases of Benjamin Gitlow has been since pending in the United States supreme court.

The above three groups of cases started the offensive in this country which had led to widespread use of the criminal syndicalism laws against the Communists, I. W. W. and other sections of the labor movement, no section being absolved from threats of its application. Today there are thirty-four states in which criminal syndicalist laws are ready for use as weapons against the labor movement. In two or three articles following the survey will take in the rest of the cases covered by it up to the present.

British Agents Stir Hatred of Natives in Lhassa, Tibet

URGA, Feb. 15—(By Mail)—Tibetan quarters in Mongolia have received news of the recent outbreak of an anti-British movement in Lhassa, the capital of Tibet. There is a growing feeling of dissatisfaction among the population of Tibet with the insistent penetration of English capital in that country and the activities of British agents. The main channel for British influence was Soron-Golong, the Tibetan commander-in-chief and prime minister.

NEW ZEALAND'S SHAM DEMOCRACY IS DESPOTISM

Soviet Russia Only Workers' Government

By PHILADELPHUS.

There is a fundamental difference between the political system of New Zealand and that of Soviet Russia.

In Soviet Russia they have the rule of society by the proletariat and poor peasants—the dictatorship of the proletariat.

In New Zealand society is ruled by the capitalist class, i. e., manufacturers, merchants, bankers, landlords—a dictatorship of the bourgeoisie.

New Zealand's Despotism.

The New Zealand scheme is not socialism in any form and has no connection with revolutionary Communism whatsoever. Labor, in New Zealand is the victim of a pernicious system of state capitalism which destroys one of the strongest weapons the working class has to fight its battles—labor unions—and establishes a political despotism over the workers in the interest of the minority capitalist class.

Union Part of Government.

In Soviet Russia the land, and industries are not owned by landlords manufacturers and bankers. Labor unions are increasing and are an integral part of the government and the whole process of arbitration as it works out over there is concerned with the division of the national income among the city workers and the poor peasants. Soviet Russia is a socialist nation based on the common ownership of land, industry and finance by the proletariat and poor peasantry (majority of its agricultural workers) with the Bolshevist government, their government, acting always in the interest of the workers.

A Capitalist Nation.

New Zealand is a capitalist nation (state capitalism) founded on the private ownership of land, industry and finance by the capitalists and the robbery of the workers thru a wages system supervised by the capitalist administration. Compulsory arbitration is the keystone of the New Zealand system. Compulsory arbitration, with the government as arbitrator, backed up by non-labor police and soldiers, and with the economic wealth in the hands of an exploiting class is, invariably, on every serious issue between labor and "capital," arbitration against labor. The fact that the class conscious revolutionary workers there, have carried on a bitter struggle against the New Zealand system of state capitalism is one important proof of this point.

The rock-bottom condition which makes the difference between state capitalism and revolutionary Communism, is not, primarily, a matter of political form, but a matter of property ownership—i. e., which class owns and administers the land, industries, finance—labor or the capitalists.

In Soviet Russia the land, houses, newspapers, schools, mines, shops, railroads, banks, ships, etc., are owned by the proletariat and poor agricultural toilers thru the Soviet state.

A Bogus Democracy.

In New Zealand the government is an organ of capitalist rule and functions as a bogus democracy—(Lenin rightly dubbed it a bourgeois democracy) for the reason that a minority of capitalist exploiters own as private property the economic wealth.

Red Star of Hope.

Finally, revolutionary Communism—the sole hope of a civilization wrecked by the vicious forces of capitalism, the only star of hope (red star) to the world's workers, exploited, oppressed and degraded—revolutionary Communism does not and cannot exist unless the masses of common humanity own and control thru their own Soviet government the basic factors of life, liberty and happiness—the land, the workshop, finance and education.

Soviet Textiles in Persia.

MOSCOW, Feb. 20—(By Mail)—A new Russo-Persian mixed company, under the firm of "Irakorms," whose founders on the Soviet side are the Textile Syndicate and the People's Commissariat of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, has opened its activities. The paid-up capital of the society is one million gold roubles. Its object is to sell Soviet textiles in Persia.

Bloody German Democracy

Six Communists have been killed and thirty wounded in Halle, Germany, and the election campaign is just beginning.

"Schupos," the "green police," so called because of the color of their uniforms, the official terrorist organization of German social-democracy, fired on an unarmed crowd of workers at a meeting where Thalmann, Communist presidential candidate, was to speak.

This incident, taken in connection with the collapse of the German "republican" bloc, the exposure of the social-democrat party as corruptionists and grafters in addition to their betrayal of the German workers to American and allied capital, the violation of the agreement to withdraw troops by the allies after the social-democrats had prevailed on the masses to poll a majority vote for the Dawes plan, requires no undue addition of undue optimism to make the strong strategic position of the German Communist Party the major event in German political life. The Communist Party appears as the party of and for the masses.

It is certain that the Communists will cast and count several million votes, sufficient to make another election necessary by preventing any candidate from securing the necessary majority. The government, actuated by this knowledge, is preparing for terror during the campaign, terror directed against the Communists with the object of cowing their supporters.

Capitalist terror always meets some success at first, but in this case it will not stop the German Communist Party from rolling up a total vote whose numbers will be actually less than that of its supporters.

Election campaigns are not an end of Communist activity as the ruling class of the world knows.

All power to our German comrades in the new battle in which they are engaged and which is for them a bloody and dangerous one in spite of all the "democratic" rules by which it is supposedly governed.

More Deportations

There have been 4,448 deportations under the provisions of the new immigration law in the last six months, states Senator Reed of Pennsylvania in an interview given in Washington, D. C.

The secrecy with which these proceedings against foreign-born workers are veiled is evident. There has been no publicity whatever except in a few cases where the victims were well known and interest aroused in their behalf.

A new wing of the secret service has also been established, according to the senator. Two hundred and fifty police have been recruited and at all Mexican and Canadian ports squads of inspectors are stationed. Immigration has been reduced to almost nothing. In the last six months 67,303 immigrants arrived; 48,120 left the country for permanent residence abroad, leaving the net increase in foreign-born population only 19,203.

The gates are shut to the working class of Europe.

This being the case, the question arises of the purpose of House Bill 11796. It establishes new excuses for deportation proceedings and gives the department of labor and immigration the widest powers—powers that it certainly does not need in view of the 4,448 deportations admitted.

The proposed law then is simply a terrorist measure. Foreign-born workers are to be subject to an intensified espionage. Blackmail of aliens by labor department officials is to be encouraged. The principal offense will be joining a union or working class political party.

House Bill 11796 has nothing to do with stopping immigration. It is to make easier the persecution and deportation of foreign-born workers already here, workers who have incurred the anger of the bosses. It is another union smashing measure that can and will be used to limit in the open shop drive that the capitalists are preparing and that is already launched in the textile and coal mining industries.

Resistance to wage cuts and the open shop by foreign-born members of unions will be construed under the proposed law as crime. Foreign-born workers who have not yet become citizens could be automatically elminated and in unions like the United Mine Workers, the International Longshoremen's Association, Food Workers and even in many unions of the building trades great inroads could e made on the membership.

During the congressional recess the labor unions ould marshall all their forces for the defeat of is vicious anti-labor measure.

The Federationist on Soviet Russia

The officialdom of the American Federation of Labor cannot be honest even with itself.

In the last issue of the Federationist, edited by William Green since the death of Samuel Gompers, there is published an interview on Russia with John Turner, head of the Office Workers' Union of Great Britain and a disciple of Emma Goldman. Needless to say, the interview is composed of the stereotyped lies and insinuations to which we have become accustomed.

The official report of the British trade union delegation is not even mentioned in the article in spite of the fact that its favorable character has caused comment thruout the world and drawn a clean line of division between the bureaucrats of the Amsterdam trade unions and the British trade union movement—the most powerful group in the Amsterdam International.

The suppression of the statements of Purcell, Bramley and others of the majority report of the British trade union delegation, the publication of the statements of a lone minority of one whose influence in the British labor movement is non-existent, shows conclusively that the Greens and Wolls do not want the truth of Soviet Russia to be known to the membership of the American Federation of Labor, that they fear even the considered and conservative views of British labor men on Soviet Russia and its accomplishments.

Purcell is the head of the Amsterdam International. His statements are certainly more valuable than those of Turner, yet he will not be allowed to tell what he thinks to the dues-paying union men of the United States if the A. F. of L. bureaucrats can prevent it.

The whole incident is illuminating. It stamps the enemies of Soviet Russia in the official circles of the A. F. of L. as enemies on principle and not because of lack of information. This is the way we have always regarded them and obviously we have made no mistake.

In no other channel of expression have the imperialist masters of the American labor fakers shown such outright evidences of their control as in the war conducted on the government of the Russian workers and peasants by the Gomperses, Greens, Wolls and Lewises unless it be in the betrayal of the Mexican labor movement to Wall Street.

Italian Metal Workers' Strike

The capitalist press is puzzled by the news from Italy. It cannot understand the strike of 100,000 metal workers in northern Italy who are nominally members of fascist unions.

The explanation is simple and for that reason alone would never occur to a capitalist editor. It is that these workers are not fascists and never have been. After the failure of the huge movement that culminated in 1919 in the seizure of factories and collapsed because the leadership did not understand or were unwilling to seize the state power, they were discouraged and disheartened; their outlook was that of anarcho-syndicalism with which fascism has much in common.

These workers accepted fascism as millions of workers in other nations acccept capitalism, but they have no love for it. The outlook seemed hopeless and they waited to see what fascism had to offer.

Its castor oil, daggers, black-shirts and clubs did not fill the stomachs of the workers. Its program was, in spite of its military character and bombastic utterances, a program of surrender to the capitalists. It mobilized workers against their own interests. This is a very mild description of the monstrous thing known as fascism, but it will serve for this short article.

The Communists have never ceased their work among the masses. Their program is a program of struggle not with but against national capitalism.

The strike of 100,000 metal workers is the best possible proof of the effectiveness of Communist activity and the complete breakdown of the fascist leadership among the masses. It is not a huge group of fascist workers that are striking, but a group of workers, essentially revolutionary, from whose eyes the scales have fallen, and who are once more swinging into the international struggle against world capitalism.

Fascism in Italy dies, but Communism and the Communist Party live.

A "Strong, Silent Man"

This is the story of how the "strong, silent man" in the White House met an emergency:

Warren was rejected by the senate.

Coolidge sent his name back for confirmation.

Coolidge talked with the republican senate leaders, heard that the appointment of Warren was impossible and agreed to withdraw Warren's name.

A few hours later he gave out the information that he would insist on Warren's appointment.

As this goes to press the republican leaders are again in conference with Cal and the "strong, silent man" may change his mind again.

Moral:

Election publicity seldom has much basis in fact.

The mine owners are throwing up a mighty smoke screen to hide their moves directed toward wage cuts for the mine workers. But the coal diggers recognize the attack that is being made upon them just the same.

The condition of Mussolini was reported worse when the strike of the metal workers began to spread. Workers in other industries will give the fascisti dictator an excuse to get worse still.

More enemies of Soviet Russia are being smoked out from behind the thin mask of liberalism. Let the smoking go on.

Outlawing the Immigrant - By Max Bedacht

WITH the growth of the army of wage workers there grows the element of final destruction of the capitalist order. The quicker the proletarian majority of society increases its relative strength the sharper develops the conflict between the existing forms of production and distribution with this majority of society. And the sharper this conflict grows the more revolutionary becomes the struggle of this proletarian majority against the beneficiary minority classes in society, the capitalists. And in the same ratio grows the prospect of a final victory of the revolution.

The leading groups of the capitalist class are fully conscious of this. In realization of the dangers threatening their social order, the capitalists are using their political power to enhance their dominating position.

With the sharpening of the antagonisms between the American workers and their immediate exploiters the problems of the class struggle in this country have increased in numbers and in intricacy. To concentrate on these problems the capitalist government of the United States has created a department of labor. The appointment of a "labor leader" as the first secretary of labor has mislead millions of workers into the belief that in the department of labor the workers were given direct representation in the executive department of the country. The deportation delirium of 1919 has done much to dispell such illusions. But to some extent they still persist. But the latest activities of this department should open the eyes of the workers.

The capitalists of America fearing the growing dissastisfaction and the increasing strength of the American workers are busily engaged in dividing the workers among themselves. The department of labor is the outstanding agency for the accomplishment of this task. This department plays the colored workers against the white, the immigrant against the native, and attempts to organize on the basis of prejudices existing and fostered and by the aid of specially designed laws reliable strikebreaking guards within all of these groups. To this end the Secretary of Labor Davis has bent all his energies on the passage of a selective immigration bill and on a bill to register and fingerprint immigrant workers. In these activities of this member of the "official family" of the strikebreaker president of the United States the dictatorial character of the government finds its clearest manifestation.

Fitting into the series of proposals made by the secretary of labor, and into the series of laws already passed by congress, fits house bill 11796, passed by the house and now up in the senate. The bill is entitled "Deportation act of 1925."

In this bill all hitherto existing restrictions for the deportation of aliens are removed. No matter how long an immigrant may have resided in the country, he would still be subject to deportation in case of a conviction in court to imprisonment of one year or more; or in case of unlawful entry of the immigrant.

The bill is designed to extend the power of the police over the immigrant and thus enable the state to terrorize the alien worker into meek submission to the dictates of capital.

The bill establishes the basis for outright blackmail against alien workers, a blackmail that will be perpetrated by the "authorities" against any immigrant workers, active in the struggle for the wage workers against capital.

The bill turns the department of labor into a police department for every labor exploiting corporation and practically outlaws alien workers.

The bill is just one of a series of outrageous attacks against the workers that must result from a capitalist government at a time when the class struggle has advanced to a point where the ruling class openly puts a strikebreaker in office as president, an open shop propagandist as vice-president, and the councilors of the most corrupt private corporations as members of the official family of the president.

In the face of such attacks the workers of the United States must forget differences in nationality, creed, color and politics and combine in a united front action against this bill.

Against the solidarity of the capitalists and their government there is only one defense—the solidarity of all the workers native and alien, black and white.

X-RAYING THE CANCER IN THE AMERICAN LABOR MOVEMENT

Class Struggle vs. Class Collaboration—By Earl R. Browder. Second booklet of the Little Red Library series published by the Workers (Communist) Party of America.—10 cents per copy.

1,000,000 copies of this pamphlet in the hands of as many trade unionists would make trade union Judases of the "Bond Ox Bill" Johnson type hunt hiding places and send up the price of halters.

Imperialism needs and tries to mold a working class that is unorganized and therefore timid, ignorant and therefore fearful, weak and therefore helpless, a working class soaked in the sordid profit-making ethics of capitalism and that is therefore a vast reserve of cannon-fodder for the wars that imperialism incites in order to live.

The United States is the master of the western world. Unsatisfied, hungry for world power, its ruling class conspires against all other nations and against its own workers. It tries to create a working class that knows no other master.

Earl Browder has shown with the all the harsh disregard of pain to the subject that characterises the best curative surgery, the methods by which the organized workers of America—the trade unions—are being corrupted, castrated and chained as eunuchs to the steel chariot of American imperialism.

He has taken the banking and business schemes to which the officialdom of the various unions has committed the membership, and which received the endorsement of the late Samuel Gompers; the company unions of the great corporations; the "B. and O." plan organized by William Johnson of the International Association of Machinists; the old doctrine of the "identity of interests" of workers and employers; the scab coal mines owned by members of the Locomotive Engineers' Union, headed by Warren Stone; the debauching of the intellectuals by the bureaucrats thru high-salaried research jobs connected with labor financial institutions; the connection of the labor movement with the Civic Federation and the Security League; the united front of the liberal intellectuals with the rotten bureaucracy of the labor movement, the capitalist press and the capitalists themselves against the only fighting section of the trade unions—the left wing organized around the Workers (Communist) Party and the Trade Union Educational League.

Browder, having assembled this mass of material, all of it having that putrid purplish tinge and bed smell which distinguishes decaying organic matter, puts on his rubber gloves, cuts off characteristic sections, and one by one examines them with the Marxist-Leninist microscope.

His findings are all in this little pamphlet. It is doubtful if so much light on the workings of capitalist agents inside the labor movement was ever contained in a booklet of 31 pages.

What are his conclusions?

That American capitalism, in its final stage of imperialism, has purchased outright the upper layer of the labor movement—the officials—and made them part of the middle class. As such they have no further interest in the labor movement as an instrument to combat the employers. In return for their own economic security the labor officialdom are now betraying the trade unions by endorsing and giving a labor color to measures like the "B. and O." plan which are only company unions in disguise. As soon as the organized workers are under the influence of this injection of dope, they will be shackled, their organizations destroyed and when they wake up it will be as industrial serfs.

One more point Browder makes so clear that it is hardly necessary to mention it here:

These Judases of the labor movement who head the banks and business corporations which they have started with union funds, capitalist institutions with no semblance of a labor character, in which the office employers are after not even allowed to organize, are carrying this same subversive policy of their House of Morgan masters into the Canadian and Mexican labor unions. They are smoothing the path of American imperialism in its colonial and semi-colonial fields.

The betrayal is therefore not confined to the United States—it is a gigantic scheme that follows the same lines as the investments of Wall Street. Abroad it weakens the resistance of the Canadian and Mexican workers to the tyrannies and robberies of the American capitalists.

At home it debauches the organized labor movement and destroys its militancy, leaving the working class of the United States naked victims of a ruling class bent on world domination by the sword.

There have been plenty of "studies" by the verbose intelligentsia of various phenomena in the labor movement. Browder is the first, because he is a Communist, to take labor union coruptionism apart and show to the workers what makes it go—the money of labor's enemies. Any worker who reads this little monograph will know more about what is the matter with the American labor movement within ten minutes than if he spent a year reading the diagnoses of liberal surgeons more tender but less truthful.

Increase Textile Production

MOSCOW, Feb. 20.—(By Mail)—The All-Russian Textile Syndicate has decided to extend the production of cotton fabrics in the course of the present working year 1924-25. The 1923-24 program of production was based on 1.9 million spindles and 52 thousand looms being in operation. In the 1924-25 program it is laid down that there shall be 3.1 million spindles and 81 thousand looms.

Letters From Our Readers

(The following letter was sent in response to some clipping received.)

An Answer to Clippings.

To the DAILY WORKER:

Dear Comrade: I had noted what the New Leader said about the "Communist split," and also had skimmed thru or over, the long drawn-out controversy as to whether an effort should be made to organize a farmer-labor party on a class basis. The one group thot the LaFollette movement had swallowed the material for it, and the other group thot not. I had also noted the unbecoming speech of comrade to comrade in discussing the issue. But since both groups adhere to the Comintern, and since the Comintern is the central authority of the world-Communist movement, when it speaks here is an end of dispute. There is no "split." There are no free lances in the Communist Party.

I had noted also the Turner interview published in the New Leader. Turner and one other British delegate to Moscow took an adverse view of Russian conditions, while a majority of the visiting delegates were favorably impressed. Have you any idea why Oneal did not publish one of the favorable interviews?

Thru all their verbiage and unique activities the Communists have one fundamental, well-defined, supreme idea, to-wit: capitalism must be overthrown by force, and all activity in the labor unions, in politics, everywhere, and all the time should be propaganda to that end. This, at least, is understandable. And it puts an interpretation on their conduct quite at variance with the charge that they are merely disturbers for disturbance sake. One may question their wisdom on occasion, but no revolutionist will discount their controlling idea.

Oneal dilates upon "The Russian Tragedy." For convenience of analysis let us group and number the points of his logic, thus:

No. 1. Quotes Marx to show that socialism cannot eventuate until capitalism has produced a good state of industrial development.

No. 2. The Bolshevists tried the impossible stunt of jumping to socialism without the necessary capitalistic industrial development.

No. 3. The Bolshevists made concessions to native and foreign capitalists, which by the logic of No. 1 was necessary to the required industrial developments. (Lenin called it a "strategic retreat").

No. 4. This act of the Bolsheviki was a "counter revolution," and a "united front against the proletariat."

Now put 3 and 1 together and ask why No. 4.

By the Oneal logic the Bolsheviki ought not to have disturbed capitalism for 50 or 75 years yet, or until it has come into possession of all the country's resources, industrialized the nation, and possessed itself of all the powers of government—as in the United States. Do you agree with him?

Have you any idea why Oneal did not burst forth in great indignation over the failure of the social democrats to disturb capitalism in highly industrialized Germany? Or why he has been so pacific toward the socialist labor party of England which set in order the Dawes plan for skinning Germany, and incorporating the rest of Europe into the Anglo-American financial imperialism?

I have here a choice sample of the Hillquit logic, as follows: (Taken from his article on "The March of American Imperialism")

No. 1. Imperialism is the exercise of sovereignty beyond the country's boundaries, a phase of modern capitalistic industrial development. (This is understandable.)

No. 2. Imperialism cannot be prevented. (This is understandable.)

No. 3. We can mitigate the evil by insisting that government shall not support the risks of our citizens in foreign countries. (This is also understandable.)

But No. 3 prevents No. 1, which No. 2 says cannot be prevented.

With very best wishes, L. D. Rattiff.

Soviet Timber Export Program Out Stripped By Actual Results

MOSCOW, Feb. 13.—(By mail)—The timber export program for the year 1923-24, which had been provided by the state planning commission as amounting to 33.4 million roubles, has been carried out 115 per cent in value, according to a report made to the central export bureau.

There has been a notable increase in the exports by private merchants, almost entirely from the Far Eeastern territories.

As before, England is still the biggest market for Soviet timber, having consumed about 65 per cent in value of all the exports of timber from the Union in 1924. The next in the list of purchasing countries are Holland and Germany.

An interesting item in the mentioned report is the gradually increasing share of Soviet timber in the markets of the Near East and the appearance of Russian Far Eastern timber in the European market.

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

class war had no other aim except to establish the right of free speech. If that was the only aim it would be better to teach the workers to always think like their masters who would give them all the freedom for expressing themselves that even the most loquacious would ask for than to urge them to overthrow capitalism. But that is not the aim of the revolutionary working class movement. Its aim is to overthrow the capitalist system and establish the rule of the producing classes on its ruins.

FREE speech is impossible in a class society. It can only be possible in a classless society. There can be no real freedom for all while one class rules another. Can that be successfully refuted? Of course not. There is no freedom of speech in any capitalist country in the world. That is, complete freedom of speech. The reason is not far to seek. The capitalists place such limits on the freedom of action of the workers as they deem necessary to the safety of their regime. This is not theory. It is a fact.

THERE is no freedom of speech or of the press for the capitalist minority in Russia or for their tools, the socialists. But there is freedom of speech for the workers and peasants who support the revolution. There will not be any freedom of speech in Russia for the opponents of the rule of the workers until that opposition in a world sense becomes so infinitesimal that it involves no danger to the Soviet power. The Communists of Russia might win the applause of the American liberals if they threw away their rifles and said to the Grand Duke Nicolaievich and his capitalist paymasters: "Here Nicky, walk right in, and let's settle down together and fight it out with our mouths." Of course, the lampposts of Russia would have long since carried the hanging bodies of those Communists and their followers if any were left alive would be the objects of American "liberal" sympathy as they languished in Russian dungeons or rubbed their frozen toes in Siberia while the daughters of the American capitalists would be having the time of their lives seducing the thousands of Russian nobles who had nothing else to do but risk seduction.

IT'S either one thing or the other. This is a fight, not a debate over the theory of evolution or special creation. There is no free speech in war. Even Villard of the Nation kept his mouth shut as a clam when Wilson was on the war path. He opened it after the war was over to get the class fighters out of jail. For that we give him credit. But he is now doing more injury to the working cass movement than ever Palmer or Burleson did, by turning over his magazine to the most poisonous collection of rattlesnakes that ever spewed their venom on Soviet Russia.

THERE will be free speech in Russia and all over the world when capitalism is overthrown in the United States, England, France, Italy and Germany. The other capitalist countries don't matter much. But before that is accomplished the working class will pass thru fire in which the suppression of opinion will not be the greatest of evils. In a classless society, the government of people, always an organ of suppression will give away to an administration of things. When the brotherhood of man will become a reality, there will be freedom of expression but not until then.

DO we apply the same rule in measuring Soviet Russia that we apply to capitalist countries? Of course not. Like A. A. Purcell, head of the British trade union movement, we are biased in favor of the working class. The DAILY WORKER is not concerned with being fair to the enemy. It is too busy helping to defeat him.

THREAD TRUST CUTS WAGES ALTHO MAKING PROFITS HIGHER THAN EVER BEFORE IN HISTORY

By WILLIAM SIMONS.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WILMANTIC, Conn., March 16.—The American Thread Co. cut the wages of its employes 10 per cent on January 12 of this year. It is typical of the capitalist class which, at the same time that it hugs to itself exorbitant profits, constantly attempts to lower wages.

Recently the Workers Party at a hearing before the legislative committee on labor and an anti-strike bill, revealed the huge profits of firms like the Scoville Manufacturing Co. of Waterbury, Conn. The American Thread Co. is another of the same type. Profits are exalted, and human life maltreated, crushed.

History of the Industry.

Willimantic is one of the original textile centers of America, being one of the first seven in Connecticut to to become cotton mill centers before 1816. The invention of the cotton gin gave impetus to this development. The industry was on a small scale, consisting of small factories.

In 1854, the Willimantic Linen Co. was organized by capitalists from Hartford, Conn. Previous to that time, English thread was preferred even by American firms, but the workers of Willimantic turned out a product that was satisfactory.

In 1898, the American Thread Co. of Willimantic was organized (possessing the properties formerly owned by the Willimantic Linen company), and incorporated under the laws of New Jersey with officials residing in New York and New Jersey.

Not even many of the employes are acquainted with the fact that the company is controlled by a British company. A woman worker, when asked today about ownership, said the main offices were in N. Y. City. The American Thread Co was incorporated on March 10, 1898, for manufacturing cotton, woolen, silk, and linen threads and allied business.

It operates eight plants in Willimantic, Stonington and Griswold, Conn.; Holyoke and Fall River, Mass.;

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

THE Chicago Federation of Labor at its meeting last Sunday heard the report of its committee on transportation or to be more correct, the committee that is trying to use the federation in the interests of one set of capitalist political grafters against another. The report was made by the vice-president of the federation. It condemned the Dever ordinance and the condemnation was justified. The Dever plan is not municipal ownership. It would simply mean that, whereas now, the bankers own the street railways and elevated lines thru their dummy corporations, under the Dever plan, they would own them thru a city corporation.

NEITHER the committee nor any one of the delegates who participated in the discussion took a working class angle on the Dever plan which will be submitted to the voters on April 7. They talked as citizens. The word "citizenry" appeared at least twenty times in Oscar Nelson's report. The delegates who participated in the discussion looked every inch like businessmen. You could see they were proud of the fact. They were interested in the plan from the point of view of what it cost the taxpayers. They had nothing to offer as a program. They were playing the role of fuglemen for the opposition to Mayor Dever.

IN the last mayoral election in this city the official organ of the Chicago Federation of Labor endorsed Dever as a friend of the workers. But the boys have not been able to agree over the division of the spoils. They hardly ever do. William Hale Thompson is preparing to get back to the city hall. The labor fakers are rallying behind him, except those who are getting along nicely on the crumbs that fall from Dever's table. That is what the scrap is about as far as the official bureacracy of the trade union movement in Chicago is concerned.

THE Chicago Federation of Labor did not have the moral courage to take a vote on the report submitted by its committee on transportation. They foresaw that this angle of it would be featured in the press, but they did not care about that, they admitted, with an air of martyrdom. What they were concerned with was, that the rank and file should have an opportunity to pass their judgment on it. Of course, this was all bunk. The LONDON, March 16—"The Truth About Russia," was the title of an address given by Mr. J. Bromley, M. P., to his constitutents at Barrow recently, reports the London Daily Herald. Mr. Bromley was one of the seven trade union delegates who visited Russia recently, the others being Messrs. Purcell, Ben Tillett, Herbert Smith, John Turner, A. Findlay, and Fred Bramley.

"I dont think," said Mr. Bromley, "that the delegation's report will please either those who hold that everything in Russia is beautiful or those who believe in the painful pictures painted by the capitalist press."

There was, he said, generally a happy medium between extreme views,

PEKING, February 20.—(By mail.) The Rosta News Agency learns that the following telegram was sent in reply by L. M. The advances made by the Workers Party during the last year are in large part due to THE DAILY WORKER. Because of our constant contact with an ever growing number of workers who read THE DAILY WORKER the Workers Party has been better able to lead the revolutionary struggle, better able to mobilize large groups of workers into the conflict for the overthrow of capitalism.

One of the outstanding success made by the American working class during the past year has been the rise of THE DAILY WORKER. The first national subscription campaign which resulted in securing six thousand new DAILY WORKER subscribers was a brilliant achievement. The second annual DAILY WORKER sub drive must equal and better this record. Revolutionary workers in America are called upon to devote their utmost energy in making the slogan: "15,000 New Subscribers by June 15!" an accomplished fact.

AGED MAN DROPS DEAD WHEN TOLD JOB AWAITS HIM

HAVERSTRAW, N. Y., March 16.—George Bower, 75 years old, tried to get a job for six months. Finally he went to the interstate park commission at Bear Mountain Park. The clerk answered unexpectedly that he had a job for Bower watching the tennis courts, when could he report? Bower slumped down dead from shock.

JAILED MINER PRAISES WORK OF MILITANTS

Letter Gives Lie to the Faker Pat Fagan

BELLAIRE, O.—The fight against the progressives which was mainly a fight against the Workers (Communist) Party, was scheduled to begin immediately after the Buksa case was settled by the annual convention of sub-District No. 5 of the Ohio Miners' Union. But before this could be done the stage had to be set. A red baiting campaign was started. An attempt was made to whip the delegates into a state of frenzy. Holding the DAILY WORKER in his hand, Pat Fagan, who was imported to do this dirty job, shouted tirades of abuse against the progressives. He made bitter attacks against the leaders of the progressives nationally.

His attacks on the progressives were only equaled by his praise of John L. Lewis, whom he claimed was the best leader the miners ever had. Whether he meant best for the bosses he did not say. But looking over his activities in the last few years. Taking into consideration the activities of the Lewis machine in Nova Scota, in Alberta, in Kansas, where their activities resulting in considerably weakening the organization, looking over the immense ground the United Mine Workers has lost in West Virginia, where Van Bitner spends his time fighting the radicals instead of building the union, in Oklahoma, where practically no organization exists, in Arkansas and Kentucky, one can surely say that the Lewis machine has done more to weaken the miners' union than strengthen it.

Give Lie to Fagan

Fagan proceeded to attack the progressives, claiming that they retarded the activities of the union in getting the boys who are in Moundsville out of jail. In reply to this bold lie, one has just to read the following letter which was received by John Buksa, from Joe Ragus, one of the militant miners who is still in prison:

REACTIONARY LABOR BUREAUCRATS ON JOB WITH SLUGGERS TO WAR FOR RUSSIAN COUNTER-REVOLUTIONIST

The socialist slugging crew at the Raphael Abramovich anti-Soviet meeting at the Garrick Theater, Sunday, was led by experienced reactionaries of the labor bureaucracy. Dolnik and Ruffer, business agents of the Joint Board of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, were especially prominent.

They brought their hired gangsters. But one and all were successful only in making the workers fight back in rage at their cowardly attacks upon women and girls.

The instant that Raphael Abramovich stepped to the front of the platform and cleared his lying throat, out of the topmost gallery there rained a fluttering shower of leaflets.

Not Among His Friends.

"My friends," he started off, speaking in Jewish.

"You are a liar!" piped out the shrill voice of a woman. "We are no friends of yours!" And the battle was on.

Space forbids the scores of stories of its details during the two hours in which the Garrick theater rocked with battle. Nor of the thousands who cheered and sang in welcome to every one ejected into the packed street.

Yesterday morning in police court, Max Lerner, director of the Workers (Communist) Party school, was haled

WEST FRANKFORT MINE SHUTS DOWN DIVORCING 1,200 FROM THEIR JOBS

WEST FRANKFORT, Ill., March 16.—With the suspension of operation in the Chicago, Wellington and Franklin Coal company mine, known as the world's largest mine, 1200 men were idle today. The men held the world's hoisting record made on March 25, 1922 when 8,218 tons of coal were taken out in an 8 hour shift. Only half of the mines in this district are now working.

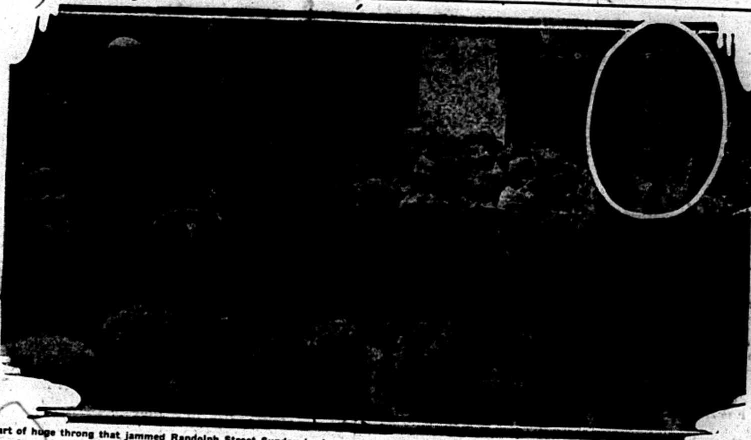
Workers Cheer for Soviet Russia and Sing "The International"



Part of huge throng that jammed Randolph Street Sunday in demonstration for Soviet Russia against the counter-revolutionary meeting planned by local "socialists." "Bill" Dunne is seen speaking. In the upper right hand corner is a likeness of the menshevik spy, Raphael Abramovich, the first published in this country. We show it here in order that workers may become acquainted with one of their worst enemies.

BLOOD OF THE MINERS IS ON THE HANDS OF FRANK FARRINGTON

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—Death to 184 miners, and injury serious enuf to cause the loss of 30 days or more of work was the toll taken by Illinois coal mines in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1924, according to the state department of mines. Of the injured 474 never returned to the job and the others lost an average of 56 days.

During the year 99,765 miners were employed but they averaged only 140 days of employment, less than half a normal working year. They produced 72,308,665 tons of which about 71 per cent was undercut by machinery.

Flu Closes Schools.

ANDREW, Iowa, March 16.—Health authorities here today ordered all schools closed in an effort to check the influenza epidemic which in the last few days have brought serious illness to 38 children. So far, no deaths have resulted.

Lineman Is Killed.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 16.—Chester Harris, 24, a lineman for the American Telephone and Telegraph company, was killed today when the pole on which he was working was pulled to the ground by another falling pole.

Blackmail Case to End.

LONDON, March 16.—Charles Robinson's suit against the Midland Bank in an effort to collect $650,000 of the money extracted form Sir Harri Singh, in the famous "Mr. A." blackmail case, will fail in the court of appeals, the latter court announced today.

36 HOMELESS WORKERS ARRESTED

NEW YORK, March 16.—Thirty-six men who were trying to get a little sleep on hard benches in the 181st street subway station while the night trains roared by were arrested by police raiders and taken to jail. Magistrate Jesse Silberman found them guilty of disorderly conduct and sentenced them to $3 fine or 2 days in jail. Not one had fine money to pay.

SENATE AGAIN REJECTS CAL'S TRUST LAWYER

Vote 46 to 39 That Warren Is Unfit

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 16.—The nomination of Charles B. Warren of Michigan, as attorney general was again rejected by the senate by a larger majority than rejected Coolidge's sugar trust lawyer the first time. Warren was rejected by the senate as unfit by a vote of 46 to 39. Coolidge, who has twice seen his cabinet choice discredited by the senate vote, must now either name another man or carry out his threat to give Warren a recess appointment.

Borah Hits Warren as Unfit.

Senator Borah, in an attack on Warren declared his long association with the sugar trust makes him an unfit aspirant for the attorney generalship, and the senate cannot shirk its dual responsibility with the president in the naming of cabinet officers. Borah aimed his remarks at Coolidge's attempt to enforce his will on the senate.

Coolidge called Borah to the White House after the rejection of the corporation lawyer, and unsuccessfully endeavored to induce Borah to change his vote. "I firmly believe that Mr. Warren is unfit for this office," Borah said.

Secretary of Labor James J. Davis stopped off long enough in Chicago to repeat his demand that all aliens register each year. Labor sees in this the beginning of a huge industrial espionage and blacklist system by the government.

THIRTY THOUSAND DOLLARS BAIL MUST BE RAISED FOR RELEASE OF NEW YORK RAID VICTIMS

NEW YORK CITY, March 16.—Thirty thousand dollars must be raised as bail for the comrades arrested by the New York bomb squad. They must be released from the clutches of the law as soon as possible. Funds must be collected for their defense. The government seems determined to use these cases as the first steps against the whole party. According to Captain Gegan, there is going to be a "clean mop-up" of radicals in New York City.

No time dare be lost. Thirty thousand dollars must be raised at once; funds must be collected for defense. Comrades, appeal to your trade unions and fraternal organizations to support these comrades. We must not be caught unawares, but must prepare for keen struggles. A broad campaign against this new attack on the Communists must be strengthened by ever greater solidarity of the whole working class.

To work, comrades. Pass resolutions in your unions. Collect funds and bail money. Any comrades who themselves can furnish cash or property or get others to do so, should report at once. Send all funds and resolutions to the Labor Defense Council, New York division, 108 E. 14th St., New York City.

ANTI-RED POLIC RAID FLAYED B WORKERS PART

Three Members Held $10,000 Bonds

NEW YORK, March 16. — Th members of the Workers (Commun Party are held here in bond of $10,0 each under the old Sullivan l against non-aliens carrying arms.

The arrests were made by Capta Gegan of the notorious bomb sq and the "arms" found on the Work Party members were old rifles ren from the Stanley Costume compa for participation in the Paris Co mune pageant which took place Madison Square Garden yesterday.

That a police official could ta such liberties with the law against working class organization is add proof that no legal forms are obser by the capitalist government, wh dealing with the working class.

The following statement was issu by the Workers Party of New Yor in connection with the arrests:

Party Issues Statement.

"The Workers (Communist) Par repudiates as a silly frame-up and travesty of justice the much adve tised exploit of Captain Gegan in th seizure of a few ancient muskets the model of 1776 and the detention innocent participants in a theatric performance under the absurd ba of $10,000 each.

Three of the participants in this pageant who happened to be standing near were arrested and held by Magistrate Weil under the enormous bail of $10,000 each.

"If this is the policy of the bomb squad, why not immediately jail and put under bail of $10,000 each every supernumery in a theatrical performance on Broadway who shoulders a musket? Nevertheless, the serious guardians of capitalist law here have incarcerated three workers for that crime.

PIUS XI RAISES FUNDS TO FIGHT SOVIET RUSSIA

Pope Offers Commuted Term in Purgatory

That Pope Pius XI is granting "special indulgences" to American catholics who actively fight against Soviet Russia, is admitted by the catholic union, an organization which states as its aim "The reunion with the holy church of the separated brethren of the Near East," and which is raising funds among catholics in this country to spread propaganda against Soviet Russia.

"Please contribute generously," says Rev. Dr. Augustine Count Galen, O. S. B. after describing the "horrors" of Soviet Russia. "Remember, too, that as a donor you become a member of the catholic union, and will receive a membership certificate which will entitle you to the special indulgences granted by His Holiness Pope Pius XI, to all our members."

Grants "Indulgences."

Apparently, according to the S. O. B.'s letter, this certificate is to be presented at the gates of purgatory. If only ten dollars has been contributed to the fight on Soviet Russia, ten days are clipped off the catholic's sentence to purgatory. If $200.00 has been given to fight the workers and peasants of Soviet Russia, however, the sentence is commuted 200 days, "by order of the pope." The devil is duty bound, according to catholic rules, to honor the pope's anti-Soviet certificate.

"The Catholic News has this to say about conditions in Russia," says the S. O. B. in his letter sent to nearly every catholic in the country, "and about the work of the catholic union. 'The present Russian government is making every effort to abolish christianity; they have even established at Moscow a so-called seminary to train anti-religious teachers. In theory the law promises freedom of worship, but in practice there is a real persecution of christians. The catholic union is intended to be a powerful means of combatting the evil influences thus set in motion.'"

Priests Soift Livers.

Now comes the dirty work. The priests are soft livers. They need plenty of money for their fine robes and rich food. But they are in an unfortunate position in Soviet Russia. The priests, who worked hand in glove with the czar in sucking the blood from the Russian peasants and workers, have lost their jobs. No longer is there a master class to which they can sell themselves. No longer can they dope the people with cant about the next world while they allow the imperialists to rob them in this world. The priests therefore need money in Soviet Russia.

"America concludes an editorial entitled 'To Spread the Faith in Soviet Russia,'" says the pope's official S. O. B. in America, "as follows: 'Every thing depends upon the means that can now be raised for this truly apostolic undertaking. The sum of $250.00 contributed for five successive years, would educate a priest in whose works and prayers the donor would share. But every assistance given would advance the good cause.'"

The S. O. B. seems to infer that the larger the donation, the more prayers will be wafted on high for the sinful donor.

Silk Workers as Wage Slaves.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—Average wages in 1923 for the 125,234 workers employed (on the average) in the silk manufacturing plants in the United States were $1,013 for the year. The gross profits of the 1,598 establishments employing these workers were $155,434,400 or enuf to have doubled the wages and left $28,680,000 for overhead costs of business.

The establishments covered by this report, issued by the department of commerce, census of manufactures, do not include those devoted to knit fabrics, hosiery and other knit goods made of silk, but include all other lines of silk production.

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

fact is that the labor leaders are at loggerheads over the issue, or more correctly over Dever and Thompson and their respective backers. They passed the buck to the local unions, knowing that the great majority of them will not have time to consider the question before the vote is taken on April 7.

IT was amusing to hear Oscar Nelson charge the officials of Local 556, of the stationary engineers with having "delivered the local" to Dever. Had this charge been made against Nelson and his reactionary cohorts by a radical, his cries could be heard in heaven. But this kind of language is perfectly legitimate in dirty capitalist politics. They all do it. The gentleman from Virginia calls the gentleman from Minnesota a liar and then begs permission to withdraw his remarks. There is no hard feeling after the election is over. It is only one of the many ways the political crooks have of making a living.

ONE of the delegates was so deeply moved over the perfidy of Dever and his cohorts for putting over "the biggest traction steal in history" that he regretted the scarcity of ropes around the city hall. He thought the perpetrators of this foul scheme should be dangling at the end of them. "It seems the revolutionary sentiment that was so prevalent here years ago has evaporated," he mused. One expected him to recite the declaration of independence and bring down the house but he refrained. He did not want to disturb the delegates.

RATHER funny tho, that at the very moment this venerable delegate was mourning over the days when there was life in the labor movement, a lively battle was being waged about two blocks away, with workers, who resented the attacks of the stool pigeon, Abramovich, on Soviet Russia doing the heavy part of the scrimmaging. Revolutionary sentiment is not entirely dead, by any means. It is very much alive. But it is foreign to the officialdom of the trade union movement in the United States.

ONE delegate thot the Dever ordinance would be good for the building trades. Those who favored Dever were afraid to say so openly. A few wanted a vote on the question. They were strong for William Hale Thompson, tho nobody mentioned that gentleman's name, but he was running the show.

ONE of the delegates commented on the lack of confidence the members of the local unions have in their leaders. "They know these lads, are performing for their bourgeois bosses," he confided. "I have never known it to fail, that anything these boys support goes down in defeat. The injunction judges they opposed were elected by overwhelming majorities. They feel that they are getting something out of its and they don't pay any attention to what they say." This is largely true. The labor fakers have some political influence as bourgeois citizens and where they are able to compel the members of their unions to vote for them, under threat of penalizing them on the job. But the rank and file have no confidence in them, and for very good reasons.

THE Dever ordinance should be defeated by the workers at the polls on April 7. But in doing so, they must not imagine that the Thompson and Hearst combination will give them anything better. Both sides look on this city as a fine place to loot. Only when the workers themselves organize politically into a revolutionary party that aims to overthrow capitalism and organise society on a non-profit basis will the transportation problem in this and other cities be solved. The Workers Party is the only party in the United States that offers such a solution.

France Needs Five Billion Francs

Add $10,000,000 to Couzens' Tax.

The treasury department has notified his attorneys in Detroit that an additional assessment has been levied against his 1919 income tax, Senator Couzens, republican of Michigan, announced today.

Couzens, chairman of the special senate committee investigating the bureau of internal revenue, said the assessment was "between $10,000,000 and $[illegible]000,000."

ANDREW MELLON SAVED MILLIONS FOR RICH PALS

Corporations Got Their Tax Exemptions

By LAURENCE TODD.

(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, March 16.—Secretary Mellon and Senator Couzens of Michigan, are multi-millionaires who have fallen out, and now they are furnishing to the people of the United States an array of reasons why big private profits can be had from the political government business.

Couzens began the demonstration by attacking the wholesale exemption of the properties of big industrial corporations—including those of Mellon himself—from federal income taxes under the Mellon regime in the treasury. This attack led President Coolidge, last spring, to denounce congress for interfering with the business of his end of the government. Couzens backed down, when he dropped the employment of Francis J. Heney as counsel for his committee which the senate had charged with inquiring into treasury affairs. Also Couzens agreed that the committee should operate in secret.

Mellon Cheats Government.

But when Couzens and his associates and his lawyer and engineers had found $362,000,000 allowed by the treasury as "amortization" claims of big companies, which they believed should have been paid into the treasury in taxes during and since the war, and that Mellon proposed to do nothing toward recovery of this money, the Michigan senator presented the facts in a report to the senate.

They became public property. Mellon's particular chums in Pittsburgh and New York and Boston—in steel and copper and other metals and in oil—had saved about $150,000,000 of this sum. Control of the government was a handy and profitable thing for their business interests.

Ford Dickered with Cal.

Mellon retorted at once by demanding that Couzens pay $10,000,000 or more, on the profits involved in Henry Ford's purchase of the stock held by Couzens in the Ford Motor Co. in 1919. Around the political trenches of the treasury the rumor went that Couzens had refused to sell his stock except on a tax free basis, and that Ford had met that demand by coming to Washington and seeing the right people, so that the net profit of the transaction to the minority stockholders was calculated at a very low figure. In any case, Mellon has re-opened the issue, and proposes to show the country that Couzens owes it that $10,000,000. And Couzens is in process of showing that Mellon has tried to give the big corporation crowd at least $562,000,000 of taxes due the government, and he has another lot of exemption claims amounting to $300,000,000 under investigation.

Imperialists Gloat Over Death of Sun Yat Sen of Canton

WASHINGTON, March 16—Death at Peking of Dr. Sun Yat Sen, president of the Canton government of China and leader of the radical political elements in that country, is looked upon in Washington as a blow to Chinese unity and an advantage to western imperial schemes in the Far East.

Sun, who led the 1911 revolution which overthrew the Manchu dynasty, was the first president of the republic. He was well known in San Francisco before the revolution, and has had the constant support of a majority of the Chinese residing in the United States since that time. His influence was always thrown in favor of the elimination of western financial and commercial control, as well as political overlordship, in China. He went to Peking after the recent collapse of Wu Pei Fu's government there, to assist in establishing a coalition or reconciliation government which should stand firmly against outside dictation of Chinese affairs.

Arrival of the new Japanese ambassador, Matsudaira, in Washington just at this moment, to discuss with Secretary Kellogg the policy of the United States and Japan and Russia toward China, emphasizes the importance of Sun's role in the drama. He was the chief spokesman of the protest of China against foreign aggressions.

The influence of Soviet Russia is stronger than ever, in China, as the millions of Chinese workers realize that the Communists with their slogan, "All power to the workers," have the only solution for the problem of foreign domination over the masses of China.

before Judge Hayes. His head was swathed in bandages, which two detectives tried to make Judge Hayes believe were unnecessary. Lerner lifted the bandage.

"Oh, my!" said the Judge. "One dollar fine and no committment." Which means that Max Lerner theoretically owes the City of Chicago one dollar, but doesn't really have to pay it. The detectives said Lerner "hollered louder than anyone else." An impossible feat. Everybody hollered louder than everybody else, particularly the socialists, who were continually yelling.

While those who gained admittance were given an examination in Jewish not all good kosher folk could get in A very reputable Jewish writer, A. R Ichie, was stopped and shoved outside by a socialist, one Benenson. This Benenson also pointed out M. Goralek to sluggers, who promptly obeyed orders and made Goralek look like a beef stew before cooking.

Aside from Max Lerner, the other workers arrested were released at once. Comrade Lerner, late for the opening session of the party school, was on deck at the afternoon session to give another, but more theoretical analysis of Marxism.

Abramovich was well guarded prior to coming to the meeting. He was escorted to the platform from a secret backdoor entrance, by a big squad of police, plainclothes thugs, and socialist committeemen. Abramovich was kept in seclusion at the Morrison Hotel prior to the meeting.

The socialists dared not assault the men, tho cursed vigorously by them for their cowardly beating of little girls. Instead, when their violence had precipitated resistance by the men, they sumoned the poice to beat up the men. Their alliance with the capitalist government was open and shameless.

Among the shouting, cursing, yelling throng, with newspaper photographers setting off flares for picture, Abramovich stood angry but helpless on the platform.

Once when he managed to make himself heard as far as the boxes, where the DAILY WORKER reporter sat (until he was thrown out) he cried out that "Russia under the czar was a better place than under the Soviets."

At this ridiculous observation, even the yellow socialist chairman, Morris Siskind, so-called "labor editor" of the Jewish Forward, saw that the provocation was unwise, as the bulk of the audience arose in one cry of rage. He tried to quiet the crowd, but without avail.

Mentions Name of Luxemburg.

"Now about Rosa Luxemburg," said Abramovich, with upraised arm clutching a document. But with what lie the menshevik was going to define the name of the woman he and his German fellows murdered, will never be known to the Chicago workers.

Yells of men, screams of women being beaten by socialist sluggers with blackjacks, fights going on in a dozen places at once, men and women tumbling over chairs, filling the aisles with knots of shouting, fighting workers battling the sluggers and the police—all of which had been going on in one continuous performance for two hours and more—this was too much. Abramovich quit suddenly.

Almost in the middle of a sentence, when Siskind, of the Jewish Daily Forward, who had threatened the audience at the beginning that the professor was going to speak, and finish decided that he had enough and told Rafael that the show was off. The rat of the interventionists mumbled a few words nobody heard, and down came the curtain.

The Workers Take Possession.

Leaping to their feet, clambering on the chairs and cheering lustily, the workers took possession. "We want no condescending saviors to rule us from a judgment hall" rank out the song of the International in mass volume as the audience of workers stood and sang.

"Three cheers for Soviet Russia!" And the hurrahs shook the building. "Down with Abramovich!" The windows rattled and the socialist sluggers, flabbergasted and helpless, looked for some place to crawl into.

Marching victoriously to songs and cheers, the workers streamed out of the Garrick to join in the joyous crowd outside. They had won. The socialist sluggers had beaten them in vain. The cops were only an irritation.

Police Rescue Each Other.

When Sergeant Jerry Donahue had attempted without heavy reinforcements to storm the gallery alone, he went down under a bunch of workers, and claims that he was being vigorously and, apparently purposely choked. Another police sergeant and a squad finally rescued him. Jerry, when shown a copy of the Jewish Daily Forward yesterday, where it said that the meeting was "a successful and beautiful one," rubbed his pate and said impolite things about Jewish gentlemen of the press.

Out on Randolph street the crowds gathered swiftly, cheering each group of warriors as they were catapulted out of the theater entrance. And here was the great demonstration that stood its ground against all attacks of police, singing the International, cheering for Soviet Russia in great waves of enthusiastic cheers that echoed and re-echoed from the canyon walls of the loop buildings, and going wild with applause for Bill Dunne, who, mounted on an up-ended iron box, spoke to the throng the message of the Communism and proletarian revolution.

At about 4:15 Abramovich had had enough, but not so the workers on the streets. They hung around for some time, cheering and singing, filled with joy at their victory.

Martin Abern, District Organizer of the Workers (Communist) Party, announced to the crowds that on Sunday afternoon, March 29th, at the Ashland Auditorium, a counter-demonstration against the criminal counter-revolutionary socialists, will be held, where speakers of the Workers Party will address the workers of Chicago, all of whom are welcome, and where there will be no police invited.

Workers Must War on Officials Surrendering The Right to Strike

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL

TODAY, the pet lackeys of the late Sam Gompers, who toadied to him as president of the American Federation of Labor, are still on the job trying to dictate policies for the American working class.

Among those closest to Gompers was the renegade "socialist," John Spargo, who argues in an article in the March issue of the North American Review, that there will be no appreciable change in A. F. of L. policies under the regime of President William Green. If any changes develop, he says, they are such changes as would have taken place under Gompers had he lived.

But Spargo cleverly hides the propaganda poison in his effusion. An adept at sophistry he employs it to the utmost in his sapper work for the employing class. Spargo argues that the workers must surrender the "right to strike" on public employment. In this category he includes not only the transportation industry, especially the railroads, but also the coal mines, re-calling the complete capitulation of President John L. Lewis, of the United Mine Workers of America, in the last great struggle of the coal miners of, "We cannot strike against the government."

Spargo knows whereof he speaks. The efforts of the capitalist state to outlaw strikes on public utilities on the ground that they constitute a direct attack against the established order is not new. When the renegade socialist, Briand, before the world war was in power in France, he broke a strike of the French railway workers by calling them to the colors; forcing them into the capitalist military machine, thus making the strike treason against capitalism.

It was during the recent short-lived regime of the MacDonald (labor-socialist) ministry in Great Britain that secret plans went thru the war department for the intervention of the military arm of the state in future railroad strikes. It is with this encouragement that the railroad owners in Great Britain have been carrying on an aggressive campaign for wage cuts.

It may be taken for granted that the intellectual stool-pigeon, Spargo, does not speak for himself alone. He voices the sentiments of that great bulk of American labor's officialdom that is ready to make further and more drastic concessions to the employing class. Spargo writes:

> "We may admit an abstract 'right to strike' in the same sense and way as we admit an abstract 'right to revolution.' There is the right, also, of society to protect itself against revolution and to crush the revolution that imperils its safety, if it can.
> "It is not at all an exaggeration to say that the United States of America can as easily contemplate with equanimity the secession of several states, as the cessation of labor for any length of time upon our railroads or in our coal mines."

It isn't difficult to see where Spargo and those for whom he speaks in official power in the labor movement will be in the future, as they have been in the past, in labor's struggles. Spargo was with Gompers and the rest on Wall Street's side, urging participation in the world war, to save Morgan's gold. In the fierce combats to come, when labor will struggle to maintain its standard of living, or better it, this whole segment of the labor movement will place itself closer than ever at the side of the capitalist ruling class.

Treason to the whole working class is being committed by these so-called "leaders" even now in refusing to prepare for these coming and inevitable struggles. When the A. F. of L. executive council recently met at Miami, Florida, it reported "nothing to do."

Down in Washington, today, it is reported that no agreement has been reached on the jurisdictional squabble as to whether the street carmen's union or the teamsters' union should have jurisdiction over bus drivers. And the fight as to whether the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers should be allowed to hire non-union miners in its coal pits still remains unsettled. These two instances are typical. Labor's officialdom shows its incapacity in the failure to settle even the most simple internal squabbles of the organized labor movement. Instead they destroy every possibility of a disciplined, organized struggle. They all agree on one point—that the logical solution of amalgamation of craft unions into huge industrial unions must be fought wherever it appears. Thus they prove the best servants of the bosses.

• • • •

In the meantime the representatives of the great mine owning interests of the nation meet today in Cleveland, Ohio, to discuss the launching of a wage cutting and "open shop" war against the coal miners' union. Capitalism prepares for the next offensive against the working class. It is time for the rank and file of labor to prepare to move in an effective counter-attack.

U. S. Senate Again Rejects Coolidge's Sugar Trust Lawyer

mit Warren's name was challenged by Senator King, democrat, of Utah, who inserted in the record a resolution declaring the act unconstitutional. King said he would not ask for a vote on his resolution, but wanted it a part of the record so that the constitutional issue could be raised if the president gave Warren a recess appointment.

One of the greatest crowds in years heard the closing debate on the Warren fight. Police reserves had to be called out at one juncture to preserve order. They added a dramatic note to a conflict between the executive and the senate that has no parallel in history. The senate floor was packed, as were the galleries.

Defense of Warren fell to a handful of new administration senators—Gillett and Butler, of Massachusetts, and Bingham of Connecticut, principally.

Cleveland to Hold Meeting for McCarthy

(Special to The Daily Worker)

CLEVELAND, March 16.—The International Workers' Aid, Cleveland branch, is entering into the work of the Irish famine relief, and promises support in every possible way to the work of the Irish Workers' and Peasants' Relief Committee which is raising funds for the relief of the Irish workers and peasants suffering from the famine now devastating the west coast of Ireland.

McCarthy To Speak.

The Cleveland committee is making plans to hold a mass meeting in the near future to be addressed by Jack McCarthy, now on his way back from the famine region in Ireland. It is also planned to hold a dance within a couple of weeks. In the meantime, the committee is distributing literature on the famine situation, and circulating contribution lists in order that the workers of Cleveland regardless of nationality or place of birth, may have an opportunity to assist their Irish brothers, as the workers of all lands rallied to the support of the Russian workers and peasants in the terrible famine of 1921; and as assistance has been given since to the German workers and the workers of other countries in time of need.

A number of Irish workers active in the labor movement of Cleveland are co-operating with the Irish Workers' Aid Committee, and all those whether of Irish origin or not, who wish to assist in this work, should get in touch at once with the secretary of the I. DEMOCRAT SHIELD —... CH

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 16.—Sen. Glass of Virginia, secretary of the treasury at the time Henry Ford secured from the treasury a pre-sale valuation of the minority stock in the Ford Motor Co., told the senate that Mellon's $11,000,000 claim against Sen. Couzens for further federal taxes on that sale would be paid—if at all—by Ford.

The Detroit motor car magnate guaranteed the net price to Couzens, who paid a tax on the valuation set bythe treasury. Glass denounces Mellon's claim, and says that rich men ought to get as much justice from the internal revenue office as poor citizens get. Couzens has a fortune above $40,000,000. Mellon has $150,000,000.

SECTION OF THE TRADE UNION EDUCATIONAL LEAGU

IS THE T. U. E. L. A DUAL UNION? A HOT ANSWER

Article One of a Reply to Duffy

By J. W. JOHNSTONE

The expulsion of William Reynolds of Detroit, Niels Kjar and his four colleagues of Chicago, F. W. Burgess of Philadelphia, and P. Z. McClure and 15 others of Los Angeles, has deeply stirred the rank and file of the Carpenters' Union truout the entire country. Hundreds of local unions have demanded that the expelled members be reinstated and that Hutcheson be compelled to abide by the constitution.

Secretary Duffey, Hutcheson's handmaid, has issued a stereotyped reply trying to explain to all the local unions and district councils, that have demanded further information as to why these expulsions have taken place.

The Old, Old Stuff

Duffey, in his usual crude way, tries to justify the expulsion of Reynolds by accusing him of belonging to a dual union. In part Duffey says, "When the members openly and above-board admit they hold membership in the I. W. W., the One Big Union, the Trade Union Educational League, or similar bodies antagonistic to the United Brotherhood, the general executive board has no other alternative than enforce the law and decision of our convention.

"At the last meeting of the general executive board held in Indianapolis, Jan. 26, evidence was submitted to that body showing that William Reynolds, a member of Local 2140, Detroit, Mich., is a member of the Trade Union Educational League, an organization detrimental and contrary to the interests of the United Brotherhood. The general executive board ordered said William Reynolds expelled from the United Brotherhood.

"In cases of this kind it is not a local matter. It therefore becomes the duty of the general executive board to deal with it, and Section 55 does not apply."

When Hutcheson Can't See the Constitution

So there you have it. The constitution is all right. Section 55, which guarantees the right of trial, in his instance is out of place. Hutcheson, the carpenters' guardian angel, thru Duffey, says so. So it must be. Just when Section 55 does apply, Duffey forgot to mention. So far as we are able to learn, it has never applied since Hutcheson, the lumber-jack, inflicted himself onto the Carpenters' Union.

According to Duffey, information or evidence was submitted to the G. E. B. showing Reynolds to be a member of the T. U. E. L. And upon that he was expelled without hearing or trial. Even a capitalist court will allow a defendant some semblance of a defense, but not so Czar Hutcheson.

Not only was Reynolds denied his constitutional right of a hearing, but Hutcheson never even gave him the opportunity to either deny or affirm his membership in the T. U. E. L. let alone consider whether the T. U. E. L. is a dual organization. In fact it is comon knowledge that the decision was made by Hutcheson to expel Reynolds and a number of others thruout the country long before the last convention took place, and the G. E. B. did not wait five minutes on the matter.

If the T. U. E. L. was dual to the Carpenters' Union there would be no need to violate Section 55 of the constitution. The carpenters of Detroit would be a unit in expelling Reynolds or anyone else connected with the T. U. E. L. if this was the case. But what is the real situation.

Is The T. U. E. L. a Union?

Reynolds is president of his local union, vice president of the district council, and every local union in Detroit, and the district council, as well as hundreds of local unions thruout the country have rallied to his support. Hutcheson got out an injunction to restrain Reynolds from attending his local union meetings.

This injunction was violated by Reynolds, and he was charged with contempt of court. But so much mass pressure was brought to bear upon the court, that it was forced to dissolve the injunction and dismiss the contempt proceedings.

It is very easy to say that the T. U. E. L. is a dual union but another thing to prove it. That is why Hutcheson has not the courage to come before the membership of Detroit and try to prove this ridiculous claim.

The Difference Is Vital and Basic

What is a dual union? How does it function?

Any organization to be dual to the Carpenters' Union must try to occupy the same field,—that is, they must collect dues, issue charters, strive for job control, enter into agreements with employers, call strikes, elect business agents, presidents, secretaries, organizers, carry on organizing campaigns, take the carpenters out of the United Brotherhood into their organization.

In other words, to be dual an organization must take over all the functions now being carried on by the Carpenters' Union. Hutcheson knows that the T. U. E. L. does not do this. That is why he violates the constitution, and under this crude and lying excuse expels those who disagree with him politically or who are trying to expose his corrupt administration.

This is What the League Is.

The T. U. E. L. is what its name implies, an educational organization. It has neither membership, as that term is generally understood, nor does it collect dues,—although if this were done, it still would not make it a dual union. It is a grouping of individuals who believe in certain ideals, such as amalgamation, independent working class political action, exposure of corrupt labor bureaucratic officialdom, etc.

It works amongst the organized workers to try thru propaganda and by example to replace the class collaboration policy of the Hutchesons, Lewises, Greens et al., with the class struggle program advocated by the T. U. E. L.

It works among the unorganized workers to bring them closer to and finally into the trade unions. It is neither dual nor antagonistic, but is complimentary to the trade unions.

The Real Reason.

It is, however, the uncompromising enemy of reaction and corruption within the labor movement. That is why it numbers among its enemies Wm. L. Hutcheson.

The T. U. E. L. fights dual unionism wherever it meets it, just as determinedly as it is fighting Hutcheson's expulsion policy. Both of these ruinous tactics accomplish the same results. The dualists pull the militants out of the union and Hutcheson expels them. The result, if successful, leaves the reactionaries in complete control. So the T. U. E. L. very logically and consistently fights against dualism and expulsions.

Reynolds, for years, has been active in the Carpenters' Union of Detroit. He has carried on an educational campaign to place the Carpenters' Union solidly upon the basis of the class struggle. The result of this work shows itself in the last election for international president, where the Detroit carpenters cast a majority vote for Morris Rosen, the left wing candidate for president as against the reactionary Hutcheson. This, and this alone, was the reason why he was expelled without trial by Hutcheson.

Tomorrow I will explain further the crimes of Hutcheson and the lies of Duffey.

CENTRAL DISTRICT

"RESIGN!" DEMAND COMMUNISTS OF FARRINGTON, IN A SCATHING OPEN LETTER TO DISTRICT HEAD

CHRISTOPHER, Ill.—The following is an open letter to Frank Farrington and his District Executive Board, from the Workers Party English Branch, Christopher, Ill.

"As this branch, being composed of miners, was a party to the attempt to bring about a convention of the Illinois miners to discuss and devise ways and means to help the unemployed, and force the operators to live up to the contract, as the officials seem to have lost, or forgot any contractual power to do so (witness the O'Fallon case on division of work), and also a party to the formation of unemployment councils to help alleviate the suffering of the starving miners, their wives and families, and as Farrington and his board find unemployment councils to be dual unions and their advocates are ordered to abandon same, this branch, in reply does hereby most emphatically declare as follows:

An Immediate Convention.

"First: That a convention of the Illinois miners should be held at once to devise ways and means to help the suffering miners in the unemployed sections of our district, as the following facts prove the necessity.

"The miners from Sessor solicited aid from the district office and were denied, because of lack of constitutional authority. The Sessor miners had been out over a year, and were and are in a hellish condition.

"The San Doval men applied for a loan, and gave all the security they had, but it was likewise turned down, because of insufficient security. The men at San Doval are the victims of a lockout because they refused to take a reduction in wages and surrender their contractual right to take up their case, i. e., a reduction in wages of the shot firers and exam's, and the imposition of new and unfair conditions in violation of the contract.

"These men were locked out, and have received no work or aid for over a year. Their homes are sold or mortgaged and starvation and sickness is prevalent thruout the town. Finally, in desperation, they appealed for aid to the district—and were denied.

"These two camps are a sample of scores thruout the state. There are many members thruout the state starving, who have been members of the organization long before Farrington ever knew what a union was, and have paid into it more than Farrington ever did or ever will and have fought their union battles as MEN, and now in the hour of their need, they are denied any aid whatever, and because of this position of FARRINGTON AND HIS BOARD, this branch felt, and feels now, it was, and is, necessary to call a convention, even if for no other purpose than the above.

Unemployment Councils Not Dual Unions.

"Second: We deny that unemployment councils are dual unions. Farrington, for his own reasons, may so declare them, but he doesn't convince anyone outside his official oilers; and he can keep on so declaring, if he derives any pleasure from the declaration.

"We do not feel starving miners are much worried about empty declarations, and as that seems to be all the starving miners are to get from the district office, they have not much to be thankful for.

"What are these unemployment councils? What are they organized for? Who composes them? The answer to these questions determines their lack of dualism. The unemployment councils are a voluntary meeting of unemployed miners and members of the U. M. W. of A. in and around the mines. There is no charter to this organization of disgusted, discouraged, and outraged, unemployed workers.

"These unemployed workers meet at intervals in divers places to discuss the economic situation from every angle, particularly as it effects the miner, and they have proposed the following policy to be used in a campaign to educate the public to the justice of our demands:

We Fight for this Policy.

"(a) Nationalization of mines. (b) Until the public is ready for same, or we are ready to force its acceptance, the six-hour day, and five-day week, to equalize employment, and give to each person his share. (c) A guarantee of a minimum weekly wage corresponding to an American standard of living.

"These are our immediate demands and when an economic condition arises that prevents the contract from being carried out, it becomes null and void, because of its impossibility.

"Farrington and his board has no policy to help the unemployed. They are policy bankrupt. Therefore, as leaders they are failures, and because of their failure, the necessity has arisen to organize councils of the unemployed workers to try and help ourselves.

"Starve and be Damned."

"Just think of starving desperate fathers being told that they are enemies of the union for getting together with their buddies to try and do something for their semi-starved children.

"We have seen a man carried to his grave here starved, and little children go about more dead than alive because of malnutrition. This condition exists all over the state, and yet the state officials refuse to do anything about it. THEIR POLICY SEEMS TO BE: 'STARVE AND BE DAMNED.'

"Farrington has received the confidence of the miners, and he has betrayed that confidence by his recent ruling, therefore he has prostituted the high office to which he was elected and in justice to the miners, their wives and little ones, whom he has betrayed and insulted, we call upon him to resign from the presidency and keep out of the affairs of the miners' union which he is wrecking by his dirty rulings.

An Excuse that Won't Go.

"According to this latest wrecking ruling of the Himalayan expense gentry, if me, even employed, should meet at the switch at their working places and discuss unemployment, they would be dual unionists! The Sub-District No. 5 has an educational bureau, and they talk of the cause of unemployment and its cure. They are dual unionists also! Ye gods, by what perverted process of reasoning have the mighty ones arrived at such a conclusion? They refuse because of their utter ignorance or unconcern to help us, or permit us to attempt to help ourselves.

"No money to help the miners' little children, weak from malnutrition. Their little, white faces, sunken eyes, and fevered bodies, all too plainly indicate their dangerous condition.

"But what do you care, Farrington? You, who are well fed, well groomed, with your big salary and fat expense account?

"Farrington, your drink is the blood of these little ones.

"Farrington, your bread is the bodies of the miners' families; the money to pay your salaries and expenses are the lives of the miners and their families, buried in paupers' graves, and dying of starvation.

"Their life-giving blood is dripping from you, your very soul is red with the blood of the innocent children of the miners.

"No help, indeed, for the miners who built up the treasury, but money for investigations of freak class collaboration, power plant schemes.

Down With Class Collaboration!

"Yes, Farrington—class collaboration schemes which you hope will perpetuate yourself as a vampire on the jugular vein of innocent children. Common decency calls to high heaven that you resign from the position you have prostituted. The miners will never forget the ruling, and the attempt to destroy the only weapon they have, Farrington.

"You stand convicted before the bar of working class opinion. Resign and save yourself further disgrace.

"Yours for justice,

"ENGLISH BRANCH, CHRISTOPHER, ILLINOIS, Workers Party of America."

OFFICIALS HELP COAL COMPANIES CHEAT MINERS

Mine Committees Must Fight Both

ELLSWORTH, Pa.—This is a mining town owned by the Bethlehem Steel corporation, or Charley Schwab, organized by the U. M. W. of A., Local 1190. The miners of this local had a complaint about their scale a few months ago and they tried all ways to find out where the trouble was.

They had the state scale inspector come to look over the scale, but, when he came, he went first to the coal company's office and talked it over with the company's officials. Then he went to see the scale, and, as expected, he O. K.ed it.

The miners then asked to have the empty cars weighed but the company refused for about two months, then one good day the company officials notified the miners that the cars were to be weighed. After the cars were weighed the miners found that they lost 400 lbs on each car.

The men then decided that perhaps their checkweighman was on the company's side so the miners decided to have him changed and put two instead of one in his place. The man got $14.00 a day. They decided to put two men on and pay each $8.00 a day. At the time of the election the miners had no experienced checkweighman in their local so they decided to have one man from their own local and one from another local that is idle.

The day after the election these two men went to work, but the company's officials refused to leave both men on the tipple, because the experienced chckweighman was no employe of the company.

When the miners saw that, they all went home and decided not to go back until that man goes on the scale.

After the officials were notified about the strike, they were soon there with the whole outfit of reactionary officials, who told us it was "against the agreement" to strike for a man that was not an employe of that company.

They also told the miners that the district would not support the strike and that it was "not time to strike" when this same company has so many mines shut down, and that they should work while they can because under this agreement they won't work very long anyway, and that a dollar now will be worth five in a short while.

So, after all was said and done, they got the men to go back to work with two inexperienced checkweighmen, and now they are just as bad off as they were before.

They have big steel cars in the mine and a full car weighed four tons a few years ago, and now they only weigh three tons. There are 400 loaders in that mine, if each man loads three cars a day and gets cheated out of 1 ton of every car he loads that means 1,200 tons a day and 36,000 tons in 30 days.

This shows how the companies make money while the poor man works for nothing. Organize mine committees to take up these grievances against both the companies and the rotten officials.

EASTERN DISTRICT

DAVISON ASKS WHY; AND GETS MANY REASONS

Remind Faker of a Bare Faced Fraud

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—Machinists' local Lodge accuses international officials of being responsible for defrauding the lodge out of thousands of dollars and reinstating crooks into the organization over the protest of the local lodge.

Keystone Lodge No. 1070, of the International Association of Machinists at Harrisburgh, Penn., answers E. C. Davison, secretary-treasurer of the machinists' organization, to a communication sent by him, (Davison,) to lodges that did not nominate him asking the reason why. This local lodge gives the reason why they did not nominate Davison, and furthermore gives the reason why Johnston was not nominated.

This letter is being sent to all the local lodges of the machinists' organization, giving two specific cases why they are opposing the present officialdom. Only one of the cases mentioned is enough for honest members of the machinists' organization to rise in their strength and expel the officialdom, not only from their present offices but also from the organization.

They are personally responsible of defrauding the local lodge of $3,000 and members and former members of the lodge to the amount of $12,000 and the Central Labor Union to the amount of $4,700. The letter is as follows:

Keystone Lodge No. 1070, I. A. of M., Harrisburg, Penna.

An open letter to E. C. Davison.

"Harrisburg, Pa., March 11th, 1925.

"Mr. E. C. Davison, Sec'y.-Treas., Machinists' Bldg., Washington, D. C.,

Dear Sir and Brother:

"In reply to your letter of February 13th, 1925, in which you ask why Keystone Lodge No. 1070 did not nominate you for general secretary-treasurer, beg to say that from the experience we have had with you we consider you totally unfit and untrustworthy to fill the important position you now hold and to which you seek re-election. Following are a few specific reasons for the above opinion.

"We charge you with being mainly responsible for the loss to our lodge of $3,000, to our members and former members of between $12,000 and $14,000, and to the Central Labor Union of Harrisburg of $4,700 by encouraging the purchase of stock in the Columbia Credit corporation of Washington, D. C., which had their offices in the machinists' building, and in which you were a stockholder. We understand that some of the other officers of our organization had been approached to buy stock in this corporation and declined, and were later offered some stock gratis for the use of their name among the railroad men. They refused to allow their names to be used in this scheme and you, or any other officer should have done the same.

"You will recall that a committee from our lodge was sent to Washington to see you and President Johnson and after interviewing you, they came back and reported that they were satisfied that you were a stock holder in the Columbia Credit corporation and that it was sound. We charge that an officer in your position should know the character of concerns that they recommend to our membership and had you at that time warned our committee we would not have purcased stock in the above corporation and you would have saved our lodge, our members individually, and the Central Labor Union members several thousand dollars, besides a loss of faith in organized labor.

"We recall that a representative of the above named corporation came to our lodge in Harrisburg and showed in the presence of Brother Tom Corrol and our members, moving pictures taken in Washington, D. C. with the officers of the Columbia Credit corporation, yourself, and President Johnson mingling together, which seemed to us proof that there was a close connection between the corporation and our organization and therefore was a safe concern.

"Further than this, we were told by the representative that they were on the inside of all that was going on in our association and that they could help us, and they did on one occasion have printed in our print shop, some red paper bricks to sell for stock promotion, which our lodge did not authorize but had to pay for. At any rate we lost everything, including our confidence in you and our international president.

"We further condemn you for reinstating A. F. Speese to the grand lodge. We dropped this man because we had found him to be crooked. When you wrote that he wanted to be reinstated, we protested against it. We told you our experience with him. Still you did reinstate him and then told us that a secret investigator would visit Harrisburg and if our statement was correct you would drop him. We have heard nothing further of this secret investigator. We charge that you should have made the investigation before you reinstated him. If you still contemplate investigation, Mr. Speese will not be hard to locate for a few years, because he is in the Eastern penitentiary of Pennsylvania as a result of being convicted of embezzling the so-called Labor Bank of Harrisburg of $28,000.

"Speese became a bank promoter after we dropped him; a so-called labor bank was being organized and naturally it was expedient to have it promotors members of unions and in order that they could the better reach and mislead our members into buying stock.

"Tell us, Brother Davison, is there a bond of fellowship between you bank officials which led you to take such extraordinary liberties in reinstating Speese? Will you take equal liberties in reinstating former railroad scabs over the protests of lodges which might not want them for members?

"The fact that Speese was convicted of embezzlement is proof that you should have complied with our request and not reinstated him. This might have saved Speese from the penitentiary and it certainly would have saved some of the workers some money. For many of them bought stock in this so-called Labor Bank which is now defunct.

"We further condemn you for writing us upon the stationery of the grand lodge and at our expense to ask us why we did not support you, and to other lodges thanking them for their support. We condemn you also for sending out two other campaign letters at our expense. We are sure you would not let your opponents send their literature out of your office and at the expense of the grand lodge as you are doing.

"Our condemnation against the forgoing misconduct is not against you alone but should be shared by the international president, for after all, he is the head of the organization and should be sufficiently close to all affairs to prevent these acts which we complain against.

"In our opinion we believe it would be more advisable if our officers paid more attention to the affairs of labor, whereby all the members could receive some benefits from their efforts. So we think you are both unfitted for the positions you seek and these are the reasons we did not support your candidacy.

"Trusting that this answers your letter satisfactory, we remain

Fraternally yours,

(Signed)—

M. CALLEN, President,
W. B. VELDER, Vice President,
C. R. SHORT, Secretary,
C. S. DAVIDSON, Fin. Secretary,
G. R. OWENS, Comm. Chairman."

The reinstatement of Speese is not the only crime that can be laid at the door of the grand lodge officers or being responsible of keeping members in the organization that they know themselves are dishonest. While at the same time real honest progressive trade unions are expelled for advocating progressive measures and opposing the policy of the present officialdom.

It is to the interest of labor fakers such as Johnston and Davison to keep within the organization such men as Speese and expel men that challenge the power of the fakers. This will continue within our organization as long as the men support individuals instead of candidates running on a left wing program.

Build the Shop Committees!

Many letters of this nature can be sent out, but if there is no organized movement made to bring the matter to the attention of the rank and file and remove those responsible for defrauding the members of the organization the letter will have no effect. The shop committees, of all rank and file workers, will be the means of turning the union over to the members and putting all crooks and fakers outside the door.

A. C. W. FIGHTS RIGHT WINGE IN PHILADELP

Local 140 First to hold Left Wing

By ALEX BAIL

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., March There is a decided swing to the in the Amalgamated Clothing ers of America.

The expulsion of Local No. New York is, however, not a phenomenon. It is rapidly ass the form of a national policy.

In Philadelphia, Local 140 wa first to feel the effect of this policy, announced by Hillman arrogant speech to the New joint board. Prior to the electio local offices and delegates to the board, a vicious campaign agains left wing administration was laun by the right wing badly disguis the "Council."

Rumors, half truths and just mon lies flooded the market. Jewish candidate for business and the candidates for the othe fices and committees were brande anti-semites who give the avail jobs to Italians and keep the Je workers on the street.

Try To Terrorize Members

Shop chairman worked with g zeal and hinted to militant work that a vote for the left administra will mean the loss of their job. Ev means of corecion was put to use an effort to defeat the administrat But the great majority of the m bers refused to be intimidated.

They were convinced of the hone and integrity of the militant lead of Local No. 140 and they would listen to the slander of the sh characters of the "Council," seve of whom were thoroly discredited other organizations in which th were active, and others who are this very day closer in ideology the United Garment Workers than the A. Mr. Rudow Defies Mr. Rudow

The membership gave its decis answer when it re-elected the old a ministration by a vote of 2 to 1. T right wingers staged a demonstrati and a handful of them straggled amid the jeers of the members It is essential at this point to me that Mr. Rudow, the Philadelphia ma ager of the Amalgamated, presided the meeting, counted the votes and d clared the old administration re-elect ed.

When the delegates of Local 14 came to the meeting of the joint board, Mr. Rudow declared that th election was illegal and therefore th delegates can not be seated. Th reasons he gave were that a group members left the meeting and th the elections were made by a show of hands and not by secret ballot.

The members of the joint board realized that the cause lay deeper tha that Mr. Rudow was manufacturing reasons. There is not a single local in the Philadelphia joint board that elects local officers by any other means then a show of hands. Local 140 has always elected officers in the same manner and it was never challenged. Mr. Rudow presided at the election and not only had he no word of reproof but he declared the delegates and officers elected.

Mr. Rudow had one good reason which he saw fit to keep under cover. The reason is, that with the delegates of Local 140 seated, Mr. Rudow cannot control the joint board.

The membership of the local does want to become the victim of Rudow's political schemes, and they bitterly resent his actions. The local voted to reject the decision of the joint board and demands the seating of its and demands the seating of its delegates.

Joint Board Calls New Elections

The joint board has met again, and old timers in the Amalgamated say that it was the most bitterly contested meeting in many years. Of special significance is the fact that the delegation from the Italian local under the leadership of De Martini stood solid and led the fight for Local 140. Even with the seats of Local 140 vacant the vote stood 12 to 12 on a motion to call a new election by secret vote.

It was with the vote of the machine chairman that the decision was made. The election will be carried out under the control of a special committee of the joint board and one can well imagine what methods will be used to oust the present delegates.

Do It Over—And Better

Altho the members of the local are opposed to a new election they will most likely accept it as a last resort in order to again support the present delegation to the joint board. The members of Local 140 will again show that they can not be intimidated and browbeaten into accepting a discredited leadership. They will again elect the left wing delegates in spite of all obstacles.

JAILED MINER PRAISES WORK OF MILITANTS

ing in the Temple at Bellaire and do whatever good you can.

"There is some controversy going on in the order between certain officials and some of our members known as progressives, therefore I desire to make known that those whom the officials would censure are some of the best, truest and most loyal men we have. Good workers for the cause, true to their brethren in adversity and loyal to the principles of right and justice upon which our order is founded.

"They have heard our cry behind the prison wall, responding nobly to the call. 'Twas they who visited us and ministered unto our every need.

"It was these men, the progressives, that stirred the membership to action, finally opening the prison doors to twenty five of our brothers, while some of the officials proclaimed that it could not be done.

"I cannot meet the brothers at the Temple and attest in person to the fine and manly way in which they fulfilled their obligation to us men behind the walls in Moundsville. I can only hope that the assembly will be imbued with a spirit of fairness and uprightness and sufficient in numbers to sustain those brothers against any unfair attack that may be launched against them and to rebuke those who would attempt to expel from our ranks even the least among us, an act which in itself would violate the obligation, intent and purpose of our noble order to uphold for freedom of thought whether expressed by tongue or pen, and to have all mine workers join our union."

"With best wishes to you personally, I remain faithfully,

"Joe Ragus."

Officials Let Down Prisoners

This shows that it was the progressives who drove the machine into action. The men themselves say so. In spite of the fact that the machine promised to take care of the men, at a meeting held in Charleroi on Feb. 15th, two men who were released from Moundsville due to the pressure of the progressives, stated that the officials never gave the men the aid they promised them.

It was by stories like these that Fagan did his work. His statements so enraged one of the delegates that he called him a liar from the floor. He was followed by Hargest, secretary of his district, who made the same type of talk that he did, thus greasing the machine for the attack that was to follow.

Short Shrift to French Agent

lots exactly will pass to China, those lands remain under the control of the line, and no one has the right to seize and dispose of them by violence or with the help of armed police force.

"In their desire to hand over the lands in question to the Chinese authorities, the Russian members of the board of directors made a proposition to that effect as early as November last, but as the Chinese members of the board had no instructions from yourself they failed to endorse the Russian proposal, which resulted in the issue having been protracted till now. It was only after the misunderstanding with the 'District No. 8' had occurred that, aceeding to the urgent proposition of the Russian members, the board, on January 12, decided to constitute a commission for the delimination of the lands and handing them over to China.

"I have approved this decision of the board and appointed a person to be on the said commission, and I may hope that you will also appoint a delegate to represent the Chinese side, there will be a prospect then of settling the land question within the briefest space of time. I feel certain that the solution of this question will offer no difficulty—not only because the matter is provided for in the treaty but also because we think it just and fair that land taken from China should be restored to her.

Somebody Butting In.

"As regards the charges you bring against the general manager of the railway, Ivanoff, you have no doubt been incorrectly informed by interested persons, seeing that your complaints are disproved by all the real facts, documents and the acting status of the management of the railway.

"As a matter of fact, Ivanoff has all thru acted legally and in the limit of rights conferred upon him. The tax which was ordered to levied in 'District No. 8' exists in all the other districts to analogous intents and purposes. The district in question had been exempted from that tax for the sole reason to help it develop. The administration of the railway had spent big sums of money to equip the district and the royalty paid by the merchants concerned went to defray the expenditure of the railway which ran up to about half a million roubles.

"Now after the Chinese authorities seized 'District No. 8' without any preliminary agreement with the administration of the railway and then resorted to police measures to prevent the merchants from paying the money due to the railway, the general manager should have—on the strength of the existing regulations—caused the car service to be altogether discontinued. However, being reluctant to cause ruin to the merchants he limited himself to ordering such taxes to be levied as are enforced in all the other railway districts. By doing so the manager indeed showed maximum leniency.

"General" Breaks Agreement.

"If the merchants are dissatisfied, the fault thereof is entirely General Chang Ho-hsiang's, who disrespects the Mukden agreement, the existing laws and regulations and the board of directors of the Chinese Eastern Railway, half of whose members consists of your own appointees. If instead of aiming at a friendly understanding and a respect for mutual rights, General Chang Ho-hsiang chooses to have recourse to sheer force, it will be really difficult to foresee all the consequences of such violent actions.

"I may be allowed to voice my deep regret that you should so light-heartedly make charges against the general manager, Ivanoff, who has, during his short term of office, put the railway under his charge into condition which ought to call forth nothing else than feelings of sincere appreciation on the part both of the Chinese and the Soviet governments. It will suffice to point out that within three months of his management of the line, Ivanoff has brot down the floating debt of the enterprise from 10.5 to 4.5 million rubles, which evidently testifies to an economic and competent management. However, if military officers will persist in interfering with the commercial business of the railway, a situation is bound to arise that will indeed be threatening to both parties.

Quickly Forgets the Past.

"Your parallel between the actions of Ivanoff and those of Russian monarchists only tends to show how rapidly the memory has been lost of the regime established on the Chinese Eastern Railway by the monarchists—a regime under which the Chinese authorities and the population had to obey the will not of their people but of the czarist officials and when not only the merchants but the Chinese authorities as well depended on the management of the railway. The Russian revolution swept away the acts of oppression of the czarist government over the rights of the Chinese people, and this consideration alone should have moved you to refrain from making uncautious charges against those whom the revolution has qualified for friendly and brotherly work with the Chinese people.

"Referring to your request that I wire to the general manager and suspend the levying of the taxes, I regret to say that I have not the right to do so as it would constitute a violation of the Mukden agreement. Indeed, the general manager being subordinate to the board of directors, I cannot give him any orders over the heads of the board. The only way of settling the matter is that the merchants concerned negotiate directly with the management of the line. If instead of troubling you with unwarranted and unsubstantial complaints—doing it under pressure from outside, those merchants had started negotiations with the management, the question at issue could have been settled long ago

"That, however, they refused to do in spite of the suggestion of the management. Constantly encouraged as they were by unfortunate counsels, the merchants failed to avail themselves of the week's term accorded them by acting chairman, Mr. Yuan, and vice-chairman of the C. E. R., Mr. Pozdeyeff, for negotiating. Nevertheless, I wish to ask you to advise them to choose the lawful path of negotiations with the general manager, such way being the only one that can lead to a settlement of the matter.

"I may assure you that the Russian members of the board of directors are working in a friendly manner together with the Chinese members of the same and understand each other thoroly well. Their joint work, which is done in the interests of both countries, really should not be interferred with by uninvited intervention from outside.

"I wish to ask you, in conclusion, to give orders to the Chinese authorities at Harbin: (1) that they should not interfere with the commercial business of the railway and violate the Mukden agreement; (2) that a delegate be appointed for the delimitation and handing over to China of the railway land, (3) that the merchants concerned be advised to come to terms with the management of the railway; (4) that the actual assumption of office by the chairman of the board of directors be expedited, and that failing this a new person be appointed to the post of chairman, as otherwise his absence is harmful to the business.

Hopes He Likes Frankness.

"On my own part, I have sent instructions to the members of the board and the general manager of the railway that they be considerate towards the Chinese merchants, who were made a tool of alien influences interested in bringing matters on the line to a head and whose fault is thus less than the guilt of those who are behind them.

"I hope you will appreciate the frankness of my message."

The Soviet ambassador's telegram was sent under date of the 23rd of last month.

Roman Catholics Balk at Ownership by State in Mexico

MEXICO CITY, March 16.—The Soledad church has been closed to worship by orders of President Calles in settlement of the conflict created by the Knights of Guadalupe, followers of the Mexican catholic apostolic church, who recently took over the building by force and ejected the Roman catholic priest, Father Silva.

President Calles declared Patriarch Perez of the new sect and his followers had broken the constitution by taking national property under the keeping of the Roman catholic church without fulfilling the requirements of the law.

On the other hand the president found the Roman catholic clergy had declared themselves in open rebellion against the constitution, "despising the authorities throu their most prominent spokesman."

The Roman catholic clergy, the statement continued, refused to recognize state ownership of the church building and the government's right to exercise control over church worship and practices.

Insane Victims of Capitalism Crowd State of Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio, March 16.—The judiciary committee of the state house of representatives has recommended the passage of the bill introduced by Representative Knapp, requiring that all epileptics criminals and feeble minded persons, before being released from any state institution, shall be examined by a competent physician or neurologist.

There are thirty one thousand feeble minded men women and children in this state, according to a survey made by the Cleveland Press several weeks ago.

One need not be a professional neurologist to know that the vast majority of these unfortunate individuals are workers who were shell shoked in the war, or were driven insane thru intense suffering in the hell holes of the steel mills and factories of the sovereign state of Ohio.

The vast majority of the thirty one thousand are at large, because the state refuses to provide homes and institutions for them, while the lot of those who are imprisoned is even worse. Inadequate and unsanitary buildings are used to house them, many of the buildings being fire traps.

Feeble minded morons, epileptics and criminally insane people will be found as long as workers are ruthlessly exploited and ground down, as long as capitalism remains the ruler and the workers are a miserable, impoverished subject class.

BUILDERS AT WORK

Builders at Work in New York.

HUNDREDS of members of the Workers Party and the Young Workers League have been at work selling the special one-month subscriptions the last few weeks in connection with the press pageant at Madison Square Garden. Their names will not be known until their branch agents report them to the DAILY WORKER New York agency.

All DAILY WORKER agents who have not yet done so are instructed to report the record of every member immediately to L. E. Katterfeld, 108 East 14th St., so that the list for the entire New York district may be compiled and published in the DAILY WORKER at an early date.

Altho most members confined their energy to selling the special one-month subscriptions during the contest, the comrades mentioned below also sent in the following regular subscriptions during this same time:

Chas. Musil, Czecho-Slovak branch	3
L. Hirschman, Harlem English branch	2
H. F. Mins, Harlem English branch	2

What Bromley Saw in Russia

and the medium in Russia was an extremely happy one.

Dealing first with the defects which he had found in the Russian system, Mr. Bromley said that it was true that there was neither free speech nor a free press. The Russians frankly admitted this, saying that they refused to allow European capitalism, which had failed to defeat them with the bayonet, to subsidize opposition presses and imported speakers.

Political Prisoners.

When they saw the menshevik leaders in prison Mr. Bromley said that imprisonment of opponents would jar on the British people, and that we would not like our labor party executive to be imprisoned for holding different views from the government.

"I received the reply," said Mr. Bromley, "that if the labor party executive in this country passed a resolution meaning 'death at sight' to the leaders of the present government, they might not be long out of prison, even in Britain.

"Honestly," he declared, "I think I have said all I can against Russia, and now I have much to say in favor of it."

The Trade Unions.

The explained that trade unions in Russia held a different position to our own. They were not instruments for fighting capital, but really the instruments thru which the Soviets governed.

They provided the workers with houses and medical attendance, and any worker could, in addition to his annual holiday, be ordered by a doctor to a rest house or convalescent home for any period up to six weeks if exhausted by work.

He saw many of these rest houses. They were scrupulously clean and very beautiful, being mansions of the departed nobility.

Such benefits, he urged, must be taken into account when considering the wages paid.

An American woman stenographer told him that £7 a month in Russia was as good as £7 a week in New York.

Cheap Food.

He explained how, thru the trade unions and co-operative stores, food could be obtained by the workers at cost price, and declared, "There is plenty of food in Russia, not only wholesome food, but even luxurious.

"Even in the prisons the prisoners have co-operative stores where money earned by prison work at trade union rates may be spent on cakes, fruit, cigars and tobacco."

One point in which Russia is in advance of our own traffic regulations was the law that insisted that, if people were getting out of a stationery tramcar, all other traffic must stop till it moved on again.

It was untrue, he said, that Russia had suppressed religion. It had simply diseastablished the state church, and spent no money on religious teaching. All religions were, however, free, and worship went on in the churches as before. He strongly denied the reports of the destruction of statuary and art treasures.

Woman's Moral Status.

Mr. Bromley described as "a terrible slander" the suggestion that woman's moral status had been degraded in Russia. Marriage was certainly a civil contract, and divorce, tho only if both parties were willing and desirous was fairly easy; but woman's moral status was good, and a remarkable change in general morality was evident.

There were now no houses of ill-fame, which under czardom were officially opened and "the rooms and women blessed by priests." Prostitution had now been wiped out as nearly he thot as was humanly possible.

The care of the children was remarkable. They looked happy, well clothed, and well fed.

The peasants had had the land of the old landowners shared out amongst them, according to the number in the family, and were being educated in agricultural science and assisted with motor-ploughs.

"I have told you tonight," cancluded Mr. Browley, "what I actually found. I have told you the black side and the bright side, and I firmly believe that there is a great future before Russia, and I am satisfied that a combination of all the capitalists in the world will never take it back from the people who have won it." (Applause.)

"B. & O." Johnston to Read the Will of the Dead C. P. P. A.

CLEVELAND, O., March 16.—The still-born progressive party of Cuyahoga county is importing the leading pall bearer at the Chicago funeral of the LaFollette movement to try and revive the dying spirit of a political hybrid. This individual is no other than "B. & O. Bill" Johnston, of class collaboration fame.

The advance publicity sent out by the midwives, declares that Johnston is a "fighting leader of the Machinists' Union." If Johnston has been doing any fighting it has not been against the bosses, as the decreasing membership of his union will prove. Instead, he has been instrumental in forcing the B. & O. plan down the throats of the railroad machinists, forcing them to give up working conditions wrested from the bosses after hard struggles and practically forcing the men in his union to give up the right to strike.

Johnston has been a consistent opponent of amalgamation, even after the disastrous shopmen's strike of 1922; he has expelled militants and active members of the I. A. of M. for advocating measures which would make the Machinists' Union a power that the bosses would fear and he has worked hand in hand with the middle class politicans of the LaFollette type.

Trade unionists of this city have been invited to attend the meeting in the Engineers Auditorium, to be held March 20, at which Johnston will report on the conference for progressive political action, held in Chicago last month.

BOASTS OF 4,448 DEPORTATIONS IN LAST SIX MONTHS

Numbers of Alien Workers Turned Over by Spies

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 16—"In the last six months the deportations amounted to 4,448, an increase of about one-third over any similar period of our history." Such is the boast of Senator David Reed, a republican of Pennsylvania on the floor of the United States senate yesterday.

Perfectly satisfied with this accomplishment of the capitalist white terror against alien workers, the senator went on to say that not only were more workers being deported from this once heralded "refuge of the oppressed," but that far more were leaving for southeastern and eastern Europe than were arriving, evidently not so enthusiastic over American democracy as to wish to stay, while the net gain from all Europe of arrivals over departures in the last six months is only 19,203.

America Not So Popular.

It was revealed that during the last six months no less than 48,120 aliens shook the dirt of democracy off their shoes for good and left for Europe to stay, while only 67,303 of Europe's population, supposed to be waiting at the gate trying to get in, really came. When this figure is compared with the fact that in 1914 alone 801,000 immigrants arrived from Europe over and above the aliens who went back, the full force of the international working class' disillusion about the charms of living in America and enjoying the rule of Open Shopper Dawes, the $25 a week average American wage and the lynching parties of the ku klux klan, may be realized.

"We Get 'Em with Spies."

For those brave souls who try to burglarize their way into the paradise of the 12-hour day and the seven day week of Judge Gary, Senator Reed boasts that an effective net has been put up at the border, and enuf spies and sneaks stationed at points in the interior, to prevent the hardy alien from getting away with it.

"There are not enuf of them coming to bring the numbers that are said to be smuggling themselves in. The rum fleet off New York smuggles in a few. There are a few smuggled across the Canadian border. It is very easy to come across on a Detroit ferry, for instance if one speaks English and looks like an American. The inspectors don't have time to examine them very carefully.

Lots of Walls to Climb Over.

"We are guarding against smuggling by locating our inspectors in Canadian seaports and Mexican seaports, infinitely better than we could by trying to police the border. We have recently established a police force of about 250 border police. The Canadian border is 3,980 miles long, the Mexican boundary 1,744 mines, the Gulf of Mexico increases the frontier by 7,600 miles, which is comparitively easy for an alien to cross in safety.

Stool Pigeons Everywhere.

"But it is practically impossible for an immigrant to smuggle himself in and stay hidden. It is not always that our inspectors get him, but somebody whose job he has taken or somebody who has a personal reason for telling on him always informs immigration authorities, and in the end they get him.

"We have picked up a surprising number on applications for citizenship. After a few years they apply for citizenship, and then to their astonishment they are arrested and deported."

Americh for "Americans."

The senator, after stating that Asiatic immigration was no problem because fewer Asiatics want to come to America than are leaving America to go back to Asia, sat down, thoroly pleased that the American Indians are all confined to reservations and are not allowed to drink moonshine or vote for Coolidge.

UNIONS ADOPT STAND OF REDS ON CHILD LABOR

All Trades Behind Communists' Fight

NEW YORK, N. Y., March 16.—The Workers Party and the Young Workers League of New York district following the program outlined by the central executive committee of the Workers Party and the national executive committee of the Young Workers League in the campaign against child labor, have already circularized all of the unions and other labor and fraternal organizations with a letter and resolution unmasking the entire system of child labor exploitation existing in the United States.

The Workers Party and the Young Workers League will carry on a strenuous campaign in this district against child labor, not only by exposing the child exploitation that exists in this city, but also by unmasking the bourgeois liberal organizations that pretend to favor the abolition of child labor. Only thru the abolition of the entire system of capitalist exploitation will child labor be abolished.

The Workers Party and the Young Workers League call upon the militant members of the labor organizations of this city to see to it that the resolution is acted upon in their organization, to see to it that members of the Workers Party or Young Workers League are invited to speak on the resolution to insure the mobilization of their organization behind the Communist campaign to abolish child labor.

Among those organizations acting favorably on the resolution are: Millinery Hand Workers' Union; Glass Bevelers, Mirror Workers' and Cutters' Union; Bakers' Union No. 3, A. F. W.; Waterproof Garment Workers' Union; Workmen's Circle branches No. 64 and 546; Workmen's Sick and Death Benefit Fund Branch No. 103. etc.

Old Revolutionist and Workers Party Friend Passes Away

In the last miners election he took an active part in the campaign for the progressives.

He leaves an aged father and mother both 66 years of age. His mother is now in a state hospital, having been sent there because of the constant worry that he would be drafted in the war to make profit for the bosses.

Hundreds of his friends attended his funeral and great masses of flowers were placed on his grave. Max Salzman and J. J. Hoge spoke at the funeral.

New York Tailors Meeting Thursday

NEW YORK CITY.—The workers in custom tailoring of New York and vicinity, are invited to a mass organization meeting by the executive board of Local No. 1, Journeymen Tailors' Union of America, to be held at Bohemian Hall, 321 East 73rd street, on Thursday evening, March 19, at 8 p. m. Prominent speakers in English and Italian. Unorganized tailors are especially welcome.

CLEVELAND TO HAVE COSTUME BALL, APRIL 5

All Countries Will Be Represented

CLEVELAND, Ohio, March 16.—Preparations are well under way for the entertainment, bazaar, and international costume ball to be given by local Cleveland, Workers Party, on April 5, in Gardina's Hall, 6021 St. Clair Ave.

The entertainment in the afternoon will include a musical program by various singing societies and musical organizations of the Cleveland workers. The Finnish workers' athletic organization will present a gymnastic exhibition and special features are being arranged in the line of entertainment.

The Hungarian, Jewish, and Lithuanian branches have already promised to have branch booths; and several other booths are counted upon by the local entertainment committee. The women's meeting on March 8, decided that the women of the party should make a special effort to secure donations of food for the refreshment stand.

Everyone is requested to come to the ball in the evening dressed in their native national costume. An international costume ball is somewhat of a novelty in local Cleveland, but should be all the more attractive because of that. The admission to the afternoon and evening combined will be 25 cents if tickets are purchased in advance or 45 cents at the door.

Tickets have been mailed out but anyone not receiving a supply to sell whether party members or sympathizer, should get in touch with the office, room 13, 5927 Euclid Ave., phone Randolph 4065. Let all get together and the hopes of the local entertainment committee will be easily realized to have this local Cleveland's biggest affair.

THREAD TRUST CUTS WAGES

Milo and Lake View, Me.; and Dalton, Ga. (a recent addition). The American Thread company controls the American Thread company of Canada, Ltd., incorporated on Sept. 26, 1922, in Canada with an authorized capitalization of $1,000,000.

Bonds the Best.

Just as the bonds of industrial slavery hold the mill workers secure, so are the bonds of the do-nothing class of coupon clippers, safe and sound. The mill slaves are tied to the mill town. Profits are securely tied to the bonds.

The rating given these bonds ($6,000,000 outstanding) is Aaa (the highest rating) which means regular interest. The bonds are secured by a first closed mortgage on all the company's fixed assets, namely land, building, machinery and equipment appraised at time of issue at over $18,000,000.

There are 1,200,000 shares of five per cent cumulative preferred stocks (par $5) authorized $6,000,000, which have preference over common in drawing dividends. Dividends have been paid regularly, semi-annually since the organization of the company.

Robbery.

There are 1,200,000 shares of common stock with a par value of $10, total $12,000,000. But par value was increased from $5 in December, 1919. There is paid up, according to Moody's Manual of Investments, $9 per share. But in December, 1919, when an assessment of $2.50 per share was called, the stock owners paid nothing.

They added the $3,000,000 by transferring it from various reserve funds, as follows.

From reserve for contingencies, $1,957,142.

General reserve fund, $300,000.

Bond redemption fund, $742,858.

Total, $3,000,000.

In June, 1921, an assessment of $1.50 per share was made payable July 8, 1921, making the total paid up common ($9 a share). Moody's Manual does not state where this money came from for the $1.50 assessment. But it is quite safe to assume that the same procedure was followed as in the previous robbing of money by juggling profits put in the reserve fund and placing it as capitalization, which is supposed to represent actual cash invested.

But the American Thread Co. is simply following in the footsteps of the other corporations which make such huge profits from the workers' labor power that they increase their capitalization.

They figure: If this corporation now yields large dividends we will increase the capital arbitrarily, and then the dividend percentage we make will only be half or a third of what it was. We cannot then be accused by our workers of making exorbitant profits.

So the American Thread, when it saw its profits increase, resorted to this international financial method so well known to Wall Street. If a share prior to 1919, value $5, drew $1 as dividends, it was 20 per cent; but on the basis of $10 it is only 10 percent.

Dividends on common stock were paid at amounts varying from 14 to 81 cents a share in each year from 1900 through 1914, except 1902, when none was paid, according to Moody.

On a par value of $5, this means a dividend of 2.8 per cent to 16.2 per cent for those years. Dividends paid since then are on March 31 of each year.

1915—45c or 9 per cent.

1916—54c, and 27c extra. Total 81 cents or 16.2 per cent.

1917—11months to Feb. 28, 49½c plus 27c extra. Total 76½c or 15 per cent for 11 months.

1918—13 months to March 31. 58½c plus 45c extra. Ttotal $1.03½ or 20.7 per cent for 13 months.

1919—60c plus 40c extra. Total $1 or 20 per cent.

1920—75c plus 37½c extra. Total $1.12½ or 22 per cent.

1921—60c plus 50c extra. Total $1.10 or 20 per cent.

1922—90c or 18 per cent.

1923—$1.08 or 22 per cent.

This is being figured for the years 1920-23 on the old par value of $5 per share of common stock, for the increased capitalization is fraudulent.

On a $10 valuation, the dividend percentage is decreased by one-half, and many who do not know how this was done, fall victims to this error.

The record shows bonds and stocks getting regular interest or dividends, even while wages were cut. The record shows clearly that the cut in wages is without foundation whatsoever.

But when did any capitalist concern need any justification for a wage cut?

It has the power. It uses it without pity, without mercy, in the struggle of capital against labor.

Waters of Wabash Give Many Families the Watery Blues

TERRE HAUTE, March 16.—With miles of the countryside under water today and the rampant Wabash river continuing to rise slowly here, hundreds of families in the low lands fled from their homes to the protected districts.

Flood damage already had mounted to thousand of dollars, reports reaching here today from various sections of the flooded district indicated. Bridges were washed away, roads were undermined and scores of small farm buildings swept along in the path of the flood.

The Wabash river here stood at 19 feet this morning, with further rise inevitable as 21 feet were reported at Clinton, 15 miles north.

TRACTION STEAL GIVES BANKERS PERPETUAL GRIP

Workers Party Has the Only Real Program

While Mayor Dever, enlisting the aid of his political allies, the Chicago Tribune and the Chicago association of commerce, was holding a meeting in the city hall, drilling 50 lawyers and business men in what to say in favor of the traction ordinance, opponents of the measure pointed out that the Chicago Surface Lines have no right to their present franchise.

The 1907 ordinance, under which the bankers operate Chicago's traction system, stipulates that the stockholders must build 23 miles of extensions. The franchise has practically run out, and the Chicago Surface Line stockholders have broken their contract. The ordinance provides that if the extensions are not built, the bankers relinquish control of the streets.

City in Alliance with Bankers.

Under this clause, the city could dictate to the bankers the terms of a new franchise, or take over the lines at the city's own price Instead Dever has formed an alliance with the bankers and under the guidance of his "municipal ordinance," would give the bankers a perpetual franchise on the car lines, with many advantages they did not previously have.

One of these advantages is exemption from taxes. Last year the surface lines paid a tax of $2,915,000 and the elevated lines paid $1,406,132. Under the terms of Dever's ordinance, however, the stockholders are exempt from this tax, altho the securities held by Samuel Insull and the bankers are more valuable than ever, after the ordinance takes effect.

The Hearst-Thompson alliance, with which the Chicago Federation of Labor is flirting, following Dever's refusal to continue his political friendship with the Olander-Walker-Fitzpatrick clique, is making criticisms of Dever's ordinance, but puts forward no program for the future control of the traction lines.

Communists Demand Confiscation.

The Workers (Communist) Party demands that the city confiscate the traction lines, and that the workers who run them also be given complete control of them, thru workers' committees formed within the unions of the traction workers.

facts in the case. They know that the pageant that these workers were to take part in was advertised for months and that permission to hold it was obtained from the proper authorities.

"They know that the ancient muskets were hired from a theatrical costuming compnay, they know that the police department informed the committee in charge that a permit to use the muskets in the pageant was not necessary. Why then these ridiculous antics on the part of Gegan, why the brutal indifference of Magistrate Weil to the facts on the case and the rights of the defendants?

The Opening Flourish.

"The Workers (Communist) Party understands that this attack is the opening flourish of a more general offensive which is being launched against the American workers after the elections to reduce their wages and destroy their organizations, that it is an attempt to discredit the Workers (Communist) Party as the only party fighting in America today on the side of the workers against the capitalists.

"The Workers (Communist) Party will not be stopped by these stupid tactics but will continue its fight for the workers against all attempts to exploit and crush them. The Workers (Communist) Party of America warns the workers of this country of the attacks that are coming and calls upon them to unite with the Workers (Communist) Party in determined resistance.—Workers (Communist) Party of America, New York District No. 2."

Cal Fires Experts to Make Room for Political Friends

WASHINGTON, March 16.—Following the example in the interior department, and particularly in the reclamation service and forest service in the past three years, the Coolidge administration is to get rid of some of the best scientists in the department of agriculture. At least two of these men, internationally prominent in the special fields to which they are devoting their lives, are getting out. Pressure from the top has made their positions untenable.

Jardine, the new head of the department of agriculture, was a member of the recent hand-picked commission on farm legislation, whose hazy recommendations were rejected by congress.

Counter-Revolution Collapses

In a dozen cities of America the agent of the counter-revolutionary Second (socialist) International, Professor Raphael Abramovich, has signally failed in spreading his slandrous attacks upon the first republic of workers and peasants.

Despite the open and shameful alliance with capitalist police, this yellow traitor is rebuffed by every audience where workers are allowed to enter. Just as his efforts to murder enough Russian workers to overthrow their Soviet government, despite even the armed assistance of intervention invited in from every capitalist nation, has failed, so has failed the present effort.

Hireling of the bourgeoisie, traitor to and murderer of the revolutionary workers, the shameless rat has thought to succeed in raising new funds and support in America, the land of big business, Strikebreaker Coolidge and "Open Shop" Dawes, unbridled reaction and unexampled ignorance.

Abramovich has received his answer. The workers of America have met him with curses and execration, with derision and scorn and overwhelming hostility. Let the bedraggled traitor take his carcass back to his masters, the Curzons, the Baldwins, the Hugheses and the Scheidemanns, and confess that the counter-revolution has collapsed.

And let the postscript of this confession be written into the treaty of recognition of Soviet Russia, a recognition which will be an admission that the Soviet power is too strong to overthrow by force of arms, even of the combined capitalist nations of the world in alliance with the slimy yellow socialist traitors of the Second International.

Abramovich came to America to prevent recognition by this country of the Soviet government. Let him confess his failure and retire to oblivion where his beloved Kerensky, Wrangel and Denikin and the rest find fitting haven.

In Again, Out Again

Whether Charles Beecher Warren, Calvin Coolidge's favorie for the important post of attorney general, is a corporation rubber stamp or not, he acts very much like a rubber ball in this session of congress.

No sooner is his name shot into the senate that it bounds out again. This may be an example of spring fever, that has affected the stately senators or perhaps Silent "Cal" is having a little fun in this very unusual way. It is hard to say. The ways of providence are inscrutable and so are the plans of one who does not talk very much and says nothing when he does.

Charles Beecher Warren, the sacharrine expert, is sour fruit to the senators. They don't like him. They don't like Dawes. They don't like Cal.

All this is quite interesting reading matter for the philosophical, but for those who are active in the class struggle on the side of the workers as well as philosophical, it shows up a weak spot in capitalist government which proves that the unity of the bourgeois is a very thin myth. Kilkenny cats were models of peace and harmony compared to the capitalist groups who continually cut each other's throats and only unite when their joint graft is endangered by the working class or some other combination of pirates.

Trouble is in store for the "strong, silent little man" who wore a gas mask while the stench from Teapot Dome was smoking out the less seasoned "statesmen" who were looting the government during the Harding administration. With a hostile senate and the chairman of that august body afflicted with the sleeping sickness, "Cal" may long for the quietness of the Vermont hills, the oil lantern and the old oaken bucket.

Who Are the Reds?

Time was when the American business man used to shake with fear at the very mention of the Industrial Workers of the World. That day is past. Only in the backwoods and corners of American industry, in the overfearful kiwanis clubs of Iowa and California can the I. W. W. raise a shiver any more. The Chicago meeting of the counter-revolutionary Abramovich leaves the "revolutionary" I. W. W. out of the picture.

The Communists have taken the leadership of the American revolutionary workers. And while for hours the members of the Workers (Communist) Party, and great throngs of workers who support Soviet Russia and admire and assist the Communists, gave royal battle to swarms of sluggers hired by the reactionary labor fakers, and stood their ground against repeated onslaughts of capitalist police, the I. W. W. were holding a meeting before a handful of fanatics.

Their speaker was advertised as an "anti-bolshevik." A devotee of Chicago's Greenwich village, an ex-wobbly, ex-soldier and ex-man—to this pitiful cartoon of nobody the I. W. W. must turn even to retail the slanders their own mediocrities cannot voice. To such lice as these the fighting masses on "the loop" streets don't mean anything. But the workers of Chicago know who are the revolutionists.

And at the same hour, a few blocks from the battlefield of revolutionary struggle, another puny sect, which, moreover, claims to be the "real" Communists, which claims that they support Soviet Russia, were holding a seance, conjuring up from the past the honored name of Marx to bless their "purity." And this while the class struggle was being fought within a stone's throw and the strength of the Soviet power being upheld by masses of workers arrayed against the combined forces of reactionary socialism and capitalist state.

For the Workers (Communist) Party the incident is symbolic of revolutionary power and virility. For the two sects it typifies decay and dissolution. Lenin has well said that as the broad masses of the working class more and more turns to revolutionary struggle, the sects which in previous epochs had an excuse for existence, become not only sterile, but actually counter-revolutionary.

The Workers (Communist) Party is the one and only revolutionary organization of the working class of this country, and as such it will lead the proletarian struggle on all fronts while the sects whine and cavil and die.

Kidnaping in Britain

Harry Pollit, one of the readers of the British minority movement, which is similar to the Trade Union Educational League in the United States, was kidnaped from a train in the vicinity of a Liverpool suburb by fascisti, held for several hours and then released, according to a story in the London Daily Herald.

The champions of bourgeois democracy pointed with pride to the British government as a model for other governments to follow. People with all kinds of ideas could gather together in Hyde Park and talk their heads off without let or hindrance. The police protected them against interference. It is true that in other parts of the British empire things did nor run so smoothly. In Ireland, Egypt, South Africa and India, British democracy did not show up to such good advantage. But then, perhaps the Irish, Egyptians, Hindoos and Boers were to blame. The English were law abiding!

But those were the days when British imperialism sat pretty. It doesn't any longer. The ruling class of the "tight little isle" sees the handwriting on the wall. They are getting nervous. And as usual in such cases, they resort to terror.

The British fascisti have been organizing for over two years. The old-fashioned leadership of the trade union movement have watched the movement grow without interposing any obstacles in its way.

The fascist movement in England is making no mistake in attacking the minority movement and its leaders. It recognizes its natural enemy. The British black-shirts are financed by the nobility, the landed aristocracy and the industrialists. So far the labor fakers served their purpose. While MacDonald and J. H. Thomas ruled the political and industrial movement, they did not feel obliged to call on their cutthroats to use violence. But the right wing is slipping from power and the bourgeoisie are resorting more and more to violence. It is inevitable.

Silesia and the Sforza Scandal

The fascist press of Italy now is explaining the theft of Silesia from Germany by Poland under the Versailles treaty as a result of a love affair between Count Sforza, Italian foreign minister, and the wife of the Polish ambassador to Italy.

This explaination is typical of the middle-class mind which sees only superficialties and which sees history as a series of battles and bedroom amours.

Sforza may have seduced the wife of the Polish minister, or she may have vamped him with the full knowledge of her husband. Incidents of this kind are not unusual in the higher circles of capitalism's retainers where the moral code is slightly below that of the barnyard. The Dennistoun case in puritanical England has thrown much light on the way in which advancement in official circles is secured. Husbands need no brains if their wives have beauty enhanced by an undulatory seductiveness.

But Silesia was not given to Poland because an ambassadorial spouse retired in favor of a ministeria count who in turn retired with the ambassador's wife. Poland received Silesia with its coal and iron for much more practical if less picturesque reasons—reasons connected directly with the desire of the allied imperialists to weaken Germany as a rival and strengthen Poland as a buffer against the workers' and peasants' government of Russia.

Had it not been for the historical milieu of the period the amatory advances of Count Sforza would have resulted in nothing more serious than a duel between individuals instead of nations.

They Are Business Men

The chamber of commerce will not be barred from sending delegates to the Seattle Central Labor Council, if the reactionaries can help it. This was proven by that body when the following proposed amendment to the constitution was voted down:

"In order to qualify for membership in this body, the delegate shall be actively employed at his trade and must receive the major portion of his income from wages received from actual work at the trade he represents, or as an employe of a local union of that trade."

This was a slam at the fakers who have severed connection wih the labor movement long ago, but who retain their membership cards and use their evil influence in behalf of reaction in the labor movement. While the fakers are busy trying to drive Communists out of the central body they rise on their hind legs against an effort to clear that organization of the bourgeois vermin that now infest it. But the delousing process will take place and before long.

NO ARBITRATION, CRY WILLIMANTIC THREAD STRIKERS

U. S. Sends Arbitrator to Help Bosses

By WILLIAM SIMONS

WILLIMANTIC, Conn., March 13—(By Mail)—Whenever workers go on strike, there are always those who try to get both sides to give in a little to settle the conflict. There is already in this city a representative of the United States department of labor, who arrived today.

What will be her mission? To tell the workers of Willimantic to be satisfied with less than the return of the 10 per cent which were taken on January 12th? If so, her task is in vain.

There is absolutely no foundation for the cut in wages, except the capitalist urge for more surplus value. Their bonds are rated the highest, their preferred stocks pay a regular semi-annual dividend, their common stock gives an extraordinary dividend. They can restore the 10 per cent cut, and still make extraordinary profits, for they were making them before the cut, and they have large sums set aside in reserve funds which have been used in similar instances to pay dividends.

Arbitration Deadly.

Arbitration has never done the workers any good. The "impartial" arbiter has been on the side of capital. There is no group which represents the public interest. The "public" lines up, usually against workers. Arbitration is used when all other methods fail to drive the striker into the factory or mill. And now should the workers submit their case to any board, they would lose any hope of winning their demand.

The power of the strikers lay in their laying down their tools, abandoning the machines and leaving the mills without a wheel turning. Therein lies their power. They have shown the doubting company that they could tie up the mill. They must demonstrate that the company cannot operate the mills without them. If they can do that, they win; if not, they lose, and other reductions stare them in the face.

It was common knowledge of the strikers that if they did not strike against this cut, another was forthcoming in April. The cut came Jan. 12th, and the strike did not start until March 9th, two months in which the company piled up extra profits even while the workers, on reduced pay, were turning out thread to fill orders.

Too much time was spent on negotiations with the company. Negotiations were ignored by the company, the only language they understand was the international language of the strike. Would that it had come sooner!

Demands!

The return of the cut is the first need. But for two months, the pay was cut. The company must be made to return to each worker the full amount robbed from his pay envelope during that period. This demand must be raised so loudly that the company will hear.

Now is the time, when labor is lined up against capital in the strike, to demand decent living conditions.

Where Were They Before?

The U. S. department of labor knew that a cut had been given on Jan. 12th. Where were their representatives then? Why did they not use any influence they may think they have, so the cut should not go thru? They were silent witnesses, and thereby accessories to the crime of wage cutting and life destruction.

But, once a strike begins, a powerful strike that the workers will win, then these representatives come to "settle" the strike. There can be no settlement of this industrial war, until the wage cut of 10 per cent is restored.

Notice should be given the American Thread company that unless this is done, a demand will be made that the company pay the full wages of the strikers for the time that the barbarous action of the company forces them to be out.

That is not a strike; it is a lockout by the American Thread company, because the workers refused to be dragged into a worse state of industrial slavery. The company took the initiative; it is the cause of the action.

The responsibility for the strike, as well as the infamous wages and other factory conditions, lie with the American Thread company, and its illegitimate parent, the English Sewing Cotton company, Ltd.

Nothing to Arbitrate

The answer of the strikers should be a ringing, defiant refusal to consider any arbitration move,

Against arbitration!

Restoration of the ten per cent in wages!

Wages for the duration of the strike!

NO STRIKEBREAKERS ENTER PLANT OF THE STRUCK THREAD CO.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WILLIMANTIC, Conn., March 16.—There were more workers of the American Thread company in mass demonstration this morning beginning the second week of the strike, than ever before. Not one strikebreaker entered the plant. Only the bosses were visible, hovering around the pickets and wearing a worried look.

After a mass demonstration 1,500 strikers marched along the main streets to the Gem Theater where the meetings of the various departments were announced.

Plans are under way for securing language speakers to address the strikers.

Five hundred copies of the DAILY WORKER with the Willimantic strike story will be distributed to the workers tomorrow.

TEAPOT TRIAL BINDS DAWES TO STANDARD OIL

Judge Again Aids Oil Trust

CHEYENNE, Wyo., March 16.—Testimony in the government's suit against the Sinclair Oil company here brought out that the Standard Oil company of Indiana owns a half interest in the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing company.

Government counsel read into the record an auxilliary contract executed between the Humphreys Mexia Oil company and the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing company and the Prairie Oil and Gas company covering delivery of oil thru the Continental Trading company of Canada. The Continental company was dissolved as soon as its purpose was served.

The evidence definitely connected Vice President Charles Dawes and his family with the Standard Oil trust. Beman Dawes, brother of the vice president, is president of the Pure Oil company, which controls the Humphreys Mexia Oil company. Dawes Pure Oil company, and Beman Dawes personally, entered into the contract with the Sinclair-Standard Oil combination. Vice President Dawes is interested with his brother Beman, in many oil and gas companies.

The government's case against Sinclair's Mammoth Oil company suffered a setback when Judge T. Blake Kennedy in federal district court sustained the defense objection to introduction of bank records from El Paso, Pueblo and Denver as evidence to connect Harry F. Sinclair with the receipt by former Secretary of Interior A. B. Fall, of $230,500 in liberty bonds in connection with the leasing by Sinclair of the famous Teapot Dome naval reserve.

Metal Workers' Strike in Italy Compromised by Fascist Leaders

ROME, March 16.—A settlement which will fail to settle, is the consensus among the leaders of the metal workers strike, concerning the compromise offer made by the bosses at the instance of the fascist government today.

The government of Mussolini is trying to break the fascist union, which joined with the socialist union in a strike demand for higher pay, away from the strike, by offering the fascist union a raise of two and one-fifth liras a day, and getting the fascist union leaders to accept it.

This does not quite settle things, however, as the membership of the fascist union is becoming more and more sympathetic to the demands of the socialist union, which, moreover, controls four-fifths of the strikers. Whether the fascist union leaders can get their members back to work as scabs is yet uncertain.

LEVIN TAKES A. C. W. JOBS FROM WORKERS WHO AID LOCAL 5

Monday afternoon, Sam Levin, manager of the Amalgamate Clothing Workers Joint Board of Chicago, called H. Bromorski, Helen Kaplan, J. Lieberman, S. Miller, Sam Simonian, H. Kahn and J. Pinto into this office and without trial told them their jobs were taken from them, supposedly for distributing the appeal of Local 5, of New York City.

Capitalist Press Supports Baldwin and Cal Coolidge

To the DAILY WORKER: — In the "liberty loving" Cleveland News appeared an article supporting the statements made by Norman Hapgood, Roger Baldwin, and other believers in "free speech and free press," that there ain't no such thing in Soviet Russia.

The Cleveland News, during the last presidential election campaign supported that famous advocate of civil liberties, Strikebreaker Cal Coolidge.

Who is not familiar with Coolidge's activities in the policemen's strike in Boston, his advocacy of Jim Crowism in the south and his failure to raise his voice in behalf of the hundreds of Communists, I. W. W. and militant trade unionists who are still incarcerated in the dungeons of capitalist America?

American workers are becoming tired of listening to the same old bunk about free speech and free press. They are gradually realizing that in this country we have a capitalist dictatorship, veiled under the cloak of democracy, whereas in Soviet Russia, the dictatorship of the workers and peasants is open and frank and no pretense is made of granting civil liberties to the enemies of the workers' republic.

It is about time that liberals like Roger Baldwin, and those associated with him, realized that to expect justice from the industrial and financial barons of this country is sheer nonsense. No more than we can expect it from the black guards and fascists who are ruling Esthonia, Finland, Italy and Roumania. Has Mr. Baldwin mentioned anything about the persecutions of workers and peasants in those countries?

The Cleveland News, the New York Times and the Chicago Tribune are singing the praises of Mr. Baldwin to the sky. Does Roger Baldwin understand the significance of the support he is receiving?—Martin Gordon.

WORKERS FROM MANY CITIES AT WORKERS' SCHOOL

Red Students Visit the Northside Branch

The Workers (Communist) Party intensive training school for party members was officially opened in the name of the central executive committee of the Workers Party in a speech by William F. Dunne, an editor of the DAILY WORKER, and member of the C. E. C.

Forty-two Communist workers, more than half of whom came from the mines and factories outside of Chicago, were present at the opening session, and more were expected to arrive before the second day of intensive study began.

Workers came from Detroit, Cleveland, St. Louis, Kansas City, Milwaukee, Southern Illinois mining towns, and Chicago workshops to better fit themselves to carry on Communist propaganda and organization work.

The out of town Communist students were: Comrades Maton, Klesonya and Telachak from Milwaukee; Angelo from Springfield, Ill.; Arley Staples and Alec Reid from Christopher; B. Vogel and S. Urlich from St. Louis; Ruth Reynolds, Friedman and Pentila from Detroit; Carl Weisberg from Cleveland; R. Rohman from Decatur, Ill.; Gerlack and Podolla from Kenosha. Comrade Henry Corbishley of Ziegler, president of the local union of the United Mine Workers there, is ill with appendicitis in a St. Louis hospital and could not attend.

Last night the Communist students attended the meeting of the northside English branch in a body. The northwest side English branch supplied the lunch for the students yesterday.

The students are each being given $2.00 worth of books, cost price, free. The Communist students range in age from youthful members of the Young Workers' League, to "old timers," who have fought many a bitter battle on the working class front.

One change has made in the program for the first four days. Comrade Martin Abern will lecture on organization at 10 a. m. today, Wednesday and Thursday. The school is meeting at the Workers' Lyceum, 2733 Hirsch Blvd.

The program which will be followed thru Thursday follows:

9 A. M.: Trade Union History and Tactics. Instructor, William F. Dunne.

10 A. M.; Organization. Instructor, Martin Abern.

11 A. M.; The International Communist Movement. Instructor, Max Bedacht.

12 Noon: Recess one hour for lunch.

1 P. M.; Leninism. Instructor, Manuel Gomez.

2 P. M.: Marxian Economics. Instructor, Max Lerner.

Max Lerner, director of the school, appeared at the afternoon session with a bandaged eye, result of the slugging at the Abramovich meeting. Comrade Lerner appeared in court in the morning.

Herriot Gets League Report.

PARIS, March 16.—Premier Herriot received Aristide Briand today for a report on the Geneva negotiations of the league council. Austen Chamberlain, British secretary of state for foreign affairs, arrived in Paris at 9:35 a. m., and will confer with Herriot on the security problem at the foreign office at 3 p. m.

10,000 WORKERS OF MADRID CLASH WITH COPS IN CELEBRATION

PARIS, March 16.—Eight persons were injured in a battle between police and participants in a parade of 10,000 workers, during which the police fired into the procession in Madrid on Sunday, said a message received here today. The parade was in celebration of the anniversary of the Paris commune.

Rote Fahne; Our German Communist Daily

By MAX BEDACHT

DIE ROTE FAHNE, (The Red Flag), is the central organ of the Communist Party of Germany. Our brother party in Germany has a number of dailies, semi-weeklies and weeklies. But the Rote Fahne is the official mouthpiece of the central executive committee of the Communist Party of Germany.

The Rote Rahne is a child of the revolution. It proves worthy of its parentage. In the memorable November days of 1918, when the colossus of the German army succumbed to the germ of revolt sown by the glorious example of the October revolution of the Russian proletariat; in those hectic days when the socialist Scheidemann turned his coat three times in one day—from a social democratic deputy into the prime minister of William II and from that into a minister of the German republic; in the same days when the German workers showed signs of a determination to end the life of the beast of capitalism, in those days the workers of Berlin took possession of the establishment of one of the bourgeois dailies in Berlin, discontinued the bourgeois sheet and began publication of the Rote Fahne. Its first editors were Rosa Luxemburg and Karl Liebknecht.

In those days the Rote Fahne was inspirer and leader of the revolution. It voiced the aspirations of the revolt. It unified the army of the revolution and made heroic efforts to supply that element of leadership which was lacking in the absence of a leading revolutionary party.

The courage, the revolutionary clarity and integrity of such leaders as Liebknecht, Luxemburg, Jogiches, Mehring could not overcome the handicap caused by the non-existence of a revolutionary Communist Party; especially because in the social democratic party the proletarian masses still saw the rebel of past days. Consequently the great betrayal of the workers by the social democrats, and the final assassination of the revolutionary leaders by the socialists was the result.

In every crisis the Rote Fahne was true to its name. As the banner of proletarian revolt it preceded the rebellious masses in their advances. No temporary defeat could dismay it. Thru the vicissitudes of the German revolution the Rote Fahne survived to this hour. In the days of the Kapp putsch it raised the slogan of saving the "republic." After the defeat of Kapp and the return of the socialist dignitaries of the state to Berlin the republic paid its debt of gratitude to the Rote Fahne by an order of suppression. The socialists traitors knew that the Communists entered the campaign to save the republic for the purpose of building a workers' republic, a Soviet state.

Without the Rote Fahne the great campaigns of the Communist Party of Germany would have been utterly impossible. Without the Rote Fahne, the handful of Spartacists could never have grown into the Communist Party of hundreds of thousands of members of today. While the party gives leadership to the struggling masses the central committee gives leadership to the party thru its central organ, the Rote Fahne.

Reaction in Germany appreciates the effectiveness of the Rote Fahne as a weapon of the Communist Party. Whenever it contemplates another scoundrelly attack on the workers it takes pains to first suppress this paper. But even if suppressed one day it appears the next with a new name, but with the same old and clear clarion call of the proletarian revolution.

The Communist Party of Germany spent great efforts to steer the existence of its central organ over these periods of crises. But it was well repaid. It was the continuous existence of the Rote Fahne that helped the party over many a serious crisis—especially in the days of the illegal existence of the party.

The Communist Party of Germany has succeeded in building up a mass circulation for the Rote Fahne. The paper speaks to the workers and for the workers. Thru it the workers speak themselves.

AS WE [illegible] T

By T. J. O [illegible]

THE Dawes' famil [illegible] e an asset to the Coo [illegible] y in Washington, but they [illegible] ave contributed something [illegible] etiquette, something th [illegible] lly needed. Charles, the [illegible] nd, put Morpheus on an equal footing with Bacchus, by sleeping while the senate is talking, writing poetry about the vice-president or thumbing 60 per cent of its nasal equipment at the president. Mrs. Dawes, just to prove that all the originality is not monopolized by the other prominent members of the Dawes' family, ushered in the innovation of eating sandwiches.

PERHAPS, the lady exhibited more political sagacity than could be seen by the unobservant, at the first glance. Friends of the family and those who expect non-perspiring appointments in return for the interest in the vice-presidential celebrity, may not think it good manners to open wide their mouths in loud guffaws as some senator hurls a poetical effusion at the head of the somnolent chairman of the august senate. A big cheese sandwich, with a generous slice of onion will enable the Dawes' guest to stop up the main avenue into the stomach with the piece of cheese and if tears of laughter come, who can say that the onion is not to blame? This may not be a scientific explanation, but it's quite plausible.

THE coal barons' conference which was scheduled to take place yesterday in Cleveland, has been called off. The invitation was issued by the Ohio coal operators. The western Pennsylvania group accepted. Indiana agreed to send delegates, but with so many reservations that the Ohio boys became disgusted and called off the whole thing. The Illinois operators refused to send representatives. Evidently the operators have no stomach for a straight fight with the United Mine Workers of America. They prefer the nibbling tactics that have enabled them to smash the union in West Virginia and other places.

THE head of the Indiana association is Phil H. Penna, considered the best strategist among the coal magnates. Evidently he feels that more [illegible] accomplished by developing the [illegible] mines of Kentucky and other parts of the country than by risking millions of dollars in a battle with the best aggregation of fighting men on the American continent. The American miners have given their masters a taste of their steel. That the bosses would even dream of crossing them, is a reflection on their reactionary and crooked leadership and not on the rank and file.

BUT if the rank and file of the miners' union think the bosses have called off their dogs they will be making a big mistake. Things are developing nicely for the operators. Why should they resort to open conflict with the union as a whole when they can bite it off one chunk at a time? Frank Farrington is sending commissions around to study super power while thousands of Illinois miners are unemployed. John L. Lewis has invited 150,000 miners to get out of the industry and look for jobs somewhere else. Lewis will undoubtedly claim that his leadership has frightened off the coal barons. But the coal barons are already violating the Jacksonville agreement in the pits. The miners must wake up.

AMUSING editorials appear in the capitalist press over the successful failure of Abramovich at the Garrick Theater last Sunday. One would imagine by reading those editorials that free speech was inviolate in the United States; that such things only happen in Russia, and that the Russians are Asiatics, hence their

MENTAL TEST FAILS TO HELP R. ABRAMOVICH

Even in Milwaukee Brains Slip In

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

MILWAUKEE, Wis., March 17.—The yellow socialists always said that when THEY got elected, things would be different. At Raphael Abramovich's meeting last night, this statement proved correct. While an ordinary capitalist administration would send a few police, the socialist administration sent lots of them to see that counterrevolution had its say against all hecklers of the working class. But the meeting was broken up by the indignant workers.

The Pesky Workers Will Get In.

Heavy police guard and large forces of detectives were the shock troops for the socialist gangsters. All visitors were admitted only after passing a civil service examination and members of the Workers (Communist) Party and sympathizers were rigidly kept out. Therefore, if things happened, they were the natural reaction of other workers to Abramovich's lies.

And things happened. Untermann, the chairman, as usual with pacifists, threatened force and violence. It was not long in coming. Most of the audience walked out, when hecklers were beaten up. Three workers were arrested and one badly beaten.

It is understood that the workers arrested will be charged with lese majeste upon the dignity of His Excellency Aleck Kerensky, defying the constitutional debility of the Second International and telling Professor Abramovich that if he don't like America, why don't he go back to Russia.

Thought It The "Purity Congress."

The defendants enter a plea in abatement, that understanding that the yellow socialist Second International had its headquarters for some time in the house of Barmat, the scandalous Teapot Domer of Germany, and had, in the Ebert trial, openly admitted treachery to the workers, they thought that the professor was inviting them to the "Purity Congress" suggested by his comrades in treachery, and were merely trying to purify the fetid atmosphere of Raphael's presence.

Hines Fires 300 Employes.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 17.—Director Hines has told President Coolidge that 200 employes have been dropped from the personnel of the U. S. Veterans Bureau.

The war veterans are being declared "re-habilitated" and released from training schools in large numbers. Many of them are unable to make a living and face starvation.

Sick Workers to Stay at Home.

LONDON, March 17.—King George was sufficiently recovered from bronchitis today to hold privy council. With Queen Mary, the king is expected to depart before Sunday for the south of France where he will embark on a Mediterranean cruise to complete his convalescence.

Seek Jury In Mail Robbery.

WAUKEGAN, Ill., March 17.—Work of selecting a jury to hear the charges against the four men accused of the murder of Russell Sage Dickey, express messenger, during the attempted holdup of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad's viking express at Kenilworth last New Years's eve, continued in criminal court here today.

STRIKERS WELCOME COMMUNIST SPEAKER, WHILE FINDING OUT CAPITALISM HATES THE STRIKE

By WILLIAM SIMONS.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WILLIMANTIC, Conn., March 17.—The Willimantic strikers of the American Thread Co. are learning thru bitter experience that there is a class struggle. They are organizing tag days as a part of their strike fund activities. Thus far, they have secured over $500, practically all from local unions and individuals of this city.

A worker was sent to nearby towns to solicit a permit for a tag day for the strikers. He went to Danielson, Conn., a few miles away, and made the request to the selectman in charge. The answer was as damnable as ever a monster could give. It was "If you're too lazy to work, then starve!"

And when the unionist tried to explain to this troglodyte that the men and women had to strike against the 10 per cent wage cut, he was ordered out of the room.

And in Norwich, Conn., a permit was refused because a city ordinance was against it, and advice was given them to try to get permission to stand inside of factory gates and make collections there. Thanks for the suggestion, honorable gentlemen!

The Morning March.

About a thousand men and women marched before the mill gates at 7 o'clock this morning. Then to the Gem Theater for a meeting. Strike leader Kelleher, organizer for the United Textile Worker cautioned the workers against being too optimistic. She showed how companies used their power to fool and defeat the workers. Announcements were made by Amy Hooker, of the local textile council as to meetings of various locals and the textile council.

Workers Party Speaker.

The Workers Party speaker and district organizer of the Workers Party was called upon, due to the interest in his figures about profits made and how it concealed its real earnings, he was asked to continue, his talk lasting for 40 minutes.

The workers simply ate up the figures, showing that the average dividends on common stock were 20 per cent, amounting to over a million and a quarter each year. The figures on the profits of the American Thread Co. and the English Sewing Cotton Co., Ltd., are given in another article in the DAILY WORKER.

The lack of educational opportunity for the textile town boys and girls was revealed, as well as the toil of

COAL BARONS TO STARVE MINERS, THEN CUT WAGES

Postpone Confab When Illinois Delays

The conference of mine owners in the central bituminous fields scheduled to be held in Cleveland, Ohio, yesterday, to organize a drive to reduce miners' wages and break the Jacksonville, Fla., agreement with the United Mine Workers of America, has been postponed.

The failure of the operators of Illinois and Indiana to participate at this time caused the postponement of the wage-slashing conference.

The Illinois operators take the position, it was announced, that the Jacksonville agreement has only a little over a year to run, and since the Illinois mines are 50 per cent shut down now, with most of those running working only two or three days a week, the Illinois operators declined to attend.

The Indiana and Illinois operators plan to institute their wage cutting campaign later, at a time when the miners have been out of work almost continuously for two years.

The conference was originally called to discuss the wage cuting campaign in Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, and Western Pennsylvania.

"The Illinois operators feel that the wage scale is too high. Rice Miller president of the Illinois coal operators said.

RIFFIAN REBELS' RESISTANCE RUNS RIVERA RAGGED

PARIS, France, March 17.—Spanish troops have been attacking the Riffian rebels since last Friday with no success, says a dispatch from Tangier.

Abd-El-Krim is preparing a counter attack in eastern Morocco toward Taferait. The Riffian troops occupy the immediate frontiers on each side of the road, making an advance by the Spaniards impossible.

Rivera has ordered airplanes and artillery to the front to attack the Riffians.

Roumania Extends Moratorium.

BUCHAREST, Roumania, March 17.—The moratorium on commercial debts in Roumania, is to be extended for another three months, following the passage of a law to that effect by parliament.

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 17.—The Kurdistan rebels have been ousted from all villages within five miles of Diabekir in Armenia, it was announced today.

10,000 JOIN IN PARIS COMMUNE DEMONSTRATION

New York Gathering Is Great Success

NEW YORK, March 16.—(By Mail)—A tremendous demonstration commemorating the Paris Commune was held in Madison Square Garden. The meeting and pageant were duly advertised by the police arresting three comrades of the Workers, (Communist) Party and Young Workers League last Friday night on the ridiculous charge of "possessing fire arms."

These fire arms were of the vintage of 1776 and were old and rusty. But the "Bomb Squad," acting under orders of the federal government, was determined, if possible, to prevent the performance of the pageant—and above all to prevent another demonstration of Communist and working class solidarity such as took place on Feb. 1, at the Lenin Memorial meeting.

10,000 in Demonstration

About 10,000 workers and Communist sympathizers attended the meeting, which was enthusiastic from beginning to end. The chairman of the meeting, Comrade Juliet Stuart Poyntz, ridiculed the "antics of the police bomb squad," her statement being greeted with boos for Captain Gegan of the squad.

"We have an international army of workers, armed with a program, organized, disciplined and working toward the world revolution and the foundation of Communist society," she said.

Comrade Moissaye Olgin gave an historical sketch of the struggles for the establishment of the Commune, when the workers took power from the capitalist class and became the dominant class. The army fraternized with the workers and turned their guns against the bourgeoisie and their leaders, General Thomas and others.

"The Red Flag was hoisted in Paris—the first government of the workers the world over," he said. "They abolished nationalism,—aliens being made citizens. The bourgeoisie retired to Versailles, known to the workers of the whole world for that infamous treaty of that name. Then came 1905 in Russia, when the country was shaken to its foundations. After a decade of revolutionary struggle, came the overthrow of the czar, followed by Nov. 7, 1917, the greatest day in the history of mankind."

Then depicting the struggles of the Russian workers and peasants, Comrade Olgin said that, "if a conflict between the bourgeoisie of the world and Soviet Russia arises, the proletariat of all countries will say to their bourgeoisie 'hands off Soviet Russia.'"

COOLIDGE APPOINTS PERSONAL CRONY AS ATTORNEY GENERAL

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 17.—President Coolidge appointed another personal friend to a place in the cabinet when he nominated John G. Sargent, ex-attorney general of Vermont, to be attorney general of the United States. Coolidge has sent Sargent's name in the senate, after conversing with his crony by long distance telephone. Senate leaders have intimated that they will not oppose the nomination. Sargent is 65 years old.

Sargent's nomination was reported favorably to the senate this afternoon by the judiciary committee after a short executive session. The committee was unanimous in favor of Sargent. It was admitted that none of the senators except the New England group, know Sargent.

The senate late this afternoon confirmed Sargent as attorney general by a unanimous vote.

COOLIDGE GIVES UP BATTLE FOR AGENT OF TRUST

Will Pick Equally Conservative Man

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 17.—President Coolidge finally admitted himself licked today after two severe defeats at the hands of the senate and allowed Charles Warren to withdraw as a candidate for the attorney generalship. The surrender to the senate, which twice rejected Warren, came after Coolidge gave up the idea of giving Warren a recess appointment.

The senate objected to such an appointment, on the ground that it would be a violation of the "constitutional rights" of the senate to pass on the president's nominations for cabinet positions.

A new appointment is expected to be announced at the White House today. It is known that Coolidge will pick a lawyer who is loyal to the large corporations. The senate judiciary committee today approved the nomination of Herman J. Galloway, of Indiana, as assistant attorney general. Those who were rumored slated for the attorney generalship including John Sargent, ex-attorney general of Vermont, a personal friend of Coolidge, or Thomas Swan, the conservative dean of the Yale law school.

In spite of the storm of criticism levelled at Warren for his activities as an agent of the sugar trust, Coolidge wrote Warren a letter expressing his confidence in him.

Vice-president Dawes was again absent from the senate today, having attended the drawings for the Davis cup tennis matches.

Anti-Klansmen Acquitted.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., March 17.—Seven men were acquitted of charges of rioting in connection with the ku klux klan disorders during which several people were killed in Carnegie in August, 1923. Thomas Abbott, a klansman, was killed at Carnegie, in August 1923. Abbott attacked some townspeople and they returned the fire.

Professors Cane Education Minister.

TIENTSIN, China, March 17.—More than a hundred professors attacked and severely caned the minister of education today because of his policy towards government education.

BATTLE RAGES AMALGAMATE OVER EXPULSIO

Local 5, New York, Leading the Fight

That the reactionary officialdom the Amalgamated Clothing Work of America now realizes that it has t fights of its life on its hands, w demonstrated last Monday afterno when Samuel Levin, manager of t Chicago joint board of the Am gamated Clothing Workers, had sev members of the union pulled off th jobs for the distribution of a leaf issued by Local 5 of the Amalgama New York, calling the attention of th membership of the organization to th expulsion of Local 5 from the Ne York joint board, on the flimsy char of issuing a leaflet.

The action of Levin will only hav the effect of solidifying the growi opposition to the autocratic rule o the Hillman machine, on a natio wide scale. If the object of this hy terical attack on the economic live of the members was for the purpo of preventing the news to get to th membership, it will fail disastrousl

The leaflet issued by Local 5 is dignified document, setting forth th facts of the expulsion in moderat language. It states that the reaso given by Hillman for the expulsio was because Local 5 issued a leafle But did not Hillman issue leaflets whe he was fighting Harry Cohen and th Forward gang? After recounting th evidence of the demoralization whic is creeping over the Amalgamated, th leaflet calls attention to the followin facts:

Thrown Out of Work.

"1. About the suffering and [illegible] among the unemployed and how work ers are being thrown out of work fo no rason or rhyme.

"2. How the officials at one tim engaged in a bitter struggle [illegible] the corrupt officials of the union an as soon as these very same [illegible] officials promised Hillman that the would help him carry thru the [illegible] cent dues proposition, Hillman made peace with them.

"3. How our officials reduced naught the gains made in the last strike in which the members of the Amalgamated made such by sacrifices.

"4. How, when the firm of J. Freed man and other firms threw workers out of their jobs and when the remaining workers refused to work until they were put back to work, the union officials actually compelled other union men to take the place of these men who went out on strike."

Because the columns of the official organ of the Amalgamated has been closed to the members of the union, Local 5 was obliged to appeal directly to the membership. This was the crime in the eyes of Hillman, tho it was no crime for the manufacturers to get their information about union affairs from the general officers. The Hillmanites ordered the members to stay away from a mass meeting called to demand that he put a stop to the firing of workers from the shops. The business agents were ordered to threaten those who attended with loss of their jobs. But the members were not frightened. Hence the expulsion.

ASK BLOOD TO SAVE LIFE OF COAL MINERS' DAUGHTER AT SPRINGFIELD

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 17.—A child's life was at stake here today. Lillian Ero, 10, motherless daughter of a Kincaid, Ill., coal miner, was slowly bleeding to death, physicians said. They issued an appeal to the public press for volunteers to submit to a blood transfusion.

For a number of years the little girl has suffered severe nose bleeding spells. Doctors believed one transfusion would save her.

The father, brothers, sisters and other relatives have submitted to tests, but the child's blood will not mix with that of the relatives, the physicians said.

"It is a pitiful case. She is a very bright little girl who realizes her condition. Her face lights up when a relative takes a blood test and again is overspread with sadness when she hears the blood will not mix with her own," said Dr. Henry Aschauer.

"When one of these bleeding spells comes on we have to administer a serum used on horses. A very small dose is enough to make a man scream in pain, but Lillian never whimpers. She wants to live."

MINE EXPLOSION IN INDIANA TAKES TWO MORE WORKERS' LIVES

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., March 17.—Two shot firers are believed to have been killed last night by an explosion in the Shirkeville No. 1 mine six miles northeast of here.

The cause of the explosion has not been determined but it was reported to have been caused by a "windy shot."

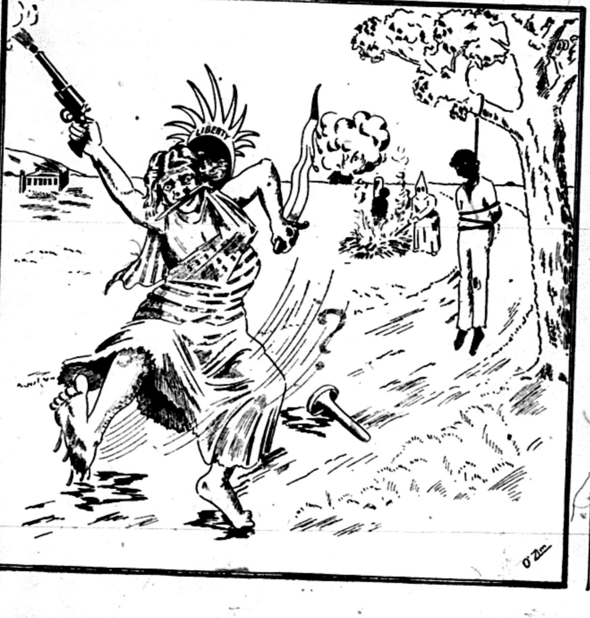
AMERICAN 'LIBERTY' IN ACTION



WORKING CLASS GIRLS CARRY BANNERS FOR IRISH FAMINE VICTIMS WHILE FREE STATERS GORGE THEMSELVES

While the bourgeois Free State Irish nationalists were gorging themselves yesterday with foor and drowning their cares in libations from the cup that cheers and inebriates, in honor of St. Patrick, a group of young working class girls, of various nationalities paraded up and down in front of the deserted city hall advertising the fact that a famine existed in Ireland and that 750,000 workers and peasants were destitute.

The Free State supporters in the United States are nourishing the fiction that there is no famine in Ireland. Their stomachs are full, so they have no cause for worry. Yesterday, they were presenting the capitalist side of Ireland's face to the world.

The signs carried by the members of the Workers Party told a different story. They pointed to the fact that the Irish Free State government was more concerned with putting a "treason bill" thru parliament than with feeding the hungry Irish peasants; that the American capitalist press was silent about the famine while the DAILY WORKER devoted columns of space to stories from the famine stricken region.

Workers School Students.

The signs were carried by girls now attending the Workers Party school at Workers Lyceum, 2733 Hirsch Boulevard. Their names are: Ruth Fern, Eva Bittelman, Valeria Meltz, Marguerite Lewis, Marguerite Dunne, and Catherine Polishuk.

Crowds gathered as the girls marched up and down beside the building which was closed in honor of Mayor Dever's patron saint. The inscription on the signs were read by passersby and a general air of sympathy was noticeable.

The demonstration was under the direction of the Chicago local of the Irish Workers' and Peasants' Famine Relief Committee.

POLITICAL HACK IS NOMINATED BY CARPENTERS

Hutcheson Makes Offer to "Expelled" Members

Nominations to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of the president of Local 181, of the Carpenters' Union, was made at last Monday night's meeting. The reactionaries nominated one Jacob Olson, a discredited political hack who has been a bootlicker for the republican party for several years, and now does odd jobs around the city hall.

According to the constitution of the Brotherhood, a member must work at his trade or be employed by the organization in order to qualify for an elective office in the union. This clause disqualifies Olson, but what is the constitution between friends? as Theodore Roosevelt once said.

Violating Constitution.

The progressives" nominated Bill Flettner, who is a working carpenter. The chairman of the local ruled that any member not attending the next meeting would be fined two dollars. This is a scheme to get those who never attend a union meeting except under compulsion to come and vote for the city hall hack. This ruling is unconstitutional and a member raised a point of order against it.

The constitution only provides for a call meeting to elect officers, but leaves the question of penalty for non-attendance to the local. This did not bother the chairman in the least, who maintained that his ruling was in order and would accept no appeals against his decision.

Hutcheson's Conditions.

A letter was received from General President Hutcheson, giving conditions which must be complied with by the five expelled members before they can be reinstated. Those conditions are that they sever all connections with the Trade Union Educational League and that they excuse themselves to the local for signing the resolutions criticizing Hutcheson and Jensen. The five members were never legally expelled and therefore cannot be reinstated. Hutcheson is evidently frightened at the rebellion that has overthrown his regime in Detroit and does not care to have a similar revolt take place in Chicago.

The five "expelled" have an appointment with the volunteer committee which is investigating the cases, next Saturday. What answer they will make to Hutcheson's terms is not known.

Harry Jensen attended last Monday night's meeting of Local 181 and in the absence of the five "expelled" members, delivered a tirade against the Communists, even blaming them for the Landis award, tho the Communists were the leaders in opposing it. This was the second meeting from which the five members voluntarily absented themselves.

Mussolini Will Not Die.

ROME, Italy, March 17.—Mussolini, who is said to have been suffering from ulceration of the intestine, is out of danger, according to his physicians. Mussolini became ill at the same time that the charges of Rossi that Mussolini ordered the murder of the socialist deputy Matteotti were corroborated by other Mussolini lieutenants.

10,000 N. Y. Workers Join in Big Paris Commune Celebration

Red Aid. "The bourgeoisie of France, upon returning to Paris," said Comrade Gitlow, "slaughtered 30,000 workers and deported many more. This same bourgeoisie now talks of democracy and free speech, and is attacking Soviet Russia for putting into prison counter-revolutionaries actively engaged against the Soviet government. There are more than 100,000 political prisoners in the capitalist dungeons, where they are subjected to the vilest torture. The capitalist press says that there is no freedom of expression in Soviet Russia.

"How much freedom of opinion is there for the working class of Germany, where there are 8,000 political prisoners, of Hungary where there are 10,000 prisoners, of India with her 25,000 prisoners? The capitalist press indicates that when the Communists went into power in Soviet Russia, they instituted a reign of terror. This is a base lie, that history refutes.

"The socialist party and the Second (Socialist) International are carrying on an energetic campaign against Soviet Russia. They say nothing about the offer made by the International Red Aid to effect an exchange of the counter-revolutionaries in the prisons of Soviet Russia for the Communists in the capitalist prisons. They say nothing about a joint committee of the Communist International and the Second International to investigate conditions in the prisons of the Soviet Russia. The Second International is assisting the capitalists in attacking Soviet Russia, despite the fact that Soviet Russia is the only country in which workers have the right of open expression. We Communists declare that we are the only ones interested in the question of political prisoners.

Speaks for Communist Youth

"A new committee has been formed in the United States, but this committee does not differentiate between proletarian prisoners in capitalist prisons and counter-revolutionaries in Soviet Russia. The liberals in this committee are the tools if the counter-revolutionary socialists in a campaign against Soviet Russia. If they wish to assist in real help for proletarian prisoners, let them join the forces of the International Red Aid."

Herbert Zam, of the Young Workers League declared that the "arrest of the three comrades is a repetition of the arrest of Leo Granoff, a thirteen-years old boy, last year for 'conspiring to overthrow the capitalist government.' One of the differences between the Communist and the socialist movement is the attention that the Communists pay to the youth movement. Leaders like Lenin and Liebknecht organized the youth movement, recognizing the importance of youth in the revolutionary movement. The Young Workers League, as the American section of the Young Communist International, is ready to do its duty in the revolution. Long live Leninism, the guide of the struggling workers." Comrade Zam was greeted with great applause.

J. O. Bentall, in making an appeal for support of the Communist press, declared that once a journalist said "give me the headlines and the first paragraphs in the papers and we will make the revolution in a week. If we recognized the possibilities of the press, our DAILY WORKER would have a circulation not of 15,000 but of 500,000."

The Ukrainian and the Hungarian singing societies sang some folk songs, and danced the beautiful Ukrainian and Hungarian folk dances. The applause that followed showed that the workers recognized real art. The Finnish Athletic society performed a most unique exhibition with hammers and sickles ending with the crossing of the hammers and sickles. The applause was tremendous.

The Freiheit Singing society sang some numbers for which it is famous.

Pageant Wonderful Spectacle

All expectancy was centered upon the Paris Commune Pageant, for which the comrades had been rehearsing so faithfully and which had received so much notice in the capitalist press owing to the recent arrests. The reporters of the capitalist papers were there in full force, to witness the "overthrow of the American government."

This spectacle was wonderful. The scenario by Comrade Carlin dealt with the outstanding features of the Paris Commune—the proclamation of the Commune, two sessions of the revolutionary council, the last one ending with the announcement that the troops of the enemy had taken Paris and the struggle was coming to an end. The slaughter of the workers of Paris and the execution of four of the heroes depicted the gigantic struggle of the workers to establish their power. The prologue showed the workers of Moscow assembled before a memorial column on which they laid a wreath in memory of the comrades who died in Paris in 1871, the story being told by Comrade Carl Brodsky. The scenic and lighting effects were excellent. The pageant was directed by Dr. Arkatoff assisted by Comrade Sadie Amter. Thunderous applause showed the appreciation of the huge crowd assembled.

This first attempt by the Communists of New York to stage a mass production has been very successful and is the beginning of mass productions of a similar and larger nature.

FASCIST UNIONS SCAB IN METAL STRIKE; BUT MOST STRIKERS STICK

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

ROME.—The metal workers' strike gained new recruits and lost many who returned to work today. The metal workers of Turin, the majority of whom are socialists, walked out. At Milan, 6,000 fascists returned to work and 30,000 socialists remained away.

The employers view with alarm the association of fascist and anti-fascist unions, expressing the opinion that it means the entering wedge of unruly radical elements into Italian industry, while the strikers assert they have been made the scapegoats in the fascist industrialists' "patriotic program of discipline." The deadlock between the two viewpoints, difficult to break, was partly solved by offering the fascist union special terms.

Seven thousand ship yard workers of Trieste have joined the strike.

Battle Rages in Amalgamated Over Expulsions

that the T. U. E. L. and the Workers Party are with Local 5 of New York in this fight against the reactionary bund who are now using the once militant Amalgamated as a milch cow. Levin cannot blind the membership with this kind of a smoke screen.

The leaflet which so aroused the wrath of Hillman and his Chicago lackey Levin, tears the progressive camouflage from the faces of the class-collaborationist leaders of the Amalgamated. It says:

"Now, after ten years' existence, we will do well to soberly look into the affairs of our organization. When we observe closely the events, we find that with the birth of the Amalgamated, its gaining of members and prestige, it also carried with it a large number of the professional officials of the United Garment Workers' Union. This degenerated element never gave up the hope or turning our union into the paths of the old corrupted machine. It is but now that they commence to come into the fore.

"Instead of fighting against the bosses, instead of seeking to improve the conditions of the workers in the shops, our union officials are undertaking business ventures. They seek prestige thru the maneuver of money which the workers invest in the various business enterprises, instead of seeking prestige thru carrying on a fight in the interests of the workers. And so they lose out.

"The $42,000 lost by the organization in the so-called co-operative shop, the $37,000 lost in the sad venture of the New York Leader. The sums of money lost in the grocery business during the last lockout account not only for the dangers, but also the causes of the growing discontent and lack of confidence and demoralization which is evident among the membership.

"The membership was never given an accounting of the money in the property fund. A lot was bought in New York, a fence put around it, and that was all we know about it. The Amalgamated Temple was bought in Brooklyn, and it has become the seat of those who are engaged in conspiring against the membership, to find ways in which they can more easily take advantage of them. All this costs money and the deficits are covered by the membership.

"In order to maintain their power, the officials skilfully created groups, among which they could spread dissension so that the membership would be so divided that they may not have the united efforts with which to oppose the harmful policies which have been carried out in our union by our leaders.

"The result is that the union is forgetting and ignoring the interests of the workers, and the bosses no longer fear the union.

"What do we demand?

"1. The throwing of workers out of the shops should cease. We believe that if our leaders would co-operate less with the bosses and co-operate a little more with the workers in the shops, this can be carried out.

"2. W demand that reductions should not be made. The old story is being used. The tailors in New York are being told that the cities out of New York compete for the work by cutting the wages, and if they consent to wage reductions the work can be brought back to New York. This same story is being told to the cities out of New York by our faithful representatives. A production inquisition goes on while thousands of workers are walking the streets idle, hungry and destitute. A stop must be made to this harmful policy.

"3. We demand that the two New York joint boards, including the cutters, amalgamate into one joint board. We hold that the organization must be unified before we can be successful in our fight against the bosses. We cannot and should not permit the continuance of a situation where in one firm one section of the trade goes out on strike while the other remains working.

"4. We demand that the locals in a given branch of the industry be amalgamated into one local. We believe that if it is possible for the Italians, Lithuanians in Chicago, Cleveland, Rochester, Pittsburgh, Boston and in all other clothing centers, pressers, operators and tailors in the same branch of the industry to belong to one local, there is no reason why it cannot be done in New York. The division of the workers into separate locals benefits the bosses and is advantageous to the politicians of the various locals. It brings only disaster to the workers in the shops."

The names of the seven Chicago members of the Amalgamated who were taken from their jobs are: H. Bromorski, Helen Kaplan, J. Lieberman, S. Miller, Sam Simonian, H. Kahn and J. Pinto. Levin sneeringly told them that if they wanted jobs they could go to Local 5, New York, and get work.

WIN JOB STRIKE OF 30,000 DRESS GOODS WORKERS

Stoppage in Shops Brings Victory

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, March 17.— Not a wheel is turning in the dress goods industry since Tuesday in perhaps the most novel strike in the annals of the class struggle in this city. Thirty thousand workers, mostly women, have downed tools and are striking on the job, without actually leaving their places of employment. Altho the strike is won by the jobbers surrender, not until after the shop chairmen accept the settlement today will work be resumed.

They are striking to enforce the agreement gained last February 2nd without a struggle, partly because theiremployers knew the helplessness of denying the demands of 30,000 workers solidly organized, but more because they hoped, as of old, to reduce the agreement to a scrap of paper.

The clause in the agreement that means most both to the workers and their exploiters from diametrically opposite points, of course, is the one establishing a uniform schedule of piece work prices for all classes of work, guaranteed by the jobbers, which next to week work would once and for all put an end to cut throat competition between the workers in the different shops of different contractors working for the same jobber.

The clause was to have gone into effect February 24 and the jobbers proceeded to junk it as has always been their custom, with the tolerance and connivance of the union officialdom.

The newly elected left wing executive committee of local 22, International Ladies' Garment Workers' union, however, determined that the workers should enjoy the fruits of whatever advantages they had gained from their exploiters, insist that the jobbers live up to the agreement. The jobbers point blank refused to do this and the strike on the job was ordered immediately.

The workers in the shops responded at once to the order in a splendid and universal solidarity. Confronted with this upheaval, the jobbers cowered and after conference with the officialdom of the International, trying somehow to patch up the differences, gave in, the union agreeing, however, to give up its demand for a piece schedule commission.

A most disgusting and enraging features of those conferences is the failure of the officials to bring into these conferences members of the executive committee of the locals involved in the strike or of the strikers themselves, Sigman and Feinberg alone taking it entirely upon themselves to patch up the matter in star chamber proceedings.

Thousands of strikers are violently protesting against this high handed method and demand that their executive committee be consulted before action is taken.

In the meantime, the women sit at the machines or stand around in the shops with folded arms while the bosses wring their hands in utter helplessness, not even being able to introduce scabs as the places are occupied by the regular workers who have decided not to make profits for the boss till the jobbers capitulate.

Already over $5,000,000 worth of dresses are held up in the shops of the contractors, and this string of dollars are serving as a picket line that the police are not able to hit in the head.

Thread Strikers Welcome Speaker for Communists elderly women to grind their lives into surplus value for the absentee stock holders.

He urged them to stand together even after winning back the robbed 10 per cent and to fight on for better conditions, until their lives were made happier, until they ceased to be mere "help," mere appendages to the machine. He was given a rising vote of thanks and amidst loud applause, was invited to come back.

Future Meetings.

It was announced that Workers Party speakers would be present at future mass meetings. The strikers have at their command the Gem and the Strand Theaters for morning meetings, but the Strand is too small to accomodate them.

The present Willimantic strike is the first extensive protest against a wage cut and its outcome will have a great effect on other situations. There is urgent need for speakers.

Splendid Solidarity.

Additional information shows that on Tuesday morning just before the mill was shut down the yard boss asked about twelve laborers (yardmen) whether they would take the place of the firemen in case the latter quit. Unanimous refusal. The boss went to other yardmen—the same result. They tried the men in the works department, carpenters and other tradesmen and they refused.

The works department had not been organized, but they disliked the dirty work of being a scab. With all these refusals, the jig was up; it was impossible to keep the mills open. The company admitting defeat, closed the mill.

Fifth Day of the Strike.

The strike lines are still solid. And the strikers are learning about their enemy. They are being taught to do their utmost. They have with them young and old, the bitterness from years of exploitation, and the determination to fight on until this first skirmish is won. In that fight, the Workers Party of America pledges them its solid support.

World Has Not Yet Been Made Safe for Workers; So the Fight Must Go on

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL

TODAY, it may seem that it is a far cry from an Abramovich meeting against Soviet Russia, in Chicago, and the Kurdish revolt against the Angora Turkish government in far Asia. But these two events may be brought together for the purpose of comparison, and a better understanding of the far-flung capitalist front against Bolshevism.

It is easily understood why out-and-out Boushevik haters, longing for the overthrow of the Russian Workers' Republic, should be ardent supporters of the Anti-Sovietist, Abramovich. He is one of them. They bitterly resent any Communist interference with their schemes. They rely upon the American capitalist state, with its police, to help them put their lies over.

But there are a few workers, including some who still follow the grounded "socialist" banner, who feel that no attempt should be made to reply to Abramovich's attack. This is on the theory that Abramovich should be allowed to have his say. It is argued that the Russian Soviet Republic is now strong enough to tolerate free discussion; that Communist workers and their worker sympathizers should sit idly by and hear Soviet Rule assailed, because the Workers' and Peasants' Government is "safe."

Around half the globe, however, comes the quick shattering of this spurious attitude as the Turkish government, at Angora, is forced to vote $44,000,000 ostensibly to carry on its war against the Kurds. It was the Angora government that ousted British imperialism from Constantinople. When the Angora Turks drove the Greek lackeys of London out of Asia, it might also have been argued that Angora rule is "safe." But it is British imperialism that inspires the Kurds to rise against Angora, not for the benefit of the Kurds, but in order that the British flag may return to Constantinople and the Dardanelles, precious key to the domination of the Near East.

To be sure, the Turkish workers and peasants will never win their complete freedom from oppression until they have created their Turkish Soviet republic, with the red flag of Communism flung to the breeze over its domains.

The present Angora government dreads this development. It fears the Communists. It puts them in prison and persecutes them. But Communists see in the present Angora rule a trench against British imperialism, the beginning of the road leading to the final victory. The vision of the British imperialists is equally keen. So they plot against Angora rule, using the Kurds today, or inflaming some other people tomorrow.

Let those who would be so lenient toward Abramovich, remember that the British inspired attack on the Angora government is not an end in itself but merely the building of another front in the ceaseless attack on the Russian Soviet Republic. British imperialism entrenched in Constantinople once more, opens the way for new interventions in Soviet Russia from the south.

The lesson to be drawn is that the victory of the Russian Soviet republic has not been completely consolidated. It is not delivered from imperialist attack. In fact imperialism is continually, ceaselessly plotting against it. The struggle not only for the protection of the Russian Soviet republic, but for the spreading of Soviet Rule, must therefore become more, not less, intense. Labor's triumph must not be confined and "made safe" in Russia. Labor must conquer the world; not permittting, in the name of "free speech," but everywhere and all times suppressing every imperialist and counter-revolutionary assault in the cause of the world proletarian victory.

It only needs a complete understanding of this situation to swing working class support in favor of the Communist position. The capitalist press,—note the editorial expressions of the whole pack,—understand the situation and attack the Communists. Let the workers understand just as clearly and join their own liberating struggle.

For instance, a new Japanese ambassador comes from Tokio to Washington, and his first move is to secure Wall Street aid to wrest control of the Chinese Eastern Railway from Soviet Russia. That should make the issue clearer. It brings it nearer to home. The imperialists never sleep. Let the workers be just as watchful. There will be time for the enjoyment of free discussion, and all that it means, when capitalist imperialism has been destroyed, and the emancipating banners of Communism wave over every land. There will not only be time for it, but it will only then be possible for the first time in human history.

Employers Spend Thousands Fighting Workers' Legislation

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 17.—The Illinois Manufacturers' Association is spending thousands of dollars to defeat the bill now before the Illinois legislature to limit the labor of women to eight hours per day, six days per week. The manufacturers are conducting a strong lobby at Springfield, and are sending a "legislative service" to all manufacturers within the organization, free of charge.

The latest letter sent to all members of the manufacturers' association shows that the manufacturers are interested in only one thing at Springfield—in guarding their profits by opposing bills aimed to raise the living standard of the workers.

"The Illinois Manufacturers' Association is watching your interests at Springfield very carefully," says the letter to the manufacturers. "You are urged to read diligently the pink sheet as it comes to you following each legislative day. Let us know regarding any bills in which you are especially interested. Many matters of vital importance to the industries are being considered, and the only way that the legislators can act intelligently is to get your expression of views."

The Ilinois Manufacturers' Association admits that the lobby against the 8-hour day for women is being carried on "under the leadership of the association."

TEAPOT TRIAL NEAR COLLAPSE FROM SABOTAGE

All Concerned Unite to Kill Evidence

CHEYENNE, Wyo., March 17—Federal Judge T. Blake Kennedy is scheduled to rule this morning on the question of whether Mahlon T. Everhart, wealthy cattleman and son-in-law of Fall, may be excused from testifying regarding his delivery of $230,000 in Liberty bonds to the First National bank of Pueblo, Colo., that are said to have been deposited to the credit of Fall.

These bonds are supposed to have passed between Sinclair and Fall in connection with the Teapot deal, following their distribution by the Continental Trading Co., a Canadian will-o'-the-wisp corporation that had a hazy career before its records were destroyed in August, 1923, after a profit of some $2,000,000 had accrued from its brokerage of millions of barrels of oil.

Everhart, a sour looking individual, refused to answer government attorney's question regarding the bonds on the ground that such answer might tend to incriminate him.

Without Everhart's testimony which is a highly important link in tracing the bonds from the Continental Trading company thru Sinclair to Fall the government will admittedly be confronted with seemingly impassable barriers, and it was hinted that the fraud and bribery charges of the government's case might be faced with collapse if Everhart's testimony is not secured.

After a few preliminary questions Everhart was excused by the court from answering questions on the ground that his testimony might tend to incriminate him.

War Vets Can't Sell Bonus.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—It is illegal to sell soldier's bonus certificates, the veterans' bureau ruled today.

Last November the bureau held that persons, for valuable consideration could be made beneficiaries but Director Frank T. Hines today overruled the earlier decision and held that the rights to the adjusted compensation cannot be sold. Reports have been reaching Washington from many places that veterans were offering their certificates to the highest bidder and in some cases the veterans' bureau has been asked to redeem the papers. Under today's decision all such transactions are illegal.

aversion to freedom of expression on general principles. Aside from the fact that most of those resented the foul presence of the fink Abramovich were neither Russians nor Asiatics, (in fact, there were many Swedes and Irish there); it takes a lot of impudence for any editor to make the claim that this is a land of free speech. What about the numerous raids on meetings by government agents, and so-called patriotic organizations like the American legion? What about the criminal syndicalist laws that adorn the statute books of the majority of the states?

THERE are hundreds of workers in United States jails for exercising the rights of free speech. Those who have followed the Irish movement here in America, know that meetings called by one group have been captured by another group and turned into a counter demonstration. Many stratagems have been used to accomplish this purpose. What happened at the Abramovich meetings is that the majority of those who purchased tickets to see him, became incensed as soon as he barked his first curse against the Soviet Republic, for which the class conscious workers have a reverence that the stool pigeons of the capitalist class do not understand.

ONE of the staff correspondents of the Chicago Tribune was clean mad because the only Communist haled into court was let off free by the judge when he looked at the gash on his forehead inflicted by some yellow socialist slugger. As it was the casualties were not all on the side of the pro-Soviet sympathizers. It appears that the police, when in doubt, swung their clubs. The Abramovich supporters made the mistake of wearing red instead of yellow ribbons. The police evidently connecting red with Bolshevism, connected their hardwood with the heads of the members of the arrangements committee. Abramovich may like to talk, but it looks as if the American workers of the Jewish race do not want to hear him. And nobody else can understand him. He might apply for a job as Calvin Coolidge's interpreter. Cal is dumb by nature and Rafael by circumstances.

SECTION OF THE TRADE UNION EDUCATIONAL LEAGUE

HUTCHESON AGENT WITH POLICE IN RAID ON T. U. E. L.

Second Article Exposing Duffy's Lies

By J. W. JOHNSTONE.

Secretary Duffy of the Carpenters' Union, in his letter to the numerous requests demanding explanations on the many expulsions that have taken place, says, among other things:

"You no doubt know that for years we have had to contend with dual and antagonistic bodies to such an extent that they become not only obnoxious but dangerous to the growth, development and prosperity of our organization."

Duffy Lies.

Any carpenter knows that Duffy lies when he says that the carpenters have had to contend with dual and antagonistic bodies. If there is one industry that has been singularly free from dualism, it has been the building trades of the United States. The I. W. W. has never been able to get a foothold in the building industry. And the O. B. U. that swept Canada, 1919-20, has no adherents any more among the building trades workers there and never had a foothold in the United States.

So to classify the T. U. E. L. with dual organizations is simply an attempt made by Hutcheson, to gain the sympathy of those members not conversant with the facts.

Again he says, "You must remember that there are two sides to every story, and evidently Local Union 2140 injected other matters into these documents besides that referring to Wm. Reynolds, in order to get the sympathy and support of other local unions not knowing the facts."

We Tell the Other Side.

We agree with Mr. Duffy, and the "other side" of the story is now being told to the membership thru the medium of the DAILY WORKER, the Progressive Building Trades Worker, the pamphlet "What's Wrong in the Carpenters' Union," and the resolution sent out by Carpenters' Local 2140 of Detroit, Mich.

The G. E. B., in expelling Reynolds and the Los Angeles carpenters (16), heard a one-sided story, and expelled them without hearing the story of the expelled. Wm. Reynolds of Detroit did not even know he was being investigated and was expelled by letter from the general executive board in Indianapolis.

We would like to ask Mr. Duffy and his boss, Hutcheson, if this is what they consider "hearing both sides of the story"?

Torturing the Truth.

Another choice paragraph is, "The case of the 11 men refered to in Los Angeles is a similar one (as Reynolds, Ed.) However, at the September, 1924, meeting of the general executive board held in Indianapolis, that case was carefully gone into, after which the board decided they would reinstate these members in good standing providing they gave assurance to the board that they would sever their connections with the Trade Union Educational League and would not give it any countenance, support, or recognition whatever in the future. This these men refused to do. So they have no one to blame but themselves for being outside the pale of the United Brotherhood."

This is the usual method adopted by the corrupt Hutcheson administration to evade the issue in answering the questions asked.

Duffy "forgets" to say that Wm. Muir, general organizer, in conjunction with the policy of Los Angeles, staged a raid upon a meeting held by the Trade Union Educational League on March 1, 1924; that 39 men and women, carrying on a peaceful educational meeting, were brutally flung into a patrol wagon, taken down to the police station and forced to tell what union they belonged to.

Expelled Without Trial.

Two days later Wm. Muir, personal representative of Hutcheson, with the information received from the police, read off a list of 17 names to the Carpenters' District Council, of those whom he asked be suspended.

One man who happened to be friendly with Muir, was quietly dropped from the list, and the other 16 members not 11, as Duffy states in his letter, were expelled without trial three days after the raid, and upon evidence submitted by the police department of Los Angeles.

This happened in March, 1924, and the appeal of these 16 members was not heard by the general executive board until after the convention. This hearing was purposely delayed so that the defendants would not be able to appeal to the convention.

Old and Active Members.

Another thing that Duffy conveniently neglects to mention was that D. Z. McClure was permanently expelled, and that all the members involved had been in the organization from five to 32 years; that all were active in the union, most of them holding offices such as business agent, local secretary, trustees, and delegates to district and central labor bodies.

Nor does Duffy say, that besides the conditions laid down in the above quotation, that the ruling of the G. E. B. carried with it the following:

"They shall not be permitted to hold office in any local union or serve as comitteemen of any local union for a period of five years."

Duffy knows full well that if he told the truth about the official decision of the G. E. B. on the Los Angeles cases in his circular letter to the local unions, they would immediately demand the reinstatement of the expelled.

Another point upon which Duffy remains silent is the police raid. But if Duffy is silent, not so with his local lieutenants.

Hutcheson's Agent Accompanied Police Raiders.

We are in receipt of a copy of a letter from Carpenters' Local No. 2203, of Anaheim, Calif., Feb. 23, 1925, signed by J. R. Carothers, Rec. Secy., in which it states, after condemning the T. U. E. L.:

"The police of Los Angeles raided a meeting of the T. U. E. L., thinking they were I. W. W.'s. One of the representatives of our general office was present with the raiders and got hold of the membership role of the T. U. E. L. and also saw some of the members of the Carpenters' Union in this hall. These members were expelled from the Carpenters' Union and got damn little sypathy from any but their kind."

Here we get a frank admission from J. R. Carothers that Hutcheson, thru his personal representative, used the police in raiding an educational meeting of the T. U. E. L., upon evidence obtained by the police, expelled without trial 16 of the most active carpenters in Los Angeles.

Their Kind Multiplies.

Carothers says "They got damn little sympathy from any but their kind." This is quite true. But their kind are so numerous in Los Angeles that Locals Nos. 1500, 2337, 158, 426, 1976 and 884, endorsed the resolution sent out by Detroit Local 2140 demanding their reinstatement and condemning the expulsion policy. Duffy, in his letter, resorts to half-truths which are worse than deliberate lies.

Like Wm. Reynolds, the Los Angeles expelled members were put out of the Brotherhood without a hearing or trial, because they held different political opinions to those of Wm. L. Hutcheson and were determined to expose his corrupt administration.

In tomorrow's article, I will take up that part of Duffy's letter dealing with the Chicago expulsion cases.

STOOL PIGEON OF THE GOVERNMENT FAILS TO BREAK TEXTILE STRIKE

SPRINGFIELD, Mass.—Striking textile workers at the Chicopee mills of the Dwight Manufacturing company refuse to acept the terms the employers offered them instead of the average 10 per cent wage cuts first announced. Charles G. Wood, federal conciliator, failed again to win the workers to the company view and has gone to Boston to try to revise the company's proposition with its treasurer.

Wood is under suspicion by Massachusetts workers because of his repeated efforts to influence strikers at Waltham and othed places to accept company propositions.

Hutcheson Frames Up on More Carpenters to Retain His Job

NEW YORK CITY.—In spite of hundreds of carpenters' locals and numerous district councils that have protested against the expulsion policy of the Hutcheson administration, Hutcheson still continues to broaden out his disruptive campaign. The latest victims to feel the weight of Czar Hutcheson's mailed fist are the officers of Local 376 of New York City and Jos. Lapidus, campaign manager for Morris Rosen, who was left wing candidate for president in the recent carpenters' election.

They have been notified to appear before a special investigating committee selected by the G. E. B., to answer charges of issuing "scandalous and scurrilous" matter during the election campaign. The "scandalous" matter referred to is the election program upon which Morris Rosen ran for president. It advocated amalgamation, independent working class political action, job control, etc.

If there are any members of the Carpenters' Union who have been in doubt in the past as to the basis of Hutcheson's expulsion policy, this latest act of treachery should convince them that the talk about "dual unionism" is all poppy-cock and that Hutcheson merely uses this as a cover under which to expel all those members who took an active part against him in the last election.

A. C. W. LOCAL DEMANDS WORLD UNITY, PRAISING COMMUNISTS AND CONDEMNING ABRAMOVICH

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—The following resolution was adopted by the Lithuanian Local of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of Rochester. This same resolution was referred by the joint board to the board of directors:

Resolution for International Labor Unity.

"WHEREAS, The labor movement of the world is today engaged in a fierce struggle against the united attacks of world capitalism and their imperialist governments under the leadership of the American capitalist class as shown by the embittered campaigns against Soviet Russia, thru the Dawes' slave plan in Europe, intervention in China, and the open shop and wage slashing drive here in America; and

"WHEREAS, In this struggle the combined forces of world capitalism must be met by a united front of the international labor movement, toward which an important step has been taken thru the formation of the Anglo-Russian Unity Committee composed of the duly authorized representatives of the British labor movement and representatives of the 7,000,000 Russian trade unionists; and

"WHEREAS, The Second International as the agent of world capitalism betrays the workers by supporting the treacherous labor enslaving Dawes' plan, thru vicious attacks upon workers' Russia, the Communists' International, the Red International of Labor Unions, and the Anglo-Russian Unity Committee: This anti-labor program being now presented in this country by R. Abramovich; and

"WHEREAS, The Communist International and the Red International of Labor Unions fights ceaselessly and militantly for the full interests of the workers, constantly striving to bring about complete unity of all labor against the centralized bosses, rousing the workers against the Dawes' plan, and supporting in fullest measure the work of the Anglo-Russian Unity Committee: Therefore, be it

"RESOLVED, That we endorse the work being done by the Communist International, the Red International of Labor Unions and the Anglo-Russian Unity Committee in behalf of the strengthening and the unification of the whole world labor movement, and be it further

"RESOLVED, That we condemn the actions of the Second International, the agent of world exploiting capitalism, and its representative, R. Abramovich."

Union Bricklayer Tells of Treachery in Helping Bosses

New York City, March 17.

DAILY WORKER:

Friends, this union bricklayer is going to give a correct outline of the open shop drive in Massachusetts in 1921, by the chamber of commerce and the building trust combined.

Friends, this will substantiate another bricklayer's item in the DAILY WORKER of March 4, 1925, complimenting Vice-President Thornton with selling the Bricklayers' Union to scab bosses in Philadelphia in 1924. But in this case all the officers, local and international, were mixed up in the graft that the big builders, the George A. Fuller and the Turner Construction company of New York handed out to these labor traitors.

For instance, in Lawrence, Massachusetts, Peabody and company were constructing a large job for the American Woolen company, when the open shop was declared, and the contractors moved out with the union men. But in came Turner Construction company with New York scabs and took their places.

The George A. Fuller company was doing the same dirty work in Boston, and don't forget that the most aggressive tool they acquired to crush those local unions were the international officers, who have special agreements with the big thieves.

The writer wishes your co-operation in his struggle towards amalgamation in the building industry, and also a boost in the sales of our valuable paper. I will write you of conditions in New York shortly. Signed: "F."

Painters Give to Prisoners As Much As the Law Allows

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., March 17.—Local 587 of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators' and Paperhangers of America, of this city, at their last regular meeting endorsed a resolution against the anti-syndicalist laws of Michigan and donated $10 to the Labor Defense Council to help carry on the fight to set Ruthenberg, Foster, Dunne, and the other Michigan defendants free.

They also donated $10 to the Mooney defense, and took up another collection for the Sacco and Vanzetti defense. The smallness of the donations is due to the clause in our general constitution which hinders us in making such donations

Reynolds Elected President of the District Council

DETROIT, Mich.—The fight against the expulsion policy of Wm. L. Hutcheson, president of the Carpenters' Union, is receiving the support of almost the entire membership of Detroit. At the last meeting of the district council, when the lieutenants of Hutcheson refused to open the meeting, the delegates took the matter into their own hands and elected Wm. Reynolds of Local No. 2140 as president, and Wallace of Local No. 1805 as secretary, and instructed them to prepare a program for organizational activity for the next meeting.

Hutcheson's attempt to disrupt the organization in Detroit is still going on. Hutcheson took the controversy into the capitalist courts and said he would abide by its decision. Of course, he fondly imagined that the decision would be in his favor and did not consider that capitalist courts are sometimes compelled to yield to mass pressure.

The decision of Judge Hunt in dissolving the injunction and dismissing the contempt proceedings against Reynolds, forces Hutcheson to adopt new tactics. He has refused to accept the per capita tax of Local No. 1191 until they send their books to Indianapolis.

This move is very obvious. It simply means that Hutcheson is going to try to reduce the delegation to the district council to a point where he can control it. However, this is a futile maneuver, because there isn't a single local in Detroit that supports Hutcheson's position.

Local No. 2140 of Detroit did not ask for, and refuses to accept Judge Hunt's decision. They have placed their case before the rank and file and will be guided by their decision.

President Hutcheson, in violation of all union principles, appealed to a capitalist court. It was he that "prayed" for the court's decision. Now that he has got it, it is up to him to accept it.

Faithful Servants Get Usual Reward from Government

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 17.—No sooner has the White House caused Public Printer Carter to dismiss 175 union printers from the government printing office, thereby reducing the force to 4,000 persons, than officials of Columbia Typographical Union get hold of copies of posters printed by Carter and sent thruout the country, very recently, urging printers to come to Washington to take jobs in this very shop.

The administration apparently wanted to get a supply of non-union labor on hand, waiting and anxious for work, before it dismissed a lot of old experienced hands, who might make a protest at their own unmerited fate.

How cruel was this typical Coolidge order is shown by the case of one man who was within four months of the right to retire on the small pension provided by contributions from the pay envelopes of all government employes. He lost his job and his pension. Others dismissed had served faithfully for 30 years.

Teachers Need More Strikes and Fewer Lawyers to Win Raise

NEW YORK—With income tax return figures showing an increase of total taxable incomes and a decided increase in the total of very large taxable incomes, Henry R. Linville president New York Teachers' Union asks, "Why should not these indications of prosperity favorably affect the wage of teachers? Why should not teachers get at least a living wage for the important and indispensible social service they render?"

The Teachers' Union is backing the Kleinfield-Ricca bill, No. 847, in the state legislature which would provide salary increases for New York city teachers. Linville says, "The last year record a slow but steady upward climb of the cost of living index curve.

"The upward movement of prices is neither temporary nor local but permanent and world-wide, as any examination of the statistics published in the U. S. Labor Bulletin or in the Canadian Labor Gazette will show." He asks if the teachers shall be "the only large group to whom justice is again denied?"

Abraham Lefkovitz, legislative chairman for the union, is sending out a call for immediate practical demonstrations by teachers of their power to aid the passage of the salary increase bill

LOSOVSKY WRITES UPON THE THREE KINDS OF UNIONS

Their Attitude Toward Capitalist Society

By A. LOSOVSKY.

General Secretary of the Red International of Labor Unions.

The trade union movement of prewar time was divided on the main lines, between those having a class conscious point of view and those of non-class viewpoint. Among those with a class conscious viewpoint we can count the principal trade union bodies of Germany, England, France, Italy and the Scandinavian countries, which in their programs, resolutions, etc., pointed out the class struggle and which theoretically, at least, were opposed to class collaboration.

The non-class unions, were those which in their programs, declared openly for co-operation between classes and for social peace; these were the catholic, democratic, protestant, and other unions. We should also count here the yellow unions, which theoretically recognized the class and social peace, but, in practice had been conducting a class struggle—but not on the side of the workers; rather on the side of the bourgeoisie. This is the first grouping which divided the great mass of organized workers and which is the primary classification of the trade unions existing at that time.

Three Ideological Groups.

But this rough division of the class and non-class is, in itself, not enuf if we do not explain what the class unions at that time really were.

Examining that part of the unions which, before the war, united about three-fourths of all organized workers on a class basis, we can point out in general three political groupings which had been formed during a long historical period. On one side was trade unionism—taking here trade unionism as a certain ideological and political movement—then anarcho-syndicalism and third, social-democratic trade unions. These are the three different clear political divisions into which the class trade union movement was divided. Let us take up the characteristics of each of these movements.

First—Trade Unionism.

What do we understand in the trade union literature and politics under trade unionism? This name, which was adopted from the Anglo-Saxon countries, became during the long period of development of the English and American trade union movement not only an external formula or symbol for a certain trade union in a certain country, but it represented also a certain ideological and political content of the trade union movement. Under trade unionism we understand such a form of the labor and trade union movement which has for its purpose only the narrow economic problems of bettering conditions of labor, higher wages, etc.

Trade unionism is a theory which has grown out of the practical Anglo-Saxon labor movement, which in fact does not have in its program, in theory or in practice, the overthrowal of capitalism, but only the betterment of conditions within the capitalist system.

Thinks Capitalism Permanent.

So the main characterization of trade unionism (also a characterization of reformism, which is understood widely outside the borders of Anglo-Saxon countries) is the struggle within the frame of the capitalist system and the conception of that system as a permanent one within the frame of which we have to struggle and better the conditions of the working class. Most of the practical and theoretical workers of the Anglo-Saxon labor movement openly construed the problems of the trade union only in the sense of bettering the conditions of the working class under capitalism and even put up the theory of the existence of three main factors, labor, capital, and society (public).

What the trade union leaders understood by the "public" somewhat reminds us in Russia of our term "the third element." There was such a third element in the zemstvo (councils of the rural citizenry), the intelligenzia, which was objectively counted as revolutionary but which played a somewhat separate role between the two main struggling classes. Under "public" they understood that part of the bourgeoisie which under the pressure of the working class came to the conclusion of the usefulness of the gradual betterment of the conditions of labor in the interests of capital itself.

Conditions Force Amalgamation.

The further characterization of the trade union form of the labor movement in its organizational division (structure) and the domination of the local over the general interest. These local or craft organizations which have been built up during decades still retain their local power at the present time, notwithstanding the fact that objective conditions force the labor movement to unite the small loose parts, to amalgamate the unions into wider organizations uniting the workers of a whole industry. As a result of the domination of the sectional interest over the interests of the whole industry, we have now the domination of the narrow economic interests over the interests of the whole class. This is pure trade unionism.

Next week Comrade Losovsky will write about pre-war anarcho-syndicalist unions, the ideology of which has, in some measure, particularly of recent years, swayed the Industrial Workers of the World. (I. W. W.)

"We Scab Under Union Label," Says Iron Worker of Local 52

NEW YORK CITY.—Last spring the iron workers that belong to Local No. 40 of the International Association of Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Iron Workers' Union struck for recognition of their union.

The strike was a direct result of the continuous attempt of the "Iron League" to establish the open shop in New York City.

The strike is going already about a year.

On February 8, 1925, an attempt was made to erect the steel of the Standard Oil skyscraper at 26th street and Broadway with strike breakers.

On the same day the union answered with taking the Ornamental Workers' Local No. 52 on strike. It didn't take more than a week's time, and we see that Local No. 52 is already back at work.

We thought that the union had won the strike, but when we came across one struck building and asked the iron workers "why did Local No. 52 go to work without Local No. 40?" they answered me that they did not "go to work but to scab."

"And to scab with a union label," said another one.

MINERS ROBBED AND INSULTED BY BOSS AND FAKERS

Unholy Alliance in the Coal Pits

McDONALD, Pa.—Operators and miners' officials break and disregard the agreement here by the wholesale. But what is a signed agreement among friends?

In the Montour mine, number 9, of the Pittsburgh Coal company, the men have to work in water which in many instances is a foot deep. There is no protection for the miner, only what he himself can force the boss to give.

When the loaders kick about water in the room and ask for some method to get it out so they can load the coal they are told to drink the water if they want a dry place to work in!

Officials Won't Let Men Fight Back.

This insult is thrown at the miners by the little pit bosses because they know that the miners' official gang will not allow the men to put up any kind of a fight to enforec their demands.

If the pit boss is finally forced by any of the men to furnish them with water boxes into which they can bail the water, he does not pay them. Yet all dead work is supposed to be paid for at the rate of $7.50 per day. Not only do the men lose the time that it takes to bail the water out but they also lose a car of coal.

Instead of being furnished an empty car in their turn they are given the water box. Even after the loader bails the water out for himself he can not get it taken out of the room.

Klux Ignorance Rampart.

Here the operators use klan and race prejudice against the loaders who are either fireign born or colored. Practically all of the drivers and day workers are the conceited type born in this country and belonging to the klan that is an easy prey for the operators. They are used against the loaders and refuse to haul out the water boxes.

All of the honest miners must fight these conditions in the mine by participating in the affairs of their organization and not leave it in the hands of the reactionary officials. They must build fighting mine committees in each pit to battle both bosses and fakers to a finish.

STEEL WORKERS ARE GAGGED BY LABOR FAKERS

Mike Tighe Whets Up Convention Clique

By WALLACE METCALFE.

NILES, Ohio.—During the past year the nearest thing to organization done by M. F. Tighe & Co., of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Tin Workers, was at Detroit, where a few workers promised the officialdom that they "would think it over." In spite of the thousands of unorganized steel and other workers eligible to join the A. A. of I. S. & T. W., this is the only "work" accomplished by the officialdom.

Lodges known to be favorable to the machine have been sending in attacks after attacks upon the progressive rank and file organization. These machine lodges have been spewing their venom-like propaganda all over the pages of the Amalgamated Journal preparing the ground work for the attack which the desperate officialdom will launch at the coming national convention. The editor of the Journal has set down these rules for lodge journal agents to follow:

"1. Journal agents should refrain from mentioning in their letters matters that transpire at any executive session of a sub-lodge, with the exception of things of general interest.

"2. Mention should not be made of non-attendance at meetings, non-payment of dues, poor lodge attendance, and the delinquencies of members.

"3. Matters of a personal nature, jokes on members, libelous remarks or anything of a derogatory character which might be misconstrued will be eliminated from letters."

The officialdom are doing everything possible to prevent the A. A. of I. S. & T. W. from becoming an effective organization by applying this blind censorship and system of gagging the rank and file.

The true condition existing in this once powerful union must be made known to the workers, and its weakness must be exposed rather than concealed, as the officialdom are attempting to do.

When the rank and file once know the true condition of their union they will not be sandbagged by some flighty scribe who cannot see the difference between loyalty to class and loyalty to a sleek officialdom who have long ago lost their vision of what working class unions function for.

"Save the A. A. of I. S. & T. W.!" is the cry of the rank and file, and "Organize the unorganized!" "Amalgamate—Agitate—Educate!"

It is expected that the officialdom will dig up defunct lodges in order to have 'their' delegates at the convention. It is expected that no stone will be left unturned to defeat the progressives. But thinking members of this union will ask of M. F. Tighe & Co. the following questions:

1. How many new members have we secured during the past year of your administration? How many new lodges?
2. How many members have we lost? Why have we lost them?
3. What have you done for our locked-out and strike-ridden lodges?
4. What about our treasury? What about the censorship you have placed upon our Journal?
5. Why do you cry that the "Reds" are to blame for this deplorable condition of decay now existing in our international union, when you know that ONLY the progressive lodges can show increased lodge membership?

Unorganized and organized steel and iron workers! Place your shoulders to the wheel and unite with the progressives by supporting them in their work of educating and organizing the steel workers.

Thread Mill Strike Is a Complete Shut Down Against Cuts

HARTFORD, Conn.—The strike of the Willimantic mill workers of the American Thread Co. is so successful that the plant is closed down. According to Organizer Mary Kelleher, 90 per cent of the workers are in the United Textile Workers' Union now. Over 2,000 are out and march daily to the mill at noon for picket duty.

Mass meetings of strikers are held daily in Union Hall. Watch is being kept at other mills of the American Thread Co. to try to prevent transfer of work. The strike started as protest against an average 10 per cent wage cut.

New York Tailors Meeting Thursday.

NEW YORK CITY.—The workers in custom tailoring of New York and vicinity, are invited to a mass organization meeting by the executive board of Local No. 1, Journeymen Tailors' Union of America, to be held at Bohemian Hall, 321 East 73rd street, on Thursday evening, March 19, at 8 p. m. Prominent speakers in English and Italian. Unorganized tailors are especially welcome.

TRADE UNIONISTS COME TO DEFENSE OF COMMUNISTS

Seattle and Detroit Are Very Active

The national office of the Labor Defense Council is in receipt of a check for $500.00 from Norman Tallenttire, organizer of District 12 (Seattle) of the Workers Party of America, being the first installment of the collection made for the Michigan Defense thruout the district.

Comrade Tallentire declared this was just a beginning, only a few branches having been heard from. A public meeting was held in Seattle on March 1, at which Hulet M. Wells, John C. Kennedy and Tallentire were the speakers.

The following local unions in Seattle have endorsed the Michigan defense and send delegates to the Labor Defense Council: Machinists No. 79; Boiler Makers No. 104; Building Laborers No. 242; Maintenance of Way; Coppersmiths; and Mill Men No. 338.

The Seattle central committee is arranging a big defense affair on Saturday March 21 and George Vandeveer will be the principal speaker at a mass meeting on March 29.

Washington D. C. is planning an affair for the Michigan defense and Mother Bloor is dong her usually good work on the Pacific coast. She reports good meetings in Los Angeles and Santa Barbara.

A check for $500.00 was sent in by Detroit as a result of a bazaar held there in conjunction with the Federation of Workingwomen's Organizations.

Howat to Speak.

Alexander Howat and Caroline Lowe will be the principal speakers at a mass meeting to be held in Kansas City on Sunday afternoon, April 12. The meeting had to be arranged for the afternoon as Howat is working in a mine and must be back on the job early on Monday.

An affair is being arranged in Los Angeles on March 18 under the auspices of the I. W. A. and the Labor Defense Council. The following Los Angeles unions have endorsed the Michigan defense: Machinists No. 311; Upholsterers No. 15; Capmakers No. 26; Milliners No. 48. All the unions mentioned have invited speakers from the Labor Defense Council to address the membership.

THOUSANDS OF MAIMED EX-WAR VETERANS STARVING WHILE FARCE OF "REHABILITATION" CONTINUES

By a Disabled Ex-Soldier.

The world war veterans' act was expected to grant the disabled ex-soldiers the benefit of vocational rehabilitation for the purpose of enabling them to acquire social and economic independence. The work of the vocational rehabilitation is vested in the hands of the United States Veterans' Bureau.

The war veterans' bureau spent a huge sum of the workers' money but achieved no results whatever. When the disabled ex-soldiers are declared rehabilitated they are unable to become self-supporting. Thousands of them are walking the streets hungry and destitute because of unemployment, and physical and mental disabilities and because of the failure on the part of the U. S. veterans' bureau to give suitable training to those who are mutilated during the world war.

Thru the lack of honesty on the part of the government officials in charge of the work, the vocational rehabilitation is a farce. They measure the process of vocational rehabilitation by the hands of the clock, allowing a period of three to four years for the disabled soldier to master a trade or a profession. This is absolutely impossible for the ex-service men afflicted with various maladies such as tuberculosis, chronic indigestion, nervous troubles etc.

The vocational rehabilitation measure was not passed to benefit the disabled world war veterans but to give well paid fat jobs to various political favorites who act within the wall of the veterans bureau schools as officials and schoolmasters.

Thru mismanagement, inefficiency, indifference and graft on the part of the United States veterans' bureau officials, the disabled soldiers are little benefited. The majority of the applicants are not given the objectives desired. Therefore the applicant is compelled to take up a trade for which he is unfit, and the result is failure to be benefited by the vocational training.

The congressional investigation of the management of the veterans' bureau which took place during Charles Forbes directorship did not remedy conditions in the least.

Mismanagement, indifference, inefficiency and graft still exist in the United States veterans' bureau. The public money is spent to support the politicians while thousands of disabled war veterans are starving.

Warlord in German Election.

BERLIN, Germany, March 17.—Gen. von Ludendorff will probably enter the German campaign as the presidential candidate of the Hitlerites, according to telegrams tonight from Munich.

BRITISH UNION CHIEFS EXPLODE GEORGIAN MYTH

Find Country Growing in Prosperity

The following interesting article is taken from a recent issue of the London Daily Herald, written by one of its staff writers:

A great deal of the preliminary abuse which is intended to destroy the effect of the report of the trade union delegation to Russia is concerning itself with Georgia and the Trans-Caucasus generally.

For the ruin of Georgia under Soviet rule has been one of the favorite themes of the white propagandist. Only last autumn we were assured that the whole country was in insurrection, ,that Batoum and Tiflis were in flames, and—a little later—that the population was being massacred.

The delegation found, as their report will show, that all these stories were baseless, and that, in fact, under Soviet rule, the history of Georgia has been relatively peaceful, and that materially it is prospering as it never did under menshevist rule.

What Delegation Saw.

The delegation saw the work of reconstruction—or, rather, construction—which is going forward: the great power station being built at Tiflis; the new machinery at the manganese mines of Chiaturi; the new housing; the new development everywhere.

All of which will be furiously denied by the capitalist press. For it is an article of faith here that Georgia is a ruined country, and the Georgian Soviet government a mere bloody despotism.

So the capitalist press says. But so the capitalist does not think.

Three financial groups—one British, one American, one German—have been competing against each other for the right to invest money in the maganese mines of this ruined country.

The American group—headed by Mr. Harriman—is probably going to succeed. And these are the terms he is offering the Soviet government.

He will invest immediately $4,000,000 in new railways and new plants.

He will guarantee a minimum yearly output of 800,000 tons.

He will pay the Soviet government a minimum annual royalty of $3,200,000—$1,000,000 to be paid in advance on the signature of the contract.

The czar's government, by the way, only got royalties of some $300,000 a year.

Evidence Enuf.

That shows what Mr. Harriman and his experts, after three years' careful study, really believe about the economic condition of Georgia and the stability and integrity of the Soviet government.

And the Germans are furious to have lost the opportunity of investing such sums in the country.

The capitalist papers may talk. But so does the capitalist's money. And Mr. Harriman's dollars seem to be saying very emphatically that the trade union delegation is perfectly right.

SEATTLE TOILERS HEAR DISCUSSION ON 'FREE SPEECH'

When It Works and When It Doesn't

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SEATTLE, Wash., March 17.—John C. Kennedy, director of the Seattle labor college, lecturing at regular Sunday night forum in Labor Temple, on the subject "Heresy and Heresy Hunting," gave a historical review of fights for ideas and opinion and drawing a moral from the lessons of history, showed that wherever organizations or institutions have instituted pogroms against minority opinion said organization or institution has always suffered a violent reaction from such tactics.

Aids Spread of Ideas.

In fact said he, such activites only succeed in spreading further the ideas which are attacked and consequent disorganization and chaos have obtained as a result of all persecution of opinion.

This liberalistic bourgeois conception of "free speech" in the abstract, was, however, pointed out as a mistake, by members of the Workers (Communist) Party. This misconception of the role of pure abstraction in the field of class struggle, is seriously wide of the truth.

For, it was pointed out, the forces of ascending capitalist society very effectively suppressed the "sacred" and even the "divine" rights of feudalism, and the ascending proletarian power in Soviet Russia has quite successfully and frankly suppressed the bourgeois "opinion" of the capitalist minority.

The matter of the effectiveness of the suppression hinges not at all on its "moral" aspect, but upon whether the class which is attempting to suppress another is historically rising or degenerating in its control of the forces of production. If it is rising, as capitalism was doing up to the time of the war, it is quite able to and actually did succeed in suppressing all opposing classes.

Working Class Is Rising.

But with the apex of capitalism past, and with the capitalist class no longer able to control the forces of production which it itself has generated, the historically rising class is the proletariat, whose power cannot be suppressed by the capitalist class, and which, as in Soviet Russia, becomes dominant and very successively suppresses the decadent bourgeoisie, opinions and all. The matter of free speech within a workers' organization is quite another matter and should always be upheld.

In discussion from the floor, many present voiced surprise and regret that the labor council at Seattle was apparently prepared at this time to censure delegates for political opinion, and questioned the right of the council to pass upon the fitness of local union representatives, maintaining that this was a question for the local union alone to decide which gives the delegates their mandate.

The Rev. Sydney Strong stated that a new precedent was being created in the labor movement by introducing the same methods that had driven many sincere people from the church and he further stated that such tactics, if pursued, woud make honest workers ashamed of their labor movement.

Commemorate the Commune.

Announcement was made that a great gathering organized by a united council of radical workers' organizations would commemorate the Paris Commune next Saturday night, Mar. 21, to be held in new Finnish hall, Twelfth and Washington streets, John C. Kennedy and Norman H. Tallentire to be speakers with dancing after the program.

It is also proposed to run a monster demonstration here on Sunday, April 5, where John C. Kennedy, Anna Louise Strong, George F. Vanderveer, James Duncan and Stanley J. Clark of Texas, are expected to speak. Proceeds of both the affairs will be sent to Labor Defense Council for the benefit of Michigan defense.

CITIZEN'S JURY SAYS O'NEILL'S PLAY IS CLEAN

Vice Body Prefers Bare Legs to Wobblies

NEW YORK, March 17.—Eugene O'Neil will not have to appear before the New York citizens' play jury to vindicate his Desire Under the Elms. It is the second play declared without immoral taint by the new jury. Sydney Howard's They Knew What They Wanted was the first judged clean, although the public was quite unaware that it was even questioned.

Howard, co-author with Robert Dunn of The Labor Spy, has a wobbly in his play of California grape vineyards and indulges in a little frankness about the processes of life but has nothing of what is ordinarily called dirty or smutty in his production. O'Neill's play is a realistic study of New England farm life in the eighteen fifties. District Attorney Banton from Texas thought the play was so thoroughly bad that it couldn't be rewritten but the play jury seemed to understand O'Neill better.

John S. Sumner, secretary of the society for suppression of vice, allowed the play jury plan to be amended so that the producer, author or translator of any play about to be condemned shall be summoned to make a defense statement to the jury. Funds for the purchase of play jurors' tickets were given by members of Actors' Equity association and unannounced donors.

The first two play juries of citizens have vindicated themselves to the artists and to those opposed to political censorship of the stage. But the really risque plays—producer William Brady frankly admits that one of his productions is "dirty" to catch the crowd and their dollars—have not yet been touched by the citizens' juries and are playing blissfully on to capacity houses as a result of the publicity given to their unsavory character.

MANY JOIN WITH WORKERS PARTY IN RELIEF FOR IRISH

Prominent Persons Offer Their Aid

The names of three prominent figures in the American labor movement have been added to the number already engaged in raising relied for the workers and peasants on the west coast of Ireland rendered destitute by one of the most severe famines that ever hit that country.

They are Eugene V. Debs, Upton Sinclair and Elizabeth Gurley Flynn. Debs in a wire to the secretary of the Irish Workers' and Peasants' Famine Relief Committee declared himself delighted to be of service in this cause, and accepted membership of the national advisory committee of the Irish relief organization.

Offered Services.

Upton Sinclair offered his services in bringing the appeal for famine relief to the attention of wider masses of the American people.

Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, who is one of the most eloquent speakers in the country has volunteered to address meetings in behalf of relief work.

The London Daily Herald carries an interesting item from the pen of a catholic priest in Donegal, who was peeved because the desperate condition of the peasantry in his parish was brought to the attention of the outside world by Mrs. Helen Crawford, secretary of the British section of the Workers' International Relief.

Blamed The Peasants.

The reverand gentleman blamed the laziness of the peasants for their deplorable condition. He said they never save their money. But it is no easy job to save money with a hungry priest in the vicinity. The peasants may be excused for coming to the conclusion that work does not pay, seeing the priests living in luxury and idleness.

Several cities are taking advantage of the Irish festival on March 17 to bring the famine situation to the attention of the American workers.

The office of the Irish Workers' and Peasants' Famine Relief Committee at 19 South Lincoln street, is busy sending out thousands of letters containing appeals for funds for relief for the victims of the Irish famine.

Freiheit Orchestra Plays in New York on Sunday, March 22

NEW YORK, March 17—Central Opera House will again be crowded with enthusiastic comrades and musical admirers, when the Freiheit Mandolin Orchestra will be heard in its initial concert on Sunday, March 22 at 2 p. m.

A group of comrades originally organized by the Workmen's Circle as a mandolin orchestra, and then expelled because they dared to play at the celebration of the anniversary of the Russian revolution, have formed this new branch of the Communist movement.

Efforts of the general office of the Workmen's Circle to break them up failed. In a body they joined the Communist movement, as the Freiheit Mandolin Orchestra, and with some more new members they developed into the finest mandolin orchestra in the labor movement. — Edward Schwartz, correspondent, Harlem Jewish Branch, Workers Party.

Speaking of the Unity Conference of the National Minority Movement in England, in the March issue of the WORKERS MONTHLY.

Spreading Like Wildfire in England!

Wm. Z. FOSTER says:

"The whole thing was a blaze of revolutionary spirit. It was a striking demonstration of the spirit of international unity, now spreading like wildfire among the millions organized in the British trade unions."

CITY CENSORS REFUSE PERMIT FOR LABOR FILM

Mayor Dever Refuses to Act on Appeal

The Chicago board of motion picture censors, which for several years distinguished itself as more or less "liberal" in its rulings, has recently taken on a frankly reactionary color, and as a result, is faced with several court actions and many administrative appeals.

It recently banned the International Workers' Aid film, "Prisoners for Progress" on the ground that the pictures of the storming of the Bastile, might "tend to incite to riot and disorder." Practically every scene in this film has been passed by this same board as part of one picture or another, but the combination and titling seems to be too strong for those professional protectors of Chicago's morals. This fact, that the titling and editing alone can be the basis of the objection ought to place the matter clearly within the supposed guarantees of freedom of expression, and if the decision is upheld in the courts will go far toward showing the workers the true hypocrisy of those guarantees.

Dever Does Not Act.

The decision was at once appealed to the chief of police, who in the case of "Russia and Germany" cast the deciding vote to permit the picture to be shown. The chief evidently refused to interfere because the censors once more replied that the appeal would be denied. Under the ordinance the mayor has the last word, so appeal was at once filed with him, thus far without action.

From Mayor Dever's attitude toward other fights it would seem that the question will have to be settled in the courts. On the same day that the first appeal was denied, Famous-Players-Lasky Co. sent out a mandamous writ to compel the mayor to issue a permit to their Zane Grey picture, "The Thundering Hord." Many films have been slashed and butchered almost beyond recognition, endings have been changed and whole sequences botched.

Will Show Film March 29.

This labor film, "Prisoners for Progress," is to be shown at the International Unity demonstration at Ashland Auditorium, Sunday afternoon, March 29. It shows the Paris uprising, the Russian revolution, the police brutality in breaking up workers' demonstrations in Germany and France, and the efforts of American workers to help the victims of this capitalist violence. American conditions are also shown, the police intimidating strike pickets in Paterson and Chicago, the militia in Herrin with machine guns covering the streets, the great prisons of Leavenworth and Sing Sing, inside and out, together with many of their political inmates, Haywood, Browder, Ruthenberg, Gitlow and others. If the courts line up with the censors, and the police so other ways will be found to place the facts shown in this film before the workers of Chicago.

This film is only one of fourteen feature numbers on this gala program that will mark the answer of Chicago's workers to the attacks of Abramovich, Mackenzie, Gordin and the other malignors of Soviet Russia. The meeting on the 29th will be a monster demonstration for the recognition of Soviet Russia that will make all the counter revolutionists' efforts seem very puny indeed.

Supreme Court of California Rules I. W. W. is Illegal

SACRAMENTO, Cal.—The California supreme court puts its seal of approval on the criminal syndicalism act by confirming the sentences of 26 men arrested during the San Pedro strike in 1923, and convicted of criminal syndicalism. J. C. Robinson is released because he was not in Los Angeles at the time of the arrests. The decision was based on the testimony of W. E. Townsend, a professional witness, who was not present at the trial. For some time the second district appellate court has held that mere membership in the I. W. W. is not sufficient evidence for conviction, the third district court that it is. In this decision the supreme court agrees with the third district (Sacramento). No charge except membership was made against any of the men.

YOUNG WORKERS LEAGUE MEETING ON CHILD LABOR NEXT SUNDAY

Earl R. Browder, acting secretary of the Workers Party of America, and Barney Mass of the Young Workers League will be the principal speakers at a mass meeting to be held on Sunday evening, March 22, at 8 p. m., in Northwest Hall, corner Western and North Ave., to discuss "Child Labor in the United States."

The child labor amendment was defeated in 28 states, and the child labor is increasing thruout the country, the official labor movement which should be interested in it, is taking no action.

The meeting on next Sunday evening will be held under the auspices of the Young Workers League Admission is only ten cents.

South Side Reds, Old and Young, Have Social on March 21

The south side branch of the Workers Party, and Branch No. 3, of the Young Workers' League, two of the liveliest Communist units in local Chicago, are teaming together to run an affair at the south side Community House at 3201 S. Wabash Ave. on Saturday, March 21. The affair has three purposes: Organizational, financial and recreational. Judging by the pep and enthusiasm with which the members of both branches are working it promises to fulfill all three.

In the past, the south side branch has been able to rally large numbers of Negro workers to its mass meetings. At the last one held, 23 applications for membership to the party were made. This affair it is expected will result in additional members being won.

Branch No. 3 of the Young Workers' League is steadily winning young Negro workers into its ranks. It already numbers Negro members, each of whom are working hard to bring others into the league. It is their belief that once the Negro workers find out that the Communists harbor no race prejudices, and that they fight for the interests of all workers, irregardless of color, they will join the Workers Party and the Young Workers' League in large numbers. These Negro comrades are striving might and main to bring out a large representation of their shop mates and friends to the affair, so they can meet bonafide Communists, both black and white, and find out what they are like and what ideas they stand for. Comrades from other branches are urged to turn out and bring there best propaganda arguments along.

The program which has been arranged for the night is a speech. There will be plenty of music (classical and jazz) furnished by the Young Workers' League orchestra. Also there will be some speech making by several well-known Communist orators whose especial virtues are brains and brevity.

LABOR DEFENSE AND RELIEF COUNCIL TO MEET FRIDAY NIGHT

All delegates from trade unions and fraternal organizations as well as those from Workers Party branches are expected to attend the second general Council for Labor Defense and Relief to be held next Friday night at Greek Workers' Hall, 722 Blue Island Ave., 8 p. m. sharp.

A well-attended committee meeting was held last Saturday at which the details of the March 29 affair were gone over. Posters and tickets should be gotten from the local office, 19 S. Lincoln street.

Grecht, Carlson and Kovecs, Speakers for Philly Commune Day

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., March 17.—Philadelphia Communists and sympathisers will hear the stories and the lessons of the great Paris Commune and the Hungarian Soviet Republic, on Saturday, March 21, at 8 p. m., in the Eagles' Temple, corner Broad and Spring Garden streets.

Oliver Carlson, Rebecca Grecht and J. Kovecs will be the principal speakers at the commemoration.

The speakers will point out that the ruthless extermination of the proletarian revolutionists after the defeat of the Paris Commune and the Hungarian Soviet Republic is still being carried on in all the capitalist countries of the world.

An appeal will be made to support the International Workers' Aid and the Labor Defense Council as the revolutionary defense organizations of the proletariat.

AN ON-THE-MINUTE PAMPHLET IS BEDACHT'S "WHITE TERRORISTS" EXPOSING WORLD'S ABRAMOVICHES

"The White Terrorists Ask for Mercy," says Max Bedacht in the title of his new five-cent pamphlet. Do they get it? They do not—he gives them the "hell" they deserve.

This little pamphlet is particularly timely. It carries today's date line. Six months from now or perhaps a year changed conditions may place it on the shelves of history, but today it is hot from the griddle and effectively deals with a problem of the minute.

Recognition of Soviet Russia has been conceded by practically every nation except the United States, and now even Wall Street is growing restive. Hughes is out. A change is expected and it can hardly be for the worse, so reactionary has been our diplomacy. A last-ditch campaign against recognition is waged by pseudo-liberals who raise the cry of the imprisoned Russian counter-revolutionists.

This pamphlet tells clearly who they are and why they are imprisoned. It strips the lies from the horror tales now in circulation in anarcho-bourgeois circles by quoting uncensored letters from the prisoners themselves. And finally a summary of prison conditions in the "white hells" of the capitalist world, Poland, Bulgaria the Baltic states, Germany—and the United States.

Our workers on the firing line in the shops and mines and local unions are going to face this question many times during the next few months. This pamphlet is a crushing answer and should be sold widely.

Airplane Plants Get U. S. Money.

WASHINGTON, March 17.— The war department has awarded $70,000 to the Curtiss company and $60,000 to the Douglas company for the experimental observations airplanes manufactured by each company, and the development work involved in producing these planes, which were considered safer and more maneuverable types for general observation use than the war built DH types.

Fascist Aid Corporations.

ROME, Italy, March 17—The fascist party denies the charges that the government is seeking to control banks, commercial firms and the stock exchange.

The government announced it has decided to tax only the dividends paid by companies. Sums placed in reserves by corporations will not be taxed by the fascisti.

LETTERS FROM READERS

Comrade Dies in Kuzbas.

Centerville, Nova Scotia.

To the DAILY WORKER: Will you allow me a few lines of space in your paper to express my appreciation of a good comrade who has passed on. I am today in receipt of a letter from Comrade A. J. Woomer, now of the Kuzbas colony, in Siberia in which he tells of the sudden death of Comrade Walter J. Lemon.

Comrade Lemon went to Russia in the spring of 1922. During my stay in Kuzbas in 1923 I knew him well and found him a sound Marxian student and one who could understand and explain, instead of rail at, the many discouraging factors that were met in building up Communism in Russia.

Under conditions in which the sentimentalist broke and wanted to get back home to America for the chewing gum, movie shows and pork chops, men of Lemon's type stood solidly and helped to build up Russian Soviet industry.

Seeks His Relatives.

Comrade Lemon was born in Ontario, Canada, and was about 55 years of age. He lived for years in Salt Lake City, and was active in the socialist party until the split when he joined the Communist Party. I am desirous of getting in touch with his people in Toronto or elsewhere.

A staunch comrade has passed on. He was always ready to turn out at any time and help at any job—always on hand for the Subbotnik, the volunteer labor on Saturday, always considerate and courteous to the Russian workers and peasants. Men of his type won the respect of the Russian people. Yours for Communism, Roscoe A. Fillmore.

Communists Have Prominent Place in Art Exhibition

NEW YORK, March 17—The Society of Independent Artists, whose show opened at the Waldorf-Astoria roof garden on March 6, have a lot to congratulate themselves upon. Their present show is one of the most unusual ones that have ever been presented in New York. In the first place there is its size—actually a mile of pictures have been hung. Then there is the variety—everything from the meekest and mildest conservative to the wildest and most daring abstraction.

From the point of view both of excellence and sincerity; this year's exhibit surpasses anything the society has yet attempted.

There are two features that will be of special interest to party members. One of the features is the work of comrades and sympathisers, among the more prominent of whom are William S. Fanning, Rose Pastor Stokes, Maurice Becker, Walter Speck, L. Lozowick, Fred Gardner, Jay Van Evern and several others. The other feature is the low admission price of 25 cents. The show closes March 29. A detailed criticism of the pictures will be submitted later.

Carlson to Speak at Harlem Forum of Workers Party

NEW YORK, March 17.—The Harlam open forum continues every Sunday evening at the Harlem section headquarters of the Workers Party, 64 East 104 street. On Sunday evening, March 22, Oliver Carlson will lead the discussion on Working Class Education. Comrade Carlson, whose specialty is education, was in Soviet Russia and in England, where he saw working class education both in a capitalist country and a proletarian country. He will tell of the contrast, and discuss working class education in this country.

The rest of the program is a very interesting one as regards both speakers and topics. It is as follows: Mar. 29, Can there be Prosperity for the American Workers?, H. M. Wicks; April 5, Religion as an Instrument of Capitalism, H. Bourgin; April 12, The Family, Jeannette Pearl; April 19, The Capitalist, Labor and Communist Press, Ludwig Lore; April 26, Proletcult, Eli Jacobson.

Workers Party Observes Spring at Harlem Dance

NEW YORK, March 17.—The best way to celebrate the spring is to go to the spring festival and dance to be given by the Harlem English branch, Workers Party on Saturday evening, March 21, at the Harlem Casino, 115th street and Lenox avenue.

The music will be the best, and will satisfy everybody, as there will be American jazz as well as dance music of all nationalities. Everybody, even the poorest can afford to be there, as the admission charge will be only fifty cents, including ward-

Hillman Machine Wars on Members

The Hillman machine of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America is now openly making war on a large section of the membership. Local Five of New York, following its arbitrary suspension from the joint board, issued a leaflet telling the facts of the case and citing many basic grievances of the membership. This leaflet has been distributed in Chicago; coming from a local of the union its distribution is legal so far as the laws of the union are concerned. Yet, members found handing out the leaflet have been taken off their jobs in the shops by the Hillman-Levin machine.

Nothing further is needed to show that the Hillman machine has accepted and is enforcing the rule or ruin policy that has brought the International Ladies' Garment Workers to the point of helplessness. The charges against Local Five were of the most flimsy character, one of them being that members of the executive board of the union had picketed a certain shop in an effort to reinstate a discharged worker, infringed on the powers of the national executive board, etc. It is quite apparent that the real crime of Local Five was doing something while the Hillman officials talked and thought up schemes for co-operation with the bosses.

This latest action of the Hillman machine brings out the fact that all the campaign of denunciation and expulsion of Communists and supporters of the Trade Union Educational League is a result of the fighting program of these workers and organizations, their placing of the interests of the membership above those of the officialdom.

The Hillman machine does not want to fight the bosses. It prefers to wage war on the most militant and loyal members of the union. To make this fact clear to the membership is a pleasurable duty of the left wing.

It is now generally agreed that the league of nations is as dead as the C. P. P. A. Both died from natural causes.

The European Crisis

The metal workers' strike in northern Italy continues to gain. The only deserters are a few thousand fascists while thousands of members of real unions join the strike daily.

The attempt of the fascist leaders to fool the workers by support of the strike at its beginning have failed. The metal workers in particular seem to have broken all the bonds of fascist control and regained much of the militancy displayed in 1919-20.

The vacillating policy of the fascist leaders in this emergency is a result of the political crisis that grips Italy and shakes the fascist government. More exposures of the direct connection of Mussolini and prominent henchmen of his with cowardly murders of opponents are being made. The whole country is in a state of turmoil with the Communist Party alone to give conscious leadership to the masses.

The Italian crisis corresponds with the new wave of strikes and revolts against European capitalism. It corresponds also with the revival of the imperialist rivalries among the allied nations symbolized by the junking of the Geneva protocol and the dispute over the question of security guarantees for France and her military allies—Poland, Roumania, etc.

European capitalism, and consequently world capitalism, is now in the midst of another of those periodical situations in which its instability becomes evident to millions of workers and farmers. Every one of these crises brings in sharper relief the warring factions that, in spite of all effort towards a common policy, result in a weakening of the capitalist system.

World Allies

It was to be expected that the capitalist press would take up the cudgels for Abramovich. With complete unanimity of its various sections and subdivisions, the press of the ruling class applauds the action of the police upon whom Abramovich depends for an opportunity to lie about the workers' and peasants' government of Russia. In the news stories the bias of the capitalist press is not so apparent, but the editorial comment is illuminating showing as it does the unity of thought and action between the socialist party officialdom, the Eecond International and the capitalist class of America and the world.

If any work is in doubt as to the alliance between world capitalism and the Second International let him read carefully the editorial comment of the metropolitan journals on the Abramovich meetings.

The Rockefeller Plan

The bible-pounding John D. Rockefeller, Jr., was fond of boasting of the company union plan. It would prevent strikes. Perhaps William H. Johnston of the late C. P. P. A. and still of the I. A. M. got his inspiration for his B. and O. plan from the pious multi-millionaire.

The following news item frim the Colorado Labor Advocate is as good an editorial on "the success" of the plan in the mines of the Colorado Fuel and Iron company as could be written on the question:

> The wages of the coal miners of the Walsen district have been cut 20 per cent by the Colorado Fuel and Iron company.
> The company announces that the men asked for the cut.
> Here are the facts:
> Four years ago the C. F. & I. asked the miners to accept a vountary cut in wages. They passed "petitions" thru the mine camps. Some miners "asked" a cut in wages of one-third; others refused to "ask" to have their living cut.
> The mines where the men refused to "ask" a wage cut WERE CLOSED DOWN. The men in the Walsen district remember that time.
> But at that time so many miners left the state in individual refusals to accept the cut that the company was forced to go before the industrial board, which always orders what the C. F. & I. wants—and ask to have the wages put back up!
> This spring, labor leaders have known for weeks the C. F. & I. was planning for wage cuts. The old tricks have been used. The mines have been closed. In some cases the rails have been taken out and the mines apparently abandoned. It is the old, honey-coatd threat: Work at our rate or starve.
> It is the "representation plan." It is "industrial democracy." It is "company unionism."
> And the miners are helpless!

They are not helpless but between giant corporations and the labor fakers they are confronted with serious obstacles. They will break thru, however.

The N. Y. Commune Pageant

The New York Commune celebration was a huge success. Even the capitalist press admits this.

For the second time this year the Communists and their sympathizers packed Madison Square Garden, the largest indoor arena in the United States. The Communist press and the political prisoners in the jails of capitalism the world over divide the receipts of the meeting.

Just before the event the "bomb squad" of the New York City police got busy, raided one of the rehearsals and the Communist headquarters. The police succeeded in making themselves ridiculous and giving much publicity to the pageant, the Workers (Communist) Party and the occasion for the celebration.

Three comrades are held in $10,000 bail each for violation of one of the innumerable statutes American capitalist government uses for suppression and there is nothing ridiculous about this. It is a very serious situation for the comrades involved and for the party, necessitating the raising of an enormous sum for defense and proving that Communists, so far as the capitalist state is concerned, constitute a distinct category of persons who are not allowed even the usual privileges of assembling for the most peaceful purposes.

Like the Abramovich meetings the New York Commune pageant has shown to thousands of workers the class character of the Communist Party and the capitalist state.

Aid for Willimantic Strikers

We are carrying first-hand information of the strike of 2,500 textile workers in Willimantic, Connecticut—a strike that seems to be of the most determined and best organized character occuring in the textile industry this year. Our own correspondent is furnishing the news and the DAILY WORKER is being read with interest by large numbers of the strikers.

The DAILY WORKER appears in this strike, not as a mere recorder of events, but as a positive force. It urges the program of the Workers (Communist) Party and the Trade Union Educational League, a united front of all the unions and workers against the textile barons, amalgamation of the unions into one huge industrial union, a workers' and farmers' government.

Neither does the DAILY WORKER and the revolutionary party for which it speaks neglect the daily needs of the workers. There is much want and suffering among the striking textile workers, they must have money for the relief of the families of the strikers and to carry on their fight.

Those workers and organizations that are far from the scene of the struggle in Willimantic can assist their fellow workers by donations of money. Sums collected for this purpose should be sent to William Simons, P. O. Box 183, Willimantic, Conn:

"The two outstanding achievements of President Ebert's career were the crushing of the Liebknecht rebellion and the slow industrial and financial recuperation that finally permitted the rest of the world to help thru the agency of the Dawes plan" writes a capitalist editor in mourning the death of the renegade socialist. It could not have been said better by a Communist, but both achievements rendered Ebert a first class candidate for the rope.

Germany paid the allies $144,977,705 in reparations during the first six months the Dawes plan was in operation. The German capitalists have not lowered their standard of living a bit, but the German workers have. The workers always pay.

It is a safe bet that no American socialist paper will publish the full report of the British trade union delegation to Russia on their impressions of that country today.

MUSSOLINI GAVE AIDES ORDER TO KILL MATTEOTTI

Proof Produced Premier Caused Murder

ROME, Italy, March 16.—The confession of Filipo Filipelli, now in jail, charged with complicity in the murder of the socialist deputy, Matteotti, gives further proof that Matteotti was murdered upon Mussolini's orders, that Mussolini directed the crime, and that he and his lieutenants attempted to shield the actual murderers.

The written confession of Filipelli, who until his arrest was editor of Premier Mussolini's biggest newspaper, Corriere Italiana, corroborates the Rossi document. Printing of the confession is strictly forbidden by the fascisti, and it has been made known by the secret printing presses operating in Rome.

Murderer Tells Story.

The confession shows how Dumini, who is charged with the actual murder of Matteotti, under orders from Mussolini, borrowed Filipelli's automobile, and when he returned from the murder, Dumini said, "I have acted under precise orders from Rossi and Marinelli, who were acting on formal authorization from Premier Mussolini."

Marinelli and Rossil were Mussolini's aides in the treasury department. Filipelli's confession adds that Rossi told Filipelli that Mussolini knew everything, that Rossi and Marinelli were given orders to commit the murder at a conference with Mussolini. Mussolini later received from his aides the proof of Matteotti's death at their hands and arranged with Debono, then chief of police, to destroy Matteotti's bloody garments and other evidence.

Here's Confession in Full.

The confession in full stated:

"On Monday, June 9, Sig. Dumini—the alleged actual murderer of Sig. Matteotti—asked to loan my automobile for three days. On Tuesday midnight Sig. Dumini came to my room with a bundle and asked for a place to put the car. Sig. Dumini said: 'I have acted under precise orders from Sigs. Rossi and Marinelli—who were acting on formal authorization from Premier Mussolini. Keep quiet. Everything will come out well.'

"On Wednesday, alarmed, I sought Sig. Rossi, who told me:

"1. That Sig. Dumini used my machine in good faith.

"2. That the situation was grave.

"3. That Premier Mussolini knew everything.

"4. That he and Sig. Marinelli were given orders after a conference with Premier Mussolini.

"5. That it was imperative to hush up everything, otherwise even Premier Mussolini would be overthrown.

Conferred With Mussolini.

"I reported to the police. I learned that Sig. Dumini's victim was Sig. Matteotti, that the order to kill Sig. Matteotti came from the fascist cheka whose chief executioner was Sig. Dumini, and others well known to Premier Mussolini, that they had conferred with Premier Mussolini Wednesday, and that Premier Mussolini had received Sig. Matteotti's passport and other papers as proof of Sig. Matteotti's death.

"They asked me to suppress the facts, as the whole regime and Premier Mussolini's head was at stake. I kept quiet.

"On Tuesday I saw Sig. Debono who told me he had arranged to destroy all the evidence in the Matteotti crime. The evidence consisted of the blood drenched garments which Sig. Dumini had with him when arrested.

Lame Duck Senator Leans on Coolidge; May Get the Gate

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 17.—Secretary of State Kellogg is not standing up well under the strain of his new job. His 68 years and indifferent health are telling upon him. He is surprising his associates in the department by the degree of his leaning upon Coolidge for decisions of every kind.

This development brings forward once more the suggestion that the president will have to select a younger, stronger and sure-footed chief of the department before the year is out. Charles Warren, sugar trust agent, would have been that man, had he been accepted by the senate for the attorney generalship. Now he cannot be confirmed for any high office. Herbert Hoover is still smarting from the discourtesy which he thinks the White House has shown him in cabinet reorganization. Mellon is said to be as much opposed to making Hoover secretary of state as is Coolidge.

There are hints that Sen. Pepper of Pennsylvania may be the next man to be offered the job, if Kellogg can't stand the pace.

Vive La Commune!

By CATHALL BORU.

FIFTY-FOUR years ago the proletariat of Paris rose, arms in hand in defense of their civic rights, their right to bear the arms that they themselves had forged, and in defense of the republican idea against the reactionary mob of Bonapartists and royalists who sought to disarm them and re-impose the corrupt rule of autocracy.

It is an oft told tale, but one that is sadly in danger of being forgotten in this country with our traditional dislike of revolutionary change; our repudiation of the class war; our bourgeois ideas and theories; and our belief in the good intentions of the master class.

IT was a glorious event, however, which should ever be borne in mind and celebrated by the proletariat of all countries. The people of France organized and armed their national guard for the defense of their city against the Prussian invader. When their rulers capitulated they sought to deprive the national guard of their arms. The latter resisted and won over the troops sent to disarm them. It was an insurrection, a revolution. The Commune was proclaimed. For the first time in history the capital city of a great country had a real working class administration.

THE public services were re-organized; jobbery and corruption were rooted out; abuses suppressed, and relief measures carried out to relieve existing distress. Never in the history of Paris was the administration so good, the public services so efficient, the public order so admirable as during the two months of the rule of the Commune, since so execrated and maligned by the reactionaries and the reactionary press of the whole world.

All the time that the work of civil reorganization was going on there was the military defense claiming urgent attention. The Versailles royalist and Bonapartist butchers were gathering together their legions for the slaughter. Around three sides of Paris the German eagles hemmed in the devoted revolutionists while on the other side there gathered the masses of rurals and released prisoners of war.

THEN came the civil war, the fighting all along the road from Versailles to Paris. The taking one by one of the forts. The bombardment of Paris by the Versaillese. The fighting at the barricades. The fiendish massacre of 35,000 men, women and children in the cemetery of Pere La Chaise, and the overthrow of the Commune in a deluge of fire and blood. All that, however, was for afterwards, as were also the indescribable horrors of the camp at Satory, the brutal treatment of the prisoners, the deportations to New Caledonia and all the other infamies in which the Versailles, indeed brought "Woe to the Vanquished."

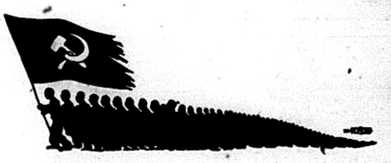
But the defeat was in May. On the 18th of March, we celebrated, not a defeat, but a victory, the triumph—transient it is true, but none the less glorious for all that—of the proletarian revolution; when for once, for just a little while, the people had conquered and were masters of the situation.

THEREFORE, should the 18th of March be kept, not as a day of mourning, but as a festival. The Commune was defeated, it is true; but in celebrating the inauguration we do not celebrate its defeat, its failure, but its triumph. Even its defeat, its mistakes and failures have many lessons for us. Above all things, they teach us to be none the less ready to seize, our opportunity when it presents itself, than were the men and the women of the Commune; while at the same time we show the same devotion as they did.

WE must profit from their errors by avoiding them, and learn from the stern consequences that befell them not to make the mistake of being too lenient with or of trusting too much to the word of honor or the tender mercies of the bourgeoisie. The men and women of the commune have set us a splendid example of courage and devotion. They have shown us how to live and work as well as how to suffer and die—for a cause. The time was not ripe. But who would care to say that they toiled and suffered and died in vain?

HERE just fifty-four years later, the International Communist movement, in its ever-spreading organization and strength is reaping the harvest of the seed that was sown by the sacrifice and the devotion of these martyrs of 1871.

We rejoice in their triumph. We lament their defeat; but inspired by their noble example we re-echo with greater certainty of ultimate victory, their exultant cry "Vive La Commune."



De Valera Hits England in St. Patrick Message

DUBLIN, Ireland, Mar. 17.—Eamon De Valera, the Irish republican, has issued a St. Patrick's day manifesto. "Shall suicide be the end of an ancient nation that no external power could directly kill?" De Valera asks. "Shall it be in the hands of men calling themselves Irish that the last conquest of our land by England shall be complete?"

BOARD SILENCES TEACHERS AND CROWDS PUPILS

Want Pay Raise from Rich, Not Children

The finance committee of the board of education met yesterday afternoon and considered the recommendation from the superintendent of schools to increase the salaries of teachers in the public schools.

The Chicago Teachers' Federation denounces the attempt of Superintendent McAndrew to break up the teachers' councils, and states that the money to raise the teachers' salaries should come from the tax-dodgers and not from the building fund of the board of education.

Have Right to Complain.

"The record of the teachers of Chicago gives them the right to resent," says the statement, "and they do resent any attempt to pit them against the children by making the teachers appear willing to benefit themselves at the expense of the children. Our twenty-five years' record of protest against proposals of the board of education that would injure the children warrants the confidence of the public and deserves its condemnation of any present atempt to break up the organizations thru which teachers speak and act."

It is declared that in the face of a $19,000,000 deficit in the educational fund and shockingly overcrowded schools, 36 billion dollars worth of Chicago property that is taxable has illegally escaped taxation. It is declared that the board of education is planning to skimp on its school buildings, crowding 1,152 children into new buildings meant to seat only 816 by platooning the schools.

Increase Fire Hazards.

"All the children in the school will be kept rotating back and forth from classrooms to dumping places, thereby increasing the fire and panic hazards and danger from the spread of contagion and epidemic," said the Chicago teachers' statement. "Platoon schools, double schools, and double sessions, larger classes, larger schools and all other shifts and makeshifts are shortsighted attempts to evade the real issue. Every child of school age is entitled to attend a middle-of-the-day school, to occupy a seat in a quiet, uncrowded school, and to have individual attention from adequately trained teachers who are free from petty tyranny and the indignities of bureaucratic domination."

If the tax burden were distributed over the entire value of the taxable property in Chicago, the present school revenue would be doubled, it is said, and the tax rate could be cut down to one-fifth of the present rate.

"Disarm" Parley Discussed.

LONDON, England, March 17.—Great Britain's attitude toward the proposed "disarmament conference" was demonstrated again today in a statement from the foreign office.

"Great Britain believes the disarmament conference should have the widest scope but realizes there is difficulty regarding land armaments. England would be pleased if President Coolidge could surmount this difficutly, the statement reads.

MUSIC • LITERATURE • DRAMA

By ALFRED V. FRANKENSTEIN.

LAST Saturday was the fiftieth birthday of Maurice Ravel, the eminent French composer. I don't know whether Ravel over in Paris made any observance of the event, but the day was celebrated in Chicago by the performance of an alborada of his by the Chicago Symphony orchestra on the twenty-first of the regular programs.

"Alborada" may be considered the antonym of "nocturne"; it means a piece of morning, and is generally used in connection with music in Spanish style. So wrth work of Ravel's which, while over twenty years old, was given its first Chicago hearing. As with most of the Frenchman's work, it is light, rhythmic, skillful, the work of a hand that has consistently stood for the best in French music.

The work of another Frenchman, an infinitely greater musician than Ravel, opened the program, the overture "The Roman Carnival," which is the prelude to the second act of the opera "Benvenuto Cellini," by Hector Berlioz. This was wildly revolutionary music when it was first played, sixty years ago. But today it sounds romantic, melancholy in the first section, the solo for English horn, and the dance with which it ends, which was so blood stirring to the composer and his contemporaries, is to us flat.

The third composition was the Brahms concerto for violin and violincello. A concerto by Brahms is generally an ordeal, and a double concerto would seem just that much worse, but this work fools us if we reason thus. It does not stir anybody, unless perhaps it does the soloists, but it does not produce that sense of physical pain which many a work of this nature induces. It is really bearable and somewhat enjoyable music, and was played by that most expert team of Jacques Gordon and Alfred Wallenstein, respectively the concertmaster and the principal cellist of the orchestra that played the accompaniment.

Then the fourth symphony of Chaykovski, the apotheosis of the grand style, perhaps the most noble and most expressive of all the symphonies of the Russian master. I for one am glad that Mr. Stock put this symphony at the end of the program. I remember one concert that opened with it, and I was completely incapacitated for listening to the subsequent works. The scherzo is a stunt piece for the members of the orchestra, since they play it without Mr. Stock's baton. But whether or not Stock gives entrance cues to the various instruments with his eyebrows is the secret of the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

Guy and Pattison Piano Team Perform

An appearance of that remarkable two piano team of Guy Maier and Lee Pattison always makes a lead for the reviewer. The first performance of a new work by Arthur Bliss also is worthy of a hearing, and the two came together at Orchestra Hall on the regular concert schedule of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra.

The concerto is not a very important work and melodically is somewhat weak. Bliss knows his orchestra. In the concerto are some new and queerly colored effects, such as the presentation of a melody in the English horn solo under the sustained trill of three flutes and over harmonies in the clarinets and a bass in the bassoons. The way in which the solo and the orchestra are welded together is another example of good workmanship.

The program opened with the "Spring" symphony of Schumann. There are some fine tunes in this work, dance tunes of the pianistic kind, such as Schumann could compose. Following this Maier and Pattison played a double concerto by P. E. Bach.

Following the Bliss concerto was the symphonic poem "Don Juan," with its famous horn solo played and practiced and memorized by every horn player where the name of its composer, Richard Strauss, is known.

Then the program wound up with the C major triple concerto of J. S. Bach. This concerto has what can be called peppy music in it. Its slow movement is not so attractive, but the first and last movements are great. Arthur Shattuck joined forces with Maier and Pattison in this composition. He is a representative of a diminishing, and, let us pray, rapidly diminishing race, the long haired pianist.

The performances of Maier and Pattison ought to be world famous by now. Their's is a new and delightful revival of an old art. There is power and good humor in their playing. There is also absolute accuracy and nicety of technique in it.

STATE POLIC TED ONLY BY CAPITALIST RUSH STRIKES; NEWSPAPE PAIGN EXPOSED

By MANUEL GOMEZ.

(Article I.)

"Protection for all; justice for all." That, we are told by extremely well protected recipients of more than their share of justice, is the idea that suggests to them why Illinois should have a state police force.

It was expressed with all due solemnity at a luncheon given by the Illinois Chamber of Commerce and the Illinois Bankers' association in honor of Major Lynn Adams, superintendent of the state police of Pennsylvania, popularly known as "American cossacks."

But alas, nobody will believe it. Since when, workers want to know, have the chamber of commerce and the bankers' association been interested in justice and protection for all?—let alone Major Adams, whose official protection of workers has been entirely confined to scabs.

Always Are Strike Breakers.

Labor sees the proposed Illinois state police force as a heavy club in the hands of the bosses to be used in breaking strikes. That is what similar police armies have proved to be in every state where they have been created.

The Dunlap bill providing for a state-wide anti-labor constabulary of 195 to 455 armed troopers is being pushed hard for passage in the state legislature. The wealthy capitalists are pouring out their dollars in support of it. Propaganda is on full blast.

Suddenly, in every capitalist news-

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

THE Irish-American politicians, capitalists and clergymen celebrated St. Patrick's day in the usual way. They made speeches, partook of dainty food and prised Ireland and the Irish, that is the Irish that bend the knee to capitalism and conform to capitalism's standard of political morals. The Irish that take their place in the international army of labor are not so good. There are many of those who have indictments hanging over their heads or who are spending the best years of their lives in prison. No bourgeois praise for them.

THE ruling class of the United States cater to the vanity of the Irish section of the population at least once a year. The mayors of the large cities wear little sprigs of shamrock peddled by Jewish or Armenian businessmen, to show their sympathies. Even today they twist the lion's tail a little. But the lion is getting old and he only responds with a prolonged yawn, while he rubs his sleepy eye lids. There is no more fun in it. American oil is having an ill effect on his inwards.

THE ruling classes wisely cater to the different racial groups in this country. It pays. The capitalists have good propagandists. There is a large Irish vote in this country. Therefore the politicians cater to them. Because they read the newspapers the publishers cater to them with a border of green around the front page on St. Patrick's day and a few columns devoted to greetings from some Irish politicians playing the game in Ireland. The majority of the Irish workers in America, don't know why this is done. They don't want to kill its good effect on their vanity of all this by asking themselves why this nice treatment.

THE Chicago Daily News as per custom gives a whole page to letters from prominent Irish capitalist politicians. President Cosgrave of the Irish Free State talks of Irish prosperity. Eamonn DeValera, his rival, talks on the Gaelic language, forgetting about the hungry Irish peasants on the west coast, the only Gaelic-speaking district in Ireland. DeValera, tho he wrote the letter to the Daily News in Gaelic, cannot speak two sentences of the language and will never waste his valuable time trying to learn. He is too busy. But the sentence and a half which he does know comes in very handy when he wants to win the sympathy of some half-baked Gael who believes a hungry Gaelic-speaking Ireland is preferable to a well-fed English speaking Ireland.

MOST of the enthusiasm for the revival of the Gaelic language comes from those who were fortunate or unfortunate enuf to be born in Glasgow, Manchester or Liverpool of Irish ancestors. They cling to the few words they learned at their mother's knee as a devotee of Bacchus will gaze at the last drop of liquor in his glass, when the replenishing bottle is absent. What do the Irish

Cal Would Aid Railroads

WASHINGTON, March 18.—Failure of congress to pass a bill reducing the rate of interest from six to 4½ per cent on between $40,000,000 and $50,000,000 which the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad owes the government, "prevents the administration aiding the road."

TEXTILE WORKERS ROBBED WHILE MILL OWNERS PILE UP MILLIONS HIDDEN BY STOCK MANIPULATION

By WILLIAM SIMONS.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WILLIMANTIC, Conn., March 18.—In a recent article, the dividends per share of the American Thread Co. stock were shown. It is interesting to note that the capital stock increased from $10,290,475 in 1918, to $12,890,475 in 1920 and to $15,690,475 in 1924.

It would have been too raw to hand out huge dividends, the skinning process would be too evident. So millions are put into special reserve funds, and then quietly transferred to the capital. It is legitimate under capitalism for owners to invest their profits in whatever corporation they desire. If they choose to leave them in their own business, that's "their business."

It's all a part of the game. And workers who abide by the rules of the capitalist game, who believe in only "a fair day's wage for a fair day's work" can hardly kick. It is a part of the game they are supporting.

Another means of showing how "poor" the company is, is to check off amounts for various items. Thus, in the years 1918 to 1923, amounts were checked off as profit and loss, varying from two to five million dollars!

Actual Dividends.

The dividends given on preferred stock are $244,524 anually from 1918 to 1923 inclusive. The amount earned per share of preferred stock is given by Moody as $4.33 in 1918; $2.41 in 1919; $3.95 in 1920; $1.25 in 1921; .01 in 1922; and $2.16 in 1923. This was on par value of $5.

Textile Workers Robbed.

Dividends on common were $1,242,000 in 1916; $1,200,000 in 1919; $1,350,000 in 1920; $1,320,000 in 1921; $1,080,000 in 1922; $1,296,000 in 1923. Earned per share of common stock 1918, $3.69, and 1919, $1.76 on par of

SENATOR KING URGES PLACE FOR SOVIET RUSSIA AT ARMS PARLEY

WASHINGTON, March 18.—Senator King of Utah, whose proposal that a naval limitation conference of the nations be called by the president was put thru congress as a rider on an appropriation bill, now suggests that Soviet Russia be invited to come in.

"This invitation," says King, "can be given without interfering with our attitude toward diplomatic recognition per se. We can notify Russia that her representatives will be received to take part in this conference and for no other purpose. Russia should be invited because she holds the key to eastern Europe, and more especially to western Asia."

French opposition to the holding of a conference on limitation of auxiliary naval craft is not relaxed, according to unofficial advices in Washington, and the scheme may fall thru.

Save the Life of Stanislav Lanzutsky!

Stanislav Lanzutsky is a Polish workingman. He is a militant fighter against the Polish bourgeoisie and nobility. He is an uncompromising enemy of capitalism and imperialism. Stanislav Lanzutsky is a Communist. For this crime against capitalism the ruling class of Poland wants to murder Stanislav Lanzutsky.

Stanislav Lanzutsky has been elected to the Polish parliament by the workers and poor peasants. He was actively working in the interests of the toiling masses as a member of the Communist fraction in parliament. For this crime the Polish bourgeoisie, the flunky of French imperialism, wants to murder Stanislav Lanzutsky.

Stanislav Lanzutsky is now on trial before a capitalist court in Poland for a speech delivered in parliament as a member of its Communist fraction. The speech was an exposure of the bloody misdeeds of the brutal and corrupt Polish bourgeoisie and nobility. It was a challenge to the murderous rule of the servants of French imperialism and a call to the toiling masses to fight for their rights.

Death is the penalty that the ruling class of Poland is preparing to impose upon Stanislav Lanzutsky. The Polish capitalists want to murder him. The life of Stanislav Lanzutsky, workingman and brave fighter in the cause of labor all over the world, is in grave danger.

Workingmen and workingwomen of America!

SAVE THE LIFE OF STANISLAV LANZUTSKY! Don't permit the muderous gang of Polish imperialists to rob you and the workers of Poland of one of the best, most loyal and courageous fighters in the cause of the oppressed masses.

Protest! Demonstrate! Demand that the life of Stanislav Lanzutsky be spared. Send your demands to the Polish ambassador in the United States, to the Polish consuls and to the government of Poland.

Polish capitalism shall not murder Stanislav Lanzutsky!

COAL MINER GIVES BLOOD TO SAVE LIFE OF HIS COMRADE'S DAUGHTER

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 18.—Motherless Lillian Erie, 10, smiled up from her hospital cot here today, thankful that she was going to live.

And Mike Valero, 38, whose blood met the test for transfusion, grinned broadly because physicians said he had saved the life of his little neighbor, a coal miner's daughter.

Slowly dying from loss of blood because of severe nose bleeding, Lillian welcomed a blood transfusion. While scores of offers were being made, Mike and 18 fellow miners, friends of the child's father at Kincaid, set out for the hospital.

A little girl, no older than Lillian, came along to offer her blood and a man, 75 years old, asked by telephone whether he could be used in the operation.

ANOTHER STATE ON RECORD FOR CHILD SLAVERY

Chicago Y. W. L. Plans Big Mass Meeting

Another state has rejected the child labor amendment, which has been temporarily defeated by the vote of more than 28 states.

The latest to reject the amendment is New Hampshire, where the house of representatives voted against ratification. The bill will not be referred to the New Hampshire senate.

Child Labor Increasing.

As a result of the temporary defeat of the amendment, child labor in America is increasing at a more rapid speed than ever before. After the liberals and middle-class reformers failed in their attempt to "regulate" child labor, the bosses have been hiring more young children then ever before. Especially since the recent immigration restrictions the bosses have been drawing upon the children for that source of cheap labor previously supplied from abroad.

Y. W. L. and Party Busy.

In view of this alarming increase in child slavery, the Young Workers League which is leading the fight against child labor in America in conjunction with the Workers (Communist) Party is intensifying its child labor campaign. Not only is the Young Workers League calling upon the workers to put up a united front fight for the complete abolition of child labor, under the leadership of the league and the Workers (Communist) Party, but the Young Workers League is putting forward every effort to organise the child slaves into its junior section and the young workers between 14 and 18 into the Young Workers League.

WALL STREET TO TAKE OVER C., M. & ST. P. RAILROAD

Receivers Appointed for Re-organization

Wall Street bankers prepared to take over complete control of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad following the appointment of receivers for the road on a petition stating that the company will be unable to retire its bonds. Over $47,000,000 in bonds mature on June 1, and a million dollars in interest is due on April 1.

Receivers appointed include H. E. Bryan, president of the railroad; Mark W. Potter and Edward J. Brundage. The petition was filed by the Brickley Coal company.

Three committees, representing bondholders, preferred stockholders and common stockholders will take part in the transferring the management of the road to the Wall Street bankers. The bondholders' committee is headed by Frederick Ecker, vice-president of the Life Insurance company, and the common stockholders' committee includes Donald Geddes, one of the road's present directors, and Percy Rockefeller, who is director of numerous railroads.

Mortimer N. Buckner, president of the New York Trust company, and also a director of the railroad, will represent the preferred stockholders.

TWO THOUSAND CHEER SOVIETS AT SPY'S MEET

Crowd in Demonstration Against Abramovich

The latest attempt of Raphael Abramovich to make an anti-Soviet speech at the Workmen's Circle Lyceum, was turned into another huge demonstration for Soviet Russia.

While the counter revolutionary socialist was making futile efforts to make himself heard above the shouts for Soviet Russia inside the hall, two thousand workers were cheering speakers who told of the first workers' and peasants' government.

One hundred plain clothes detectives with sawed off riot guns, uniformed police, and socialist sluggers, failed to affect the enthusiasm of the cheering crowds.

Three Arrests Made.

Joe Search, Ethel Birn and Marie Polishuk were arrested by Lieutenant Byrne and his riot squad, who carried riot guns. They were taken to the police station at the corner of Lawndale Ave. and 27th St., where George Maurer of the Labor Defense Council succeeded in getting them out on bail at midnight. The three Communists were told to appear in night court last night at eight o'clock, at the city hall. Meanwhile they are at liberty on $50.00 bail each.

Few Workers Admitted.

It was evident that the socialists were determined to allow no one inside the hall except the Forward crowd, and those socialists who were personally known to them. Many Jewish people who belonged to no party, but who wanted to find out about conditions in Soviet Russia were turned back to the street, and joined the other workers who were singing "The International" and cheering for Soviet Russia.

"I couldn't get in because they did not know me," a Jewish rabbi told the DAILY WORKER.

In spite of this, however, fully one-quarter of the audience, which numbered only 300 people, were real workers who refused to countenance the lies of Abramovich.

As soon as Abramovich began to slander the Russian workers cries of protest filled the hall. Socialists came running with police and sluggers and beat up several girls and workers. "There is free speech in America," Abramovich said. "That's a lie," shouted one workers, and the battle was on.

Nat Kaplan, member of the national executive committee of the Young Workers' League was the first to come bouncing out of the hall, after giving royal battle to a dozen sluggers. Anna Bloch came next, and then Bill Kuperman was thrown out by the police and socialists, who wielded clubs freely inside the hall.

When Comrade Kuperman applauded at the name of Soviet Russia, a burley detective pinned his arms, and two socialists slugged him in the face. A newspaper cameraman was about to take a picture of the slugging but Morris Siskind, of the Forward, refused to permit it, being afraid to let the workers know of the atrocities.

L. Yefsky, member of the Workers (Communist) Party, a clothing cutter, was beaten and clubbed by the socialist gunmen, and his wife was taken into a separate room by the socialists and slugged. Yefsky was thrown into the streets, and could not find his wife for half an hour. Yefsky declared that it was the socialist Rosenstein, who beat his wife.

L. Bellman and his wife had a similar experience. As in the other Abramovich meetings, the socialists confined their slugging efforts to the women, calling the police when they wanted to slug the men.

GERMAN WORKERS SHOT DOWN BY POLICE TO TERRORIZE ELECTION

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

BERLIN, March 18.— One Communist worker was shot dead and three wounded by a volley fired without warning into a crowd of workers around a street meeting where protests were being voiced against the murder of seven workers, two of them women, by the police at Halle last Friday.

The German police under the orders of the socialist-capitalist alliance, are terrorizing workers everywhere in an effort to crush the Communist Party vote as low as possible in the election on March 29.

BETHLEHEM STEEL'S GREED FOR PROFITS KILLED 34 MINERS

Thirty-four miners have been sacrificed to the greed for profits of the Bethlehem Steel corporation, which owns the mine near Fairmont, W. Va., where an explosion has just entombed the miners. These are some of the men who are responsible for the death of the 34 miners:

Charles M. Schwab, multi-millionaire, and president of the Bethlehem Steel corporation, director in the Chase National bank of New York, director of the Chicago Pneumatic Tool company, the United Zinc Smelting company, the Vanadium corporation, the Empire Trust company, and other corporations.

Percy A. Rockefeller, director of the Bethlehem Steel corporation, the Atlantic Fruit company, the Midvale Steel company, the National City Bank of New York, the Remington Arms company, the Western Union Telegraph company and numerous other corporations.

Alvin Untermyer, director of the Bethlehem Steel corporation and the Stutz Motor company.

Harold Stanley, M. F. Murphy, H. S. Snyder, Archibald Johnston, E. G. Grace, C. Apstin Buck, H. E. Lewis, John W Griggs, H G. Dalton, all directors of the Bethlehem Steel corporation and interested in numerous other large corporations.

MINE EXPLOSION CAME IN WAKE OF 'OPEN SHOP'

Ignore Safety Laws As Union Is Ousted

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

FAIRMONT, W. Va., March 18. — The Bethlehem Mining company, whose mine No. 41 at Barrackville, near here, expoded, causing the entombment of 34 miners, had recently discharged union men and re-opened the mine on a non-union basis, it was revealed here.

Miners here say that after the installation of "open shop" conditions, the Bethlehem company failed to observe safety reguations insisted upon by the United Mine Workers of America, and the catastrophe resulted.

When the bodies of two miners, horribly burned, were reported found at the foot of the shaft of the mine hope was abandoned that the 34 entombed miners would be brought out alive. Rescue workers told the families of the miners, who have waited anxiously at the mine entrance since the explosion wrecked the mine, that these two bodies were but the first of thirty-four dead men who would be brought to the surface—corpses.

Later it was denied that the two

U. S. GENERAL BATTLES BOLSHEVIKS BEFORE LADIES' PINK TEA PARTY

WASHINGTON, March 18.—Major General Helmick, inspector general of the army, who recently told a conference of anti-radical societies, in Washington, that "A German, Karl Marx, was the real instigator of the French Revolution," has again broken out.

In a talk at a women's city club tea, the general told the ladies that the youth movement in American schools and colleges is merely disguised socialism. He was unmasking Bolshevism when this bit of information was dropped.

Miss Hermine Schwede, field secretary for the national association for constitutional government, seconded the alarm over the youth movement and urged the compulsory teaching of the constitution in American schools.

The house, in its closing hours, adopted a Massachusetts resolution urging the teaching of the constitution. It defeated an amendment by Huddleston of Alabama, proposing that the declaration of independence be first taught.

CAL'S CHOICE FOR COMMERCE BODY REJECTED

Woodlock Turned Down a Second Time

WASHINGTON, March 18.—President Coolidge lost another round in the senate this afternoon, when administration leaders abandoned their efforts to obtain confirmation of the appointment of Thomas L. Woodlock to the interstate commerce commission.

Sufficient votes could not be mustered to confirm the New Yorker.

Woodlock's appointment was blocked in the last session, and many senators had announced they would again vigorously fight confirmation.

John G. Sargent, who was appointed attorney general by Coolidge because of a lifelong friendship, will have to deal mostly with anti-trust cases, including the case of the meet packers' trust. The trusts have, of course, nothing to fear from Coolidge's friend. The conspiracy case against Burton K. Wheeler, "progressive" candidate for vice president in the last election, will be taken up. War fraud cases are also before the department of justice.

Sargent's farm adjoins the Coolidge farm in Vermont. He took the oath of office late this afternoon.

JAP WORKERS IN FLIGHT AS FLAMES MAKE THEM HOMELESS

Panicky workers, with what goods they could carry, fled thru the streets from the stricken district.

BANKERS PLAN PRIVATE ARMY TO SHIELD GOLD

Financial Institutions Like Fortresses

By CARL HAESSLER,

Thousands of rounds of ammunition, rifles revolvers and machine guns, together with fortress-like strongholds guarding treasure vaults in the bowels of the earth are constituting the new armories of the ruling bankers of Illinois.

The immense equipment of weapons and explosives, of barred vaults and massive masonry make their predatory predecessors of Florence, Pisa and Venice, the legitimate pirates of the renaissance, look like penny profiteers in Tincan alley.

Illinois bankers bemoan the loss of $325,000 taken from them by lesser bandits in 73 robberies last year. Seizing the pretext they are arming their own bands with government firearms, duly purchased, and enrolling their gunmen as certified killers under the sheriffs of the Illinois counties.

Testify to Bankers' Fears.

Labor men may wonder why so much money is to be spent and so much blood spilling threatened for the sake of $325,000 a year, less than many a bank president has embezzled without breaking his institution.

The answer is that armed bands under highly organized private control, like that exercised by the Illinois Bankers Association, are useful for other occasions than an occasional bank robbery. The vaults of banks are built nowadays not so much to guard against the hasty safe blower who must work and get away in a hurry but against popular mobs. The vaults are made to withstand mob assaults lasting a week or more. They testify to the fear the exploiting bankers have of the masses when the endurance limit of exploitation has been reached.

Want Private Army.

For this reason the bankers do not merely want state police for which they are lobbying at Springfield together with the other employing corporations. But as the ultimate economic power in modern Illinois they also want their private army, their private artillery, their private armories and their private supremacy.

Will they get it? They now have it.

Already over eight shop nuclei have been organized in the city. This is only a beginning. Comrades who work in this section must be sure to be on hand at this meeting, so that all the comrades can be organized into shop nuclei thus forming the first shop nuclei section in the Workers (Communist) Party of America. GIVE TERMS OF SETTLEMENT IN BIG JOB STRIKE

Wage Schedules Rule on 40 Per Cent

NEW YORK, March 18.—The twenty thousand or more New York dressmakers who remained idle at their machines in order to force jobbers to live up to their agreement with the union are now resuming work with the jobbers assenting to their demand for acceptance of the minimum wage scale guarantees.

The stoppage ordered by this largest local of the International Ladies Garment Workers' Union held up work on 75 per cent of the spring and Easter dresses for women of the whole United States.

The jobbers, after repeated conferences with the union and with the contractors who were co-operating with the union in the stoppage, are promising to enforce minimum wage schedules for at least 40 per cent of the work on each garment.

The union's proposal to establish a permanent price-fixing committee, to settle schedules on all dresses by representatives of jobbers, contractors and union workers rejected for the time being.

Jobber and contractor will continue to make out price schedules by bargaining and the workers, after their shop chairmen compare the offered schedules with accepted minimums, will agree or refuse to work at the rates. Haggling will settle the prices for the 60 per cent of the work for which no schedules are provided.

The jobbers agree to give the names of non-union shops in which they are having work done so that the union can organize them.

Mention of Dance Brings Applause at Commune Meeting

NEW YORK, March 18.—There was much applause at the Madison Square Garden Paris Commune Pageant when the chairman announced the big Spring Festival and Dance of the Harlem English branch, W. P., local New York, to be held the coming Saturday evening, March 21 at the Harlem Casino, 116th St. and Lenox Ave.

Labor Body Does Not Control Its Unfair Landlord

The Illinois Federatoin of Labor, the Chicago Federation of Labor and many local unions are having the uncomfortable experience of being housed in the same building with a restaurant branded as unfair. Hutcheson's chile parlor on the ground floor of the Federation building at 166 W. Washington street was put on the unfair list by the cooks and waiters. The embarrassment is increased by the fact that the accusing unions have their local joint board in the same building.

The building is not owned by the labor organizations which are simply like the unfair bean counter. That the "unfair" charge is hurting the chile business is evidenced by the frantic care with which the stickers have been scratched off building walls and streetcar poles for hundreds of feet in every direction.

Cyclone Sweeps Thru Illinois Mining Section

DUQUOINE, Ill., March 18.—Emergency phone colls were received here this afternoon indirectly from Desoto, Ill., for nurses and doctors, following a cyclone that swept thru that village leaving in its wake widespread destruction.

Railroads reports turned over to the Red Cross here carried definite information that all but two houses at Annapolis, Mo., had been demolished and that two persons are known to be dead. The population of the village is listed at 106.

PERU'S WORKERS PROTEST RULE OF CAL'S PLUTES

May Break Diplomatic Relations Soon

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 18.—Diplomatic relations between America and Peru are soon to be severed by the South American country, reports from Lima state. Peru is thoroly aroused at President Coolidge's Tacna-Arica award, and the president of Peru has written Coolidge, charging him with favoring Chile in the award of the disputed territory. Coolidge is said to have favored Chile in order to further the interests of American capitalists who hold large property interests in South America.

The Peruvian ambassador here, Hernan Velarde, has threatened to withdraw and return to Peru, and it is thought certain that no new ambassador will be appointed unless the Coolidge award is amended.

Students and workers are holding huge demonstrations in the streets of Peru's principal cities, denouncing the domination over all South American countries by American capitalists, protected by the Coolidge government, and demanding complete independence of the South American countries from American imperialism.

West Virginia Mine Explosion Came in Wake of Open Shop

bodies were found in the mine, and rescue officials attempted to revive hopes by declaring the report of the finding of the bodies of the two miners near the foot of the shaft were false.

The disaster was admitted to have been caused by ignited gas, which was allowed to fill the mine in violation of all safety precautions. At first the rumor had been spread that the explosion was caused by a bomb placed in the mine shaft, but the mine rescuers scoffed at this idea.

The entire mine is thought to be on fire. The blast wrecked the structure above the mine, the debris filling the mine shaft and blocking rescue. The mine is owned by the Bethlehem Mines corporation.

The electric light plant was wrecked by the blast, and it was several hours before it was again put into operation. One of the two main fans was started, and the rescue men started into the shaft.

Miners rushed to the scene from all sections of the Fairmont mining field and aided in the rescue work, while the families and friends of the dead miners crowded around the wrecked shaft.

"It is the worst explosion I have ever seen," R. M. Lambie, chief of the West Virginia department of mines, and head of the rescue squad, said today. "There is a small chance of any of the men being alive. We will not give give up until we come to them, dead or alive."

Goose Step Faculty Applauds Mussolini

LOS ANGELES, March 18.—The goose-stepping trustees and professors at the University of California, Southern Branch, applauded heartily and enthusiastically as Professor Du Bois, of the University of Rome, defended Mussolini and his fascist dictatorship. It is not known whether the professor is traveling in this country for tho fascist cause, but he justifies their bloody rule as tho he was one of them. He was permitted to speak at the university as a distinguished lecturer, with the idea, no doubt, of poisoning the minds of the students.

At a meeting of the faculty, Dr. E. C. Moore, reactionary director of the university overruled the wishes of about half of the professors present by refusing permission for a talk by Scott Nearing, on the grounds that was "dangerous" and had an "abnormal mind." The other half of the professors agreed with this silly excuse, no doubt the same men who applauded the fascist cause so heartily the week before.

Thus Mussolini is welcomed by these depraved beings, and "dangerous" ideas are carefully quarantined and kept from the reach of students who might catch the epidemic.

Housing Outlook Grows Worse in New York City, Capitalism's Pet Jewel

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL

TODAY, New York City, the nation's metropolis, stands before the country confessing, not only that housing conditions within its borders are steadily growing worse, but that it is helpless to remedy the situation. This product of capitalism—the modern city—is unable to provide even the elemental need of shelter for its inhabitants.

The state housing commission innocently reports to the legislature at Albany that housing conditions in New York City are steadily growing worse instead of better. It declares the housing situation generally to be beyond relief thru private enterprise operating for profit. Tenement House Commissioner Frank Mann of New York City frankly states that:

> "For the average wage earner the supply of low and moderate rental apartments has not as yet been met. To my mind the future holds no promise for any relief in this respect."

• • • •

The needs of the workers are few. They are not permitted to have many under capitalism. A little to eat, some clothes to wear, a hole to live; that is all. New York, the richest city in the capitalist world fails in providing all of these. The housing report to the state legislature makes no mention of the thousands who endlessly walk the streets, sleeping in parks, alleyways or out-of-the-way corners. It does not concern itself with homes for "The 36" who were found huddled together just the other day in a subway station. The case of these is turned over to the police. They are arrested. It is a crime to be homeless. Yet capitalism spawns many homeless.

• • • •

The housing commission only concerns itself with workers who have fairly good jobs, who work hard from day to day, who earn up to $2,500 per year. For these new construction makes no provision. They constitute two-thirds of the population, and for them, "new construction has brought no improvement in housing conditions." In other words, to get attention from the housing profiteers in New York City, one must earn more than $2,500 annually, in order to pay the bandit's toll. But that is not within the reach of the masses who labor.

• • • •

What happens? The commission tells even that. Families are forced to move out of apartments, even those built before the war, and find "something cheap" in what is called an "old-law tenement." Listen to this:

> "Conditions in the old-law tenements are worse today than before the war because of depreciation of the properties. Landlords make no repairs. There has been increased crowding in these old-law tenements. In spite of the fact that 29,000 apartments in old-law tenements have been destroyed or converted to other use since 1916, there are as many apartments occupied today in such houses as there were in 1916."

Yet it is the great capitalist press of New York City that likes most to denounce Soviet Russia for not having completely solved its housing problem. Yet the fact is that Moscow, in the Workers' Republic has a housing program and is carrying it out, bettering the conditions under which its freed workers live; while New York City, the tarnished jewel of this capitalist republic, has not only made no progress since before the war, but promises conditions steadily growing worse for the wage slaves practically held in leash within its confines.

• • • •

The point for workers to hold clear is that there is no release under capitalism. The old party representatives in the state legislature reject even state aid for public housing enterprises. The sole hope, even if this scheme were looked upon with favor would be to decrease rents. Yet, even if this hope were realized, it would give the great employers an excuse to cut wages. It has been done before. Decreased rent, decrased wages.

Some unions contemplate going into the housing business for their members. This would bring similar results, in addition to creating another barrier between the organized and unorganized workers.

The New York Housing Commission states the situation correctly when it says there is no relief thru private enterprise operating for profit. It did not take the next step, however, pointing out that there is no relief under capitalism—which is the profit system.

The real housing problem before the American workers and poor farmers today is the tearing down of the capitalist structure and the building of the new social edifice—COMMUNISM. That will be the first effective step in the effort to solve the question of suitable shelter for all. Filling Madison Square Garden the second time almost within a month, on the occasion of the "Paris Commune" anniversary would indicate that New York's workers are moving in this direction. Labor everywhere over the land wishes them speed.

Dyers and Cleaners Plan to Take Vote on Strike March 23

Strike votes will be taken by Chicago Cleaners', Dyers' and Pressers' Union 17,742 at a mass meeting, Mar. 23, in the employers with whom they are negotiating do not make an acceptable offer before then.

The agreement expired March 15. The industry is 97 per cent organized and 1200 unionists would walk out. The 400 laundry drivers organized in Local 712 of the Teamsters' and Chauffeurs' International would probably strike in sympathy.

Firefighters Seek Raise.

ST. LENIN SCHOOL GOING AHEAD FULL SPEED

Sessions Are Proving Most Successful

The first few days of the Chicago Intensive Training School which opened here Monday morning with an address by Comrade Dunne, who welcomed the students in the name of the C. E. C. and the District, already bear out the predictions made before the school opened.

The Lenin School is a distinctive feature in our work. The enthusiasm of the students, the atmosphere of the school, the close attention paid to everything presented, the relationship of the comrades who teach, with their classes, all point to the success which already marks this experiment.

The school has over forty comrades attending. A number of the comrades asked to attend were unfortunately unable to come for one reason or another. As has been already announced in the DAILY WORKER, such comrades as Comrade Corbishly who is in a hospital and others who are unable to get away from the work they are doing among the miners and in other industries, have written in that they would like nothing better than to take advantage of the school if it were not for the difficult position in which they were.

School Elects Its Officials.

The school is conducted by the students themselves in consultation with the director of the school. A committee of five was elected as a house and general committee for the school, and Comrades Weisberg of Cleveland and Chelovsky of Chicago elected chairmen for the afternoon and morning sessions of the school respectively. Comrade Melz was elected secretary. Thus the school is going ahead full speed with its program of education both theoretical and practical.

Monday night the comrades of the school visited the North Side branch and Tuesday night had the opportunity of seeing an Abramovich meeting in action. Last night they visited the City Central Committee.

It is planned to arrange a tour around Chicago with a visit to the most important industrial sections including the stock yards, etc., in order to give the comrades from out of town a birds-eye-view of Chicago industrial life.

As to social side of the school we hear from all sides that the Chicago comrades are making all sorts of plans to make the short stay of the out of town guests as pleasant as possible.

Today the schedule of the school will be as follows:

9 a. m. Trade Union History and Tactics—Dunne.
10 a. m. Party Organization and Functioning—Abern.
11 a. m. International Movement—Bedacht.
12 m. Lunch.
1 p. m. Leninism—Gomez.
2 p. m. Elementary Marxian Economics—Lerner.

Bittelman to Commence Course Tomorrow at 11 a. m.

Tomorrow, Comrade Bittelman, secretary of the political committee of the Central Executive Committee will commence his course on the History of the Communist Movement in America during the 11 o'clock hour.

No one is more fitted to give this course than Comrade Bittelman, who has been in close touch with most of the period he is to handle and has been in the thick of the development of the movement since its start.

Comrade Bedacht, who has been lecturing during the 11 o'clock hour, will finish the rest of his course on the International movement next week during the one o'clock hours on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

SECTION OF THE TRADE UNION EDUCATIONAL LEAGUE

EXPELLED FOR PROTESTING A SCAB AGREEMENT

Article 3 in Reply to Liar Duffy

By J. W. JOHNSTONE.

Secretary-Treasurer Duffy, in his letter replying to the numerous demands for further light on the expulsion policy of the Hutcheson administration, disposes of the Chicago cases with the following short paragraph:

"Local 181, Chicago, Ill., is a local case. Charges were preferred against 11 members under Sec. 54, and the cases were tried in Local 181. Evidence was presented and the defense made by the defendants. The report of the trial committee was read to the local, as I understand it, and out of the eleven members charged, five were expelled and an appeal as to the legality of their trial is now pending before the general president."

Duffy Lies by Omission.

Mr. Duffy, as he gets towards the end of his letter, improves in his method of camouflage. To the uninitiated the above quotation sounds perfectly fair and legal. But it is not what Mr. Duffy says, but rather what he does not say, that the membership is interested in.

The facts in the case are even more startling than in any of the other expulsion cases. The "crime" committed by the five Chicago expelled members, was the introducing of a resolution condemning the signing of an agreement by Hutcheson without the consent of the membership, which, in essence, was exactly the same as the Landis award. This resolution was adopted by the membership almost unanimously and sent to the convention, under the seal of the local, for action there.

This was a right guaranteed them by the constitution. Mr. Duffy fails to state this fact or that Hutcheson withheld the resolution from the convention and instructed the local officialdom to prefer charges against the members signing the resolution.

Hutcheson Will Review Hutcheson!

"It is a local case," says Duffy, "and an appeal as to the legality of their trial is now pending before the general president." In other words, Hutcheson demanded of the local officials that these members be placed under charges, which makes him the prosecutor and now he is going to sit as the judge of the appeal!

The five Chicago defendants were not tried according to Sec. 55 of the constitution. They were arbitrarily expelled by the local president who admitted that he had been instructed to do so by Hutcheson.

Three of the trial committee have signed affidavits swearing that the report of the chairman of the committee was false. Coupled with this, the membership of Local 181 had no opportunity to vote on the question.

And altho this fake trial took place nearly three months ago, only one or two meetings of Local 181 have been held because the local officials are afraid to face the issue before the membership.

Members Against Scab Agreement.

The mild resolution passed by Local 181 against the Chicago agreement does not tell the whole story. The Chicago agreement, signed by Hutcheson, is the Landis award—word for word, and paragraph by paragraph, it is exactly the same.

It was signed by Hutcheson on the morning of the district election, and was heralded in the capitalist papers as a great victory. Due to this publicity, Harry Jensen, the reactionary president of the Carpenters' District Council, was reelected to office.

And it was just on the eve of the convention that the membership found out that Hutcheson had signed a scab Landis award, which they had been fighting so successfully for years.

So, Duffy's claim that it is a local case, is just so much bunk. The Chicago cases are the same as all the others. These expelled members were exposing the corruption of Hutcheson. And like all the others who are doing likewise, they were expelled without hearing, trial or comment of the membership. They stand in Hutcheson's way, so they must go.

Tomorrow I will take up that part of Duffy's letter dealing with the expulsion of Fred W. Burgess of Philadelphia.

The Progressive Building Trades Worker has just published a pamphlet, "What's Wrong in the Carpenters' Union?"

This pamphlet tells the story of administration corruption and expulsion of militants in the Carpenters' Union.

It produces documents to prove every accusation made against the Hutcheson machine.

Although dealing exclusively with corruption within the Carpenters' Union, it is a pamphlet that should be read by all militants no matter in what industry they may work as the indictment of Hutcheson is in reality an indictment of the labor bureaucrats that now control the American labor movement.

It is a 56 page pamphlet. Price, 10c per copy. $7.00 per hundred.

NO CONVENTION FOR MINERS IN DISTRICT NO. 1

Cappellini Afraid to Face Members

PLAINS, Pa., March 18.—The miners of District 1, United Mine Workers of America will not be given a special convention to take action on the grievances existing between them and the coal operators as well as their charges against the district president according to a letter sent out by the president and secretary of the district, Rinaldo Caspellini and Enoch Williams.

The letter states that the reason given in the request for a special convention were not of sufficient importance to justify the calling of one. Cappellini, in good jesuit fashion declared that the protests of the unions against the violations of the constitution by the district president were not specific; that their protest against the treatment accorded the miners by the Pennsylvania Coal company were not well grounded and that the holding of a convention would entail a heavy expense. Cappellini was afraid to call a convention knowing it would mark the end of his political career in the union.

Threats of Death.

The miners of Local 1487, Pittston, held a stormy meeting during which George Molesky, president of the local for the past five years was threatened with death unless he quit office and refused to contest a new election. This death threat it is understood was made by henchmen of Rinaldo Cappellini, after the district president stated that unless there was more co-operation between the union and the coal operators, some of the mines would close down.

Moelsky was threatened with death as he entered the hall unless he withdrew from the office, but he declared he had made up his mind to withdraw before he left his home that evening. A new set of officers were elected afer considerable wrangling and fist fights.

State troopers were called to disperse a meeting of Woodward Local 699, held last night at Pauxtis Hall, Edwardsville. The meeting had been called by Adam Dunn, president of the local, but when trouble started between his followers and those headed by Stanley Edmunds, the meeting was broken up.

A meeting of the Edmunds group was held shortly after in Burba's Hall and Michael Evelock was named president of the local and Edmunds was named docking boss to take the place of George Lynn. Evelock was president of the local for a short time, but at an election held recently Adam Dunn was named to take his place.

DEFEAT JOHNSON AND 'B. AND O.' PLAN IS SLOGAN OF T. U. E. L. GROUP IN MACHINIST'S UNION

TO ALL SUPPORTERS OF THE LEFT WING ORGANIZED AROUND THE T. U. E. L. IN THE INTERNATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF MACHINISTS:

We recommend and urge that all militants enter energetically into the election campaign to defeat the Johnson slate.

This is to be done by:

1. Exposing William Johnson as the tool of the bosses in the union (B. & O. company union plan, banking schemes, expulsion of militants, etc.)
2. Support of the Anderson slate.

The situation confronting the left wing is as follows:

We have made certain minimum demands upon the Anderson slate—fight against the B. & O. plan, reinstatement of expelled militants, no further persecutions, fight for amalgamation of the metal trades.

Three members of the Anderson slate, McNamara, Knudson, Williams, have endorsed these demands in letters to us—not clearly and unequivocally, but in a manner that puts them on record.

We regard the Anderson slate as a center grouping in the I. A. of M., and consider that, as none of the candidates are running as individuals but as a group opposed to the reactionary Johnson administration, that the statements of these three candidates are binding on the whole group.

The Anderson center group has no program. It is not militant, is confused, and without the activity of the left wing to drive it forward, is unable and unwilling to conduct a real struggle for the rank and file against the bosses.

We entertain no illusions concerning the Anderson slate, but it now appears in lieu of any left wing slate as the only opposition to Johnson.

We consider that the defeat of Johnson at this time, in view of the coupling of his name with the class collaboration schemes like the B. & O. plan, would be a sign of a revival of the fighting spirit in the union and a repudiation of the corrupt and treacherous Johnson administration. It would be a real achievement that would have a far-reaching effect in the labor movement.

The left wing cannot remain passive in this situation. Its full strength must be thrown into the campaign and all left wing sympathizers as well as the mass of uninterested members rallied against the Johnson slate.

We must not let Johnson win because of our lack of interest. This would be a defeatist attitude and one that the left wing cannot adopt.

We repeat that the T. U. E. L. militants are the only element in the union with a practical program of struggle, the only group that fights unfalteringly for the interests of the rank and file.

Only the left wing program and left wing leadership will build the I. A. of M. and make it a powerful weapon for the workers.

It is to combat reaction in the labor movement like that of the Johnson administration that the T. U. E. L. is organized.

Fight for Amalgamation!
Fight against expulsions!
Fight the B. & O. plan!
Against Johnson and his schemes of betrayal!
For the Anderson slate against "B. & O. Bill"!
Defeat Johnson and crush the attempt to turn the union over to the capitalists!
Rally to the T. U. E. L!

Fraternally yours,
International Committee for Amalgamation in the Metal Trade Industry, TRADE UNION EDUCATIONAL LEAGUE.

50,000 JOBLESS SLAVES WALK BUFFALO STREETS

Find They Have Both "Coolidge and Chaos"

By FRANKLIN P. BRILL.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—Fully 50,000 willing workers in Buffalo, N. Y., are walking the streets, haunting the factory gates and employment agencies, looking vainly for the Coolidge prosperity which politicians thru the kept press promised.

Before election, foremen and superintendents of some of the largest automobile plants, iron and steel mills, tool and machine shops passed down the word that if Coolidge should not be re-elected the factories would either run on part time or be closed indefinitely.

Buffalo has a "public welfare" department with not as large a payroll, for example, as the department of public works. Yet in a recent report the commissioner of public welfare, "with tears streaming down his cheeks" (as described by a news reporter) admitted in the council chamber that during the past months 31,000 applications for jobs were made at his office, and he was able to place only an insignificant number of this large army of jobless men.

The Blessings of the Steel Trust.

The Lackawanna Steel plant, recently absorbed by Charlie Schwab's Bethlehem Steel kingdom, has been operating at from 40 to 60 per cent capacity during the past year. Their employes are miserably housed in company owned dwellings for which the employers extort outrageously high rents so that two and three families occupy quarters planned only to accomodate one average sized family.

The company also "provides camps," consisting of tiers of unsanitary bunks, where the slaves sleep and eat. One is for Negroes only and another permits white and colored employes alike to share the bounty of their masters.

In cool disregard of their previous threats and promises, many of the factory owners, immediately after the triumphant election of Morgan and Rockefeller servants, laid off many employes on one pretext or another.

During the past week the Roger Brown Iron and Steel works dismissed 100 men in a single batch. The Arcola branch of the American Radiator works, doing an international business, closed down indefinitely. Many other industrial plants, large and small, are running with reduced force or on part time only.

The program of the Trade Union Educational League, if supported by organized labor generally, will put their class in the possession of the power necessary for their emancipation from the yoke of capitalism.

INJUNCTION ON IRON WORKERS IN OPEN SHOP DRIVE

Scab Iron League Is Behind Courts

NEW YORK. — A stiff injunction against striking ironworkers is the latest development in the workers' fight against the open shop Iron League of New York. The injunction, issued by Federal Judge Knox, is temporary, but argument to show cause why it should not be made permanent will be heard by the judge in a week.

Locals 40 and 361 of the Bridge and Structural Ironworkers, Local 52 of the Ornamental Ironworkers, Local 197 of Steam Derrick Workers and Local 170 of Riggers and Machinery workers are enjoined by Levering & Garigues Co., McClintic-Marshall Co., Heddon Iron Construction company and Hay Foundry and Iron Works. The companies are all members of the Iron League and are "snakes" according to union members.

Forbidden to Do Anything—But Scab.

The injunction is designed to restrain the defendants from combining or conspiring to compel the plaintiffs to employ only union labor, from "intimidating, coercing, inducing or advising any person or persons to refrain from engaging plaintiffs to perform work," from conducting or advising a boycott of plaintiffs, from calling or inducing sympathetic strikes or from doing any other act which tends to interfere with the plaintiffs' work.

The companies assert in their plea that they have over $5,000,000 worth of work under way. The union threatened to call strikes of affected unions employed on Iron League jobs outside of New York in order to compel companies here to employ only union workers.

Work on over 30 large building enterprises in the city have been held up by the strike of the ironworkers. No ornamental work, no stair building, boiler installing nor machinery placement nor setting of stone are permitted on jobs where general contractors are working for the Iron League.

The league's policy is not to recognize the ironworkers' union nor have any dealings with it and its member employers keep open shop on jobs.

Textile Barons Get More for Product While Cutting Wages

MANCHESTER, N. H., March 18—Advance in price of one cent in new season's ginghams by the Amoskeag Manufacturing company calls attention again to the inequity involved in cutting its workers' wages ten per cent last fall.

Mike Tighe Sleeps —Except on Pay Day, While Wages Collapse

BUFFALO, N. Y.—The Donner steel plant is putting into effect the 10 per cent wage cut. The excuse advanced is that the introduction of new machinery demands it. A small number of the more skilled wage slaves in the steel industry have an agreement based upon production. So when the productivity of the slave is increased wages are automatically reduced.

With the wage cut in the Donner plant the American Radiator company closed down indefinitely. The rumor is, that this company will start up again within the next month with a wage reduction of 10 per cent.

While these cuts are taking place in the steel industry Mike Tighe soundly sleeps except when it comes time to draw his salary and expenses. The only force within the ranks of steel workers that holds out hope for these slaves, is the progressive committee that is being formed under the leadership of the T. U. E. L.

SITUATION IN SHOE INDUSTRY IS MOST CHAOTIC

Amalgamated Officers Try Crooked Game

By M. SHARAF.

LYNN, Mass.—The opponents of the Boot and Shoe Union succeeded in blocking the referendum calling for the Amalgamated to join the Boot and Shoe.

The local that initiated that referendum withdrew it from the council and seceded from the Amalgamated, and will apply for a charter in the Boot and Shoe at the expiration of the present agreement which ends on April 30.

The mixed local that endorsed the referendum notified the Amalgamatee that they will not be a party to an agreement signed by the Amalgamated.

The Heel workers and Bottomers' locals called special meetings to take up the present situation and it is most likely that they will secede.

The Lasters' local, which seceded from the Amalgamated about a year ago and functioned as an independent body, were granted a charter by the Boot and Shoe and will be the first local in Lynn under the Boot and Shoe since 1903 at the time the Boot and Shoe was driven out of Lynn.

Charles Hartshorne, general agent of the Amalgamated, was doing all in his power to have the referendum polled, altho there was no more five locals to endorse the referendum, which is required by the constitution of the Amalgamated union.

The last convention of the Amalgamated elected a committee of five to call a conference of all independent unions for the purpose of amalgamation. That conference was never called, and Hartshorne, who is to see that the constitution and decisions of conventions be lived up to, has never called that committee to account. Which goes to show that something is wrong.

The progressive committee of the Shoe and Leather industry, which is working in conjunction with the Trade Union Educational League, is to meet in a few days to map out tactics applicable to the present chaotic situation in Lynn.

Miners Get a 25 Per Cent Cut; Boss Says They Asked for It!

Miners employed by the Consolidated Coal company, in the Somerset region of Pennsylvania have been handed a 25 per cent wage cut and asked to sign on the dotted line. According to the company statement the cut, effective March 12, followed a vote taken among the miners. The old tonnage rate was $1. The company is one of the largest in the country.

DISTRICT ONE, U. M. W., PUTS UP REAL MINERS

Progressives Take Stand Against Machine

By R. BAKER.

SCRANTON, Pa.—We were sitting around the kitchen stove of a miner's home discussing the coming election in the Miner's Union in District One, when Bernard Zaleskas, the progressive candidate for president, came in from his day's work in the mines.

A tall, stalwart figure whow the 30 odd years of coal digging have failed to bend, or mar, his face black from grime and coaldust symbolized the determination and the fighting spirit that made possible the miners' victories in the past years.

He was introduced to the DAILY WORKER correspondent as the real representative of the rank and file who was selected to head the progressive ticket against the corrupt Lewis-Cappellini machine, which has so often brazenly betrayed the miners in the anthracite fields.

No Greenhorn in the Mines.

Zaleskas has been actively and consciously participating in the class struggle from the first day he swung a pick. He was among the pioneers who organized the Miners' Union 25 years ago, and pointed out to us the woods where the first secret union meetings were held.

Those were the days when the miners had but one enemy to fight, the mine owner. Many were his stories of the long, bitter strikes, lockouts, blacklists and pitched battles that finally established the United Mine Workers as a force to be reckoned with and respected.

The miners knew then and still know how to fight a clean-cut open fight against the operators. All the forces of the mine owners including the well known iron fist of this steel trust state could not hold them down in the battles to establish the union.

New and Fiercer Struggle.

And yet, today, after all these years of struggle, the union is the whip that stands between the miners and the operators, today Zaleskas with a large group of the rank and file must divide their energies between fighting the bosses and the corrupt officialdom of the union that is betraying and selling all the hard won achievements of a 25 year struggle.

Zaleskas and his supporters recognize the tremendous significance of the movement they have initiated, and are calling on the rank and file of the union to join them in this fight to make their organization a fighting weapon that will yield results to the miners.

For the first time they have introduced real issues in the district election campaign. They are calling on the rank and file to judge the candidates by their program, and not by the fine, ready-made election speeches.

Programs, Not Persons, Must Rule.

It was difficult to get much information from Zeleskas about himself. He pointed out that this election campaign will not be fought on the virtues of the individual candidates, a mistake the miners made in the past and are still paying for dearly, but on a practical program that must solve the many burning problems the miners are now facing in District One, as well as in the entire coal mining industry.

Zaleskas has been an active member of the Mine Workers' Union from its very inception, having held a number of local offices, and has participated in all the strikes that tied up the anthracite industry during the last 25 years.

Besides being a miner and a militant union man, he is a student of social and economic problems, and possesses knowledge that would shame many legislators and "pillars" of society. It is a hopeful and significant sign when the rank and file can produce a man from the pits who has both the courage to oppose the union officialdom and the operators, and who possesses the knowledge of the social and economic structure of society.

Witcunas—Another Fighter.

Soon another tall miner entered the room with the news of an accident in the nearby colliery that had sent a neighboring miner to the hospital. The news was taken in a calm, serious manner that denoted that these men were accustomed to accidents as every day occurrences.

The newcomer was John Witcunas, progressive candidate for vice-president. Witcunas spent 15 years in the mines, and bears many scars from encounters with the "cossacks," the coal and iron police, who are sent to terrorize the miners during strike periods.

He, too, is determined that the union for which he fought and sacrificed must become the fighting organ of the rank and file. With a bitter smile he told us of Cappellini's promise to give the rank and file expression thru the general grievance committees, and cited the recent order from the district executive board to dissolve these bodies which were the last vestige of power held by the rank and file.

The basis for this latest betrayal was laid immediately after Cappellini's election, when a clause was inserted in the constitution giving the officials power to dissolve any delegated body of which they disapproved.

This further explains why John L. Lewis adopted Cappellini as his right hand man in District 1. Retaining and developing of the general grievance committees is one of the strong points of the progressive program on which these candidates are running.

A Striker of Old Forge.

After a short street car ride we arrived in Old Forge, the storm center of the last outlaw strike. We soon found the home of John Sabatelli, the progressive candidate for district vice-president.

Sabatelli is youngest of the candidates, being 27 years of age, but he possesses all the courage and enthusiasm of youth and his five years' experience in the mines is rich with many strike exepriences, the latest being the great outlaw strike involving 12,000 men in which he took an active part.

All three of the candidates are but little known outside of their local unions and the collieries they work in. They represent the first conscious organized effort on the part of the rank and file to assert their position and power.

"Good Right Arm" Needed, Sometimes to Swing a Penc

To the DAILY WORKER: I notic a couple of interesting letters in t day's paper. Why can't more of th comrades and readers write their e periences on the job and looking f jobs?

Do they think this is unimportant Won't the "Streetcar man" who letter is published today (Mar. 11 write himself about his job and u ion? He says "my good right ar is ready to defend the Communi movement now."

This is fine, and the moveme sorely needs all such arms; som times to handle a pencil.

We all know the old adage "th pen is mightier than the sword. Well, we won't give up the idea th the sword is also a mighty goo propaganda weapon in its place, bu just today, let's all do a little mor writing about our jobs. We can pa the sword on the table nearby an so keep it handy.

Glad to see Comrade Ford of Balti more in print, too. He is right, ig norance must be conquered. Wish h would write again about the actua conditions of himself and other work ing folk in Baltimore.

Let those who labor tell the worl about that labor.

Davis Urges Keeping Canadians Out

Secretary of Labor James J. Davis advocated turning the U. S. immigration department into an employment agency for the large manufacturers, in a speech here before the women's bar association.

Davis, who himself came to America via Ellis Island, advocated keeping out all those who might criticise the government, and urged that Canadians and Mexicans also be prevented from entering America, as well as European workers.

"We should pick our foreign population as carefully as an up to date business house picks its employes," Davis said. "Why bring anyone to America who isn't going to work for her? If this country is short of coal miners, then import coal miners. If we need farmers, bring farmers."

Davis, in his speech, seemed to consider "America" synonymous with "employer."

Death of Sun Yat Sen Not to Affect Canton Republic

"Dr. Sun's place cannot be taken by any one else," said Wu Chao-shu "but the death of Dr. Sun Yat Sen will not affect the Canton situation."

Letters From Our Readers

To the DAILY WORKER: I chanced upon an editorial that forces me to a few casual remarks. First of all I, for the first time received a few morsels of spiritual pabulum at Father Hagerty's round table called by Sam Gompers, not with out wit, Father Hagerty's wheel of fortune. With but one fleeting glimpse of the babe he did sense with almost womanly intutition that this infant would never become the mistress nor punk of any master," but what the little cigar maker did not know was that he beheld a child of destiny, and of course the only thing a sycophant could do was cast reflections on his lowly origin. Happily enuf his progenitors had no idea of his inherent qualities or they might have killed the kid with care. Scarcely had the child filled his lungs with Chicago air when they wanted to come .the Solomon stunt. In a short time he became a waif deserted by kith and kin, out the boy survived for all, and when those clouds that now appear on the horizon gather, and tha storm breaks this ragged urchin will come into his own, and grow! Yes, develop so fast he will with difficulty retain his identity but that's irrevelant; I've run into an open switch; I'm off the track.

The editorial I had in mind was titled, "Pick the Rotten Apples out of the Barrel." Its source of inspiration was a bill before the house at Springfield; a sterilization of the unfit, proposition. It seems as tho the bourgeoisie insist on making a garden for their gods, a la Luther Burbank every now and then. Now one of my school can easily see that this is a most delightful subject for those chair-warmers to play with and more especially so since the ladies have been admitted to this peerage. The subject fairly teems with possibilities from the risque to the more nearly scientific and no doubt will be purloined by the idle ladies of neither sex who make up what is called the elite of society and those good folks will exploit it to the very limit. This brings to mind the dilletante ladies of another time that so glibly discussed the rights of man; some of whom took a ride in a two-wheled cart and at the end of their journey were introduced to the first lady of her time. The idea the radicals should keep in mind is to avoid wandering in utopian gardens as it is conduct unbecoming a left winger.—Tom Peyton, Indiana Harbor, Ind.

What Has Become of "The Irish People"?

To the DAILY WORKER: The appalling condition of the workers and peasants in the famine stricken area on the west coast of Ireland is getting but scant publicity from the kept press of this country. With one or two exceptions the Free State press ignores the existence of a famine for obvious reasons, while the catholic bishops in their lenten pastoral pronounce it as a castigation from God on the Irish for the crimes committed in the attempt to set up a republican form of government. The De Valera faction are too busy picking up all the loose change they can lay hands on for the coming elections, the greed for power and the spoils of office appeal more to their christian hearts than the thousands of peasants along the Atlantic seaboard who are doomed to perish from starvation.

The DAILY WORKER is the only paper so far that has made known to the American people the true circumstances in the famine stricken region from Donegal to Clare and is co-operating with the International Aid Society in collecting funds for immediate relief to the unfortunate victims of the Free Sstate Junta.

The Irish People, a monthly magazine published in Chicago, used to give very interesting articles on current events in Ireland and should be a good medium for spreading the truth about conditions over there at this time. I would like to know if it is still in existence.

Reply: The Irish People lived as a sixteen page monthly magazine for twelve months, the last issue appearing in May, last year in that form. Comrade O'Flaherty, the editor, was obliged to resign owing to pressure of duties on the DAILY WORKER. D. O'Dwyer was elected as his successor. The Irish People appeared once to our knowledge after Comrade O'Flaherty resigned, as a little four page sheet. M. J. Scanlan, business manager of The Irish People may be able to inform you whether the paper still lives or not.

Tribune Makes Another Error.

To the DAILY WORKER: I want to call your attention to a certain paragraph that appeared in the Tribune on Saturday, March 7.

The paragraph stated, "Tiflis, Georgia, March 8.—Soviet parliament grants Georgian rebels amnesty. On the proposal of President Kalinin the Soviet federal parliament here today proclaimed amnesty for Transcaucasia covering the participants in last year's rising who were not affected by the previous amnesty granted a few months ago on the initiative of the Georgian government."

My main object in writing this is that I would very much appreciate it if you will call to the attention of the Tribune, thru the DAILY WORKER, the errors they occasionally make by calling the Central Soviet Union "federal parliament." Surely the U. S. S. R. is not governed by parliamentarism. If I am correct in my contention that the U. S. S. R. is governed by the proletariat, then I must criticize the paragraph quoted above.—I. Greenberg.

BRITISH LABOR LEADER FLAYS SOVIET ENEMIES

Socialists and Tories Use Same Language

LONDON, March 18.—"The present position of the engineers," said W. H. Hutchinson, of the A. E. U. to the Daily Herald in a recent interview, "is as exceedingly difficult one. The new Baldwin government has not merely rejected the Anglo-Soviet treaties, which would have provided work for the engineers by stimulating and facilitating the export of agricultural machinery, electrical machinery and implements of all kinds to the union of Socialist Soviet Republics, but in every way it has shown its hostility to relations of any kind with the Soviet government and the masses of Russia.

"An instance of the petty spite displayed by Messrs. Baldwin, Churchill and company, is the sudden insulting refusal to receive any longer ordinary Russian commercial advertisements in British government publications.

"This sort of spirit makes it all the more necessary for our British labor movement to maintain the closest possible relations with the trade unions of Russia.

Labor Rothermeres

"Any failure on our part to do this would not merely perpetuate the adverse effect of these bad relations upon our engineering workers' conditions, but would actually give a chance to Churchill and his kind to launch out a fresh attack upon the workers and peasants of Russia?

"It is very unfortunate," added Hutchinson, "that the attitude of bitter hostility to all things Russian displayed by some of the German, French and Dutch trade unionists, is playing into the hands of our reactionaries here. There is very little to choose between the tone of some of the things which have been appearing in the continental socialist press, and the vicious attacks of the Rothermere papers. Undoubtedly this adds, must add, very greatly to the difficulties of our position in this country.

"After all, the British Trade Union Congress and the British movement generally is the mainstay of the International Federation of Trade Unions.

Not Listened To

"It has contributed most of the affiliation fees hitherto, it has provided the most powerful backing, but when it endeavours to contribute to the policy, and that in the sense of building up a real united international, in the sense of healing all the differences that are distracting the trade union movements of the world, it is not listened to."

Answering a question as to what he thought should be the proper policy, Mr. Hutchinson replied: "That is a matter for the Trade Union Congress General Council to decide. But my private opinion is that the difficulties that have been raised so persistently can now only be solved by direct common action of the two trade union movements, the British and the Russian, that have shown themselves really concerned for the cause of international trade union unity.

"The position seems to have been reached when the Anglo-Russian unity committee should be put into effect."

Ford Is Good Schemer.

NEW YORK, March 18.— Henry Ford has a new plan in mind to obtain full control of the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton railroad, financial circles heard today. Didn't Like Wilson's Private War, Got 22 Years, Now Back Home

NEW YORK.—The last military political prisoner, Anton Karachun, a Russian serving a 22-year sentence, at McNeill's Island, Washington, is released by the war department, the American Civil Liberties Union announces. Karachun was released on condition of his return to Russia and the union is arranging passage and employment for Karachun in Russia. He leaves within 90 days.

Karachun was in the U. S. army from 1917 until after the armistice but never left this country. He was then sent to Siberia with the American expeditionary force and deserted to fight with his fellow countrymen. He was captured a year later, court-martialled and sentenced to death, but but was given commutation to 22 years.

The point urged upon the war department in Karachun's favor was that international law makes it illegal fo ran alien in the American army to be forced to fight against his own countrymen. Agitation for Karachun's release has been going on for two years.

World's Oil Trusts Combine to Exploit Immense Irak Fields

BAGDAD, March 18.—The Standard Oil company, the Royal Dutch Shell, and the leading American, French and Anglo-Persian oil companies under the name of the Turkish Petroleum company, have entered into a joint contract with the Irak government for the exploitation of petroleum deposits thruout the country. The contract gives the oil companies the petroleum rights of Irak for a period of 75 years.

The four groups of oil concerns will share equally in the project. The combined capital is five billion dollars. The company will exploit 24 different areas, each of eight miles square, and will lease the remainder.

CHINESE WORKERS MOURN SUN, BUT DO NOT WEAKEN

Red Flag Still Flies Over Canton

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

CANTON, China, March 18.—Tho there is universal mourning for the pasing of China's greatest statesman, Sun Yat Sen, there is no weakening of the lines of his supporters. This despite the venomous attacks and hostile hopes of the foreign imperialists and their Chinese agents.

"The death of Sun Yat Sen has not affected nor will it affect the Canton situation," says Wu Chao-shu, miniser for foreign affairs in the radical Canton government. Wu is the son of Wu Ting-fang, famous Chinese diplomat. "The place of Sun Yat Sen cannot be taken by anyone else," he said, "no more than can the place of that other illustrious leader, Nicolai Lenin."

Meanwhile, foes of the Chinese workers and peasants are working day and night to bring dissension in the ranks of the Kuomintang party whose leader Sun was . Hin Wong, a jounalist who was so flagrantly offensive in behalf of the Anglo-American intervention that he had to be expelled from Canton by Sun's working class army, is now filling the foreign press with alarming tales of Bolshevism at Canton.

Hin Wong says that today in place of the principles of the early Kuomaintang party, which brot republicanism to China a dozen years ago, there waves over Canton the red flag of Moscow, with the Komintang emblem in the corner.

Crystal Coffin for Sun Yat Sen.

PEKING, March 18.—A crystal coffin for the late President Sun Yat Sen of South China will arrive from Moscom about April 4 on a special train also bearing official Soviet mourners. The body in the meantime will lie in state in a portion of the Forbidden City which hereafter will be known as Chungshan park, using Sun Yat Sen's intimate name, which also may become the new name of Nanking; at which a mausoleum will be erected. A state funeral will be held at Peking.

Altho the Rockefeller hospital officials were denied the privilege of an autopsy, they deemed it wise to eviscerate incidental to embalming, thus preserving the cancer which killed Dr. Sun for science.

The police anticipate a Bolshevik demonstration at the time of the funeral and are taking precautionary measures.

SLOVAK WORKERS ASK RELEASE OF SACCO-VANZETTI

The Slovak Workers' Federation has passed a resolution demanding the liberation of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, who were convicted of the murder of a South Braintree, Mass., paymaster on trumped up evidence.

"We the Slovak workers of the Slovak Workers' Federation and the Slovak Workers' Society gathered at Workers' Home, 2147 W. Chicago avenue are joining with millions of the world proletariat against the gag law and the capitalist injustice of this country and their unhuman action to railroad our fellow workers, Sacco-Vanzetti to the electric chair. Sacco-Vanzetti must not die. The two labor organizers must be saved.

"Therefore we demand that Sacco-Vanzetti, the two innocent workers and the victims of the present capitalist system, be given freedom. We call upon all the workers to join us in this protest so that these two men may be returned to their families."

A collection was made of $48.25 which is sent to Sacco-Vanzetti committee to Boston, Mass.

Finnish Federation Conducts Day School at Superior, Wis.

SUPERIOR, Wis., March 18.—The Finnish Federation has undertaken to conduct Finnish day courses in Marxian economics, evolution, history of the United States, imperialism, financial capitalism here in Superior. There are 26 students, and the two weeks that have passed since "school" began have kept us busy.

Our teachers are V. Boman, Y. Halonen and H. Askeli. They have all shown themselves to be capable and have completely won the confidence of the student body. A mutual feeling of comradeship exists between the teachers and the students.

The subjects are scheduled to last six weeks; they will end in mid-April. The students have gathered from as far south as Chicago and as far north as the iron range of Minnesota. Nearly all have received stipends from their various party branches.

Study being at 8:00 a. m. and ends at 4:00 p. m., with a brief rest period after every hour. Saturday afternoons and Sundays are free.

The purpose of these courses is to prepare comrades for better work in the party. We are being given a working knowledge and practical training that will make of us more enthusiastic and more efficient workers for communism. The zeal with which the comrades set themselves to their study every morning is proof of their profound earnestness and of their understanding of the great meaning that these courses have for them, regarding their work in the future.

Such courses as these should be encouraged in all parts of the country, for they serve to open up our eyes to a broader understanding of the doctrines of Communism.

Lore Lectures on Current Events.

NEW YORK, March 18.—A series of lectures on Current Events will be given by Ludwig Lore every Friday evening, 8 p. m., at the Workers' School, 108 East 14th street. The first of these will take place this coming Friday, March 20.

Comrade Lore will present a weekly review of present-day economics and politics and will analyze events as they occur in the leading countries.

This course is important for our members and sympathizers. To carry on effective agitational and organizational activity in the labor movement, militants must be well-informed on the happenings of the day. They must be able to analyze present struggles and achievements in this and other countries with a revolutionary understanding of the forces at work thruout the world.

"Bears" Drive On N. Y. Exchange

NEW YORK, March 18.—Encouraged by their success in unselling prices in recent sessions and stimulated by another violent drop in prices of grain at Chicago and Winnipeg, the bears continue to "drive" against prices in the stock market today. Concentrating at first on the high priced industrial stocks which they pounded down to lower prices levels then at Monday's close, the bears extended their operations to the oil stocks, then to the motors and finally the rails.

Chicago League to Organize Factory Work of Branches

In our league some of the comrades have been attending their meetings very irregularly, sometimes missing two or three at a time and thus keeping their valuable assistance to our branches away from the organized activity of the branch. Some of them when approached, say that they are still carrying on activity. But altho individual agitation and activity is better than none, still unless the activity of all comrades is combined in an organized and conscious effort of a working area branch with its executive committee, for the building up of the league thru the organization of shop nuclei, trade union economic work, Young Worker campaign and junior work, those efforts are only very faintly felt by our movement as a whole.

To bring those comrades back to their posts and activities in the branch and nuclei, committees are being elected by the branches to visit them and special letters are being written.

The working area branches of the Young Workers' League are having their activity meetings this Friday and the places of the meetings are as follows:

Working Area Branch No. 1, 166 W. Washington St., room 507.

Working Area Branch No. 2, 1910 W. Roosevelt Road.

Working Area Branch No. 3, 3201 S. Wabash Ave.

INTERNATIONAL RED AID UNITES MILITANTS AGAINST THE WHITE TERROR DURING 'DEFENSE WEEK'

A hundred thousand militant workers were murdered by European white terrorists during the post-war period of 1918-1924; a hundred thousand more are class war prisoners in capitalist dungeons thuout the world today, and at least as many more are fugitives, exiles from their homes and families, dogged at every step by political espionage and economic black-list. With their helpless dependents, it is estimated that the working class victims of the last seven years of bloody reaction number at least a million.

Casualties of the class war What are we doing for them? What can we do for them?

On this front the International Red Aid steps in. Organized in 1922 by a group of "old guard" Russian Communists, every one himself a former political convict, it has grown in strength and activity until today it counts three and a half million members in Soviet Russia alone. Every one of these members, workers, peasants, teachers, students, even children, pay a regular dues rate, and the funds raised have climbed steadily month by month, from 310 rubles in January, 1923, to 225,859 rubles in September of 1924. These fuids come direct from the Russian masses. Entertainments are held at which all talent is given freely; the actors perform, the artists contribute posters and scenery, the stage hands dress the stage—all for international solidarity. Factory meetings arrange "Subbotniki," they decide to work on Sundays and contribute their total earnings to the Red Aid. Students strip themselves of rings, bracelets, and other jewelry—veritably here is "Russian gold" to give nightmares to our imperialist masters.

In Germany and Austria the I. R. A. movement is likewise widely organized.

American Activity.

In this country certain foreign-speaking sections of the working class have done good work in raising funds on behalf of white terror victims in their own home countries. Thus the Letts, Jugo-Slavs, Roumanians and Finns have conducted excellent campaigns.

What is done with the money raised for the International Red Aid? It is used, to quote the theses of the Fifth Congress of the Communist International, "to render material, moral and legal support to the imprisoned revolutionary fighters, their families and children, as well as to the families of fallen fighters. . . . The I. R. A. surrounds the revolutionary fighters with an atmosphere of comradly feeling, and thus sustains their courage and their readiness to go on with the fight."

The Communists and "Red Aid."

From the foregoing it must not be assumed that the I. R. A. is a Communist Party appendage. Nothing of the kind. It is a mass movement made up of all militant workers who recognize that thru struggle alone can life and freedom be won. To quote again from these theses: "The I. R. A. is a non-party organization . . . which unites large masses of workers and peasants and employes, without distinction of party affiliations, all those who suffer from capitalist exploitation and national oppression, and who are striving towards the victory of labor over capital."

Yet, altho its composition must of necessity be on class rather than party basis, the political significance of the movement cannot be overestimated, nor the duties of the organized Communists toward it overemphasized. The theses go on to state: "Thus the I. R. A. in developing its activities, becomes one of the important weapons of the united front, because by concrete activity it constantly organized new forces for international solidarity and it draws them directly into the revolutionary struggle of the proletariat. Furthermore the tremendous political significance of the I. R. A. should be pointed out as that organization which works in the rear of the proletarian army, which is always present in the fights of the working class, in the advance as well as in the retreat."

A United Front in Action.

All Communist parties support the I. A. R. in every possible way, they devote organization and publicity strength to the upbuilding of this proletarian counter-force to the bourgeois Red Cross, and immediately and fittingly dedicate the celebration of Paris Commune Day, March 18, to this cause.

The Workers (Communist) Party of America has set aside the week from March 15 to 22 as a Defense and Relief Week. Hundreds of cities will have meetings, some of them drawing crowds of many thousands. The New York demonstration on March 15 was a great success. In Chicago the Ashland Auditorium on Sunday afternoon, March 29, will be jammed to the doors with a cheering audience.

Hail the class struggle! Hail the workers' victory! Hail the International Red Aid, organ of battle, and harbinger of world-wide working class solidarity!

Pollyannaism in the Labor Movement

We pick an article in The Federation News entitled "Open Shop and American Plan" as a shining example of the muddled thinking indulged in by labor leadership. The article in question is featured and is undoubtedly an expression of a large part of that section of the labor movement called for lack of a better name, "honest trade unionists." Daniel DeLeon called this group "pure and simplers." Their purity may be legitimately questioned from time to time but their simplicity never.

Here are the subheads under which the writer builds up his indictment of the capitalist class—a pretty fair indictment but weakened by his reference to the capitalists only as "employers:"

Workers' Rights Ignored in Open Shop Idea.

Organized Employers Glaringly Inconsistent Towards Employes.

Labor's Harmful Neglect.

Intolerant Employers Use Human Buzzards Against Toilers.

Blacklist Used as Gag.

Big Business Scientifically Controls.

How Private Monopoly Controls Government.

The writer cites incident after incident showing that the capitalists control industry and government but when he has to draw a conclusion from these facts he begins to back up. Not being a revolutionist he can only accept capitalism. Here is his solution and why he went to so much trouble to prove the power and tyranny of the capitalist system in order to reach such a childish conclusion probably always will remain a mystery.

"If the wage system is ever abolished it will be after centuries of effort to evolve a practical social order based upon mutuality of responsibility as well as mutual benefit * * * The building of a new order is not a class job. Those in every class thruout the entire social body, who believe in the betterment of humanity, will have to unite for the building of a new order, otherwise it will not be built."

This is the logic of Pollyanna.

The capitalist class controls industry and government, they are all-powerful and do not fail to use every method, no matter how horrible, to retain their control. Therefore we, the workers whom capitalism oppresses, against whom they use all the machinery of thir state, must unite with the capitalist class to build a new order in which the basic element in capitalist control, the private property in community needs, will be missing.

Hurray! Workers, worry no more!

Just wait, it will take only "centuries of effort!" Give the believers in the "betterment of humanity" a chance and remember:

No preaching of hatred of capitalism or talk of revolution because, says this unhurried soul, such things "will retard social development." Do not revolt because then it might delay things a century or two.

One thing is certain. Capitalism can look forward to centuries of unchallenged power if the working class program is to be framed by leadership of this caliber.

The Communist program?

Well, that is probably why the Federation article was published.

More Miners Murdered

Another coal mine blast takes the lives of 33 miners.

The accident occurred in a steel trust property, christened after its parent—Bethlehem Mines corporation. Accumulated gas, which gave the explosion terrific force, caused the accident, and indicates that the presence of the deadly gas in such large quantities could not have escaped notice by the bosses.

An open shop drive is in progress in this territory. The union has been greatly weakened by the constant attacks upon it and endeavors to force a wage cut upon the miners have been made recently.

It is in West Virginia that the coal and steel trust has been concentrating its efforts in the developments of non-union mines. The coal from these mines has been used to force union-mined coal out of the markets. The whole state is a principality of the steel trust and readers are familiar with the horrors of the bitter struggle between the union, the capitalists, the state authorities and the various city and county governments owned outright by the bosses.

To the atrocities committed on workers who were fighting for unionization there has now been added the additional horror of men sent helpless to their death in dozens. Like in the Dortmund disaster in Germany these workers were sacrificed for the greed of the Morgan-Rockefeller dynasty that drives for world power.

There is only one answer to such crimes of the rulers:

Unity of the American labor movement—amalgamation into gigantic industrial unions.

Unity of the world trade union movement against the international robbers.

If the deaths of these West Virginia miners stir the American labor movement to action they will not have died in vain.

Obstacles to Capitalist Unity

The United States of Europe, divided into western and eastern groups, is the solution for Europe's political and economic problems, according to M. Benes, foreign minister of Czecho-Slovakia.

The resourceful M. Benes proposed to Herriot, the French premier, that the western group should include England, France, Belgium and Germany; the eastern group to include Poland, Roumania, Czecho-Slovakia, Austria and other small countries. Italy would be allowed to throw her fortunes with either group she chose.

M. Benes waxed very enthusiastic over the results of such an arrangement. He says, according to a Paris dispatch, that > trade will be assured thru an easement of railway, shipping, and transportation regulations and business will be boomed thru an amelioration of passport and police control difficulties.

Further—

> that Europe will save 50 per cent of the present budgets expended on the upkeep of armies, navies, and aviation, and will be able to halve the number of state employes thru cutting and eliminating the huge amount of red tape which will not be necessary when relations are friendly and the nations are practically federated.

But like all schemes for solving the insoluble contradictions of modern imperialism, the plan of M. Benes, representing as it does the aspirations of the smaller powers as opposed to the supremacy of the great powers, ran into a snag at the very outset. M. Herriot, speaking for French imperialism, sunk the Benes scheme with a few well-aimed verbal torpedos.

He said that the plan was "utopian, untimely and impossible of realization." He assured the Czech and Polish statesmen that the interests of their countries lay very close to the throbbing heart of France, but—he could not see his way clear to endorse a plan that might deprive French imperialism of some of its vassals.

Meanwhile France and England haggle over the security pact with France getting a little the worst of it as this is written.

The Benes plan is a good one, but he has neglected a very important historical factor—that of revolution. Such agreements and mutual understanding as Benes visualizes come only between workers' and peasants' republics AFTER a revolution.

Even in America such understandings between the separate states were not reached until after the revolutionary war.

M. Benes, however, is not trying to start a revolution. He is trying to stop one.

'A Rugged Country Lawyer'

The new attorney general, heir to the office after two of his immediate predecessors have fallen by the wayside thru a series of circumstances that do not need to be detailed here, is described in administration publicity as "a rugged country lawyer with a record of quiet service." Those familiar with the language of press agents will interpret this correctly if they read: "A nonentity who has never reached a mental level above that of the pre-revolutionary culture of Vermont."

The farm of John Sargent, the new head of the department of justice, adjoins that of the Coolidge family. This is probably as good a reason for his appointment as any other. He has never been heard of before and the senate could therefore have nothing against him.

We recall a case that is similar in many respects to this elevation of one from the lower depths of mediocrity to the head of the department of justice. Years ago the Anaconda Mining company picked for governor of Montana a livery stable lawyer in Virginia City—a village without a railroad where the event of the day was the arrival of the stage with its emaciated mail pouch.

This local shyster, who was said to be the best whittler in the hamlet, became the most servile capitalist tool and the most tyrannical governor that the state ever had. He, too, was "a rugged country lawyer with a record of quiet service." One of his first official acts was to send in troops to crush the metal miners' strike in 1914. He built the game warden service into a band of thugs under direction of the copper trust. He advocated and signed the most vicious anti-sedition law ever passed by any state. During the war he, as head of the draft board, arbitrarily increased the quotas of the mining counties to take out as many militant workers as possible. He sent in troops again in 1917 when the miners struck. He did everything that the copper trust told him to do, but his real value lay in the fact that he never did anything he was not told to do.

If historical analogies are worth anything at all, the appointment of "this rugged country lawyer with a record of quiet service" as head of the department of justice means that the labor unions and the revolutionary movement are in for a stormy time.

We had better do a little rugged preparation.

Capitalists Want State Cossacks

paper thruout the state, there appear editorials, special articles, cooked-up "news stories," all tending to convey the idea that Illinois needs a state police to preserve its people in peace and security.

Are workers people? The whole inspired agitation behind the Dunlap police bill shows that its capitalist sponsors do not think so.

What Is the Dunlap Bill?

Workers will want to know just what this Dunlap bill is. It bears the same stamp as similar bills being urged in Missouri, Rhode Island, Ohio and other states. It provides for the establishment of a military police force entirely removed from all local responsibility and with power to swoop down upon and invade any community in the state, even against the protest of local authorities.

The force is to be organized on strictly military lines in from three to seven troops officered by captains, lieutenants, sergeants and corporals. The commanding officer, to be known as "superintendent of the Illinois state police," is to be appointed by the governor and may be removed only for certain specific constitutional reasons.

Every individual member of the force is to have full police authority in all parts of the state. He may make arrests and searches upon warrants, and also without warrants. He may arrest any person against whom he may have "suspicion."

Large sums of money have mysteriously accumulated for a systematic publicity campaign in behalf of "more effective policing of rural highways," and some farmers have been misled into believing that the purpose of the Dunlap bill is to furnish rural police protection. Even a casual reading of the bill shows this to be a shabby pretense.

For Armed Force Against Workers

The Illinois State Federation of Labor exposed the falsehood of their claim some time ago. Instead of providing for a rural police, spread out in the rural communities and permanently stationed in these communities, the bill offers a heavily-armed military force organized for quick mobilization in military units. It is an army for service against the workers.

Proof that the state constabulary is not an innocent rural welfare scheme, but something quite different, is the fact that it did not originate with farmers. Its backers are manufacturers, mining companies, bankers and investment firms. In the forefront of the campaign is the Illinois chamber of commerce, which collected $100,000 for prosecution of the miners in Herrin.

Not a Rural Police Body.

Moreover, the proposed military force, which would not number more than 455 officers and men as a maximum, could not under any circumstances be sufficient to patrol the approximately 95,000 miles of rural highway in the state. Except in one paragraph where the subject is mentioned in four words having little or no specific meaning, the bill does not provide for rural highway patrolling. But there is plenty in the bill permitting the constabulary to be thrown into industrial communities and mining towns when a strike is on.

The claim that the state constabulary would be a simple rural police for farm and highway protection is aboslutely false. The main purpose in establishing any highly centralized state police force anywhere in the world has been to enforce upon the working people of local communities conditions to which those people were opposed.

Not Intended to Prevent Crime.

The primary motive in the organization of any such state police system has never been that of "preventing crime" or apprehending "ordinary criminals." No single exception to this can be produced anywhere in the world where a highly centralized state police system has existed sufficiently long to leave something of a history.

The Cossacks.

It is particularly significant that the guest of honor at the previously mentioned chamber of commerce luncheon was the superintendent of the state police of Pennsylvania. The Pennsylvania constabulary has been the most notorious of all. It originated as an anti-labor militia and from the time of its inception has gone on breaking strikes, clubbing and jailing workers, disrupting labor meetings, breaking up demonstrations.

During the steel strike of 1919, the anti-labor reign of terror of the "American cossacks" was particularly bloody, and was repeated in the 1922 coal strike.

In czarist Russia, mothers used to frighten their children into obedience by admonishing: "The cossacks are coming!" So it is actually today in the industrial and mining regions of Pennsylvania, where the children tremble with fear when they hear the word "constabulary" muttered in their presence.

Unless the Illinois labor movement succeeds in preventing the establishment of an Illinois state police, as it did in 1919 and 1920, the above situation will inevitably be duplicated in Illinois.

Want Cossacks to Crush Miners.

Miners and other workers in the mining areas will be the first to feel the heavy hand of the cossacks. These, especially are the "rural communities" which big business has in mind. The chamber of commerce, bankers and mine owners have not forgotten Herrin, nor the great fights which the miners have sustained on behalf of their union and a decent standard of living.

What S. Glenn Young and his ku kluxers failed to do, the Illinois cossacks would bend all their energies toward accomplishing: The destruction of the miners' union.

Labor is a unit against the monstrous Dunlap bill for a capitalist-owned state police force. That opposition must be made vociferous and immediately effective. Labor defeated similar bills in 1919 and 1920. It must now make the bosses feel once for all that the workers of this state are determined never to allow any American cossack system to be fastened upon them.

(In the second article of this series, Manuel Gomez will expose the bloody anti-labor record of the famous Pennsylvania state constabulary, which is the model on which the plutocratic interests of Illinois are trying to draw up the Illinois state police force.)

has just started publication as a weekly, which enables it to carry on a more active fight than ever before against child labor in America. Besides carrying all the latest news on the progress of the child labor amendment, the weekly Young Worker deals with the problem of child labor realistically, pointing out that the passing of a law regulating child labor will be of no use unless some provision is made for the maintenance of the children who go to work, not because they want to, but in order to support themselves and add to the low earning of the family.

Big Mass Meeting in Chicago.

The Young Workers League of Chicago is holding a big child labor mass Smeeting and conference in Chicago on Sunday, March 22, at the Northwest Hall, North and Western Aves., at 8 p. m. Admission is 10 cents and an effort is being made to have local unions and sympathetic organizations send representatives to the meeting as well as urging their members to attend in large numbers. Barney Mass will be the Young Workers League speaker at the meeting and Earl R. Browder, acting secretary of the Workers (Communist) Party will speak on "Child Labor in the United States," stressing the need of an organized fight against child labor on the part of the workers that will have a far different effect than the weak, pacifist fight put up by the liberals and reforms in their effort to "regulate child labor."

ers' League, had her clothing torn and was held prisoner by the socialists.

Workers Listen to Communists.

While the workers inside the hall were protesting against Abramovich's lies, hundreds of workers were listening to the speeches of the Communists half a block away. There were five times as many workers listening to the Communist speaker as there were inside the hall.

Comrade Manuel Gomez opened the meeting and told the workers why the capitalist police were protecting their enemy— Abramovich. Martin Abern, Chicago district organizer of the Workers (Communist) Party, told the workers present that only the Workers (Communist) Party represented their interests.

William F. Dunne, editor of the DAILY WORKER, spoke for the collection, which went to the DAILY WORKER. While Comrade Dunne was speaking, a "flivver squad" drove up and ordered Comrade Dunne to stop. The crowd called to Dunne to proceed, and he refused to stop speaking. Seeing the temper of the crowd, which had swelled to enormous proportions, the police drove away, and did not re-appear at the meeting.

J. Louis Engdahl, editor of the DAILY WORKER, flayed the yellow socialists like Benenson, who was chairman of the would-be Abramovich meeting.

William F. Kruse declared that Abramovich was unable to fight the workers of Soviet Russia and had to slink over to America to seek the protection of the capitalist police, in an attempt to get a hearing.

Tell of Slugging Tactics.

Bill Kuperman, Nat Kaplan and Rose Wagman, all of whom were ejected from the meeting by the gunmen, told of the slugging tactics of the cowardly Forward socialists, and Morris Chilofsky told how he was blackjacked at the Garrick demonstration last Sunday. Karl Reeve, Thurber Lewis and John Edwards were the other speakers.

Textile Workers Are Robbed As Bosses Pile Up Millions

$5; and 1920, $4.01; 1921, $1.08; 1923, $1.56 on par, of $10.

It must be borne in mind that the dividends on the common stock, at least, go almost entirely to the controlling company (British) the English Sewing Cotton Co., Ltd., which owns 1,197,500 shares out of 2,200,000 shares of common stock, representing sole voting power.

It means that an average of a million and a quarter dollars has gone into the pockets of a company with its office in Manchester, England. When the capital stock was increased it meant that the parent company could cry to the American workers, "Produce more; take a cut, we must keep up our dividend rate"—on watered stock.

That huge reserves are built up proves the extraordinary exploitation of the mill slaves, immense piling up of surplus value. In 1923, the "depreciation fund" carried along $7,625,510; and $500,000 was put away as a reserve for contingencies (it will be recalled that in 1919, to increase the capitalization $3,000,000 was taken from various reserve funds of which $1,975,142, the largest sum, was transferred from the reserve for contingencies). The contingency seems to be danger of loss of profit, and the desire for more.

Huge Reserve Fund.

There is now carried along as a "reserve fund" the sum of $1,797,996. In 1919, this and similar sums were used to increase capital. Why should not money lying idle in the treasury of the company be used to pay decent wages for the workers?

Textile Workers Robbed.

What are reserves for the manufacturers should be reserves for the workers. If all the talk about "harmony of interest" between workers and bosses is true, why don't the bosses take the reserves and divide them among the workers whose labor produced them? $1,797,996 divided among workers would mean several hundred dollars a piece. But why dream? Capitalists don't act that way. Instead they divide them up in stock or cash dividends.

The crushing process goes on—but the Willimantic workers have shown their colors as fighters. They made a stand—and for the sake of themselves, the textile workers of the country, and the entire working class, they must win.

Confesses Murder Plot

A complete statement confessing that he and William D. Shepherd had conspired to kill William Nelson McClintock, "millionaire orphan" whose $1,500,000 estate Shepherd inherited, and divide his fortune, was made by Dr. Charles C. Faiman, head of the National University of Sciences, early today.

CALLES TO USE TROOPS AGAINST RAILWAYWORKERS

Militarization of Labor Angers Men

(Special to the Daily Worker)

MEXICO CITY, March 18.—A general strike of railway workers may result from the effort of the Calles government's assistance to the private capitalists of Wall Street to crush the railway union before turning over the lines to private bondholders.

Calles has ordered that all employes must subscribe to an oath binding him practically under military law to support the government upon the same status as if these workers were soldiers. It is actually a militarization of labor.

Workers Refuse Military Rule.

Railway workers are extremely bitter and are widely refusing to sign are demanded oath. Machinists in the roundhouse of San Luis Potosi were first to record physical protest when they belabored a master mechanic for accepting the oath to be militarized.

Calles has been swift to disillusion the Mexican workers who bore him to power. He today issued orders to all military commanders to suppress "disorders, using force if necessary."

Calles Threatens.

"Rumors of a proposed railway strike do not intimidate the government," the president added. "We will place the railways under just orders and nothing will stop us. Railway men must accept the new order. They will not lose their places. They will not remain members of the union, but will be considered federal employes.

"The government purposes to readjust the railways, running them a short time economically, giving them economic stability, then returning them to the company."

The secretary of communications said if the railway men strike they will lose the good-will of the government for their betterment.

The workers cynically want to know what the "good will" of the government may look like after it is cooked and ready to serve. They point out that 40,000 are to be fired by this same "good will" and left to starve.

Cal Reorganizes Tariff.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 18.—William Culbertson, for eight years member of the U. S. tariff commission, has been selected as American ambassador to Argentina. Coolidge is reorganizing the tariff body to allow big business a freer hand in the fixing of tariff schedules.

STATE POLICE ALWAYS USED TO BREAK STRIKES AND ARE NEVER ON RURAL PATROL AS CLAIMED

(Article II.)

By MANUEL GOMEZ.

Some woman is writing a series of romantic fairy tales for the Chicago Daily News glorifying the "American cossacks."

It is part of the propaganda referred to in these columns yesterday. Big Business admits openly that the state police force which it is trying to set up in Illinois thru the medium of the Dunlap bill is patterned after the mounted constabulary of Pennsylvania (known to all workers as "American cossacks"), and it therefore becomes necessary for the prostitute publicity agents of capitalism to spread the word that the Pennsylvania troopers are the epitome of honor, integrity, kindness, courage and gallantry. But the workers do not call them "cossacks" for nothing.

Constabulary Don't Protect Farms.

The DAILY WORKER has proof—accumulated by labor organizations over a long period—that the Pennsylvania state constabulary is a machine for strike breaking and terrorization of labor. As a rural police "protecting farms and firesides" it does not function at all. Because the wealthy Illinois "law and order gang" declare that they have gone to Pennsylvania for their model in drawing up the Dunlap state police bill, and because Pennsylvania is in fact the classic example in the United States of the workings of a state constabulary, it is worth while for workers to look a little into the record of the "American cossacks." Here it is:

The Pennsylvania state police is an outgrowth of the notorious "coal and iron police," an industrial, private police organization maintained by the corporations to suppress and intimidate the workers in the steel mills and the coal mines. The activities of this force against the workers brought it into such evil repute that the industrial barons began advocating the establishment of a regular state constabulary which would have a brighter gloss of respectability and decency, while being maintained and used in the selfsame manner as the old "coal and iron police."

A Private Army Legalized.

Thus, shortly after the great miners' strike in the anthracite coal fields, in 1905, the bill creating the Pennsylvania state constabulary was enacted. John C. Groome, a wholesale liquor dealer who was appointed first superintendent of the state police, testified several years later that he got his plan of organization from the royal Irish constabulary—going to Ireland and spending three weeks in barracks to study methods, organization and rules and regulations.

The royal Irish constabulary was, as everyone knows, a force used by England to keep the Irish in subjec-

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

THE British working class have no reason to be proud of the accomplishments of the labor party while it functioned as His Majesty's government. But it is an ill wind that does not blow some good, and one of the blessings that the elevation of MacDonald and company to the government brought to the workers, was the elimination of Frank Hodges from the official leadership of the Miners' Federation of Great Britain.

OUTSIDE of the Metal Workers' Union of Germany, the M. F. of G. B. is the strongest industrial union in the world, at least numerically. At the height of its power it numbered over one million members. But Frank Hodges, its secretary, until he became civil lord of the admiralty, almost wrecked the mighty union, when he betrayed it on "Black Friday" in conjunction with J. H. Thomas, his co-traitor.

WHEN Hodges decided to become the nominal head of His Majesty's navy, the miners requested him to relinquish his post as secretary of the union. Tho he must have known that his tenure of office in Downing street would be short, he preferred even a brief fling at the new position to wasting his brilliancy on the coal miners. But he has lived to regret his decision. A militant is now in Hodge's place and it looks as if the ex-civil lord of the king's navy is destined to remain for a long time to come on the outside looking in.

THE London Daily Herald carries very interesting news on the struggle between the old reactionary officialdom and the left wingers. A. J. Cook, is now in Hodge's place as secretary of the miners. He is a fighter and a staunch supporter of the British minority movement, which is organized along the same lines as the Trade Union Educational League here. In fact the T. U. E. L. is the model for the left wing in the trade union movement of Europe. In this respect at least the American revolutionists have been able to make a contribution to the arsenal of the army of labor in other countries.

ONE of the biggest industrial batties in the history of Great Britain is expected to take place before the end of the year. The miners will be the first to step into the breach. Cook is leading the offensive. Like a good general he is seeking allies, among the transport workers and railwaymen. This is the Communist program, the program that the Communists have been advocating for the past few years. That the British working masses are ready to accept it testifies to their growing class consciousness, to the influence of the Communists and particularly to the desperate situation in which British capitalism finds itself.

A NEW Triple Alliance is the immediate aim of the militants who want to face the enemy with a united front. Therefore, a battle royal is being waged inside the ranks of the British trade unions. Frank Hodges is lined up with the coal operators, and is fighting Cook and his supporters. Hodges wants a five-years' truce. Like John L. Lewis of the U. M. W. of A., he does not mention the miners or show any concern for their needs. He talks of the "country" and the "industry as a whole." Cook says in effect, "To hell with the operators and

GENERAL LOCKOUT IN DENMARK AND SWEDEN AGAINST UNION LABOR

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, March 18.—A general lockout thruout Denmark goes into effect tonight following the failure of this morning's negotiations between the employers and workers.

There were already 50,000 out of work today, and it is expected that this number will be doubled by the end of the week.

A lockout in Sweden covering a large number of industries also went into effect today.

Repeal of Search and Seizure Act Reported to House

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 19.—Repeal of the Illinois search and seizure act of 1919 and the prohibition enforcement act of 1921, by a referendum of the people, was advanced in the state legislature today when the house committee on license and miscellany reported favorably on the bills. No further action was expected for a week or two.

NEW YORK, March 19.—The federal trade commission's hearing of charges against eight companies accused of attempting to establish a monopoly in the radio industry was postponed today until May 18.

MILLIONS SPENT HERE BY POLAND FOR AMMUNITION

Most of U. S. Loan Goes to Gunmakers

NEW YORK, March 19.—The government of Poland has contracted with the Colt Firearms company to buy $3,000,000 worth of machine guns and small arms equipment, Frank C. Nichols, vice-president of the company, announced here on his return from Europe.

The American government has recently loaned Poland $30,000,000 much of which is being spent in the purchase of war supplies from American concerns.

Over twenty million dollars has been spent from the American loan on army supplies, and the army budget is now $160,000,000.

The Polish government has been conducting a strenuous campaign of expulsion, deporting from the country many thousands of peasants born in Ukrainia, Germany, Russia, and other nations. Only those who are known to be white guardists are admitted.

The American loan is looked upon as an attempt of the American capitalists to compete with French imperialism for the domination of Poland.

TRADE UNION EDUCATIONAL LEAGUE CALLS FOR SUPPORT OF FIGHTING NOVA SCOTIA COAL MINE STRIKERS

Outlining the titanic struggle that confronts the Nova Scotia coal miners in the struggles with the British Empire Steel corporation, the national committee of the Trade Union Eduactional League has called on all workers to come to their support in a statement issued as follows:

• • • •

Statement by the National Committee, Trade Union Educational League.

FOR years the British Empire Steel corporation and the Canadian government have, by united effort, tried to crush the militant fighting miners of Nova Scotia. In 1923, with the aid of the reactionary John L. Lewis, they were able to break the Steel Workers' Union, and now all the powers of "BESCO" and the state are being mobilized to complete the job by reducing the miners to the same helpless position as the steel workers.

"BESCO" is brutally frank in its purpos and confident of the result. Vice-president McLurg of the British Empire Steel corporation says: "They can't stand the gaff. We hold the cards. Let them stay out two months or six months, it matters not. Eventually they will come to us." Here is capitalism stark naked. We hold your jobs, we have systematically starved you, your wives and children are hungry, you will come to us at our terms, says the beast BESCO.

This is a challenge to the working class of North America. The British

34 MINERS ARE STILL ENTOMBED IN W. VA. MINE

Rescuers Believe They Will Be Found Dead

BARRACKSVILLE, W. Va., March 19.—The stark tragedy ever looming in a miner's everyday life stalked in this little town today, leaving dull despair in its wake.

Thirty-four men are still entombed in the Bethlehem Mines corporation, where they were caught 300 feet below the surface by an explosion Tuesday night, and unless all signs found in the mine fail, the miners will be brought out dead, according to many of the rescue workers.

Fire which broke out in the mine late yesterday was holding back rescue work today.

Fire has been discovered in one of the headings of the No. 41 mine of the Bethlehem Mines corporation, R. M. Lambie, chief of the West Virginia inspectors, declared tonight. He added the blaze had not extended over a large area and was expected to be brought under control in a short time.

The fire was encountered in the right heading, Mr. Lambie said, where it is believed twenty-two of the thirty-four missing miners were working when entombed by an explosion last night. The other twelve men are thought to have been working in the left heading.

Battle Tangled Wreckage.

Thruout the day rescue crews battled with tangled wreckage and fallen timbers which must be surmounted before it can be determined whether the imprisoned men are dead or alive. Leaders in the rescue work have abandoned hope of reaching them tonight. They say they did not expect to reach that section of the mine until some time tomorrow.

The mine had been penetrated to a depth of about 2,000 feet at that time, with an estimate made that rescuers had twice that distance yet to go.

Hope of Workers Dwindles.

As the rescue work progressed hope virtualy faded that any of the men would be found alive, no signal of any kind having been received from sections not yet explored. The only possibility that some of them may have survived hinged upon the slender hope that they might have been able to erect makeshift brattice work before "black damp" that followed the blast penetrated thruout the workings.

A heavy rain added to the discomfort of hundreds of dry-eyed men,

WORKERS (COMMUNIST) PARTY URGES NEED OF CO-OPERATION BETWEEN AMERICAN AND CHINESE MASSES

The Central Executive Committee of the Workers (Communist) Party has issued a statement on the need for co-operation of the Chinese and American masses and the problems facing the Chinese people since the death of their great leader, as follows:

SUN Yat Sen, leader of the mass party of the Chinese people, Kuomingtang is dead.

His life was devoted to the cause of Chinese independence and no one individual can fill the place left vacant by the death of Sun Yat Sen in the ranks of the party of Chinese independence.

Sun Yat Sen was the foe of the robber capitalist nations. He fought steadily and bravely against all the schemes of imperialism for the enslavement of the Chinese masses.

He and the Kuomingtang party was the staunchest bulwark of the Peking government against the plots of the imperialist banditti, altho his

TOKIO, March 19.—The Japanese government has not and probably will never make public the figures on the number of workers killed in the fire which swept Nippori, working class suburb of Tokio yesterday. More then 10,000 workers were rendered homeless and hundreds injured in the fire.

SOVIET RUSSIA REPRESENTED AT SUN'S FUNERAL

Many Workers Attend Sun Yat Sen's Burial

PEKIN, China, March 19.—The Soviet Russian ambassador to China, Karakhan, and other Soviet representatives, were the only diplomats in the funeral procession for Dr. Sun Yat Sen, dead leader of the Chinese republicans in their fight against the intervention of foreign imperialism.

The leaders of the Kuomingtang party, which Dr. Sun headed, were said to be reluctant to conduct christian services for Dr. Sun Yat Sen, but deferred to the wishes of Dr. Sun's wife.

High officials were noticably absent from the funeral services, but an enormous crowd of workers attended. The official ceremonies will begin in four days.

REDS ARRESTED AT ABRAMOVICH MEET DISMISSED

Search Tells How the Police Beat Him

Three members of the Workers (Communist) Party who were arrested at the demonstration for Soviet Russia when Raphael Abramovich tried to make an anti-Soviet speech at the Douglas Park Auditorium, were dismissed in Judge Harris' court in the city hall.

Judge Harris heard the testimony of Ethel Birn, Marie Polishuk and Joe Search, who had been taken to the Lawndale police station and released on $50.00 bond, and then heard the testimony of Lieutenant Byrne and his riot squad who made the arrests. "Case dismissed," was all he said.

Joe Search told Judge Harris how he was standing peaceably in front of the auditorium when a plain clothes man seized him and started to beat him. The detective pushed Search to the sidewalk and slammed him against the back of an automobile parked at the curb. Search, not knowing that the man was a police officer, protested.

Seeing the detective beating the boy, Ethel Birn and Marie Polishuk remonstrated with him, they told Judge Harris, and were immediately arrested and driven in the patrol wagon to the Lawndale police station, where they were confined until midnight, when George Maurer, secretary of the Labor Defense Council, put up $50.00

MINERS HARDEST HIT BY DEATH DEALING STORM

Estimate 1,000 Dead; Workers Are Destitute

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

WEST FRANKFORT, Ill., March 19.—The blackened figures of coal miners, clad just as they were when called from the mine pits, were today probing the ruins of their homes, trying to find the bodies of their loved ones, or searching for food and blankets.

The storm left a trail of one thousand known dead workers and members of their families in its wake. Fire, still burning today, added to the most terrible catastrophe the southern Illinois coal miners have ever known.

New Disaster Appalls.

Miners who are used to sudden death, visited without warning in the murky coal pits, miners who for years have known the hardship of unemployment, strikes and lockouts, were appalled today at the wreckage and death left by the cyclone.

Word reaches here that 100 employes of the Heinz pickle factory at Princeton, Illinois, were killed or fatally injured. The factory was completely demolished while the men were at work.

The C. and E. I. railroad shops at West Frankfort and the M. and O railroad shops at Murphysboro have been entirely wiped out, with hundreds of employes killed or injured.

The towns of West Frankfort, with 18,000 population and Murphrysboro with 15,000 population, in the heart of the Southern Illinois coal mining district were almost completely wiped out, the fire which followed adding to the terrible scenes of horror and death. Here dead bodies were still twisted in the wrecked houses, and dead strewed the streets.

Many Mine Towns Hit.

Many were killed and injured in the coal mining and farming towns of Gorin, Gorham, De Soto, Bush, Hurst, West Frankfort, Benton, Logan, Parrish, Thompsonville, McLeansboro Carmi, Crossville, Illinois, and other towns in Indiana, Tennessee, Missouri.

Early reports said that the storm hit Dowell, Illinois, full force, but no details were received from that town. Duquoine, Illinois, the coal mining center near Christopher, was said to be in the path of the storm.

The disaster came at a time when the southern Illinois coal miners were penniless and deeply in debt owing to the long continued unem

'B. & O.' JOHNSTON TO SPEAK BEFORE 'PROGRESSIVES'

Tattered Remnants of C. P. P. A. Meet

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

CLEVELAND, O., March 19.—The hopeful remnants of the local C. P. P. A., facetiously termed the "Collection of Peanut Politicians of America," are going to stage a commemorative ceremony here on Friday, where the aspiring and expiring progressive party of Cuyahoga has inviting his tattered majesty "B. and O." Johnstone, to speak.

Because the sick man of Wisconsin carried this city, the petty bourgeois and labor bureaucracy of this section still think that they can wedge into power somehow if only they keep trying.

Respectable—But Ancient Hash.

The roster of the party's executive looks like a dish of very ancient hash. Albert Coyle is the chairman, while the rest are an assortment of yellow socialists and ex-socialists, labor "leaders" and hungry office seekers in whose breast hope springs eternal.

Max Hayes, of course, is present, with Henry Raisse the publicity man for the Cleveland Federation of Labor and Marie Wing of the "progressive" councilmen.

Johnston has fallen upon evil days of late, and since his February defeat at Chicago, and the ever-growing antagonism among the members of his union to his pet "B. and O." plan of class collaboration with the capitalists, has not especially added to his popularity.

As a politician he has proven a

CHARGE LEVIN CONSPIRACY WITH BOSSES

Put Militants Out to Aid Employers

The bosses in the Chicago clothing shops are in close conspiracy with Sam Levin, manager of the joint board of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, to deprive left wing workers of their chance to make a living by working at their trade. This is known to be the reason behind the score or so of workers taken off their jobs by orders of Levin, who proceeds under the excuse that these workers had no right to distribute leaflets issued by a local of the A. C. W.

Despotism Causes Storm.

Against this monstrous despotism of control over the very lives of the workers, and the treacherous collusion with the bosses to wipe out all resistance to the class collaboration schemes which threaten the workers' standards, the members of the A. C. W. are storming by hundreds at the office of Levin, pouring out execrations, demanding that such tyranny shall be stopped and the members, all still in good standing, be restored to their jobs in the shops.

The workers demand that no member of the union shall be robbed of his chance to make a living by any such high-handed act of Levin, whose collusion with the employers in this instance to drive the militant members of the union out of the union by taking away their jobs and forcing them to starve or to leave their trade, is so

PHILADELPHIA POLICE BREAK UP COMMUNIST OPEN FORUM ON THE PRETEXT OF WRONG SIZED FLAG

By B. HERMAN.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., March 19.—The Workers Party Open Forum conducted every Sunday evening at the Grand Fraternity Hall was disrupted by the Philadelphia police Sunday, March 15, on the flimsy pretext that the American flag that must be displayed at all public meetings was not the correct size.

The Pennsylvania law calls for a flag 66 by 52 inches, while the flag at the Workers Party Open Forum was about 10 inches under size. The city detective who ordered the meeting dispersed was offered a compromise by the committee to pin two flags together and make for the shortage which he unconditionally refused. It was pointed out that hundreds of meetings have been held in the same hall with the same size flag and they were never molested, but this made little difference to this righteous minion of the law.

A large audience was present to hear Comrade M. J. Olgin speak on the "General Staff of the World Revolution" when the disturbance was made by the police department.

The chairman of the evening, Comrade S. Sklaroff, explained the situation to the audience after all efforts were exhausted to borrow a proper sized flag, and assured them that the open forum would continue next Sunday in spite of this unwarranted and outrageous action of the police.

Philadelphia audiences are quite accustomed to such disturbances and

THREAD MILL OWNERS MAKING 40 PER CENT PROFIT PLEAD POVERTY TO FORCE WAGE CUT

WILLIMANTIC, Conn., March 19.—Not all workers in Willimantic know that the American (!) Thread Co. is English-owned. Practically all of them are patriotic Americans. The entire life of Willimantic is such as to develop or compel patriotism. The road of the non-conformist is a hard one.

'WE MUST KEEP ARMED FORCE TO RETAIN BUSINESS, WAR IS LIKELY,' SAYS U. S. ADMIRAL

NEW YORK, March 19.—Rear Admiral William L. Rodgers, debating at Town Hall with Scott Nearing on preparedness incautiously made the admission that commercial rivalry is the cause of wars and the reason for armies and navies. Said the read admiral:

> "We must maintain armed forces to retain freedom in our business relations with the rest of the world, without dictation from nations wielding greater force. To keep an unshakable hold on our traffic, independent of rival great manufacturing nations, we need a great merchant fleet. Our riches and our complex industrial organization put us in economic danger from other nations. War is likely to come to us in resisting what we regard as an attempt to take unfair economic advantage of us."

Use State Police to Break Strikes

tion; it was a frankly brutal weapon for use against a colonial people.

What has been the history, from that day to this, of the mounted state police of Pennsylvania?—those "220 hard-riding, hard-headed and straight-shooting officers, all proud of their jobs and of their organization," to quote Major Adams' fervent speech to the guests of the Illinois chamber of commerce.

Signed affidavits of police brutalities and interference with workers' rights cover Pottsville, Allentown, West Chester, Hazleton, Erie, Wilkes Barre, McKees Rocks, Philadelphia, Mt. Carmel, Reading, as well as the coal strikes in Westmoreland county and in the Ligonier and Allegheny valleys. They were set forth in a 141-page book issued ten years ago by the Pennsylvania State Federation of Labor, entitled "The American Cossack." Evidence has been accumulating rapidly since then.

Examining a map of the state of Pennsylvania, one finds at the western end, the city of Pittsburgh and numerous steel centers, and also coal mines. In the east there are Wilkes Barre and Scranton, the center of the great anthracite coal fields and also several important steel centers. The great agricultural sections are located to the north and down thru the center of the state.

No Cossacks in Farming Districts

Where do we find the police barracks and the sub-stations from which the Pennsylvania troopers travel? In the great steel and coal mining sections of the west and east. Along the northern border of the state there is no sub-station in a space of about 200 miles. Most of the farmers of Pennsylvania have never seen a state policeman in their lives, but every industrial worker—every steel worker and coal miner—has had plenty and bitter experience of them.

It is obvious that the 220 troopers whom Major Adams speaks of as naking up the constabulary in Pennsylvania at the present time are not sufficient for any rural highway patrolling. The farmers early discovered that the state police was not intended for their protection in any sense of the term.

Reading the following paragraphs and bearing in mind, the large territorial extent of the state of Pennsylvania, as well as the small number of men in the force, the reader will see that the cossacks had little or no time for rural policing.

A Few Among Money.

Practically the entire state police force was on strike duty for three months, from March 15 to June 9, 1916, in the anthracite and bituminous coal regions during the miners' strike of that time.

During the street carmen's strike at Chester, 143 members of the constabulary were on strike duty for six weeks, from April 16 to May 25, 1908.

During the strike at the Standard Steel Car Works, McKees Rocks, 41 of the constabulary troops were on strike duty for two months, from July 15 to Sept. 14, 1909, and 44 additional troopers were on strike duty from Aug. 23 to Sept. 13, 1908.

During the strike at the plant of the Bethlehem Steel Co. of Bethlehem, Pa., 91 troopers were on strike duty from Feb. 27 to April 18, 1910—eight weeks.

Always On Strike "Duty."

During the strike of the miners in the Westmoreland district, which lasted sixteen months, 101 troopers were on duty for a period of three months, 84 were on duty for four months and 57 for 16 months—from March 9, 1910, to July 1, 1911.

During the anthracite coal strike of 1912, 205 troopers were constantly on strike duty from May 7 to May 21.

During the strike of the molders at Erie, Pa., 40 troopers were on strike duty from Aug. 22, 1913, to March 9, 1914, and 22 were on duty from Aug. 22 to Nov. 15.

During the strike of the Wilkes Barre Street Railway employes in 1916, 228 troopers were on strike duty for a considerable length of time.

The above are just a few instances which will serve to show the purpose for which the state police is used in Pennsylvania. They suggest a totally different kind of troopers from the constabulary of the fairy tales in the Daily News.

Tomorrow I will write of the crimes against the workers perpetrated by the Pennsylvania cossacks in the great steel strike and the miners' strikes.

Charge Sam Levin Is in Conspiracy With the Bosses

plainly in the interests of the employers with whom Levin has already announced an alliance, pursuant to his policy of collaboration.

Conspiracy Between Bosses and Levin.

These bosses have not been able to conceal their part in the conspiracy to deprive the militants of a chance to make a living in their chosen trade. The following workers are so far known to have been put upon the street to starve, and there are many more whose names the DAILY WORKER will give later:

Bramorski was taken out of Meyer and company by Levin. He is a member of Local 38. H. L. Kahan and J. Lieberman of Local 39 were thrown out of work by Levin from the shops of Hart, Schaffner and Marx.

J. Pinto, Local 270, and S. Miller and E. Levin, both of Local 152, were also deprived of their living by Levin in taking them out of Hart, Schaffner and Marx. S. Simonian, Local 39, was robbed of his living earned at Rosenwald and Wiel ; Helen Kaplan of Local 39 was turned out of employment at Edward V. Price; G. Resnick, Local 39, was taken out of Edward E. Strauss; A. Rudman and W. Savanovsky, of Local 144, were deprived of work at Alfred Decker and Cohn; and Clara Shapiro, of Local 39, was taken by Levin and put in the unemployed army from her job with Plotke Brothers. And there are many others.

Sympathizers Also Victimized.

Besides, even those who express disapproval of this outrageous action of Levin, are themselves penalized, and members are inquiring how far this will go and the whole Chicago market is in an uproar. J. Bilsky, a member of Local 39, was, by Levin's order, taken off from shop chairman because he felt that Levin was committing a crime against the membership by robbing union members against whom no regular charges are made of their chance to earn a living at a trade of their choosing.

Scornfully Levin tells these workers, just as a boss or a prison guard might talk: "Go get a job from Local 5 in New York!" The bosses say: "We are willing for you to work for us." But, none the less, their shop managers are sending the victims to Levin themselves, and telling the workers that they cannot work until they get an O. K. from Levin. A carefully prepared game to pass the buck from one to another.

Definite Action Coming.

Against this combination between Levin and the bosses the workers are filling the shops and the manager's office with uproaring protest. The left wing is crystallizing this protest into definite action for a finish fight to check the autocracy of the Levin machine in depriving union members of the opportunity to earn a living at their trade.

The example of New York is cited as showing how the persistent effort of the officials to destroy the fighting spirit of the A. C. W. can be checked. In New York there are fully 20,000 tailors strongly behind the fight of Local 5 for a united and militant union, and the coat makers have again formed a joint board of their own to take up the fight on the reactionaries.

Protest Meeting Monday.

In Chicago the workers who have been taken down from the job by Levin are calling a mass meeting of the members of the Amalgamated to consider the disruption and expulsion policy of the officials and the latest outrage of taking members off their jobs.

The meeting will be held on Monday, March 23, at 8 o'colck in Temple Hall, corner Van Buren and Marshfield streets. All members of the Amalgamated should attend this meeting and express their opinion of the present situation in the union.

Take Machinery to Russia.

NEW YORK, March 19—The groups of Russian-American farmers who left New York during February under the organization of the central bureau of the Technical Aid Society to settle on co-operative (communal) farms in different parts of Russia, took with them machinery and capital valued at $91,161. Their departure was planned so that they will arrive in Russia in time to assist in the spring planting of crops. The Technical Aid Society has organized 25 such settlements which serve as demonstration farms for the peasantry.

JAPANESE BOSSES WARN CHINESE AGAINST MOSCOW

But Strikers Welcome Red Aid

SHANGHAI, China, March 20.—The Japanese owners of the textile mills, in which 40,000 Chinese workers recently won their demands for abolition of brutal overseers who whipped the workers to make them speed up and won also an increase in wages after repeated mass demonstrations, have been trying to secure a "red scare" by charging that the strike was "ordered from Moscow."

These foreign capitalists from Japan have a newspaper which says that a Bolshevik official of the Chinese Eastern Railway aided the strike by directing the workers what to do to win.

The paper also charges that "Moscow" subsidizes students and faculty members in the Chinese schools. This peculiar "defense" of the Chinese by the hated Japanese, who themselves have subsidized and over-awed China with armed force for years, only amuses the Chinese workers.

They say, "Moscow aids us, Japan oppresses and exploits us. It is not hard to choose between the two."

Navy Chief Defends Oil Steal in Teapot Dome Bribery Trial

CHEYENNE, Wyo., March 19.—Teapot Domers who helped steal the Wyoming oil land from the government testified here in behalf of the Sinclair Oil company, which is on trial charged with corrupting cabinet officers.

One of those who testified for the oil trust was Rear Admiral John K. Robinson, chief of the engineering bureau of the navy department, who himself was implicated in the oil lease frauds. Robinson was the "liason officer" who acted for former Secretary of the Navy Denby in preliminary negotiations with Fall regarding transfer of naval oil lands from the navy to the interior department. Robinson defended the oil steal. His testimony was given by deposition.

Reveals Pacific Plot.

In his deposition Robinson stated that "domination of the Pacific required oil reserves for the American navy at Unalaska, San Diego and Honolulu." Robinson stated that these reserves "must be built up to insure American naval supremacy in the Pacific in the event of an Anglo-Japanese alliance."

Illinois Employers Plot Formation of Anti-Strike Police

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 19.—The Illinois Manufacturers' association, which has been the principle booster of the anti-labor state police bill, has written a letter to all Illinois employers urging them to work for the bill's passage.

The employers are endeavoring to pass the bill in order to create a strike breaking agency.

The letter to the members of the association states:—"Attention is directed to the fact that the state police bill still slumbers in the senate committee on military affairs. If you want prompt action on this measure use your influence to force a favorable report from the committee."

"Communicate not only with each member of the committee, but also write your senator and house members urging them to use their influence with the members of the committee to get favorable action."

The association letter then gives a list of the names of the members of the house military affairs committee. It is signed by John M. Glenn, secretary of the manufacturers.

Weather and Nature Are Blamed for Job Crisis By Capitalist Apologist

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL

TODAY, the employers' propagandists are working overtime trying to put a silver lining on the black cloud of unemployment. They seek to persuade the worker who is out of a job that he isn't so bad off after all. And if he is down and out, that is his fault, they blatantly howl.

This school of capitalist apologists finds an unscrupulous exponent in the ex-editor, ex-college president, George W. Hinman, who conducts a financial column for the Hearst publications. In fact, however, this column is funnier than any of the Hearst comics. It would be funnier still if some workers didn't read the stuff and a few probably believe in it. It becomes humorous only thru ability to dissect it.

• • • •

This Hearst writer tries to explain away the fact that there are 2,000,000 unemployed in the United States. He does it with the sleight of hand peculiar to the tricksters of circus side shows. This Hearst mountebank thus disposes of one million of the unemployed as follows:

> "Half of the two millions are unemployed because they are unemployable, because they are too sickly or mentally defective, because they are too lazy or too restless to stick to any steady employment, because they are what in the Southwest are called five-day or ten-day men—that is, men who no sooner earn a few dollars, than they quit work to spend the money."

Hinman includes here the part-time unemployed, which is estimated to total not one or two, but ten millions in the United States. The human wreckage on industry's scrap heap, the "sickly or mentally defective," as Hinman calls them, will resent the stigma that Hearst's charlatan seeks to place upon them. Hinman "O. K's" the brand of "unemployable" that every exploiter places on used-up labor. He joins his master and his class, on every occasion, to denounce aid to these victims of capitalist industry as Bolshevism. Equally outrageous is the Hinman attack on the casual worker, who builds the railroads in summer, reaps the nation's crop in the fall, toils in the forests in winter, following the job wherever it is to be found. It is this aggravated form of wage slavery that drives many to "take to the road," causing them to be despised and hunted by the ruling class.

• • • •

That railroad work, for instance, cannot be done in winter, extending it over the year, "is no fault of the railway business," argues Hinman. He gives evidence of the usual bankruptcy of capitalism, in solving its labor problems, by declaring, "IT IS THE FAULT OF NATURE AND THE CLIMATE." But neither nature nor climate takes the trouble to feed, house and clothe the working class. The workers are, therefore, indirectly told to find a way for themselves.

• • • •

Then it is claimed that perhaps 300,000 or 400,000 of the two million are in the building industry, with its seasonal work. This is a confession indeed. It should be taken in connection with the standing attack against the wages of building workers, which the bosses claim to be so high. When Hinman makes his next attack on wages in the building industry, he will not mention the seasonal character of the work. He will not tell how many days these workers are unemployed during the year.

"There is something wrong," of course, but what is "wrong" is not man-made business, but nature-made weather. That sentence, for which Hinman claims authorship, is really published in the Hearst press. It is doubtful if such piffle could get by anywhere else, except on the bench of the United State supreme court, now presided over by Chief Justice Taft, who joins Hinman in leaving the unemployment problem to god and nature.

• • • •

This Hearst propaganda, setting forth so clearly the inability of capitalism to solve its contradictions, should awaken the workers to the need of finding their own solution themselves. The Communist solution depends neither upon nature nor the weather. It depends upon the working class will to take control over its own destiny. When workers'rule, thru Communism, after having abolished exploiters and their profits, there will be no unemployment; which is today the most harrassing brutality under capitalism. Time not devoted to useful labor will then become leisure to enjoy life. Mankind will then labor with joy because work will have become a pleasure. That is a time worth fighting for.

ployment. The Chicago, Wellingtor and Franklin Coal company mine at West Frankfort, known as the world's largest mine, had just shut down two days before the storm, throwing 1,20(more men out of work. Less than half of the mines in southern Illinois were operating before the storm.

Many tipples were destroyed, making it certain that many thousand more will be thrown out of work.

In almost every town and village school children paid the greatest price. Hundreds of children met quick death when the powerful twister engulfed them in the timbers and rock of village schools. More than 100 pupils perished at De Soto, thirty at Parrish, and scores more were killed at their desks in Murphrysboro, West Frankfort, Vergennes, Bush and Logan.

300 Orient Miners Killed.

Three hundred miners were reported killed at the Orient mine near West Frankfort. Dozens have become insane from the shock.

Doctors and relief workers from Chicago and St. Louis have arrived, and are sending the wounded to the cities. Many are reported dying hourly. Herrin and Marion were both in the path of the storm, but no word has been received from these towns.

worse failure than as a labor union official—and that is saying a lot. The C. P. P. FRANCE WOULD BREAK RUSSO-GERMAN TREATY

Tries to Use League to Enslave Germany

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BERLIN, Germany, March 19.—Further concessions have been offered Germany by the league of nations in an effort to induce that country to break the Rapallo treaty with Soviet Russia and join the league. The German treaty with Russia stated that neither Germany nor Russia would enter the league without the other.

The league council is said to have offered Germany a place on the council, and assures Germany "the right to decide in what measure it will contribute to the military forces of the league."

France is said to be behind the move to have Germany enter the league, as France sees thereby a chance to postpone the acceptance of a mutual security pact and the evacuation of the Cologne area by French troops.

their country: I am concerned with the working class who have no country now, but who have the power to take the country which rightfully belongs to them. When the workers really own this country, then it will be time to talk about the welfare of the country as a whole."

COOK declares that he is "a humble disciple of Lenin." This got under the tender skin of the yellow socialist, Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer in the MacDonald government. Perhaps the language of Snowden and Hodges will be more illuminating to the American working class than any arguments Communists could advance against them, as proof of their collaboration with the capitalists. Snowden, the king's socialist has rallied to the side of the ex-civil lord of the king's navy.

SNOWDEN does not write to the London Daily Herald, in attacking Cook. He writes to a capitalist paper and no doubt got well paid for it. This is what he says about Hodges and Cook: "The greatest catastrophe which has ever befallen the Miners' Federation was the decision of a conference following the general election of 1923 when Frank Hodges was returned to parliament. It was then decided to ask him to relinquish the position of secretary of the federation under some rule which forbids the holder of that office from being at the same time a member of parliament. In consequence the miners lost the leadership of the ablest brain in its organization, and secured the services of 'a humble disciple of Lenin' who promises, if left for long uncontrolled, to bring that great organization to rack and ruin."

THIS is not so bad. Another little item. Fred Bramley is telling of his experiences in Soviet Russia. Herbert Smith of the Yorkshire Miners' Federation had his watch stolen. In this respect it seems, Russia is something like Chicago. The Russian authorities were furious and within twenty-four hours Smith was presented with a handsome gold watch by Russian trade unionists. Bramley said that the British trade union delegation traveled 7,000 miles thru Russia and were under armed guard for a fortnight to keep off bandits. He said the government was using the profits made from the oil fields in Batum to revolutionize the housing conditions of the workers there.

THESE trade unionists unlike our shoddy intellectuals did not go around looking for petty faults. They could see the big outstanding fact in the Russian revolution; that the workers were the ruling class, that they had their hands on the throttle of power and were building up a new social order, despite all obstacles, and were overcoming the inexperience of a class that was new to power, that was under the iron heel of oppression for centuries.

Senator Slaps at Dever

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 19.—A measure was introduced into the senate providing for municipal ownership of the traction lines of Chicago. It provides for acquiring the surface lines at their "real value." The bill, introduced by Senator A. Marks, is a slap at the Dever traction ordinance. Another bill provided for preventing the railroads of the Dever ordinance on April 7, when it will be voted on. This bill would force a delay in the ordinance referendum until the people have time to study the provisions of the ordinance.

HUTCHESON BUT ASSASSINATING HIS OPPONENTS

Article 4 Answering Duffy's Letter

By J. W. JOHNSTONE.

The expulsion of Wm. Reynolds of Detroit was quickly followed by the expulsion of F. W. Burgess, business agent of Local 8, Philadelphia, and campaign manager for Willis R. Brown, candidate in the last election for general president of the Brotherhood.

In this case the method of procedure was changed. They decided that it would be better to make it appear as if some semblance of investigating the charges placed against Gurgess was being made. The charge was of the usual nature of circulating "scandalous and scurrilous literature" against Hutcheson during the election campaign.

So thousands of dollars were spent in sending a fake committee into Philadelphia in order to give some legality to the verdict of expulsion that had already been reached. This method, to Hutcheson, did not appear so crude as in the other cases.

"Impartial" Committee—Oh, Boy!

Just imagine, if you can, an "impartial" committee composed of First Vice-President Cosgrove, General Secretary Duffy, General Treasurer Neall, and G. E. B. Members Williams and Martell, rendering a verdict against the administration of which they are a part.

Secretary Duffy, in his circular letter to the locals and district councils, disposes of the Burgess case in the following manner:

"The case of F. W. Burgess, Local 8, Philadelphia, Pa., is a different one (than Chicago, etc.—Ed.) He issued scurrilous and defamatory literature prior to the last election of general officers, in violation of Par. J, Section 9, of our general constitution. A committee of five, of which I was one, went to Philadelphia in January, on authority of the general executive board, to investigate this matter. It was found that F. W. Burgess did violate Par. J. Sec. 9. The committee had the evidence in the handwriting of F. W. Burgess in their possession."

How Can Hutch Be "Defamed"?

The literature sent out by Burgess criticized Hutcheson and pointed out specific acts committed by Wm. L. Hutcheson which were detrimental to the Brotherhood. As an example of what Duffy considers "scandalous and defamatory," we quote the following from the document which Duffy says the investigation committee had as evidence:

"To be specific, he (Hutcheson) has ordered members expelled from the U. B. on the grounds that they were members of or aiding members of the Workers Party or Communists without charges or trial, notwithstanding that the ritual distinctly says that the obligation does not 'interfere with our political opinions.'

Hutcheson As Strike Breaker.

"One memorable and far-reaching incident in 1916, was when the general president expelled 68 local unions at one time, then brot in Brotherhood men from all over the country to act as strikebreakers. This was done because the members refused to accept the deal made by the general president with the Contractors' Association that forced the members to return to work for 50 cents a day less than the 14,000 men were receiving four days after the strike started. It is supposed that the general president had good and sufficient reasons for making this deal but the members did not see the advantage in working fot 50 cents a day less when the strike was already practically won without his interference."

F. W. Burgess said many other things about the Hutcheson administration other than the above quotations, which every carpenter who takes an interest in the organization in the New York district knows is true. There is no doubt that if the charges made by Burgess against Hutcheson were not based upon facts Hutcheson would not have violated nor would he have had any need to violate Sec. 55 of the constitution.

Who Got the $85,000?

Robert T. Brindell, grafter and exczar of the New York Building Trades, and now paroled from a penitentiary sentence in Dannemora, was a close associate of Wm. L. Hutcheson, and, at the time of the deal made by Wm. L. Hutcheson with the Contractors' association of New York, built a new and expensive garage while a member of the Contractors' association said that it cost them $85,000 to get this Carpenters' agreement. But of this relationship betwen Hutcheson and Brindell I will go into more detail in another article.

One by one, Hutcheson is picking out his strongest political opponents, and expelling them under one pretext or another. The constitution stands in his way, so therefore he ignores it. To try to legally expel these opponents of his would be impossible and would only serve to expose his corrupt administration. F. W. Burgess, the campaign manager of Willis K. Brown, knew Hutcheson and his game too well, so he had to go.

Now the same so-called "investigating committee" is investigating Joseph Lapidus, campaign manager for Morris Rosen who was the leftwing candidate for general president Exactly the same charges are being placed against him as were placed against Burgess. This will be the subject matter of my next article.

CENTRAL DISTRICT

TWO VIEWPOINTS; CLASS STRUGGLE OR SURRENDER

Levin Speaks for the Bosses' Interests

By A MILITANT.

On Tuesday March 17th Local 39 of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America had an "educational" meeting. The speaker of the evening was Samuel Levin, manager of the Chicago joint board.

Samuel Levin, carrying out the policy of Hillman's administration, was at his "best" at this particular meeting in showing how to dodge the class struggle and show the workers that class collaboration is the only way out.

Old Stuff—And Rotten

He told the membership of the union that their interests and the interests of the bosses are identical. The poor manufacturers are suffering, many of them are being driven out of business and forced into bankruptcy. The fault of the pitiful conditions of the bosses is due to the horrible woolen trust!

Levin, like John L. Lewis, seeing that the above alone is not sufficient reason to befuddle the membership as to their real reason for their plight, raved about the "surplus of tailors" in the industry.

Levin boasted of the famous Amalgamated agreements with the manufactures, especially the clause that calls for negotiations and changes during the time of agreement.

Here a member interrupted him and showed Levin, how this clause worked in favor of the manufactures last year and a readjustment was put into effect.

"Be Satisfied" Says Sam

Levin told the membership that as conditions are in the industry, betterment is out of the questions and the workers should be satisfied with things as they are.

When Levin was thru, discussion followed. Members of the left wing took the floor and put forth a different viewpoint; that of struggle and class consciousness instead of class collaboration.

"No Surrender" Cries Left Wing

The first thing that the left wing showed was that the workers in capitalist society should not be responsible for the interests of the employer. Instead industry should be responsible for the workers.

They further showed that it is the evolution of industry that is driving the small manufacturer out of business and out of the trade. The bigger ones, always growing more powerful and continually taking the market for themselves.

The union should point this out to the masses, and teach them that they have nothing to gain from the little boss, he is their enemy as well as the big corporation. Centralization of industry, which is an inevitable thing, wil some day be a benefit to the working class when they take control of industry.

In reply to Levin's point that there are too many workers in the trade, the figures of the union shows that the A. C. W. of A. lost 45,000 members since 1919 and since 1921 the membership has been stable and at about 133,000.

Left Wing Demand 40-Hour Week

The intensification of labor, piece work and new machinery is to blame for unemployment. The solution lies in the working class themselves taking control of production. But at present the most appropriate demand is the 40 hour week.

The union leaders should not act as agents of the bosses, but should lead the workers in the struggle against the bosses.

A Clear Division

The viewpoint of Levin and the viewpoint of the left wing are different. One, a viewpoint the petty bourgeoisie, and the other of the struggle against the bourgeoisie.—There is a clear division.

"G. E. B. Cannot Expel" Says Court

DETROT, Mich.—Wm. Reynolds of Carpenters' Local 2140 and president of the district council in the "post war" period of the fakers' injunction fight, does not recognize that the capitalist court added anything to his standing in the Carpenters' Union by its decision, his deference being to the rank and file decision and not tc his honor.

But as Hutcheson and his local pallbearers, Botterill, Sharrock and the jelly fish which thot it was a sword fish, "prayed" for an injunction, stating in their application that they were "plaintiffs without aid, save in a court of equity," they should religiously observe the decision of that court, part of which is as follows:

No Authorization from District Council.

"1. There was no authorization by the Wayne County Carpenters' District Council for the institution of this suit by any formal resolution, using its name for that purpose.

"A careful reading and interpretation of the constitution and bylaws of the district council, discloses no authority in the president and secretary as such, and court is of the opinion and judgment that what occurred at a meeting of the district council subsequent to the filing of the suit, indicates that no such authorization could have been obtained.

"2. A careful examination of the constitution, by-laws and rules of the United Brotherhood and of the district council, fails to dislose any general authority in James W. Sharrack, individually, and Harold R. Fish, individually, to institute and file an injunction suit of the character disclosed by the bill herein: and the court finds and determines that the appearance of each of them respectively is unauthorized and void.

Under the heading "4," the court said:

G. E. B. Cannot Expel.

"The court has examined the constitution and laws of the United Brotherhood and extensive arguments have been had thereon by both counsel at the trial. It may be stated that the court has been unable to find and no reference has been had by counsel to any express provisions in said constitution and laws, authorizing the executive board specifically to expel a member of the order.

"The court finds and determines specifically, that the general executive board has no authority, even by the most liberal construction of the constitution, to expel a member.

ENGRAVER TELLS OF WORST BOSS HE WORKED UNDER

To the DAILY WORKER: The worst boss I ever had the displeasure of running up against was the most despicable piece of humanity in the form of a straw boss—or foreman in the engraving department of a well-known watch case company here in the middle west with some 30 odd engravers under his control.

Some of the methods used by this jealous minded 100 per cent snob, to break the hearts and minds of the engravers under his control were as follows:

Double-crossing Boss.

All work was done on a piece work basis on bold—and so-called white gold cases, the kind that some people think look so beautiful as they gaze in the jewelers' window. The engravers at one time received a fair days' pay for their work, up until this snob, who has all the ear marks of a rat, became their foreman. Mr. Gonif, I will call him for short, is an expert on what is known as double crossing. He pretended to be your best friend, and that he is doing all he can to help his men get a living wage, but instead he was using every known method to cut them down.

Obeys Orders.

The engravers at one time made $1.00 to $1.50 per hour, but now they have all they can do to make half that much. I realize that Mr. Gonif, being a straw boss, is a product of the system, and has to do what he is told in order to hold his job. But he goes way beyond what he is told and invents many schemes to make it miserable for those under his control. He had a spy system composed of a few dirty suckers that worked in other parts of the factory, who would report to him anything they happened to see or hear in connection with any of the men in his department. The late Russian czar had nothing on Gonif.

Workers Strike.

At one time he used the squeeze process to such an extent that the workers couldn't stand it any longer, and some of the bolder ones told him so, and when they got fired for their trouble, the rest of the men revolted then and there and quit their jobs in a body, but before the could pack their tools and get out of the shop the firm had things all fixed up again, by reinstating the discharged men and raising some of the prices a little, and it seemed like a victory for a while at least. Until Gonif began to use some of the cards he still had up his sleeve.

Sends Work Away.

One of the first was to send all the work he could away to be done by engravers in New York and Massachusetts, and in that way cause a shortage of work, so the engravers did not have to work more than 2 or 3 days a week for a long time. And when they did see fit to give them full time he took good care to cut the price as fine as possible.

Another of his dirty stunts was to promise one thing and hand out another, and when the firm hired an engraver to come all the way from Massachusetts, who proved to be an expert in his line, Gonif thru jealousy invented all kinds of lies to report to the superintendent, like a school teacher to her principal in order to bring discredit and a cut in wages to the new man, in which as usual, he was successful.

Tried to Scare Men.

He also had an idea that he could scare the men by looking at them which was quite amusing. The engravers got so disgusted that they began to leave one by one to take other and better jobs. The man from Massachusetts secured what he thot was a good job with a firm making gold cuff links, in a small town in southwestern Illinois and felt very happy at the thot of getting away from Mr. Gonif for good. It was a good job and everybody in the shop seemed to be happy and content until one day news came that Gonif had been hired to come down there and take charge of engraving.

Caused "Unrest."

The watch case concern had at last got wise to the fact that he was causing too much trouble and unrest among their help who were happy when he left. On the new job it was only a short time before he began to pull off some slimy stunts. One of course was the institution of a piece work system, which was instrumental in cutting our wages in half.

A spy system sprung up and dissatisfaction again became the order of the day. He has now been on that job about a year and the firm is now on its last legs all but wrecked and the whole thing, if the truth were known, was brot about by the underhand workings of this same Mr. Gonif. So there is one boss I am damn glad I don't have to work for any more.—George H. Bodine.

EASTERN DISTRICT

HOUSE CLEANING CONFERENCE ON FOR DISTRICT 5

Wreckers and Robbers Threaten to Expel

PITTSBURGH, Pa.— Progressive miners in District No. 5 are out to clean house of the reactionary officialdom. A conference of the progressives held in Pittsburgh last Sunday decided to urge the locals to initiate a special impeachment convention.

About seventy delegates representing the largest locals of the district responded to the call to protect their union and help the men that are imprisoned at Moundsville, West Virginia.

The gang had half a dozen drunken plug-uglies to intimidate the delegates. They were told either to come in and behave because the progressives have nothing to hide, or get out, so they took the latter tip and got out.

The officialdom is so determined in keeping themselves in office even to the extent of wrecking the whole organization, that they sent out a circular to every local threatening the individuals that participate in the conference with expulsion and the revoking of the charter of the locals sending delegates.

The last district convention was packed by bartenders' organizers, and any one the officialdom could secure. A resolution was passed denying the membership a right to meet and discuss their grievances. The worst criminal syndicalist laws have nothing on this gag law. And on this basis they hope to discredit some of the best fighters in the organization.

Wreckers and Robbers.

After a thoro discussion on the inactivities of the officials and the part played by them in wrecking the treasury of the district, the conference urged all locals to initiate impeacement proceedings by demanding a special district convention.

One delegate after another gave proof of various irregularities, from grievances of the working conditions to handling of the organization's funds. One of the flagrant betrayals that was pointed out is the desertion of the miners serving in the Moundsville penitentiary, who are incarcerated for the organization and are betrayed by the officials.

No Reduction of Wages.

In very strong miners' language the conference went on record against anyone advocating revision of the present wage agreement based on contemplated reductions. Everyone present was determined to fight to the very end the operators and anyone else who tries to lower the wages of the diggers.

In order to prove what class the government supports, the progressives demand that the government's action of 1919 be reversed and applied to the operators. In the miners' strike, the department of justice declared the fight of the miners for a living wage illegal, and ordered them back to work, with which Lewis complied.

Make the Government Open the Mines!

Today, the miners want the same department to order the mines opened by the operators and give work to thousands of miners that have been thrown out of work because no profits were coming to the coal barons.

A publicity committee was elected to carry on the campaign for the release of the Moundsville prisoners. Every miner present was determined to let every miner in the district know the result of the conference.

The following day the capitalist press, in an article on the conference of the progressives, quotes Fagan as saying that those participating in the conference will be expelled. This does not frighten the progressives any, they are the more determined to go after the officialdom.

PLYMOUTH, MASS. WEAVERS WIN TWO-LOOM FIGHT

Solidarity Is Urged to Hold Gains Won

PLYMOUTH, Mass.— In an exclusive story in the DAILY WORKER was told how the Puritan mills (American Woolen Co.) of Plymouth had planned to take the weavers run one fancy and one plain on a two loom basis.

A few weavers got in touch with the National Office of the Amalgamated Textile Council and arranged a meeting. At this meeting James Reid spoke and got them to elect a committee to tell the agent that they would not run this kind of work on two looms. All the weavers remain idle and did not run any looms until ten o'clock the following Monday morning until the agent arrived.

This show of solidarity impressed the agent and he told the committee that he would not attempt to run them until later. He inferred however that when the weavers had time to think they would run them as he ordered.

The workers then went to work and the looms were left idle, the workers who operated them were given work on other looms. Wednesday, March 4th, the weavers again met and heard the full report of the committee and voted to lay the report on the table until the following Thursday, March 12.

They also voted to have the committee empowered to act as an organizing committee with power to call strike if there was any move to start the looms in dispute. Thursday came and with it an immense meeting and a signing up galore in union membership. The following morning the issue was definitely settled in favor of the weavers. The disputed work is now being wove on a one loom basis.

This seems to indicate that we will not have to fight the Amercian Woolen Co. on this issue. The battle will now be centered on the independent mills, one of which the Nemasket of Middleboro, is now entering on the seventh month of a strike against this system.

Organization Is Urged

All weavers should line up actively with this movement in the wolen and worsted mills. It is the first time in years that we have had a chance to give the two-loom system a set back.

We can now make definite gains if we will only line up the worth while fellows in every mill for a general move. The machinery has been built. A conference of weavers from over 100 mills is now being arranged to work out the plans and organize the proper committee to function as committees of action.

While the Amalgamated Textile Councils are the active movers they however, are getting the co-operation of many small independent unions and their own membership is present in nearly every woolen and worsted mill in more or less numbers.

But Better Than Money is the Unity of the Silk Workers

PATERSON, N. J.—The national organization of the Associated Silk Workers' Union is prospering. A dance in Paterson Armory netted proceeds from 9,000 tickets. The dues of the members are now 75 cents instead of 50 cents.

Ten cents of the increase goes to pay per capita tax to the national organization which is attempting to get all silk workers into the union to improve conditions generally and enable the Paterson victors in the recent strike to maintain their gains.

UNION OFFICIALS ATTACK MILITANT TEXTILE WORKERS

Defend Lawrence Mills from United Front

By FRED E. BEAL.

(Secretary of the United Front Committee of Textile Workers)

LAWRENCE, Mass., March 19—The United Textile Workers' Union held a meeting here in the Building Trades hall. The meeting had been advertised in the capitalist papers for three days, but only a dozen actual textile workers showed up.

Michael J. Guilfoyle, president of the local Dyers' and Finishers' Union of the U. T. W. was chairman. Robert Watt of the Building Trades acted as secretary.

Speech An Attack on Militants

Thomas F. McMahon, president of the union and principal speaker, spent the greater part of his two hour speech in attacking the militant workers and their leaders, past and present. The latter part of his talk was taken up in attacking the United Front Committees formed and active here, and in other textile centers. His claim and insinuations that these committees are formed to destroy the United Textile Workers' Union was successfully refuted at the close of his talk.

"Some of our radical friends say that the employers are parasites, but this is not true; it is the workers who refuse to join a union that is the parasite," declared McMahon. McMahon denied that he had much use for legislation. He said that conditions were worse in Lawrence than in any other textile town or city in New England. For this condition of affairs he blamed the radicals!

During his two hour talk very little was said about what the mill barons are doing to the workers. Questions were permitted.

I asked the chairman for permission to explain to the workers present how and why the united front movements had been formed. Immediately McMahon jumped up and said that no speech making would be allowed. I then asked if he could cite one instance where the United Front Committees here in Lawrence or elsewhere ever had made an attack upon the United Textile Workers' Union. This he was unable to do.

At this point a reactionary labor faker named Menzie demanded that I be thrown out of the hall. A. Miserville of the Barbers' Union came to my defense and wanted to know why I couldn't tell my side of the story.

McMahon again took the floor and said that no representative of the Third International could make a speech in this hall remarking—"Thank god I am in a hall where I can't be thrown out."

A his point the meeting was closed. Workers Party leaflets were distributed to the departing workers, some of whom asked me where our office was located.

The United Front Textile Workers' Committee held a successful mass meeting for the Pacific (cotton) Mill workers last Friday evening.

Meetings will be held at the mill gates on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday in which Comrade Weisbord will appeal to the workers to show a united front of the workers against the united front of the mill bosses. More power to the Workers (Communist) Party!

More Needle Workers May Strike Next Week

NEW YORK—Pleaters and stitchers, tuckers and novelty workers of the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union threaten to strike after March 24 if the present negotiations with employers do not end satisfactorily.

The workers ask a 40-hour week with increased wages. At the present the week is 42 hours with single time for the first two hours overtime. Employers ask a 44-hour week. The employers' association has voted $30,000 to fight the union demands if a strike is called.

PHILLY DEFENSE COUNCIL BAZAAR FOR APRIL 3-4

Fun Guaranteed While Raising Funds

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

PHILADELPHIA, March 19.—At the last Defense Conference meeting it was clear that the Defense bazaar on April 3 and 4, at the New Traymore Hall, Franklin and Columbia avenue, will be a great success.

Numerous articles of value have been donated. Many branches have committees elected for the purpose of soliciting articles and are pushing ahead vigorously towards the goal. Russian and English branches have definitely decided to have booths and reports showed that many other branches will do the same.

The sale of tickets is in full swing. Hundreds of ticket books and serial sets are in the hands of comrades and the race is on. At present Armenian branch leads the race with 60 per cent of their quota reached; Esthonia follows with 20 per cent; German 14 per cent; N. W. 10 per cent; English 9 per cent; Lettish 7 per cent. Sold bazaar tickets must be returned at once, so the branches could be quoted correctly as to the work accomplished. If any comrade failed to get any list for donations or bazaar tickets, rush to the office and get them and go to work for the defense.

The program of the bazaar will be promising and interesting. The conference is aiming to get the services of Freiheit Singers, Lithuanian Chorus, some well known vocalists, dramatists and classical dancers. And above all, there will be dancing every evening to the International Orchestra. The admission is 60 cents for both evenings; 50 cents at the door for single admission.

All the radicals of Philadelphia will be there.

'BEAUTY AND BOLSHEVIK' AT THE WICKER PARK THEATER IN CHICAGO

The famous movie "The Beauty and the Bolshevik" which has drawn a gathering of 7,000 people when it was shown in Chicago sometime ago, is coming back to town for one evening only. It will be shown on the Northwest side, at Wicker Park Theater, 1139 Milwaukee Ave., on Wednesday, April 15, from 6:30 to 11 p. m. continually. The proceeds will go to the International Workers' Aid, the Russian Communist daily Novy Mir, and the Polish Communist paper Tribuna Rabotnicza.

All friendly organization are requested not to make other affairs or mettings on that date.

'American Federationist' Twists Truth

Forward writer says that one—and only one—delegate, John Turner, is alleged to say that he saw.

There is not one word of either the summary of the findings of the British Labor delegation, as signed by Purcell and Bramley, or any intimation of even the existence of the compendious report issued later, and signed by the delegation as a whole, Turner being the only one not signing it.

Why this twisting and distortion? Why this making of Turner into the voice of "British Labor"? Why this silence and suppression of the collective voice of the British delegation, headed by no less a person than A. A. Purcell, president of the International Federation of Trade Unions—the Amsterdam International?

The answer is, that the mean and lying reactionaries of the A. F. of L. bureaucracy will stop at nothing to delude the American workers as to the conditions of their brother workers in Soviet Russia. And to do so, they make use of John Turner, who seems to be unable to say the same thing about Russia twice in succession. All to try to prevent the recognition by the United States of the workers' and peasants' republic.

Turner and his friends on the A. F. of L. executive council may say what they will, but the letter written by John Turner to the Pravda, daily organ of the Communist Party of Russia, stands against them. A photograph of this letter is in the possession of the Workers Weekly of London, England, where it has been published—much to the discomfiture of Mr. Turner. The letter follows:

John Turner's Letter.

"In saying farewell to Russia I will only express my opinion on one or two points.

"1. The British delegation, of which I am a member, came here, not in an individual capacity but representing the General Council of the Trades Union Congress, which body sent us on a two-fold mission, viz.:

"(a) To attend the All-Russian Trades Union Congress at Moscow as fraternal delegate in return for the fraternal visit of Comrade Tomsky and his colleagues to the British T. U. C. at Hull last September.

"(b) To investigate the industrial, social, and political conditions at present existing in Russia, and to report on same to the general council.

"Our work is now complete and we leave today for England.

"It would, of course, be foolish to imagine that our investigations have covered the whole ground. Russia is far too large for any mission to be able to do this in four or five weeks.

"But we have had every help and assistance in getting at the facts. Facilities have been placed at our disposal by which we have secured as much information in the short time at our disposal as would have been possible in four or five months without that help and those facilities. Certain general conclusions can, therefore, be safely drawn from the information obtained.

"(1) The material conditions of the country are being steadily improved. All the big industries visited indicated clearly the progress being made. Every increase of production means the improvements of the conditions of the workers. It is this fact which has impressed the delegation very strongly.

"It is realized that Russia still remains relatively poor. This was so before the war. And productivity is not yet, after 7 or 8 years of turmoil, up to the pre-war standard. The improvements in the conditions of work for the workers have, in themselves, helped to create this position. But productivity is steadily increasing, and there is every prospect that before long the pre-war output will be reached in a number of industries, and from that point Russia will go on improving her industrial position till it becomes one of the best in the world—or at least, that is how it appears to the British delegation. I cannot go without placing on record how much we appreciate the many kindnesses shown to us during our visit. The repute of Russian hospitality had reached us before we started! But the reality has been for greater than anything we could have imagined. No words of our can express our feelings of gratitude for the great hospitality shown us in every town we visited. It has been almost overwhelming.

"We shall, however, do our best to convey to those who sent us some idea of the desire on the part of the Russian workers for a full and complete understanding among the work-people all over the world. And if our visit shall have done ever so little to hasten this longing for solidarity then it will not have been in vain,

"Goodbye, John Turner."

Breakfast Foods, Razors or Candy, All Sure Things

By LELAND OLDS

Every time you eat a bowl of Quaker Oats you contribute your share to the profits of a corporation which in 1924 rolled up a net income of $5,286,923, giving its common stockholders a return of over 37 per cent on the par value of their holdings. As $5,500,000 of the $11,250,000 outstanding stock was issued as stock dividends, 1924 profits represent a return of nearly 100 per cent on the money the owners put in.

The Postum Cereal Co. takes another bite out of your food dollar if you use such products as Grape Nuts or Post's bran flakes. Profits for 1924 amounted to $4,574,194, giving common stockholders over 94 per cent on their investment. Compared with 1923, sales increased only 9 per cent, but profits increased 42 per cent indicating that the gain was made at the expense of workers and consumers.

How many men paid their share of the $10,000,000 tribute exacted from self shavers by the Gillette Safety Razor Co. can only be guessed from the fact that in the last three years it has sold 20,000,000 razors and 1,063,780,228 blades. The stockholders' return amounted to about 27½ per cent on the nominal value of the stock. Tracing the various recapitalizations, however, it appears that a person with a cash investment of $9,000 in the company received a return of about $4,400 in 1924, or 49 per cent. Consumers and underpaid workers have increased the value of the original investment over 550 per cent in seven years and in addition have paid the owners in cash dividends $1,075 on each $1,000 invested.

In soft drinks and candy the Coca-Cola Co. and Bunte Brothers featured in 1924. Coca-Cola made a net profit of $5,700,993, equivalent to about 35 per cent on the value of the stock. Bunte gave its common stockholders a return of over 41 per cent.

Those are typical of corporations which live by creating mass consumption of a trade-mark article through the expenditure of tens of millions of dollars in advertising and sales campaigns. Both the cost of the sales campaigns and the exorbitant profits constitute one of the great wastages of consumers' income produced by the profit system.

M. ROY EXPOSES PERSECUTION BY FRANCO-BRITISH

Imperialist Entente Hounds Hindu Reds

Note—M. N. Roy, writer of the following article, was the representative of the Communist Party of India at the Fifth Congress of the Communist International in Moscow. Comrade Roy was expelled from France on Jan. 30th, by order of the Herriot government, under pressure from British imperialism. The following article is issued as an appeal to the French workers to protest against Comrade Roy's expulsion.

Evelyn Roy, in Paris, declared, "The expulsion of M. N. Roy is a rank violation of the right of political asylum, which he claimed at the hands of the French government. This violation of the right of asylum on French soil coincides must aptly with similiar violations now taking place in the French colonies of Pondichery and Chandernagore, seeming to point to a pre-conceived policy inspired by the closer Franco-British entente.

"The British efforts did not stop with the expulsion of Mr. Roy; strong pressure is being brought to bear for the expulsion of all those thought to be associated with him in his work for the liberation of India and the Indian people."

By MANABENDRA NATH ROY

On January 30th I was arrested in Paris in fulfillment of an order of expulsion signed by the French ministry of the interior on January 3rd, and was immediately conducted to the frontier, without having been informed of the reasons for my expulsion, and without being given the means to consult a lawyer for my defense.

Thus, by one stroke of the pen, the right of asylum for Indian political refugees has been destroyed, and with this right, the idea which Indian revolutionaries held, that France is the home of liberty and democracy for all the oppressed peoples of the world.

Hounded From India

For twenty years, that is to say since the age of fourteen, I have fought in the ranks of Indian revolutionaries to free ourselves from foreign rule. My activity, dedicated to the cause of the 320,000,000 oppressed people of my country, has brought upon me, as upon all Indian revolutionaries, the brutal persecution of the English police. I have been imprisoned several times. In 1915, I was forced to fly from India to escape the extreme penalty of the so-called "law" which holds the Indian people in their present state of slavery.

The British police have not left me in peace, even in my exile. They have pursued me step by step, from one country to another, from Java to Japan, from China to the Philippines, to America, to Mexico and thru most of the countries of Europe. Having taken refuge in Mexico in 1917, President Carranza, then at the head of the government, gave me protection, and twice refused a demand for my expulsion, presented by the British authorities. The exigencies of a revolutionary life have forced me on several occasions to adopt different names. The sympaty of the Mexican people and government enabled me to live and travel with a Mexican name, which protected me to a certain extent since 1919, when I left for Europe with my wife. Since that time, we have lived and travelled in most of the European countries, writing, studying, organizing and making propaganda for the liberation of India.

We left Switzerland for France in 1924, and have lived here six months, working for our cause, without ever mixing ourselves in the internal politics of this country.

Expelled at England's Order

My expulsion can only be attributed to foreign pressure brought to bear upon the French government, as it was brought to bear upon the American, Mexican, German and Swiss governments. The French authorities know whence this pressure comes, but it is difficult to believe that France has voluntarily agreed to become an instrument of British imperialism. My case is not the only one. Acting under British pressure, the government of M. Poincare expelled and interned Indian political exiles who had sought asylum in Pondichery and Chandernagore.

Can the revolutionary traditions of the great French people accept such acts of oppression against Indian political refugees, seeking shelter from British persecution on French soil?

In the name of all Indian revolutionaries, I call your attention to this violation of the right of asylum, and demand the annullation of the order of expulsion against me, and the right to enter and to live in France.

BUILDERS AT WORK

Milwaukee Local Begins Campaign with 14 Subs on First Day.

Begins to "Daily Workerize" the Local.

THE comrades of Local Milwaukee got out to "get a sub" on the first day of the campaign and got a goodly portion of their quota to start with. The local secretary, Comrade G. Shklar, who is also the guiding spirit of the local DAILY WORKER committee, writes a letter that shows a splendid "first step" that it would do well for every local in the country to follow. To say that this plan will make a better Communist Party of our Workers Party goes without saying. Comrade Shklar's letter leaves little to be said. Read it:

Dear Comrades:

Inclosed you will please find my check and a statement of 14 NEW subscribers—11 from Sheboygan and three from Milwaukee. This leaves a balance of 11 new subscribers to be secured from this city and Milwaukee comrades say that you will not have wait very long for the balance of our quota.

The most important problem before us is to make every member of the party a subscriber to the official party paper.

Every member of the party should follow closely the problems and latest developments in the international and American labor movement; he should also understand party probems and major campaigns undertaken by the party. Naturally no member of the party can do so unless he is a reader of the party paper.

EVERY MEMBER OF THE PARTY SHOULD LOGICALLY BE AN ACTIVE AGENT OF THE DAILY WORKER, and this cannot be done unless every member is a subscriber to the paper himself and always has a copy to show to the prospective subscriber. A good salesman always carries his samples with him and he generally knows his line of merchandise.

In view of this as a first step in the building up of the paper we should open a campaign to DAILY WORKERIZE THE ENTIRE PARTY. This will make up for a larger circulation of the press, for broadening of the influence of the Communist movement and for a better and greater party.

Fraternally yours,
G. S. SHKLAR, Secretary.

Has your local prepared such a plan? Read this letter of Comrade Shklar to them—to your branch and to the C. C. C. DAILY WORKERIZE YOUR BRANCH AND LOCAL and you will not only make better Communist units of them, but you will soon fill your campaign quota as well.

RUSSIA EXEMPTS THIRTY MILLION FROM TAXATION

Only Richer Peasants Must Pay Soviets

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

MOSCOW, March 19.—The People's Commissariat of Finance has worked out a basis for the reorganization of farmers' taxes, the plan for which will be put in operation this year. According to this plan 30 million of the poorest Russian peasants will be completely relieved from taxation and the taxes of another 35 million middle grade farmers will be appreciably lowered.

The first development in this reduction of farmers' taxation was made on August 26, 1923, when the state authorities were empowered with the privilege of lowering taxes 5 per cent. In 1924 the privilege was given to the authorities to decrease the taxes 6½ per cent. The state, however, did not take advantage of this right, so the law now makes the exemption of certain classes of peasants and the lowering of the taxes of other classes of peasants compulsory.

At the same time the law provides that the most prosperous classes of farmers shall not have any reduction on taxes. There are about 22 million independent farms in Soviet Russia. Of these 6 million are rated as poorest grade, 7 million are rated as between the poorest and the middle grade farms, 7 million are rated middle grade and 2 1-3 million are rated first grade farms.

Agricultural Taxation.

By February 7th, 1925 there were collected 305 million gold rubles from one agricultural tax. The Russian Soviet Socialist Republic contributed 205 million of this amount; 10 million came from the White Russian Republic; 7 million gold rubles from Transcaucasia and 1½ million from Ukraine.

Winter Crops

According to the reports from the inspection of crops which took place during February the results of the harvest of the winter crops are expected to be very fair.

YOUNG WORKERS LEAGUE STIRS UP BALTIMORE

Umbrella Factory Has Rotten Conditions

By THOMAS N. AMERKING.

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

BALTIMORE, Md., March 19.—Two members and one sympathiser of the Young Workers' League of this city employed at the Polland and Kats umbrella factory were fired from their jobs because they dared to raise voices of protest against the rotten conditions and starvation wages by appealing to the workers to organise themselves into a trade union.

The workers of the umbrella factories here are miserably exploited and are compelled to work under most greedy conditions imaginable. Employes on time work are paid from $7 to $8 a week, and even those who really rush themselves to death at piece work can make no more than $15 to $17 a week.

Overtime Slaves.

The workers of the shop are supposed to work nine hours a day, the doors of the factory suppose to open at 8 o'clock in the morning. But one usually finds the workers slaving at their benches shortly after 7 a. m. One also finds the boys and girls in the shop working during the half hour alloted for lunch.

The workers are compelled to put in this extra time in order to earn a starvation wage which is hardly enough to keep one alive. The greedy, owners of the shop do not care to keep it clean and sanitary, the ventilation is poor, the floors remain unswept for several days. It was against these rotten conditions that the members of the Young Workers' League called upon the shop to prepare to protest.

Y. W. L. Calls Meeting.

A leaflet was issued by the shop nucleus of the Young Workers' League called all the workers of the shop to a mass meeting to discuss the question of organising a union. The workers began to think and the bosses became alarmed. The members of the Young Workers' League were immediately called to the office and "fired."

The agents of the bosses were stationed at the doors of the hall to see who would come to the meeting. Police were stationed at the factory gate to see that no leaflets or copies of the Young Worker are distributed.

Are We Disheartened? No!

The action of the bosses did not in the least discourage the members of the league, but rather encouraged them to keep up the fight against exploitation and starvation wages.

The workers are called upon to support the Young Workers' League and Workers' Party, to read their official organs—the Young Worker and the DAILY WORKER and to attend the Young Workers' League meetings that are held at 1135 East Baltimore St., second floor, every Friday evening at 8 o'clock.

If the readers of the DAILY WORKER, some hundreds or a thousand, would do the same "Old Gene" would realize that he was a donkey to get hold of the coat-tail of Hilquit.—Otto Herrmann.

Shop Nucleus Number Five Functioning Well

Shop nucleus No. 5, Chicago made up printers, machinists, janitors and other workers with a membership of 16 is functioning very well. The secretary, Comrade D. Foster, reports in part as follows:

"Our meetings this month have been marked by good attendance and militant and lively discussion.

"Laxness on the part of a number of our members claiming other meetings on the monthly meeting of the T. U. E. L. has been severely criticised by our industrial organiser, Comrade Wirkkula, and others and the nucleus reaffirmed its previous action in making it compulsory for every member to attend.

"Comrade Wirkkula reported that the national committee of the printing trades group is reorganized and urged all the printers in the nucleus to take the lead in the local group and in the union.

"A resolution that every member of the nucleus who is not a subscriber to the Workers Monthly take two copies each month and every member who is a subscriber, take one, was passed."

Urge American-Chinese Unity

criticisms of its weaknesses were clear and unsparing.

When China was partitioned among the imperialist nations and the power of resistance of the Chinese masses seemed broken Sun Yat Sen rallied them and placed his party in the vanguard of the struggles.

When Japan, at the beginning of the world war in 1914, demanded that China surrender her sovereignty, it was Sun Yat Sen who maintained in those darkest days the mass organization that was to become a great force not only in the Far East but in world politics.

The Russian revolution and the victory of the workers and peasants who had groaned under the rule of the czar as the Chinese workers and peasants groaned under the yoke of imperialism, brot a flood of new consciousness to China. Sun Yat Sen was the first in China to see in the workers' and peasants' government of Russia a powerful ally of the Chinese people.

He understood the Russian revolution altho he was not Communist. Starting his career as a preacher of peace and understanding as opposed to warfare, by the logic of events he came to the belief in the necessity for armed struggle if the masses were ever to work out thir own destiny.

He organized the workers of Canton and fought the exactions of the merchants and ship-owners. More than one exploiter of the Chinese masses was forced to seek refuge under the wing of British imprialism in Hong Kong.

It was his party that gave sympathetic support to the great strike of the Chinese transport workers against the British ship-owners in 1922.

It was under the protection of his Canton government that the All-Pacific Conference of Transport Workers was held in 1924.

Sun Yat Sen from the first was a champion of the recognition of Soviet Russia by the Chinese government. It was largely thru his influence and activity that the treaty was signed.

He fought for the wresting of the Chinese Eastern Railway from the western capitalists and for its control jointly by China and Russia.

Not only have the workers and peasants of China lost a great leader but the working class of Soviet Russia and all the world as well.

The Workers (Communist) Party of America joins with the Communist parties of the world and with the Communist International in expressing its sorrow at the passing of Sun Yat Sen.

We send our warmest fraternal greetings to the Kuomingtang party and to the Chinese workers and peasants in their hour of grief.

We say once more that no one can fill the place of Sun Yat Sen—it can be filled only by a collective leadership, greater mass understanding and the closing of the ranks of the workers and peasants.

The Communist Party of China will be the most active element in carrying on the work that Sun Yat Sen began, in the closest co-operation with Kuomingtang.

The continued and closest relations with Soviet Russia is the salvation of the Chinese people. To forget this would be to forget the most important lesson taught by Sun Yat Sen.

We call upon the Kuomingtang the workers and peasants of China who rally to it, to unite under the banner of the Communist International for the conquest of their country for themselves, for the dictatorship of the working class, for the Soviet government of China as one of the Union of Soviet republics of the world.

Long live the workers' and peasants' government of China!

Long live the memory of Sun Yat Sen—The great liberator of China!

English Sewing Cotton Co., Ltd.

The English Sewing Cotton Co., Ltd., owns 1,197,500 shares of common stock out of 1,200,000 (with sole voting power). It was organized July 16, 1897 to take over 14 enterprises engaged in the cotton business. In 1897 it acquired the entire preference and ordinary shares of R. F. & J. Sure Profits!

The workers produce dividends regularly. They see to it that the bond holders ($5,000,000 outstanding) get their 4 per cent a year. They are rated "high" as security, and get the very best rating "Aaa." The Willimantic and other workers of the American Thread Co. are counted on to come across, whether willingly or unwillingly. Perhaps with the present strike, the manufacturers will not be so sure of themselves, and of the workers being such sure profit bearers.

In the Stocks.

The 5 per cent cumulative preferred stocks ($5,000,000 outstanding), are marked good as to "salability." They pay regular dividends, semi-anually. They are from the next to the best rating, "Aa," which signifies that they are still superior in all essential respects.

As to the ordinary shares, the rating is "A" (which means that it successfully earned and paid its dividends during a period of depression.)

Big Capitalism's Party

The senate has adjourned but not before a new alignment of forces in the republican party was made apparent. It is evident that the administration leaders believed that the removal of the LaFollletteites from important committees and barring them from the party caucus had broken up the revolt of the middle-class wing.

The weakness of the Coolidge leadership and the influence of issues like the Dawes plan, still in the political background but bound to be productive of dissension, the many anti-trust cases pending but on which action has been delayed, the vigorous militarist policy of official Washington, have prepared the ground for a new internal struggle in the party of American imperialism in spite of the disciplining of the insurgents.

Borah of Idaho appears as leader of this group and it is probable that he will assume now the role that LaFollette played inside the republican party for so many years.

He has forced the Coolidge administration to change its policy of non-recognition of Soviet Russia and in the fight on Warren he appeared as the real leader of the senate opposition. He wants to be president just as all other senators do, he wants it harder than most of them and he is now in a splendid strategic position to riddle the ranks of his opponents.

Coolidge is not the "man on horseback" that the republican party needs and wants. Perhaps Dawes is—or Borah.

The Case of Lanzutsky

Yesterday we published an appeal for aid for a Polish worker, Stanislav Lanzutsky, whose exposure in parliament of the brutality and corruption of the Polish government has brought him face to face with the gallows. This is the fate that Polish capitalism, the creature of French imperialism, hands out to those of the working class who rebel against its tyranny.

Lanzutsky is a Communist. He was elected by the Polish workers to speak for them and judged even by the elastic code of bourgeois democracy, his trial and the threat of death is an outrage.

The Communist Party of Poland is illegal. So are many of the unions. The Polish capitalists and landlords have made every effort to crush all resistance in the working class.

Here is an opportunity for the liberals who prate forever of the blessing of capitalist democracy. Some of them are much concerned over the imprisonment of counter-revolutionists in Soviet Russia. Let us see how they react to the persecution of Stanislav Lanzutsky.

In the meantime the capitalist government of the United States and the representatives of Polish capitalism must be made to understand that even from this distance the class-conscious workers are not going to watch the murder of one of their class in silence.

and strike committees, collecting a mass of documentary "evidence" that was made the basis of the successful injunction.

Yet there is stil a large section of the American working class that fails to see the class bias in the American system of government.

Communists did not create the theory of the class nature of capitalist government for lack of something else to do. They have merely stated in an easily understandable formula the facts as they exist.

The Communists could not prove their case if it were not for thousands of instances like the supreme court opinion mentioned here—proofs furnished by the capitalist class and their government.

Light on Fairmont Disaster

Mine 41 of the Bethlehem Mines corporation, Fairmont, West Virginia, where 34 miners' bodies are entombed, re-opened last October on a non-union basis.

Incidentally three workers have been arrested by the officials owned by the coal company charged with bombing the mine—a charge so ridiculous in view of the terrible force of the explosion, that the attempt of the company to cover up its negligence is obvious.

The association of coal operators has adopted the plan of shutting down mines for a period sufficiently long to make the misery of the jobless miners nearly intolerable; the mines are then re-opened on an open shop basis.

The Fairmont disaster is terrible proof of the danger of this policy to lives as well as wages of miners. The mines, after a shutdown, are in poor condition. The companies know that those miners who accept their terms are in no position to quibble over safety regulations; they must place their lives in the hands of the superintendents and other petty tyrants.

The union has been driven out of the mines; their sole protection is gone.

This is the lesson of the Fairmont slaughter—that the open shop is actually a drive against, not only the wages and living conditions of the coal miners but their lives as well.

Workers are cheap!

Mines can be insured!

Drive the men and to hell with danger from gas and powder!

There are more miners where these come from!

These are the slogans of the coal operators—greedy, murderous and powerful.

Stick to the union!

Rally to the program of the Trade Union Educational League and the Workers Communist Party!

Fight the open shop!

The German Elections

Seven workers, two of them women, were shot by the German police at a Communist meeting in Halle a week ago. A protest meeting held a few days later was fired on by the police, one more Communist worker killed and three wounded.

These murders occur in an election campaign where the Communists are expected to cast a huge vote. The slaughter of workers attending peaceful meetings is committed by the armed forces of the German republic—a democratic form of government under which every man and woman has the right to vote.

But a word of explanation seems to be needed here. If the Communists and their supporters meet to discuss the election issues they get shot. Evidently there is a large section of the German population that is outside the provisions of the franchise.

Having established this fact, the conclusion follows inevitably that in Germany as elsewhere the freedom of franchise, and the other privileges of frees peech and assemblage supposed to accompany it, the whole institution of capitalist democracy is a gigantic fraud.

We workers in America can learn much by keeping a close watch on the events leading up to the German presidential elections where the Mauser pistols of the police are teaching the working class the real nature of capitalist democracy.

Every day get a "sub" for the DAILY WORKER and a member for the Workers Party.

ing class collaboration policy of the Sherman district administration, who carried out the treacherous policy of John L. Lewis. Now the powers-that-be are throwing all their weight against the Nova Scotia miners.

Yesterday, Alberta; today, Nova Scotia; tomorrow, the weakest district in the United States.

Mine Owners Are Active.

Already conferences of the most powerful coal barons in the country have been held and plans laid down for the reduction of the standard of living of the miners. The coal operators of the so-called "central competitive field" have stated that the wages paid the miners are too high, but that they will continue the present policy of closing down the mines and working as little time as possible, at least for the present.

This means that they will continue starving the miners of the "central competitive field" until they think the time ripe to impose a general wage reduction. The coal barons know they cannot whip the miners in a body, so they are taking them district by district. While the coal barons are united in purpose and in deeds, the coal miners are without national leadership. Yet, in spite of this handicap, the militant miners can and will rally their forces against the united forces of coal, steel, and finance.

The Trade Union Educational League calls upon the miners to demand of their leaders that immediate preparations be made for a general strike against wage reductions. This is the only way to meet the situation. The Jacksonville agreement is a piece of paper conveniently drawn up to hold the miners in check while, at the same time, allowing the coal operators to do as they please.

The Trade Union Educational League points out to the miners that once again they are being called upon to bear the brunt of the new "open shop" drive. If the coal operators are able to destroy the Miners' Union, or to reduce it to a state of helplessness, this brutal arrogant ruling class will continue its triumphant march thru every industry, bringing the standard of living of all the workers of this country down to the level of the German working class.

Abramovich Fails in St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., March 19.—The attempt of Raphael Abramovich to make a speech here against the workers of Soviet Russia ended in total failure.

Only about 150 people came to the meeting, most of whom were workers who cheered for Soviet Russia. The socialist thugs and detectives made up most of the remainder of the audience.

Hundreds of leaflets were distributed in and around the hall, which exposed the treachery of Abramovich to the working class, and his aid to reign of the white terror in Europe.

J. O. Bentall represented the Communists.

Enters Via the Fire Escape.

By G. S. SHKLAR.

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

MILWAUKEE, Wis., March 19.—With his dignity unimpaired, the hero of the Second (socialist) International, Raphael Abramovich entered Pasadena Hall, 12th St. and North Ave., here via the fire escape, to make his local appearance attacking Soviet Russia. The hall was heavily guarded by the police force of over twenty men and a large detachment of detectives in addition to numerous gangsters of the socialist party.

Every worker entering the hall had to pass the cordon of spies, and detectives, had to answer questions in Yiddish and German and after thoro scrutiny he was either admitted or rejected. Over fifty people were turned away, among them were many workers who did not belong to the Workers (Communist) Party and were not even known as sympathizers. Every person was scrutinized very thoroly by the socialist ochrana.

Members of the socialist mannerchor who were scheduled to sing at the meeting were very few as the leader of the choir and a large number of members refused to sing for the counter revolutionist.

"Not According Menshevik Book"

Abramovich started his speech in German and theorized that the Russian revolution is a failure because it was not in accordance with the ideas of perverted Marxism of the Second International.

This was followed by a flow of lies that industry was at standstill in Russia and that the railroads were in poor condition.

When the leader of the Second International began to tell lies that were too apparent, he was interrupted by an indignant worker who called on Abramovich to prove his bluff. This worker was immediately ejected from the hall. But this did not stop other workers in the hall who called Abramovich a liar. This was followed by a general commotion and about half of the audience walked out singing the International.

The socialists at that time got busy under the protection of socialist police. One of the workers was attacked and hit by socialist gangsters and later the police followed him up and after handling him roughly, had him arrested.

Abramovich Has Hard Time.

Nothwithstanding the fact that considerable numbers of workers and sympathizers were not admitted and the fact that a large number left the hall or were thrown out, Abramovich had a hard time to continue. Continuous interuptions and questions were coming rapidly and the efforts of the police in ejecting seemed to pour more oil into the fire.

In the meantime police and their socialist leaders were busy on the outside. Two more workers were arrested and every one was kept busy moving about. Police activity was rough and provoking.

The three workers arrested were all veterans of the world war and have learned their appreciation of democracy and freedom in the army. The socialist administration which thru the lips of Comrade Ernest Unterman promises to give support in case of war have shown their patriotism by imposing a heavy fine on these veterans.

Veterans Receive Heavy Fine.

Patriotism forgotten the world veterans received a heavy fine for daring to protest against the counter-revolutionary lies. The fines ranging from five to fifteen collars.

It is interesting to observe that the heavy fine was imposed on Comrade Prodanich who was distributing literature and leaflets. Apparently the judge thought that the man who makes disturbance was not as great an offender as the man who disseminates the knowledge among the workers.

Dictatorship vs. Democracy.

The meeting proved a very valuable lesson to the workers of Milwaukee. They had an opportunity to see the social democrats at work. They could see how the disciples of Noske align themselves with the capitalists and use brutal force to suppress the workers. They could see that there is no limit to the brutality of the disciples of the Second (yellow socialist) International—responsible for the murder of Karl Liebknecht and Rosa Luxemburg.

The hypocrisy of the white terrorist crying for mercy was fully exposed. The policemen's club directed by the socialist brain was a weighty argument for the proletarian dictatorship. Most of the workers expressed the opinion that if the followers of Abramovich find the Solovetz Island too cold for their health that they should be sent without delay to a much hotter climate.

Today another bankrupt leader of the socialist movement—the figleaf of the American socialist democracy—Eugene V. Debs, will speak in Milwaukee under the auspices of liberal women.

THE capitalist class is slashing wages in the textile industry! Wage cuts are in preparation for the coal miners of America! The "open shop" is raising its ugly head, threatening the living conditions of every worker!

We must distribute a million leaflets, "Strike Against Wage Cuts!"

We must organize shop committees!

We must initiate amalgamation of the weak craft unions into powerful industrial unions!

The party must do the work! The party must pay the bills!

Make a collection at once in your branch and send it in to the national office.

Take a list to your shop and union and make collections there!

RED IN[illegible]TIONAL SENDS AID TO [illegible]E TEXTILE STRIKERS W[illegible]GHT IMPERIALIST BOSSES

MOSCOW, [illegible] Mail.)—An appeal of the Red International of Labor Unions [illegible] of 40,000 Chinese textile workers in Shanghai says:

"Forty thousand Chinese male and female workers, employed in Japanese factories at Shanghai, have struck work. They are struggling for most elementary demands, as, for instance, the abolition of corporal punishment, etc. Against the poor strikers are arrayed in class solidarity the Chinese middle class, the Japanese employers, and British imperialism; they are united against the despairing working people. The strike is looked upon as a crime; the representatives of the strikers are being arrested and tortured.

"The Red International, in close solidarity with the strikers calls upon the workers of all countries to assist the Shanghai workers in their heroic struggle.

"The Red International calls upon the Amsterdam International, its sections, as well as all other organized and unorganized workers, to respond to the cry of the Shanghai workers with financial assistance, and with protests against the Chinese, Japanese, and British capitalists, the latter playing a leading role in Shanghai.

"The Red International sends for the Shanghai strikers thirty thousand rubles, of which fifteen thousand rubles were sent by the general council of the Soviet trade unions.

"The Red International calls upon all workers to give moral and financial assistance to their Chinese brethren!"

Signed: Executive Committee of the Red International of Labor Unions.

The Shanghai strike committee sent the following reply to the R. I. L. U.:

"The strike committee of forty thousand textile workers acknowledge receipt of your brotherly help and sends to the truly free workers of the world their fervent greetings, and pledge themselves to continue their struggle until the most oppressed workers of China are fully emancipated."

Appeal of the Workers of Shanghai.

The strike committee of the textile workers of Shanghai has sent out the following appeal:

"The Chinese textile workers, working in the factories of Japanese capitalists in Shanghai, are subject to uninterrupted persecution and suppression. This has aroused the desperate hate of the workers. A strike has broken out, involving 40,000 workers in 22 factories.

"The police of Shanghai, who are under English leadership, have, upon Japanese instigation, arrested 56 delegates of the strikers, thrown them into prison and subjected them to the most violent mishandling and torture. These workers are to be tried by court martial.

"Workers of all countries!

"We appeal to you for active support! Help your Chinese fellow workers with all your means and all your strength!

THE members of the Typographical Union formerly employed on the Post-Intelligencer, the Hearst publication of Seattle have been on strike for several months. The pressmen, of course are manning the presses. If they quit, George L. Berry, will hire scabs to replace them. The Seattle Union Record supported the strikers and denounced the P. I. and Hearst week after week. A. B. Ault, a socialist, is editor of the Record. It was once owned by the labor unions of Seattle but is now owned by Ault and others.

LAST week the Record carried a half-page advertisement calling the attention of the public to the wares of the Post-Intelligencerman, the scab Hearst sheet. The Tacoma Labor Advocate calls the attention of its readers to the action of the Record remarking: "However the advertisement may have brought some welcome shekles to the till of the Record and as a privately owned paper, it will espouse the cause of profit for itself and enlightenment for its readers to better advantage." This is scabbery with a vengeance, but it is in harmony with socialist practice.

His guardian is suspected of causing his death. If he is exonerated, he will enjoy the ever-growing fortune, willed to him by his ward. MASS ARRESTS OF COMMUNISTS THRUOUT GREECE

Executive Committee Is Ordered Jailed

ATHENS, Grece, March 20.—In all towns of the country mass arrests have taken place. In Athens all editors of the newspaper Risospastis were arrested. Against the members of the central committee of the C. P. orders of arrest have been issued. The central committee will be accused of high treason on account of its demand for the autonomy of Macedonia.

The government is preparing 200 further arrests and deportations and intends to introduce an exceptional law against the Communist Party. In Tricola the police provoked conflicts in which six workers were killed and many wounded.

The General Federation of Labor sent in connection with the arrests, a delegation to the prime minister and demanded the release of all arrested workers and peasants. The prime minister rejected the demand and declared that the government was determined to maintain law and order by all means.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 20.—White House visitors asked the president about the possibility of an early withdrawal of the American military forces that have occupied Haiti since 1916. The executive replied that this was "an interesting question," the United States had merely sent in its marines to safeguard lives and property and to preserve order, and had recently proposed to withdraw them, but the government of Haiti had urgently requested that the North American forces be kept there.

This was astonishing, unless the request were a very confidential one by the dummy president, Borno, who is maintained by American bayonets at Port-au-Prince. Russell's annual report as high commissioner of the country, just made public at the state department, gives no hint either of an American suggestion of withdrawal or of Borno's having braved the wrath of his countrymen by asking the marines to stay.

Cal Mixed on Geography.

The explanation lies in the fact that the 100 marines in Nicaragua were ordered to withdraw, some time ago, and were left there an additional six months at the request of the Nicaraguan government. Mr. Coolidge cannot remember Latin-American geography. When asked about Nicaraguan affairs some months ago, he described the affairs of Honduras.

SOVIET RUSSIAN INDUSTRIES ARE IN FINE SHAPE

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PEKIN, China, March 20.—Comrades of the United States! Thank you for the DAILY WORKER! I have been enjoying it very much. You have been making wonderful progress and are effectively fighting the exploiters. It is now nearly four years since I left America and since then many things have happened and passed on into oblivion.

But the movement grows everywhere, as the Russian revolution has been growing every day, every month, and every year—strengthened and solidified.

I can say from my personal experience in the past three years that everything is improving and getting better. I travelled over 20,000 miles of railways, twice to the Caucasus, and five times over the Siberian railroad to the North and West.

Railways Repaired

Every time I go thru conditions are improved and growing better. You can eat Crimean apples and grapes on the shores of Lake Baikal and even in Vladivostock, over 10,000 miles away, and yet they do not cost much. You can get a pound of apples in Vladistock for only 50 kopeks, even in January or February.

It is the same way with the proletarian owned railways of Red Russia. The Russian railways have improved, and no longer need the help of the state.

All the bridges destroyed by the white generals have been repaired, with one exception—the bridge near Habarosk, and that will be completed this summer.

In six weeks I am returning to Moscow. I send the workers of America my Communist greetings.

Peru in Protest Calls Coolidge a Double Crosser

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

WASHINGTON, March 20—Hughes' decision, signed by President Coolidge, as arbitrator in the Taona-Arica boundary dispute between Chile and Peru, has been met by a general strike of protest in Peru, followed by parades and minor riots.

Hughes and Coolidge decided that the plebiscite in the disputed territory, which should have taken place by the terms of the treaty of 40 years ago, in the year 1895 when the region was inhabited by Peruvians, must be taken now, when a majority of the Peruvians have been forcibly expelled by the Chilean government. A large part of the Peruvian population was deported by Chile just after the formation of the league of nations, to which Peru appealed her case.

LABOR FAKERS' BITE GREEDILY AT DEVER PLUM

Capitalists Will Eat from Same Dish

The Dever traction deal which is as juicy a plum, as was ever presented on a golden platter to the gaping maw of a greedy capitalist is the piece de resistance over which the labor fakers of this city are flapping their wings and caw-cawing like ravens over a fat rabbit whose ears protrude from a burrow, with his enemy the ferret, in close pursuit.

One set of ravens, in this case representing the leaders of the Building Trades Council, have an understanding with the ferret, so they are for pouncing on "bunny" right away and putting him inside their belts. The other ravens led by Oscar Nelson, have not succeeded in making themselves properly understood, favor a waiting policy. They believe that ferret Thompson would send out a sweeter rabbit than ferret Dever. Hence the curses and threats and the charges of treachery coming from the hostile camps of the labor fakers.

Just Business Men.

The leaders of the building trades, don't pretend to care anything for the "public." They look on the ordinance as a business proposition and say frankly: "We should worry what the traction magnates get for their junk, we'll get ours." It means the expenditure of several millions of dollars in digging subways and four or five millions in graft; besides it may mean the re-election of the Dever crowd to city hall. And this is an elegant city to loot, as both the Dever and Thompson cohorts will admit.

With the picks sinking their noses into the Chicago mud, the whistles of the hoisting engineers adding to the din in the loop, the labor fakers enjoying the entertainment provided by the flashy cabarets, why should not the Brennan-Tribune-Dever gang get back into the "hall" for four years more. No reason in the world seeing that the opposition of the leaders of the Chicago Federation of Labor to the ordinance is based on no better foundation than its cost to the taxpayers. And the taxpayers are the big fellows who own Chicago and the souls of the leaders of the Chicago Federation of Labor.

Four Lean Years.

The real reason why the Oscar Nelson-Fitzpatrick-Nockels combination is opposing the Dever ordinance is the brighter prospect for them in the

MUSSOLINI IS REPORTED TO BE INSANITY VICTIM

Murderer of Matteotti Playing Macbeth

LONDON, March 20.—Premier Mussolini of Italy is not expected to recover. The fascisti supreme council is considering the appointment of a triumvirate to take over the government. The latest report of Mussolini's illness is that he is suffering from a liver malady. A duodenal ulcer is said to have added to his troubles. Others say that he is violently insane and is strapped to his bed.

It is rumored that Mussolini is calling for lions and tigers while in his delirium. Every once in a while he sees Matteotti approaching his bedside and his shrieks are ear-splitting.

Home Minister Federzoni, representing the moderate wing of the fascisti is now acting head of the black shirt dictatorship. Mussolini's death it is believed, will be the signal for a nation-wide revolution.

The settlement of the metal workers' strike means only a lull on the industrial battlefield. Other battles are in the offing.

HONGKONG WORKERS MOURN SUN YAT SEN AS POLICE ARREST 3

HONGKONG, March 20.—Mourning here for Sun Yat Sen was ordered by the Labor Federation, which declared a holiday and so extensively picketed the town that there was almost complete suspension of industrial activity.

Crowds assembled outside the headquarters of the federations, where ceremonial rites were performed and speeches delivered.

Street traffic became blocked and the British police arrested five and used their clubs on the workers.

JOHN TURNER CORRECTS DISTORTED STORIES OF SOLOVETSK PRISONERS

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

LONDON, March 20.—John Turner, one of the members of the British delegation to the recent sixth congress of the labor unions of Soviet Russia, and whose failure to sign the delegation's report which praised the Soviet government and told of the advantages enjoyed by the Russian unions, was distorted and magnified by the counter-revolutionary and capitalist press in England and America, has issued the following statement concerning the statement that the delegation was denied access to the political prisoners held in Soviet Russia.

"Some newspapers are distorting my report on the position of the political prisoners in U. S. S. R. My report was so interpreted as if the Soviet authorities did not allow me to see Solovetsk. Such a interpretation is quite false, as I has given every possible opportunity for visiting the prisons and to carry on conversations with the prisoners, as for instance in the Butirka prison.

"One may argue whether it is proper to establish concentration camps in such inhospitable parts as Solovetsk, but I do want to prevent a false interpretation of my report, since the British delegation was given every opportunity to inspect everything it wanted to see."

RUSSIA BUYS HUGE AMERICAN DYE SHIPMENT

Also Increase U. S. Cotton Orders

NEW YORK, March 20.—Russia has just contracted, thru the All-Russian Textile syndicate for a large shipment of American dyes.

N. Elias, chemical consultant of the American branch of the All-Russian Textile syndicate, is now at the Wilmington plant of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours company, arranging and inspecting for transport to Russia, 60,000 pounds of assorted American dyes to be used in Russian textiles.

This is the first big contract the American dying firms have made with any European country.

Cotton Shipment Increase

Exports of American cotton to Russia from American ports exclusive of purchases made abroad between August 1, 1924 and March 13, 1925 totaleled 98,563 bales. In the same period of the preceding cotton season they totaled only 9,958 bales.

Contest Oregon School Law.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 20.—The suppression of religious and private schools by the state of Oregon has been taken to the U. S. supreme court, which now has the law under advisement. The Oregon law, the constitutionality of which is challenged, was passed by a referendum of the voters in 1922.

REVOLT BEGINS IN AMALGAMATED CLOTHING WORKERS AGAINST THE LEVIN CONSPIRACY WITH BOSSES

The left wing militants of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers are not going to lay down before the assaults of the Levin-Hillman machine which is allied to the clothing manufacturers in an effort to destroy the fighting spirit of the union by driving all militant workers out of the trade. Thursday night and Friday morning saw a beginning of the mass revolt against the outrageous action of Levin in taking members of the union from their jobs and depriving them of making a living.

With the shops in an uproar of protest, a committee of fifty from one shop visited Levin's office Thursday evening, demanding in no uncertain tones that he replace these union members on the job, from which he had taken them by purely arbitrary order, and Friday morning, to the consternation of the Levin machine, every clothing shop in Chicago was covered by a brigade of left wing workers distributing thousands of leaflets calling for a mass meeting of all Amalgamated members Monday evening at 8 o'clock in Temple Hall, Van Buren and Marshfield streets.

Against the distributors of these leaflets the Levin machine mobilised all their gangsters and thugs possible to procure. But it was all in vain, and unless the machine is equipped to maintain a standing army of overwhelming numbers, there is no assurance but that the unprecedented success of leaflet distribution of yesterday morning will not be repeated as often as necessary.

Gangsters Attack in Vain.

A list of shops is being compiled showing the gangster resistance to prevent the workers in the shops from getting hands on the left wing leaflet which merely called them to Monday's meeting. Some of these shops are as follows:

At factory "B" of Hart, Schaffner and Marx, the Levin gangsters beat up one left wing worker on the sidewalk who was trying to hand workers leaflets as they entered the building. The same thing happened at shop "4, R and Q" of Hart, Schaffner and Marx. While at factory "W" of that firm, Louie Elet, a brother of an Amalgamted business agent threaten-

STORM LEAVES 15,000 HOMELESS IN MINE AREA

Known Dead Are Now Listed at 823

WEST FRANKFORT, Ill., March 20.—The list of known dead in Wednesday's storm has reached 823, with this total expected to be swelled when rural sections and smaller towns not yet heard from have reported. At least fifteen thousand have been made homeless, 9,000 in Murphysboro alone, and several thousand here.

The miners' houses at Orient, surrounding the large mines at the edge of this town, have all been completely destroyed. The miners who were working in the Orient mine, one of the largest in the world, felt the shock of the storm, many feet in the bowels of the earth. They rushed to the surface with an improvised hoist, the tipple and hoisting machinery having been

GEGAN MAY LOSE HIS TREASURED COLLECTION OF ANCIENT HARDWARE

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, March 20.—Bomb squad Captain Gegan is likely to lose his choice exhibit of antique firearms with which he would like to prove that the three young men arrested in his raid on the Ukrainian Hall of the Workers Party were going to make the new American revolution. Attorney Joseph Brodsky expects to procure an order for the return of the guns to the theatrical costumer to whom they belong, because Gegan made this raid without a search warrant. Bail for the men is reduced from $30,000 to $2,500 and their case comes up March 30.

BRITISH UNIONS MOVE TOWARD UNITY WITH SOVIET UNIONS OVER AMSTERDAM OPPOSITION

(By INPRECORR.)

MOSCOW, March 20.—The Pravda writes under the heading "A Step Towards a Real Unity of the Trade Union Movement":

"The conference and the resolutions of the general council of the British trade unions are on the whole a step forward in the direction of trade union unity as against the Amsterdam maneuvering. Bramley proposed in the name of the British delegation: first, a joint conference of the delegations of the British and Russian trade unions for the purpose of examining the situation created by the Amsterdam resolution; secondly, that in the question of unity the initiative should be withdrawn from Amsterdam and entrusted to the British unions.

"Bramley proposed besides that the British general council should call together, in three months, a joint conference of Amsterdam and Moscow and that the general council should report to the trade union congress the result of that conference. Up to the present the first two proposals have been carried.

"The decision upon to the other proposals was postponed. The general council elected a delegation, consisting of ten members, who should negotiate with the general council of the Soviet Unions. The leaders of the delegation are Purcell and Bramley (secretary of the general council of the trade union congress.)

"The British trade unions have thus begun actively to work for unity, contrary to the Amsterdam resolution which they interpret in the same manner as we do. Only a short time ago our British friends thought that our interpretation of the Amsterdam

Fascist Kidnapping of Communist Aired in House of Commons

LONDON, March 20.—The society of British fascisti is calling attention to itself by the kidnapping last Saturday of Harry Pollitt, member of the British Communist Party and secretary of the revolutionary movement in the British trade unions.

Pollitt was travelling from London by train to speak at a meeting in Liverpool. At a way station where the train stopped, a group of from four to eight men whom Pollitt describes as "of a type of ex-army officer," hauled him out of the train, put him in a automobile and drove him to a lonely hotel. He was given food, but was held until too late to deliver his speech.

The conservative majority in the house of commons see no significance in this form of violence appearing in the British Isles, so reputed as the land of free speech and peaceful methods. These conservatives were quite elated over it, but so much anger among the workers of Britain has arisen over it that questions were asked of the home secretary in the house, who has promised to pursue an inquiry. And the house of commons was placed under the necessity of tabling several interpellations from labor members.

UNITED STATES SOLDIERS REFUTE IDIOTIC ANTI-SOVIET YARNS AND ARE JUGGED FOR THEIR PAINS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

HONOLULU.—For correcting absurd misstatements about Russia in the daily Honolulu Advertiser, three soldiers in the regular army are lying under military arrest at Schofield barracks, awaiting court martial. They are Walter M. Trumbull, Paul Crouch and Roderick Nadeau.

Among the nonsensical statements corrected by the soldiers in their letters to the Advertiser was a dispatch published in that paper stating that Trotsky had banished "Kremlin, the minister of war." The defenders of Russia also took exception to an editorial based on the Goldman charges.

"Al three letters were irreproachable as far as army life is concerned," writes Trumbull from the guardhouse of the 11th field artillery. "All of our papers, books, etc., have been seized and we have no opportunity to prepare for defense when the charges have been preferred."

S. MINERS' VES CHEAPEST WHOLE WORLD

orkers Here Are Also Greatest Producers

By LAURENCE TODD
ederated Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, March 20.—Lives of al miners in the United States are s safe than are the lives of coal ners in any of the other large coal- oducing countries, engineers in the S. bureau of mines admitted when estioned by The Federated Press in nnection with the Fairmont dis- ter.

But, argued a government engineer, ho admired the coal companies' ef- ficiency, there's less blood on a ton American coal than on a ton of Bri- sh or German, because American chinery permits the mining of three mes as many tons per man as does he British system, or the German. Therefore, even the more men, per undred employed, are killed by ac- dents in American mines than in those of other nations, our business en must be congratulated!

No U. S. Inspection.

There is no federal inspection of oal mines. State law in West Virginia provides for inspection, but unless a mine is known to be gaseous it is not inspected often, and safety lamps are not required. Most of the gas explosions take place in these "safe" mines where safety precautions as to lamps are not taken. Generation of gas in dangerous quantities is usually discovered only at the cost of miners' lives.

These federal safety engineers in the bureau of mines give the impression that a majority of mine deaths are the fault of the individual miners, since they come from cave-ins rather than from gas explosions. To the testimony of miners that company "instructions" forbidding the miner to work where danger of a fall of rock from the roof exists, are fraudulent, and that a miner who obeyed those instructions would soon lose his chance to earn a living, the bureau people shake their heads. They insist that the companies are careful of their men, and never want them to risk life or limb in digging coal!

Frame-up Effort Fails.

First claims made by the officers of the Bethlehem Mines corporation at Fairmont that the explosion in their Barrackville mine was due to a bomb dropped down the shaft, were soon dismissed by the state mine inspector. The mine was a non-union operation, but no strike activities were in progress in its neighborhood. The disaster which has taken 34 lives was attributed to gas, which met an open flame in the shaft.

Dead Leave Families.

BARRACKSVILLE, W. Va., March 20.—The Bethlehem Mine company is known here as a gaseous mine. In 1907, when the mine was known as Jamison No. 7, an explosion killed ten men.

Practically every man killed left behind a wife and at least one small child. Some of the men had seven children, and many of them had four or five children under fourteen years of age.

Five Bodies Found.

Five bodies have been found and two of them were brought to the top of the mine shaft. Rescue workers found the dead men far back in the left heading, near a point where fire was discovered some hours ago. The fire has been extinguished, mine officials said.

Twelve men were working in the left heading when the explosion took place, and twenty-two were in the right heading. The work of rescue has not yet proceeded into the right heading.

The bodies were identified as Walter Johnson, Willie Robinson, Willie Allston, all Negroes, and Pete Tempest, an Italian. Tempest is survived by a wife and two children under sixteen years of age, and Johnson is survived by a wife and one small child. Allston also had a wife and two small children living in Barracksville.

Italy, Poland Place Big Orders for Coal with Soviet Mines

MOSCOW—(By Mail)—A series of contracts have been lately concluded by the Coal Export Co., a government trust, for exporting Donetz fuel into foreign countries. Poland has purchased a big order of Soviet anthracite coal, which is superior in quality to coal produced in Poland. Important negotiations for supplying from 15 to 20 million poods of coal to Italian manufacturers are nearing conclusion. Besides, a large order is expected from Italian railways, which meanwhile have placed a sample order for some 10,000 tons.

All these developments have induced the Export Co. to substantially increase its 40-million poods exporting plan.

of a leaflet distributor, saying, "You'll get more trouble for this, and you know what I mean!"

At Meyer Brothers on the north side, sluggers tried to beat up the left wingers distributing leaflets for the Monday meeting, but met with such resistance that they desisted. At the Meyer company on Adams and Green streets, left wingers were assaulted and scratched up in a scuffle over leaflets which the gangsters tried to seize.

Threats and Assaults Fail.

Gangsters posted around the Royal Tailors shop at Wells and Polk Sts. tried to terrorize the left wingers. "We'll break your heads if you don't stop!" said these sluggers, but the left wingers stood their ground and carried out the distribution as they had a right to do, and, what is more, superior force.

The terror of the sluggers was also tried at the Hirsch and Wickwire shops and before the Kuppenheimer shops on Market street, but here too the left wing stood its ground and completed the most successful shop distribution of leaflets in the history of the needle trades of Chicago.

Shop Workers Make Demands on Levin.

Meanwhile, on Thursday night, a committee of about fifty workers from the shop of Alfred Decker and Cohen, marched to the office of the Chicago manager of the A. C. W., demanding that the workers who were taken off the jobs by Levin for distributing leaflets published by Local 5, of the A. C. W., be promptly reinstated.

But they soon realised, and one of the committee told Levin, that demanding justice from Levin is the same as demanding justice from the former czar of Russia, whose tactics led to the same conclusion as will be written after the name of Levin.

Levin Threatens Shop Workers.

Levin tried in vain to convince the members that it was very much to their benefit that he is depriving members of their means of livelihood by taking them down from their jobs. But when the workers told him that they don't appreciate the "favor" and that he had better send the victimized members back to work, Levin told them they were raising "too much commotion" in the shops, and they would be responsible for further happenings."

In other words, Levin threatened that if anyone wants to keep his job, he should not dare to express his opinion of the present outrages or any in the future, or show sympathy with the victims of the Hillman-Levin-manufacturer conspiracy.

Always Somebody Else to Blame

As usual, Levin tried to use the bogey man of "outsiders dictating policy to the union," that the militants are trying to "break up" the union, but the workers from the shop threw this back in his face, accusing him of being the disrupter by depriving the most loyal and militant members of the union of work and trying to drive them out of the trade.

The workers in the Alfred Decker and Cohen shop are enraged at Levin autocratic manner. He said, haughtily: "I took them off the job. I am going to keep them off the job, unless the organization (meaning himself) orders me otherwise."

The members of the A. C. W. in this shop told Levin that just as he, today, don't like Savonovski and takes his livelihood away for that reason, so, tomorrow, he might not like somebody else; and that they were going to keep up the fight for the victims of his autocracy, because as long as this sort of officials ruled no honest and sincere worker is sure of his job.

Another Coolidge Official Supports Teapot Oil Steal

CHEYENNE, Wyo., March 20.—Depositions on drainage conditions in Teapot Dome continued today as the defense closed its case in the government's suit to break the Sinclair lease on the Wyoming petroleum reserve.

Dr. Foster Bain, director of the U. S. bureau of mines, went on record as favoring the Mammoth Oil (Sinclair) lease because of "advantages it secured to the government over other proposals informally discussed by other oil companies."

Bain made further remarks about some mysterious "war emergency," and declared that "the Teapot negotiations were part of general war plans."

"It was stated," Bain charged, "at a conference in Washington in January, 1922, when the negotiations were under way, that there was a national emergency."

Bain said he did not know what this "national emergency" was.

IMPERIALISM OF AMERICA AFTER LATIN COMMERCE

England Keen Rival in South America

BUENOS AIRES, March 20.—The American capitalists, who have been competing with the British capitalists for South American trade have imported more goods, during the first eleven months of 1924, than has England.

The struggle between the two countries for foreign trade is bitter. England has two billion dollars of capital invested, and has a network of banks and shipping agencies thruout the South American countries.

The capitalists of America, with $200,000,000 invested, mostly in mining, are closer to the ports and have driven a lasting wedge in English imperialism's leadership in foreign trade.

Bigger Wheat Crop for Morocco Than Last Year Is Report

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 20.—Increased acreage and favorable crop conditions in Morocco are reported to the United States department of agriculture from the international institute of agriculture at Rome.

The wheat acreage is placed at 2,656,00 acres against 2,332,000 acres, the final estimate for last year. The area sown to barley is given as 3,707,000 acres compared with 2,981,000 acres for the 1924 crop.

Uruguay Workers Get Vacation

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 20.—A resolution was passed on February 5, 1925, by the national administrative council whereby every administrative employe of the council is obliged to take an annual holiday of twenty days, without loss of salary, according to the United States department of labor.

Housing Worse in England

LONDON, Eng., March 20.—The medical officer of health estimates that the number of houses required to satisfy the needs of the Wolverhampton district, at the present time, is 7,000 as compared with 5,659 in 1919, which was the figure arrived at by the housing survey of that year.

IMPRESSIVE SERVICES IN CANTON FOR DEAD LEADER, SUN YAT SEN

CANTON, China, March 20.—A memorial service for Dr. Sun Yat Sen, head of the provisional government of South China, who died in Pekin, was held here at the Kwangtung University. The program included one minute of silence, speeches, music and a ceremonial salute of 21 guns.

Officials of the government, with military and naval contingents, are preparing to leave for Nanking to attend the final rites.

Dr. Sun Yat Sen was the leader of the Chinese workers in their fight against foreign imperialism.

POWDER TRUST STARVES LABOR IN WILMINGTON

Negroes Segregated in Schools

WILMINGTON, Del., March 20.—This city is but a few miles south of Philadelphia. It is largely owned and controlled by Du Pont, the powder king, who also controls the city and state governmental machine as well as both the democratic and republican local newspapers.

While the Du Ponts, large and small are rolling in wealth the workers are compelled to work long hours and at a starvation wage. Upon arrival in Wilmington the writer stopped the first man he met and indulged in a conversation with him. This is the story revealed. The man works for the street cleaning and sewer department, is an American citizen, has several children. He works 9 hours a day in good weather and receives the starvation wage of $3.60 a day or 40 cents an hour.

There are cases when men are being paid but $15.00 a week by the powder magnates. This applies especially to those men who come from the farms to earn a few extra dollars during the out of season months.

Socialist Party Extinct.

The few labor unions still existing here are conservative and weak. The socialist party has ceased to exist long ago and during the last election even LaFollette polled but a few votes.

The ku klux klan is growing in power and influence while the colored worker is being discriminated against in every way possible. Colored children for instance, are compelled to attend separate schools. In certain theaters the colored workers are allowed admission, but to the galleries.

Workers Intimidated.

So intimidated are the workers of this city that they do not dare to voice their protest against the existing miserable conditions. The fear of losing the job, bad as that may be, compells many a worker to keep his mouth shut, for to find another job here is rather a difficult task.

The Communists are the only live force who dare to go against the stream and carry on the pioneer work of arousing the workers to the realization of the need of carrying on the fight against the system in which a few roll in wealth while the toiling masses are compelled to starve.

Canadian Postal Chiefs Protect King

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

OTTAWA, March 20.—The Canadian government has barred The International of Youth, official organ of the Young Communist International from Canada.

This blow at the Communist youth comes in the form of an "Order-in-Council," which means that a few of the higher executives made the rulling banning the magazine without bothering to have the question brot up in a legislative body.

The International of Youth is the magazine of the revolutionary youth that which serves the same function for the Young Communist League thruout the world as the Communist International does for the Communist parties.

Hits British Government.

"The Balance of the Government of H. M., the King of Great Britain," by Sigi Bamatter, member of the executive committee of the Y. C. I. is one of the articles in the last issue of the International of Youth that probably "displeased" the high officials of the Canadian government.

Other articles on the civil war in China and one on "The Bolshevik Anti-Militarist Work of the Party and the Youth," probably pleased them no more.

Can Get It Here.

The Young Workers League of America still receives the International of Youth, since it has not as yet been barred from the U. S. mails. Finland Gets Loan From Wall Street to Maintain Its White Terror Rule

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL

TODAY, another European loan is being floated in this country; $10,000,000 for the fascist government of Finland.

At the same time that publicity heralding this loan was being put into the kept press, fascist Finland's greatest asset, the white guard athlete, Paavo Nurmi, suffered humiliation in Madison Square Garden, in New York City. The runner's stomach went back on him towards the close of a 5,000 meter race, and he was forced to quit, leaving the victory to Willie Ritola.

• • • •

But Ritola is another white guard Finn. Both Nurmi and Ritola, however, may now retire. Their work has been accomplished. The sporting pages of the yellow press have been full of their exploits. The so-called "American public" not only knows of them, but is supposed to have developed a soft spot, in its pocket book for the Finland across the Atlantic. The finance minister of Finland, visiting these shores, said that Nurmi was worth $10,000,000 to Finland. The Finnish ruling class, thru its Wall Street connections, is now trying to cash in on this asset.

• • • •

The big advertisement announcing the Finnish loan proclaims that the people of Finland "are law-abiding, thrifty and industrious, and the standard of education is high." This is not disputed. The Finnish workers were so intelligent that they established their own Workers' Government in the days of the world war. But this Workers' Rule was crushed under the bloody fist of a terror that is almost without a rival in all Europe's history. Thousands of workers were murdered outright, while tens of thousands were imprisoned. Many of these are still in prison. Not only Communists, but Communist sympathizers and militants in the trade union movement are outlawed. Capitalism now rules over this graveyard of worker dead.

It was to aid the cause of these capitalist terrorists that Nurmi, a worker, deserted his own class, and came to this country to exploit his prowess as a runner. The red workers in Finland reject him as a renegade. The brand of traitor is on his brow.

• • • •

But Wall Street's loan will not save white guard Finland. No more than all the other loans that Wall Street is planning for other nation's of western Europe will save their capitalist cliques from the wrath of the workers and poor farmers.

New west European bond issues floated in the United States at exhorbitant rates of interest only testify to growing capitalist bankruptcy in this part of the world. The balance of trade pours new wealth upon the American ruling class. The only outlet for the surplus is investment in questionable European bonds. The Dawes plan was but the beginning of the establishment of a still greater collecting agency over all these nations. The Dawes plan for Germany will be followed by a Dawes plan for France, and then for some other country, until the break comes.

• • • •

It is said that Nurmi broke in his 5,000 meter run because he had overeaten from veal shortly before the race. The break under the Dawes plan in western Europe will not come because the workers have overeaten. It will come when the workers have eaten too little; when they understand that the Dawes plan means not only slavery, but also hunger for them, as it will. They will then refuse to toil that the interest payments on Morgan's bonds may be paid. It will then be up to America's workers to decide whether they have had their fill of the Morgan ruling class, or whether they will march again in Morgan's armies against Europe's rising working class. It is a good time for America's workers to decide now that capitalism here shall also fall in the hour that western Europe's slaves unite for the final victory. No more wars to protect the bonds of the House of Morgan! Only for the war against Morgan.

North Side Branch Study Class Meets on Monday Night

The study class of the North Side English branch of the party on the "A. B. C. of Communism" which has already held four successful sessions, meets again on Monday, March 23, 8 p. m. at the usual place at 2406 N. Clark St. All branch members and others are invited.

Freight Haulings Increase

NEW YORK, March 20.—American railroads have handled the greatest volume of freight ever carried by them during the first ten weeks of 1925 compared to other years, the American Railway association announced here today.

The 9,000,328 cars actually loaded from January 1 to March 7 exceeded by three tenths of one per cent the estimate made as to the expected record total.

The bulk of the increase thus far in 1925 has come principally from manufactured industry.

Marx Rejects Premiership

BERLIN.—Former Chancellor Marx declines Prussian premiership because of failure of his efforts to form a cabinet commanding an entire majority. A "business cabinet" is now planned.

NEW YORK.—Countee P. Cullen, young Negro poet, is elected to the Phi Beta Kappa chapter of New York University.

French Get Low Wages

PARIS, France, March 20.—An investigation conducted by agents of the ministry of labor, which covered 608,800 workers in the metal industries, of whom about one-third were employed in the Paris region, revealed an average hourly wage, for adults, of 3.29 francs for qualified workers; 2.64 francs for special workers; and 2.19 francs for ordinary workers.

FORTE-WHITEMAN AND DUNNE SPEAK TONIGHT AT SOUTH SIDE DANCE

The arrangements committee of the South Side Branch of the Workers Party and Branch No. 3 of the Young Workers' League, has procured Lovett Fort-Whiteman and Bill Dunne as speakers for its social and dance, Saturday night at the South Side Community House, 3201 S. Wabash Ave.

Whiteman has recently returned from an extended sojourn in Soviet Russia, and his speech should prove of great interest to those who want to hear the latest from the great Bolshevik country.

Dunne, Communist editor, fighter and speaker, par excellence, requires no recommendations. His talk will probably bring out many new points on the role of the Negro workers in the class struggle.

Fine dance music and excellent entertainment have also been provided for the night. Admission is only 25 cents.

Just Like Rafael's Efforts.

PARIS, March 20.—President Painleve of the chamber of deputies was forced to suspend that body for a second time this afternoon when general disorder resulted from an attempt to reconvene.

Marquis de la Ferrenrays mounted the tribune and demanded that Premier Herriot apologize for remarks which he said were an insult to all christians.

HALLE POLICE CHIEF REMOVED FOR 10 MURDERS

German Workers Force Government Action

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

BERLIN, Germany, March 20.—So wide and deep is the anger of the German workers over the murder of ten workers at the Communist demonstration at Halle, that the German government has been forced to remove the Halle chief of police from office.

The police tried to stop a Communist election meeting on the excuse that foreign Communists were on the program as speakers. There were English and French Communists present to tell their German fellow workers that under Communist rule there would be no quarrel between these countries.

The Halle police chief forbid the foreign Communists from speaking, and when they resisted, he ordered the "schupo" police to fire, shooting down ten workers, two of them being women. This has caused a furor all over Germany. Now the government declares that the chief of police at Halle acted without authority, as the law forbidding foreign speakers is not in force since the revolution of 1918.

Communists are planning a great demonstration at the funeral of the victims and the workers of Halle will suspend all work.

Storm Leaves 5,000 Workers Homeless in Big Mine Area

destroyed by the storm. Utter desolation met their eyes.

Women and Children Suffer.

Women and children were the worst sufferers, many being killed when their tiny homes crashed in over their heads.

Arthur McLeod, a veteran miner who has lived thru several mine disasters, stood on a West Frankfort street and surveyed his ruined home. A single object—a player piano— is all that McLeod has left to show for his years of work in the mines.

"I am an old man now," McLeod said. "All I had is gone, except that piano. All wiped out after me working in the mines all my life—ever since I came here from Scotland. No insurance—nothing. I bought that piano for the old woman. She's down in the hospital now. They won't tell me how bad she is—perhaps she's dead already."

Twelve Dead in Benton.

Benton, a large mining town midway between Murphysboro and West Frankfort, but to the north, escaped the full force of the storm. However, twelve known dead have already been listed in Benton. Three hundred were reported still missing in West Frankfort, with 114 known dead. One hundred and twenty-five bodies have been recovered in Murphysboro, with many more missing.

Othello Hester, who worked in the Orient mine, found his wife and daughter in a hospital. He had been searching for them for hours. Hester was many feet underground in one of the deepest tunnels of the mine when the tornado swept down on the mining town.

Another miner, who worked in the Orient No. 2 mine, came to the surface and found his wife dead.

Dig Graves Now.

One hundred members of the United Mine Workers, local West Frankfort, are digging graves.

An official report from Carbondale said that the total dead from the storm in Illinois alone is over is over 800, with 4,000 requiring medical treatment.

A new terror, the dread specter of pestilence, raised its head and the sanitation engineers sent into the stricken area from Chicago, wired for more aid, declaring themselves unable to cope with the situation.

The dead are piled high, and hastily attended to, and add to the danger of the spread of contagious diseases. In West Frankfort and Murphysboro all sanitation devices have been destroyed, and lights are not working in many towns.

GUNS RUSTY BUT RELEASED REDS MAY BE EJECTED

Labor Defense Council to Fight Deportation

NEW YORK, March 20.—The three young Communists, Sol Zalon, Henry Winogradoff and Aaron Dimen, have been released from the tombs, where they were confined since last Friday night, when they were caught by Captain Gegan and his bomb squad, "conspiring to overthrow the United States government."

The young revolutionists were released on $2,000 bond each, the judge being forced to recognize that the charge of having "firearms in their possession" was absurd, when the weapons were produced in court. These old rifles could not even be used to discharge blank cartridges, let alone "destroy the government."

Celebrate Commune in Cells

The three young comrades went thru the usual procedure, at times being intimidated by the detectives. In the cell, they celebrated the Paris Commune themselves, writing all over the wall "Long Live the Commune."

When Joseph Brodsky, the attorney for the Labor Defense Council, appeared in court to have the bail reduced, the judge declared that such people ought to be sent out of the country. "If they don't like this country, etc., etc."

Face Deportation

It is clear that the government will try to deport the three young Communists. Quite contrary to what the warden thought that they are not done with the Communist movement, the young comrades declared that they are going to become even better bolsheviks. This is the spirit that pervades the Young Workers League of New York, of which all three comrades are members.

The Labor Defense Council intends to fight the case thru all courts. The new deportation bill or its implications may be invoked in order to get rid of these young revolutionists, whose "crime" consisted in participating in a theatrical performance. Even the capitalist press was forced to admit the absurdity of the charges, charging Gegan with endeavoring to burnish up his reputation and get into the limelight once more by a comic opera trick.

Appeal For Funds

The Labor Defense Council, New York division, appeals to all comrades and sympathizers, to raise funds for the defense of these young revolutionists, whose case comes up on March 30. This will cost thousands of dollars. Get your organizations to contribute. Collect among the workers in the shops. Send all contributions to the Labor Defense Council, New York division, 108 East 14th Street, New York City.

CRIMINAL SYNDICALIST LAWS USED AGAINST COMMUNISTS IN W. VIRGINIA AND PENNSYLVANIA

Continuing the general survey made by the Labor Defense Council, of the Communist criminal syndicalist cases which have taken place in this country, the cases in Pennsylvania and West Virginia are interesting in review. In West Virginia a miner, living in Ohio, by the name of John Buksa, was arrested for distributing the program of the Workers Party while riding on an interstate car.

When the case came up, the jury gave very little consideration to the matter and brought in a verdict of guilty in very short order. The case was appealed to the higher courts of the state. No satisfaction was gotten there. In the meantime John Buksa has been sentenced to three months in jail and is due to go to prison in a short time because there are technicalities which make it impossible to appeal the case further.

The West Virginia red flag law, which is the criminal syndicalist law of West Virginia, is indeed an interesting statute. While it does not provide as severe a sentence as other laws of similar nature, it is all inclusive. Under it not the least vestige of workers' rights remains if the powers that that be in West Virginia desire to utilize the law. That the law will be used again and again unless it is fought against and killed, is quite a possibility in view of the record of West Virginia in industrial disputes.

Another state which has a long record of persecutions under the criminal syindicalist law, as well as other laws which can be utilised against the labor movement, is the state of Pennsylvania. This coal and steel state has to its credit no less than sixteen cases, thirteen of which are yet to be tried, two of which resulted in convictions and are pending on appeal, and in one of which the sentence has already been served (Blankenstain.)

This state not only has the record of these sixteen cases, but of numerous deportations in the Palmer raids, numerous arrests of individual after individual on one pretense or another and a continuous terrorism applied to every section of the labor movement.

The dark past of Pennsylvania in industrial disputes is a matter of history. The first conviction under the Pennsylvania criminal syndicalist law was that of Blankenstein who served a sentence.

The second group of cases grew out of a raid staged shortly before May 1st, 1923, all over Pittsburgh and on the headquarters of the Workers Party, on various pretenses. Numberous workers were arrested and held on exorbitant bail. Finally, about nine were indicted. They are yet to go on trial.

"Crime" to Belong to Workers Party

The third group of convictions under the Pennsylvania laws was that of a number of Farrell workers in the steel town of Farrell, Pa. Two of these were tried and convicted by the same judge who sat in the Blankenstein case. Four are yet to be put on trial, two of these are not members of the Workers Party, which is the "crime" with which these men are accused.

In all these cases in Pennsylvania the department of justice of the U. S. has been more than active. One of their "experts" is used as a witness against the men. It is difficult to tell what will finally be the outcome of all these cases, but the nature of this law in Pennsylvania is made drastically evident by them.

In the next article on the survey we will deal with the last group of cases, those taking place under the Michigan law.

Fascisti Anxious to Build Empire in North Africa

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

ROME, Italy, March 20.—Premier Mussolini has endeavored to secure England's help in an attempt to further the fascisti's imperialistic ambitions in Northern Africa and the Mediterranean countries. Mussolini, it is learned, has asked Foreign Minister Austen Chamberlain for an alliance with England, France being excluded. Chamberlain replied for English imperialism that no agreement would be made with Italy to the exclusion of France.

The fascisti argued that Italy's population is growing, and many Italians are living in Northern Africa, and pleaded to be allowed to build up "a sphere of national influence."

Fascisti Accused.

Vincenzi Enea has signed a statement at Bari, Italy, accusing the present fascisti leaders with sinking the battleship Leonardo da Vinci in Taranto harbor on August 2, 1916. Two hundred and fifty sailors were killed.

ernment must destroy itself. Students of the present situation think the present form of Russian government is not final and that it will not turn into a democracy. The educational situation in Russia is pathetic. Schools and libraries have been destroyed and in some localities the illiteracy is one hundred per cent. Some educated people have been executed in order to do away with learning." Our case against Mr. Harvey rests with the above exhibits.

CLEVELAND H. DODGE of New York recently gave $500,000 to the fund for Near East colleges. This sum amounts to one fifth of the operating expenses of the five American colleges in the near east during the next five years. There is oil in the Near East. Wherever there is wealth to be exploited you will find the heart of an American millionaire.

WHEN Jesus of Nazareth whipped the money lenders out of the Temple his religion was not very popular with the ruling classes. Not so today. His followers, particularly his leading followers are the strongest bulwards of the modern money lenders. They do not spurn wealth. It is seldom you hear a cardinal or a high prelate of any church preach a sermon from the camel and the needle's eye text. A few weeks ago a catholic priest was found dead in a Coney Island, New York, hotel. He had $216,000 in deposits in four banks. It's a long, long, way from Bethlehem.

Coolidge Attorney General Is Servant of Textile Trust

WASHINGTON, March 20—Humiliated and crushed by his defeat, twice within a week, on the nomination of his friend, Charles Beecher Warren of the sugar trust to be attorney general, President Coolidge acknowledged the constitutional right of the senate to take half of the responsibility in creating cabinet officers. And in its turn the senate took pity on Coolidge and agreed that his second choice, a lifelong friend and political adherent, John G. Sargent of Vermont, be confirmed.

Sargent is an old man, a grandfather, whose opposition to the soldier bonus bill was so sharp that he proposed to impeach or otherwise remove Sen. Dale, who voted for it. Once he was attorney general of Vermont, but most of his life has been spent in serving the textile, quarry and other industrial corporations of Vermont, and in looking after rich men's estates. He is just the mental size of Coolidge and will fit the attorney generalship just as badly as Coolidge fits the presidency.

Coolidge is sadly shrunken. He looks smaller than ever, more petty and out of place than ever. Beaten on the bonus, driven to surrender on postal wages, twice beaten on his selection of an attorney general, he has had nothing but rebuffs from his first congress and his second senate.

N. Y. Assembly Kills 8-Hour Bill.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 20.—The assembly committee on labor and industries has strangled the Mastick Shock 48-hour bill for women and children that the New York Federation of Labor and numerous reform organizations were supporting. The bill was not reported and the republican assemblymen on the committee say it will not be reported.

On the other hand the Joiner bill giving the industrial board power to regulate hours for women and children in the various industries as it sees fit is being all the more ardently pushed by representatives of the associated industries of New York and is especially sought by the canning industry where very long hours prevail during rush seasons.

Czarists Seek Church.

NEW YORK, March, 20.—The white guard Russians, followers of the czar, the counter-revolutionary generals and the socialists, who have a small colony on Fifth avenue, near 125th street, have had hard luck in finding a church to attend. They moved from their old building at 4 East 129th street, near 5th Ave., and have been using a "borrowed" church.

Mortgages of $16,000 have accumulated on the old church property and will be foreclosed unless the rich friends of the czarists come to their rescue.

WORKERS OF NEW YORK DENOUNCE WHITE TERROR

Meet Wednesday, March 25, at Opera House

(Special to the Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, March 20—The capitalist governments of the world are engaging in a new offensive against the revolutionary workers. Workers in Bulgaria, Greece, Germany, Hungary, Spain, Poland, Jugo-Slavia and Czecho-Slovakia are being persecuted with increasing brutality.

During the recent railway strike in Greece, all revolutionary workers' organizations were attacked by the police. In Germany, during a demonstration, six Communists were killed and 40 wounded. When the workers of Berlin protested against these brutalities, more were killed and wounded. In Poland, the workers are being hunted down, and the national minorities—especially the Ukrainians—are being suppressed.

In Bulgaria, the hangman Zankow is taking advantage of the serious economic situation to demand more troops of the league of nations, in order to carry on a campaign of extermination against the revolutionary workers and peasants. In Spain, the fascist dictatorship of De Rivera has crushed all the workers' organizations clubs, papers and co-operatives. In Italy, Mussolini is using a savage hand against the rising revolt of the revolutionary workers.

Shoot 1,000 Esthonian Reds.

In Esthonia, after imposing death and long-term sentences upon 142 Communists, the white guard government made an assault on the rebellious workers and shot down or imprisoned more than 1,000 of them. These imprisoned comrades were shamefully mistreated, being subjected to the third degree. Some of them were even scalped. This is a reminiscence of the wild west days in the United States—and of the ku klux klan.

In Japan the most vicious anti-working class law in history has been passed.

In Lithuania and Latvia, Communists have been arrested and all their organizations suppressed. In the Philippines, poor peasants are being shot down at the behest of the American capitalists. In Porto Rico and Cuba, the same things are taking place. In India, Java, China, Korea, in Egypt, Turkey and Palastine, the workers and poor peasants are being driven into open rebellion.

New York Workers Protest.

The workers of New York must protest against these new tortures inflicted upon the workers and poor peasants of the world. They must not let the challenge of the capitalist governments pass by unheeded.

The Workers Party, Young Workers' League and the International Workers' Aid have arranged a joint meeting, which will take place at the Central Opera House, 205 East 67th St., on Wednesday, March 25, at 8 p. m. The workers of New York will appear in their thousands and will demonstrate their solidarity with the fighters in the capitalist prisons.

You must be there. Tell the workers in the shops. Bring them to the meeting.

Labor Fakers in Chicago Bite Greedily at Mayor Dever's Plum possibility of William Hale Thompson and his Hearst backers getting back into the La Salle Street El Dorado.

Michael Boyle, also known as "Umbrella Mike" seems to have deserted his old love, Len Small. But Michael is nothing if not practical. His business is to furnish juice to the members of his union. As long as he can do that, his little deviations from the line of Jesus of Nazareth will be glossed over by his christian supporters.

Christian Madsen of Local 894, is a member of the federation's transportation committee that handed the lily to the Dever plan last Sunday. His local has 2,000 members and it went against the ordinance. But Arthur Wallace, business manager of the Painters' District Council did not seem to be worried about a little thing like that. "Labor is for the ordinance" he said, "it means more work."

Doubts His Foes' Honesty.

Edward Ryan, president of the district council of the iron workers has serious doubts as to the sanity or integrity of those opposing the Dever plan. He did not say whether they should be sent to jail or to a psychopathic ward.

The Workers Party tells the workers of Chicago that the fight between Dever and Thompson is a quarrel between two gangs of capitalist thieves who are jockeying for position. The Deverites want their graft now, out of the transportation muddle. The Thompson backers not being able to get in on the ground floor now, must be content to get theirs four years from now.

The Workers Party urges the confiscation of the present street and elevated car lines and their operation by the city thru the organizations of the workers, particularly the Streetcar Men's Union.

WORKERS PARTY DEMANDS THAT RAIL WORKERS REFUSE THREAD SHIPMENTS FROM STRUCK MILL

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WILLIMANTIC, Conn., March 20.—The district executive committee of the Workers (Communist) Party for the state of Connecticut has sent a letter to several brotherhoods of railwaymen, protesting against the members of those organizations hauling cars containing consignments of thread shipped by the American Thread Co., at Willimantic, Conn., where the workers are on strike.

Three carloads of thread have been shipped out each day since the beginning of the strike. Several scabs in the shipping room, loaded the freight cars, and endangered victory for the strike. The letter calls upon the organizations to instruct their members not to do this any longer.

Strike Lessons.

The girls going to various cities for collections report good response from the mill workers. Thru an error, many girls entered stores, and received unwelcome greetings, and practically no support.

When near this city, a wrecking crew from the Reading Railway shops of the N. Y., N. H. and H. R. R. Co. was approached, they replied they had no money. They were working overtime, the dirty scabs, who took bread out of the mouths of the railway shopmen, and would not aid the textile workers.

An instance of working class solidarity occurred before the strike was declared. One worker was informed that he had no right to strike (he fixed machinery) "because you are a part of the workers." To which he replied, "When I worked three or four days a week like the rest, I was paid like the rest. I'll stick with the rest, now."

Picketing Goes On.

At present, picketing starts at 6 a. m. There are pickets posted at each gate in two hour shifts. William Simons, district organizer of the Workers (Communist) Party volunteered at this morning's meeting to do regular picket duty, but Miss Kelleher, the organizer in charge, declared that only American Thread Co. strikers were desired.

The morning demonstrations before 7 a. m. continue in fine shape. This morning, there was a march to the Ger Theater, where a short meeting was held. President McMahon, of the United Textile Workers of America was expected at this morning's meeting, but did not appear. He is expected tomorrow.

The Company Stands Pat.

The company is standing pat. It has sent out a considerable amount of the finished thread on hand. It has foremen and overseers in the plant, ready to help in the shipping. It has clerks (80 of them) who can be rung in. It is impossible to determine just how the company is preparing.

A report from Holyoke is to the effect that the truck drivers refused to come to Willimantic to carry material from here to their city. A truck driver in this mill is still at work, on the flimsy excuse of being "on salary." One sees this truck ride to and from the mill. The senile father of the assistant agent of the company snoops around to note the strength of the strikers.

Rank and File Class Consciousness.

The class spirit of the mill worker was revealed by a woman striker. When she saw for the first time the Textile Worker for February, 1925, the official organ of the U. T. W. of A., she spied an ad for The Star Needlework Journal, a quarterly publication devoted exclusively to needlecraft, at 260 West Broadway, New York City.

This address happens to be the address of the New York office of the American Thread Co., where the strike is on. She spied the address, and immediately asked: "What is that ad doing in a union paper?" Included also, are ads of various mills and companies.

The DAILY WORKER Well Received.

The Saturday, March 14 issue of the DAILY WORKER was warmly welcomed today. 500 copies were distributed after this morning's meeting. Nothing but commendation has been heard about the fighting spirit shown in the articles and the editorial comment. The strikers liked to read about the splendid fight put up by the Nova Soctia miners. The paper will be on sale from now on, at Dehenny Brothers on Railroad St.

Extend the Front.

With the manufacturing department tied up, the American Thread Co. will undoubtedly try to do its work in other plants. While it is true that the Willimantic plant is the largest, still there are several others. In addition, the English Sewing Co., which controls the American Thread Co., controls 17 other cotton companies. The need is a united front.

The District Executive Committee of the Workers Party for the state of Connecticut has recommended to the Central Executive Committee to call upon the workers of these English mills (thru the Workers (Communist) Party) to strike in sympathy with the Willimantic strikers. A strike on the part of other plants of the American Thread Co. and all companies controlled by the English Sewing Cotton Co. would be the most effective means of winning the strike.

To Put Screws on France.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—Putting the thumb screws on France, to induce her to give up her military predominance in Europe and to cut her expenditures on armament so that she may begin to pay her $4,000,000,000 debt to the American treasury and her huge debt to Britain, is the meaning of the Anglo-American project for a new conference to discuss reduction of auxiliary naval craft.

Red Army Chief Tells Soldier Students of Russia's World Aims

MOSCOW, (Rosta)—(By Mail.)—In his first public speech since his appointment as people's commissary of war and navy, Michael Frunze dwelt on the international position of the Union of Soviet Republics. The speech was delivered to an audience of over five thousand students from various military schools gathered in the Moscow Big Theater.

The very fact of the existance of a Soviet state, he said, naturally gives rise to various contradictions in its relations with the surrounding world. The Soviet government policy was simple however. It was a desire to prevent the aggravation of such potential conflicts.

"What is most valuable to us," he stated "is that our citizens should be able to labor in peace." He then quoted various "foreign correspondents" who have been spreading rumors of vast war preparations being carried on the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics. Europe knows perfectly well that Russia is absorbed in the task of economic construction and must realize these stories are being sent out to mislead the European public.

He referred to the Russo-Jap treaty as an event of paramount importance in world politics. He expressed the hope that mutual relations would soon be established with France whose interests do not conflict with those of Russia in any part of the world.

In concluding he said, "The Red Army will continue to improve in quality, not for purposes of imperialism but for purposes of self defense. It will keep in mind that a powerful Red Army is a guarantee of peaceful recovery for the Soviet republics."

Two Investigations Ordered.

WASHINGTON—Sen. Shipstead's resolution asking the federal trade commission to investigate and report on American farmers' co-operatives and the methods employed by their opponents to injure them, and Sen. McKellar's resolution asking a similar inquiry into the illegal practices of so-called open-price associations of manufacturers, were adopted by the senate before it adjourned.

resolution was erroneous. After the speeches of Oudegeest and Stenhuis, after the attack of the Vorwarts, after the declaration of the leaders of the German Trade Union Federation, the British clearly perceived that they could not follow the way of the Amsterdam resolution.

"The general council decided to call together a conference of the representatives of the British and the Soviet trade unions. We heartily welcome the decision of the British general council. It represents a real step forward to unity.

"Sassenbach, a short time ago, spoke sharply against the Soviet trade unions, against the Red T. U. International, against the British trade unions, against Purcell and Cook. The leaders of the German Federation of Trade Unions and the social Barmats stand in the front rank of the adversaries of unity.

"They are for the unity with the capitalist governments, with the league of nations, with big business and trusts, for the unity with the Barmat, with Barmat's money bag. They are against unity with the proletariat, with the Soviet trade unions, with Purcell and Cook, with the left wing of the trade unions. They are against labor and for capital, against Tomsky and for Barmat.

"The decisions of the British general council are not to the taste of the social Barmats. They will continue their attacks, but will not stop the march of events. The working class will gather force and achieve unity, despite the hostile work of the Amsterdam International."

The British Unionists' Russian Report

The 600 page report of the official British trade union delegation to Russia, compiled after exhaustive investigations into all phases of economic, social and political life, has caused a panic in reactionary trade union and socialist circles as well as in the upper levels of capitalist officialdom.

Only extracts of the report have been published in the United States to date, but enough to determine that it is a history-making document. The report marks the real beginning of the sweep of the influence of the great Russian trade union movement into the English speaking capitalist nations.

Upon the immediate issue of world trade union unity the report will have, has already had, a tremendously favorable effect. What the British trade union delegation actually discovered was that the Russian workers and peasants are just the same as the working class in the Anglo-Saxon nations with the difference that they have defeated capitalism. Having settled this to their own satisfaction, by the cautious British method, the question of method becomes secondary—that is the British trade unions, seeing the victory and the fruits thereof, place in its proper perspective the charge of tyranny and terror hurled at the Soviet government and the Communists by the capitalists and their propagandists.

The British trade unionists are practical persons. They are after results and when they see results obtained by the workers and peasants in Russia they are more than inclined to believe that the end justifies the means. This same conclusion will be reached by every worker when he has had an opportunity of knowing and weighing the achievements of the Russian working class led by the Communist Party.

Here is the nub of the whole question. It accounts for the loud wails produced by the British trade union report in the capitalist and socialist press of the whole world. It accounts also for the fact that the American Federation of Labor did not dare to publish the report in its official organ, but instead gave space to the maunderings of J. Turner—the Ben Reitman of Great Britain.

The main question asked world capitalism and its labor faker and yellow socialist allies by the British trade union report, not in so many words but in every paragraph of the document, is:

> "Why are conditions for the workers and peasants of Soviet Russia improving every day while the conditions of the masses in all capitalist nations grow progressively worse?"

The answer is that in Soviet Russia the land, factories, mines, forests and the government belong to the workers and peasantry. This is the answer that will be given by every worker who reads the document, but for capitalism the question is unanswerable. It dare not tell the truth. To do so means to surrender.

It is going to be mighty interesting to watch the capitalist class try to suppress the British trade union report and to follow the sinister process by which the agents of capitalism in working class organizations will try to distort its revolutionary import.

Where Is Mussolini?

Five weeks have gone by since Mussolini came down with the "flu" and he is not yet back on the job. A strike of 100,000 metal workers has ended in a victory for the strikers and the political pot, as a consequence, boils more furiously than ever. Meeting after meeting at which Mussolini was billed to speak have been held or called off without his putting in an appearance.

The last official bulletin announced that the recovery of the black-shirt leader was complete, but that was a long time ago and nothing has been said about his health since.

A number of huge strikes of workers in other industries are in process of organization, the cost of living is going up steadily, but Mussolini still has the "flu."

When the chief hangman of the Italian workers took to bed immediately after disclosures of his homocidal degeneracy, we stated that his illness was more political than physical and branded it as a bad case of cold feet. As time passes it is evident that we made no mistake.

Even tho Mussolini returns, his halo of honor and mantle of mystery have been disarranged badly. There is talk of other leaders for the fascist bands and internal dissension among the inside murder clique is growing daily.

Mussolini posed as a "hard guy." But his attack of "flu" has shown that he is no superman and his long retirement, after his recovery was announced, is beginning to be taken as evidence that he is not the personification of Roman valor.

The working class of Italy, led by the Communist Party, will write the last chapter of this episode in Italian history.

Mexican Labor Traitors Work Fast

It attempting to turn over the railways of Mexico to Wall Street, President Calles let the workers know who the real masters of their country are.

Lest there be no mistake about it, the railwaymen are required now to take an oath of allegiance to the government so that no strikes may interfere with the profitable operation of the roads by their capitalist owners.

The railwaymen's union is to be disbanded and they become simply employes of the Wall Street-owned Calles government. The forces are to be reduced by the discharge of 40,000 workers—for whom the Wall Street masters make no provision—and the greatest economy is to be practiced so that the American imperialists will have no cause for complaint.

Says Calles to the railway workers:

> Rumors of a proposed railway strike do not intimidate the government. We will place the railways under orders and nothing will stop us. Railwaymen must accept the new order. . . . They will not remain members of the union, but will be considered as federal employes. . . . The government proposes to readjust the railways, running them a short time economically, giving them economic stability, then returning them to the company.

The same appeals are being made to the German railway workers who groan under the Dawes plan—the European expression of American imperialism endorsed by the social-democrats. The Calles government is the idol of the socialist hangers-on in this country; with the labor imperialists of the American Federation of Labor they join in praising it to the skies.

When the American Federation of Labor officials crossed the Rio Grande after the last convention the result was only less disastrous to the Mexican workers than an invading army. We knew and said at t hetime that all the talk of international friendship was fo rthe purpose of weakening the Mexican labor unions—making them easy prey for the Wall Street bankers. At that time we did not think that the results of the betrayal would materialize so quickly.

But here they are.

President Calles himself, the "labor president" of Mexico, is breaking up the most powerful union, that of the railway workers.

The labor traitors lose no time in getting results for their masters.

The class-conscious workers of Mexico and the United States must unite under Communist leadership against imperialism and its agents in the labor movement.

Premature Rejoicing

The imperialist press of the world rejoices now that Sun Yat Sen has been buried. Until his body had been laid to rest the rulers of France, Japan, England and the United States could not bring themselves to believe that such good fortune as the death of the great leader of the Chinese independence movement had come to them.

Now they are jubilant and the Far Eastern correspondents of the organs of world capitalism are predicting the disruption of the Koumingtang Party which Sun Yat Sen led. They see also the weakening of the influence of Soviet Russia in China and some of them are bold enough to say that the Chinese Eastern railway will return to imperialist control.

Rivalries for the exploitation of the Chinese masses and natural resources have been forgotten for the moment while a pæn of thanksgiving is sung.

The wish is father of the thought. Sun Yat Sen builded well and his party of the Chinese people will not end with his death. Like all Chinese, Sun Yat Sen thought much of death and prepared for it. He knew that organization can replace individual leadership and he worked to that end.

Then there is the Communist Party of China with its active workers trained in the Communist school—the Far Eastern University—busy with the task of organizing the best elements of the Chinese masses. The Communist Party of China works in closest contact with Koumingtang—its organizational experience is at the disposal of the Chinese independence movement.

The loss of Sun Yat Sen will make the task of combatting imperialism in China more difficult, but it will not destroy or even check it.

Sun Yat Sen's Funeral

Describing Sun Yat Sen's funeral, the capitalist press service from Pekin says:

> Ambassador Karakhan and other Soviet representatives were the only diplomats in the parade. . . . M. Karakhan presented a huge red wreath. All the Soviet men wore red and black bands. The coffin was borne by members of the Kuomingtang.

Two things are noticeable in the above dispatch:

First, that the imperialist diplomats did not care to honor the leader of the powerful party of the Chinese people who had fought them up to the very hour of their death and kept China from falling entirely into their clutches.

Second, the name of the party of revolutionary Chinese nationalism is spelled in small letters by the capitalist press. They would like to have the western world believe that it is a sect and not a strong and determined party.

But the representative of the workers' and peasants' government of Russia were at the funeral. They brought the sympathy and understanding of the Russian masses to their Chinese comrades.

Imperialism has no weapon as powerful as this.

SCHOOL LECTURE OUTLINES TO BE PUBLISHED SOON

Public Speaking Class Begins Monday

Definite arrangements have already been made with the comrades who teach the various courses in the Chicago Lenin Training School for the compilation and the publication of outlines of their lectures in the near future in the DAILY WORKER. It will take a little while to compile these outlines, as already thirty lectures have been delivered in the school (including today) but we hope to have them all in short order.

Organization Course by Abern Closes Today.

The course conducted by Comrade Martin Abern, district organizer of the Workers Party, closes today. This course has been highly satisfactory and has been received with a great deal of close attention and enthusiasm by the comrades of the school.

Starting from an outline of the role of the party, it went into detail on the necessity of discipline in the organization, the comparison of our present form of organization to the shop nuclei basis which is now the task of the party to attain.

Structure and Function.

Then Comrade Abern outlined the duty of the various committees of the party as well as the various functionaries of the branch and higher units. The organizational work in connection with the united front tactics of the party and every other phase of organizational activity as relates to any organizations participated in by the party was taken up.

All in all, the course tho given in but six lectures covered a most comprehensive field and brought many a detail to the fore that will be essential to keep in mind for the comrades in the course, all of whom are in active party work and expect to carry on even greater activities after the course.

The outline of the above course will be completed shortly and will be either ready mimeographed for the students or printed in the DAILY WORKER.

Today's schedule is as follows:

9 A. M.—History and Tactics of Trade Union Movement, Dunne.

10 A. M.—Party Organization and Structure, Abern (last lecture.)

11 A. M.—History of American Communist Movement, Bittelman.

12 M.—Lunch.

1 P. M.—Leninism, Gomez.

2 P. M.—Elementary Marxian Economics, Lerner.

Public Speaking Course Starts Monday, 10 A. M.

The ten o'clock hour, up to now taken up with Comrade Abern's course on Party Structure and Organization, will be taken up beginning Monday by the course in Public Speaking conducted by Comrade Thurber Lewis. This course will last for the six remaining days. Comrade Lewis is well fitted by years of training on the platform and in party work to conduct this course. The course will be practical, consisting only of one or so lectures the rest of the time to be devoted to speaking on the part of the students.

Professor Concludes a Little Liquor Is Good for the System

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 20.—Looking back over a fruitful life, as a faithful servant of capital, Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard university, was visited by relatives and close friends today, his ninety-first birthday.

This is his health formula:

"I attribute my health and my long continued capacity for active experience to a sound constitution never impaired by serious disease or accident, a calm temperament, the habit of taking daily exercise, and a slight but never regular use of stimulants, like tea, coffee, alcohol and tobacco."

Bankers Have Another Daily.

NEW YORK, March 20.—Another daily organ of big business goes on the news stands as the American Banker, changes from the weekly to the daily basis. New York, the financial capital of America, if not the world, now has five full sized daily papers devoted exclusively to the news of the financial world.

Write us a letter—tell us how you work, what are your wages and shop conditions—and then order a bundle for distribution in your shop.

O'FLAHERTY SPEAKS TONIGHT AT COMMUNE MEET IN MILWAUKEE

The Workers Party in Action

INITIATION OF DAILY WORKER SUBSCRIPTION DRIVE GETS BOOST AT CHICAGO PARTY C. C. C. MEETING

The two successful demonstrations by the party against the counter-revolutionary spy and tool of the Amsterdam International; the launching of a series of meetings and distribution of leaflets by the militants of the Trade Union Educational League as an immediate consequence of the Levin-Hillman machine removal from the job of many Amalgamated comrades for distributing an appeal and protest leaflet of Operator's Local No. 5, New York; the increase in the sale of literature and the DAILY WORKER at the union and other meetings, thru the efforts of the city propaganda committee in charge of Comrade Thurber Lewis, and the initiation of the DAILY WORKER subscription drive; the very auspicuous and successful opening of the Intensive Party Training School started by the district executive committee; and the coming International Unity Demonstration, March 29, at Ashland Auditorium, were among the main features of discussion at the city central committee meeting, Workers (Communist) Party, local Chicago, on March 18.

Demonstrations Against Abramovich Enthuses the Party.

The party membership and organization responded and conducted two strong, emphatic and successful demonstrations against the counter revolutionary Abramovich, the secretary reported. (See capitalist press and labor press for details.) Politically, these were of great value for the party. It engaged the party in a most important phase of political action, experiences of great value for the future. The spy, Abramovich, was not allowed to spill his poison before the workers and only the thugs, socialists, and other illiterates heard him—a consolation he or they may have gratis.

Our party members got concrete evidence and experience, thru clubs, fists, gun and rifle threatening, etc., of the close alliance of the socialist fakers with the capitalists and capitalist police, gunmen, etc. Political experience was gained, enthusiasm of the party members increased, and party prestige enhanced.

Party and Needle Trades Members Getting Into Action.

Our members in the needle trades who want effective action, are getting ready for mass meetings and leaflet distribution in the campaign against expulsions, for the reinstatement of the expelled in the Amalgamated and International Ladies' Garment Workers. Many members of the party and others were removed from the job in Chicago by Sam Levin, Amalgamated reactionary official, for distributing thousands of the leaflet issued by Local No. 5, New York, Amalgamated Clothing Workers. (Read DAILY WORKER for details). A protest meeting has been called at which the rank and file, removed from the job, will speak. This meeting, which all of the party must back up, will be held Monday, March 23, at Temple Hall, Marshfield and Van Buren Sts. Pluggers announcing this demonstration were distributed Friday morning at the factories by party members and party students attending the training school. These volunteered at the C. C. C. meeting.

Then, too, preparation is being made for the immediate distribution of the leaflet on the coming agreement in the Amalgamated Clothing Workers. National protest meetings are also being arranged. There is every indication that the Hillman administration will have its hands full as the T. U. E. L. and party militants increase their campaign to expose the Hillman and Sigman machines before the membership. United effort and action will build the left wing, the Trade Union Educational League, in the needle trades. Discussion was lively at the C. C. C.; after that, even livelier action is expected and the party will take every measure to push the work irrespective of any obstacles.

Propaganda Committee Increasing Literature Sales.

The propaganda committee on the DAILY WORKER and literature is getting results, increasing its sales of the Workers' Monthly, DAILY WORKER and other literature at unions, meetings, etc. At the Abramovich meetings, large numbers of the daily sold, and the Bedacht pamphlet, White Terrorists Ask for Mercy, to the extent of 700, distributed. All branches have been given union assignments to cover. In the DAILY WORKER subscription drive, the English branches have challenged one another on a daily sub contest. Let's hear from the language branches. Build the DAILY WORKER!

March 29 Ashland Auditorium—Everybody There—Unity Demonstration.

The party membership is expected to get full force to make a huge success of the International Unity Demonstration, commemorating the Paris Commune, demanding the release of the class war prisoners of the working class, extending aid to the starving workers and peasants of Ireland and holding a counter-demonstration against Abramovich.

This gathering, to be held Sunday, March 29, 2 p. m., is a big party undertaking. The city central committee members are going into the branches to get the party and the sympathizers out. The Irish poster parade by our comrades thru the loop will help.

Party Branches Asked to Donate Means for Party School Students

The intensive party training school is going over big and everybody concerned, students, teachers, visitors, are elated. The out-of-town students, for whom lodgings have been provided, however, did not come here as millionaires plentifully supplied with money. They are miners, mill workers, etc., who have been unemployed but who recognized the need of the party school and came. The city central committee adopted a resolution that the larger party branches shall contribute the price of the meals each day, which amounts to about $15.00 per day. Send in your share for the meals to the local party office, 19 S. Lincoln St.

New members for the Workers (Communist) Party were accepted from the following branches by the city executive committee: Greek, 2; N. W. English, 1; Irving Park English, 1; S. S. English, 6; N. S. English, 2; Englewood English, 1; Hungarian, 1; So. Slav No. 1, 2; Finnish, 2; Nucleus No. 5, 1; Letts, 1; total 20. These must first attend the class on the program of the Workers (Communist) Party before finally being admitted into the party.

Time did not permit a full review of the T. U. E. L. work in the carpenters, printers, machinists, but details will be printed on the T. U. E. L. page concerning the work of the comrades therein. The anti-injunction statement and resolution sent by the party to all labor unions and organizations in Illinois, must be taken up by the party members at every opportunity, as well as the other resolutions in connection with the united front campaigns of the party.

May Day at Temple Hall.

May day celebration this year at Temple Hall, Marshfield and Van Buren Sts. May day committee meets next Tuesday at 180 West Washington St., 8 p. m. Branches send full delegations.

Next meeting of the city central committee on Wednesday, April 1, at 722 Blue Island Ave.—Fraternally, Workers (Communist) Party, Local Chicago, Martin Abern, Secretary.

Dunne, editor of the DAILY WORKER, March 29, 7:30 p. m. at the International Socialist Lyceum, 805 James street. Arrangements are being made for a Paris Commune celebration, which despite the late date, is expected to draw a large audience. It is the first time in several years that such a celebration has been held.

Several successful meetings have been held in this steel city lately. Good support was rallied here for the Sacco-Vanzetti defense on Sunday. Robert Minor and Epstein spoke to a packed house exposing the lies of the agent of the Second International Abramovich.

In addition to the lecture a good program of entertainment is being prepared, including recitations, a musical program by a string orchestra, and singing by the German and Hungarian workers' choruses. Admission is free.

NEW YORK WORKERS SCHOOL HAS TRAINED SPEAKING TEACHER

NEW YORK, March 20.—A general course in public speaking will be given every Tuesday evening, 8 p. m., at the Workers' School, 108 East 14th street. The instructor is Carl Brodsky, one of the best party speakers in New York, and well equipped to train others.

The primary purpose of this course is to develop propagandists who can effectively present the Communist position in their activities in the party and the trade unions. Last year's election campaign showed the great need for trained speakers. Comrades are urged to register so that we may have a bigger and better corps of speakers for the coming campaigns this summer and fall.

For registration and information, inquire any day or evening at the office of the school, telephone Stuyvesant 8100. The course is also open to non-party members.

Party Construction in the C. I. Sections

By OSSIP PIATNITZKY.

IN this article I will limit myself to a few facts from the German experience. In 1923 factories and workshops in Germany were, with a few exceptions minus party nuclei, but in the big factories and workshops Communists were members of factory and workshop committees.

As there were no nuclei even in the factories where Communists served on factory committees, there was no lead or control of the committees, thru any nucleus.

Besides, the Communists in the factory and workshop committees had no definite standing because they had no proper support due to the fact that the Communists in the factories were not co-ordinated into one body.

THE result was that the discontented workers of these factories and workshops were led and controlled by trade union representatives and members of the social-democratic party who played up to the mood of the workers, proposing radical resolutions, etc. But when these humbugs were given the leadership of the movement by the workers they did their utmost to hinder the movement and certainly did nothing to encourage it.

As yet there was no one who could have exposed all these Judases to the factory workers, for the Communists among them were not co-ordinated, they had no uniform leadership and were not all of them working for the same aim.

And Germany provided examples in the first half of 1924 during the big strikes in the Ruhr and the Hamburg district which showed clearly the difference in the leadership of the movement in factories, mines and docks; wherever nuclei existed, the leadership of the movement was entirely in the hands of the nucleus, while in factories where no nuclei existed, Communists acted against Communists and in some places Communist chairmen of meetings refused to put to the vote resolutions proposed by Communists.

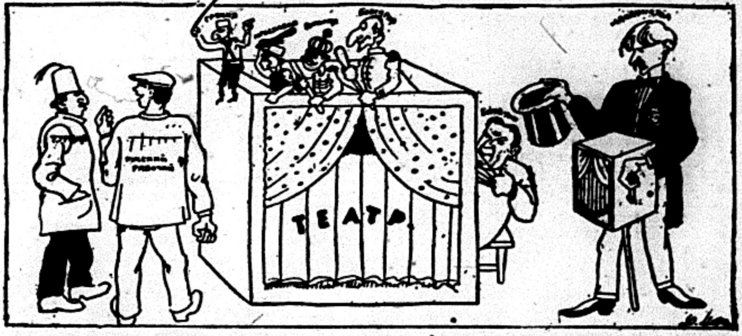
THE same might be observed lately in Italy, in Milan and Turin. In works and factories with properly functioning nuclei the latter became the leading centers of these works and factories. The recent demonstrations of the Milan metal workers against the agreement of their fascist trade union with the metal industry employers were under the guidance of the factory nuclei of our party. Big workers' meetings which take place in Italy when the workers leave their factories at the end of the day's work and which are frequently attended by as many as 5,000 workers, have only become possible after the organization of nuclei in the factories, for it is they who organize these meetings and carry them thru.

ON the other hand, where factories in Italy have no party nuclei, or where these nuclei are not very active, there are no meetings, no demonstrations against trade unions and other fascist organizations.

Everything has been done by the Communist International to make the Communist parties of Europe and America realize the importance of creating correct forms of organization.

The theses and report of Comrade Zinoviev on the role of the party in the revolution presented at the Second Congress of the Communist International, Comrade Lenin's statement on the same question and nearly every one of the 21 conditions adopted at the same Second Congress gave to the sections of the Communist International minute instructions on the building up of party organizations and on the nature of their tasks. The question of organization was also very prominent at the Third Congress of the Communist International. The theses on organization which were elaborated with the help of Lenin, explained very minutely why nuclei and other forms of party organization are necessary, how they should work, etc.

The International Marionettes



The British imperialists have organized an anti-Soviet Russia and anti-Turkish bloc of the little Balkan puppets. Baldwin is seen pulling the strings while MacDonald is grinding the organ. The Russian worker is saying to the Turkish worker: "Sometime we may be able to thank Mr. Baldwin for this comedy." (From Molodaya Gvardia, Odessa Young Communist Daily.)

AT the Fourth Congress of the Communist International Lenin pointed out that the theses on organization adopted by the Third Congress had remained on paper, altho all the delegates to the congress had voted for them. In fact, previous to the lesson of the German revolution, none of the decisions on the question of organization had been carried out by any of the foreign sections of the Communist International, except the parties of countries which previous to 1917 had formed part of the Russian empire. What is the explanation for this?

Many active comrades thot that nuclei which had been readily adopted in Russia, could not be mechanically transported to other countries because conditions in these countries differ from conditions in Russia. And finally there is the force of habit. There are even now Communists who imagine that the destruction of the old form of organization would also mean the destruction of the Communist Party. They see in the Communist Party. They see in the organization of nuclei the destruction of local party organizations.

THERE is also another element which resists, and quite consciously, the reorganization of the party on the factory and workshops nuclei basis. This element is not very numerous but it is the worst element in the party—party officials and a few members of the party who have become members of parliament, of municipal councils, trade union and co-operative administrations, etc.

Under the existing old forms of organization party members are not active. They only meet when they are summoned to meetings before elections or campaigns connected with elections. Party members do not discuss and make decisions on all party questions, they very seldom meet among themselves and therefore the above-mentioned party officials and candidates to elective posts are able to carry thru anything they like at the party meetings which they convene.

THE above-mentioned elements see, and quite rightly, in the organization of nuclei, their co-ordination according to districts in big towns and on a city scale in the smaller towns, the end of the almost unlimited control which they exercised in the party organizations. In Italy, in Turin and in some French towns, after the organization of nuclei in the workshops the leadership of local organizations went entirely into the hands of workers recommended by the nuclei.

Thru the failure of some active workers of the sections of the Communist International to understand the importance of the organization of nuclei in the workshops and of Communist fractions in non-party workers' mass organizations, etc., and thru the obstacles which were put in the way of the proposed reorganization by certain obstructive elements of the party, the favorable moment of the labor movement boom in 1919-21 was missed, a time when it would have been very easy to form and consolidate nuclei in the workshops.

Now the organization of nuclei is much more difficult.

IN Germany, Great Britain, Italy, Poland, and America, Communists constitute a big percentage of the unemployed, which renders the organization of nuclei still more difficult. There is wholesale unemployment; there is unprecedented terror on the part of employers. Not only Communists are dismissed but also all those why sympathize with them if this fact can be established. Employers are helped in the matter of spotting Communists by members of social-democratic parties and by opportunist trade union officials.

And yet in spite of all the difficulties, this year has witnessed the practical reorganization of the party on the basis of factory nuclei in the big industrial centers of Germany, France, Italy and of some parts of Czecho-Slovakia and of Great Britain.

An animated discussion on the organization of nuclei in enterprises has also been initiated in America.

In many countries the Young Communst Leagues have acted as the forerunner in this matter.

IT should also be stated that in Germany and France nuclei publish periodically papers for their or several kindred factories, which have, in addition to political articles, also special columns describing factory life. These newspapers are varied and interesting. In Italy the party organizations publish instead of factory newspapers small leaflets on various subjects, which are distributed among the workers. In Germany, France, Italy and Norway workers' correspondents from factories and workshops have begun to function and have already achieved a certain amount of success.

ALL this is most decidedly the right way to the transformation of our brother sections of the Communist International into mass parties supported by large sections of the urban and rural proletariat.

New life has been put into the party organizations of the above-mentioned countries. They have become imbued with the revolutionary energy of the factory workers. The recent demonstrations of the Paris workers, with whom the Paris party organization has come into direct contact thru the factory and workshop nuclei, have shown how much the latter were needed and how important they are for the proletarian and revolutionary Communist Party.

WE have chosen the right path. The experience of the Communist nuclei in the west has absolutely proved that these are not something peculiarly Russian, not adaptable to European and American conditions. They have stood the test also under western conditions.

It is necessary to overcome the difficulties and to organize nuclei in all the factories, works, offices, shops, barracks, estates, etc., etc.—in fact wherever there are wage workers, whether they be men, women, young workers, mobilized soldiers, sailors, etc.

Nuclei should be co-ordinated into wards and districts, the latter on a town or gubernia scale, and these in their turn on a national scale.

IF something has been done in connection with the organization of party nuclei in factories and workshops and in connection with the creation of the correct forms of local party organizations in the industrial centers of some countries, very little

Letters From Soviet Russia

How We Live.

DEAR COMRADES: I do not know whether our comrades abroad know how we live. Anyhow I think it is worth while to tell thef about the life of the young Sivash artillerists.

Sivash is a bay, a very swampy place where Wrengel had one of his main strongholds. Our division drove Wrangel out by attacking him from the rear and thus settled his fate. Hence our division is called the Sivash division.

As to our life, I will not waste words over our every-day routine, but will deal with the main features of our life.

DISCIPLINE is very strict, but it is secured by continually and at every opportune moment explaining to the Red Army men their rights as well as their obligations, their role as the defenders of the Soviet Union. For this purpose we have, in addition to military training, political education classes two hours daily.

During these classes Red Army men study the Soviet constitution, the history of the Soviet power and the history of the Red Army and the civil war.

The Red Army men are also taught geography, reading and writing, arithmetic and agriculture. In our artillery regiment we have no illiterates, but there are illiterate people in the infantry regiments.

They are formed into separate groups or squads and are taught to read and write being set free from drill and other work.

AS more than half of our regiment consists of Ukrainians they are drafted into separate groups in which they are taught in their own Ukrainian language. I suppose you have nothing of the kind in your country.

Military subjects are taught only in the Russian language, groups varying from 5 to 9 Red Army men. Red Army men are placed into groups according to their standard of development. The group system is the best for military training.

Definite hours are given to general physical training and to the study of sanitation and physics.

ON the whole six hours a day are given to study and the rest of the time, if Red Army men are not among the masses they have at their own disposal and may spend it just as they like if they inform their immediate chief.

For their recreation there is a club with a number of circles, a school for political education, a dramatic circle, a circle for general education, etc. The club has a library and reading room, it publishes a wall newspaper which does not even spare the commander of the regiment if he has been at fault in any way. There is also a military correspondence circle in which all Red Army men who contribute to the paper belong. In this circle they learn how to write for the newspapers, etc. Once a week there is a dramatic performance in the club, and we also have "youth" socials, "military" socials, etc. The club works for the whole regiment. We must admit that the club of our regiment is not as efficient as the clubs of other regiments.

IN addition to all this we have a Lenin "corner" with various sections in every battalion of the regiment. In these "corners" there are small libraries and about 8 different newspapers. Readings and informal talks take place in these "corners," as well as party, Young Communist and general Red Army meetings. Similar meetings are held once a month for the whole regiment.

Very frequently (every week) we are taken to the cinema. We also visit the workers in the factory which is our patron (I will deal with patronage in my next letter). We also visit museums and aquariums (there is a very good one in Nikolaev). This is just the general outline of our army life. Altho we are taken away from our homes we do not feel isolated.

THE Red Army which is a proletarian army is a school, and young peasants are right when they say:

"We must study otherwise we will come back to our villages just as we left them, and what would be the use of that?"

And we get a military training and education and become more efficient as we go on. Thus your bourgeoisie will never be able to take us and our Union unawares.

There is still much to write about—our economic situation, our shortcomings, the link between the workers and peasants, etc. But I will leave all this for my next letter, that is to say if you are interested in it and if I receive a reply from you.

TODAY I want to describe just one more fact. Not so long ago we had in the regiment the trial of the commander of the platoon. He was charged with having compelled a Red Army man to run about 15 minutes wearing an anti-gas mask as a punishment for some misdemeanor. The revolutionary military tribunal sentenced him for exceeding his powers to 12 months' solitary confinement. Does it happen in your army that commanders are tried in this fashion?

G. Koten, Red Army man of the 15th Artillery regiment.

Nikolaev, Ukrainian, S. S. R., Jan 20, 1925.

DEAR Comrades:—I want to tell you how a working class party member spends his time.

24 hours is a very short time for a worker, for most of us spend 16 hours or more in the factory. Apart from the regular 8 hour day a great deal of time has to be given to social work, and those who are illiterate or semiliterate have to give a considerable amount of time to their elementary and political education. We have a time-table for the whole week. On Monday there is a circle of political training and a Marxist circle for those who are more advanced. In the latter we are now studying "Capital," political economy, the international situation, the situation at home, etc.

ON Wednesday is the Party Day, which is a great favorite with all the workers. The factory party nucleus organizes these party days. The hall is invariably full to overflowing with non-party workers who take an interest in the political life of the country. On the remaining days there are: all sorts of sessions, meetings in the various literary, economic, political industrial and other commissions—of course always in accordance with the capacities and aims pursued.

WE have regularly described in our official press the Pravda and the Robotchaya Gazetta, the work of the nuclei and commissions of the "Dynamo" works, as well as our conditions of life and industrial achievements. The figures which I give below are taken from one of these notices sent to the Pravda. Very significant are the figures showing the results of the campaign in favor of raising the productivity of labor. The results in the casting section of our factory during the ten months from January to October 1924 were as follows:

	Jan. 1924	Oct. 1924
Annual output of casting	29,566 kigms.	100,400 kigms.
Damaged càstings.	8 pct.	3 pct.
Fuel used for smelting	42½ pct.	23½ pct.
Cost of production of 1 kigm. of casting	67 copeks	25 copeks.
Total number of workers	138	108
Output per worker	204 kigms.	925 kigms.
Ditto in chèrvonetz roubles	75 rbls.	325 rbls.
Earnings of the corporation	6,179 rbls.	9,402 rbls.
Average pay per worker	44 r. 75 c.	87 r. 06 c.

This includes skilled workers, semi-skilled workers and apprentices. Thus the pay of a skilled worker is considerably higher.

THESE figures speak for themselves and show what can be done with proper organization, they reflect credit on the works production commission which was appointed by the workers' production conference.

The organization of the production commission and conference is as follows: Every craft (we have 32) appoits a craft productron control committee of three. This committee sees to it that the code of rabor laws is put into practice and that the protection of labor laws are observed. The slogan of the "Dynamo" workers is "mass production in accordance with the program, maximum economy in connection with extra expenditure."

IN our works factory workers as well as the clerical staff do their share in the organization of labor, by reducing amount of damaged goods, concentration and the continuity of operations even by means of three shifts. And what is more they watch carefully everything connected with both time and piece-rates, etc., which are periodically revised and regulated.

THE said craft control committees meet periodically in conference to receive reports from engineers, technicians, craft foremen, etc., about the work accomplished. The decisions made in connection with these reports are generally business-like and to the point.

Time will not permit me to give you today a detailed account of the work of the production conference and control committee. This I shall do in my next letter.

With proletarian greetings,

I. Guinessin, Metal turner of the Dynamo Works.

Moscow, Jan. 15, 1925.

Red Army Man Writes Home

Editor's Note:—In view of the interest which the workers of western countries take in the life of the Red Army of Soviet Russia, we think that the enclosed information will not be out of place. This interesting document is the copy of a letter written by a young Red Army soldier to his people at home:

I, A RED ARMY MAN of the crack squad of the N liaison regiment send greetings to the Peasant Young Communist Leaguers of the Dorsk Nucleus. In this letter I want to tell you, who will soon be in the ranks of the Red Army, about our life and doings in that army. As soon as we arrived at our post we were given our full rations and fitted with cloth uniforms. We are now full-fledged Red Army men and there is no trace of the village lads who arrived here only a short time ago. We rise to order, we drill, we take care of our rifles and must observe strict cleanliness. After a few days we got accustomed to the new life and to the barracks, we get to know each other and the commanding officers. We give two hours a day to our political education and the remaining hours to the study of special military subjects, for that is our speciality. In the evening we read newspapers, attend lectures, go to the club and are frequently taken to town to theater and excursions, and thus time flies. We have heard all soldiers say that there is no comparison between the czarist and the present army. What then has happened? Now we are all equals, the commanding officers are our comrades, in the ranks we treat them as our commanders, but when off duty as our comrades. We ourselves deal with any shortcomings or blemishes when we serve on economic commissions. In the theater we sit side by side with our officers and talk with them as with comrades Was there anything of this kind in the czarist army? What was the soldier then?

There is of course a big difference.

And now, comrades, I am coming to our Red Army request, which is as follows:

There are many young people in our village. Instead of strolling about the villages in the evening a village reading room should be opened where the villagers can read and learn and organize various study circles. Comrades should be drawn into the Young Communist League. We have as yet much to learn; how to organize our farms and our new life. If we do all this we will be richer and wiser and no one will be able to beat us. Study and develop your homesteads, just as we stick to our post and will not allow the enemies of our country to rob us of the fruits of our labor.—Ivan Kozlov, Red Army man.

Proletarian Literature in Soviet Russia

By G. LELEVITCH.

THE First All-Russian Conference of Proletarian Writers was held in Moscow, January 6-12. This conference which was attended by over 250 delegates from all parts of the U. S. S. R. was a highly interesting literary and social event.

Only after the seizure of state power is it possible for the proletariat to turn its attention to cultural construction in the true sense of these words and to create its own well-developed belles lettres. However, some elements of its classical culture the proletariat creates a long time before it has become the ruling class. "The world labor movement," wrote Lenin as far back as 1913, "creates and continually develops the international culture of the proletariat."

THE proletariat of the Soviet Republics is confronted with the gigantic problem of "cultural revolution," which was so vividly outlined by Lenin. The liquidation of illiteracy, the enormous development of the social-political and general-culture consciousness of very large sections of the population, the radical revolution in the technique of production, the introduction of the co-operative system among small producers. The re-organization of social conditions and the emancipation of women, the ceaseless struggle with bourgeois and petty-bourgeois ideology, partly revived by the introduction of the N. E. P., the complete re-education not only of the consciousness but of the sentiments of the working classes—such are the monstrously difficult tasks which must be solved if the U. S. S. R. is to become a Communist country. The role of belles lettres, which exercises an enormous influence on the subconscious life of people, has gained in importance under these conditions.

AS the influence of literature made itself more and more felt, the literary creativeness of the working class received an impetus. Old proletarian writers made new and very valuable contributions, for instance, the novel of Seragomvitch, "The Iron Hood." New talent made its appearance: the poet Bozymensky, who from being the best poet of the Young Communist League, rapidly developed into a true poet of Bolshevism; the young proletarian songster of the countryside, Ivan Doronin, the talented proletarian belles lettres writes: Fedor Glatkov, Yuri Libidensky and many others became justly prominent in modern literature. A considerable number of new proletarian literary groups came into being: "The Young Guard," "The Spring of Labor," "Construction," and last but not least the leading group, "October."

A MASS literary movement of unheard of dimensions came into being at the same time. The workers correspondents' movement became not only a powerful source of journalistic proletarian forces, but also a powerful reservoir from which proletarian belles lettres derives its forces. The masses have a great desire for artistic creativeness, and the district factory and workshop club, Red army young Communist worker correspondents' literary-artistic circles have given shape and form to this desire. The astoundingly rapid development of these proletarian literary and artistic elements must be credited. It is not unusual for a workers' correspondent, whose only achievements hitherto were a few second-rate poems, contributed to the factory newspaper, to become in a very short space of time a contributor to a big gubernia newspaper, and soon after a contributor to the weekly periodical, progressing gradually until we meet his name in about six months' time in the columns of "fat" journals, and in twelve months time we see him already established as a well-known poet occupying a prominent place in literature.

IT is not only in Great Russia that this mass literary movement is taking place; all the nationalities of the U. S. S. R. have produced their proletarian writers, and this does not only apply to such republics as the Ukraine, White Russia or Georgia, which had long ago a culture of their own, but even to such countries and nationalities as Yukutia, Kirghisia, and the Chuvash region which are only beginning to develop a culture of their own.

The All-Russian Conference which has just taken place has brought to a conclusion a period of stormy creative searching and of rallying all the proletarian literary forces, and it has inaugurated a new and glorious period of creative development and of harmonious construction.

THE conference has pointed the way to creative literary work in the near future. While during the period of civil war, proletarian literature was justified in dealing with reality in an abstract and symbolic manner and even to indulge in trite hymns of praise, a more artistic manner of dealing with concrete revolutionary reality is needed now. The proletarian Tyrtaeus must give way to the proletarian Homer. This change in the subject of literary productions must naturally bring with it a change in their outward form—pathetic lyric poetry is supplanted by epic and drama, artistic prose pushes poetry into the background.

IN this new proletarian literary movement emphasis is laid on the subject matter for which a suitable artistic form must be found. But this form cannot simply originate in the fertile brain of some theorists.

It will make its appearance only when proletarian writers will have mastered all the old forms and will have transformed these forms by the new subject matter provided by them. Such is the viewpoint of the proletarian literature of the Soviet Union in its creative work. This does not of course mean that hymns of praise and pathetic lyrical poetry are to be done away with altogether. Nothing of the kind.

It only means that the main creative efforts of the proletarian writers tend the other way. All these ideas are formulated in the ideological and artistic program adopted unanimously at the conference.

BUT the conference has also done splendid work with respect to the co-ordination of proletarian literature. Until recently proletarian literature was divided into a large number of small groups and circles which all worked independently and without the least connection with each other.

Some of these circles got so accustomed to their exclustveness that they declared this an ideal state of things and advocated its perpetuation and development. A feature of this tendency was the notion held by some people that a proletarian writer can only be someone "who has shown himself to be a master of the written word," and that working class poets who are only beginners and workers' correspondents cannot be considered full-fledged members of proletarian literary organizations.

THE majority of the groups and circles of proletarian writers fought against this unhealthy separatist tendency and propagated the principle of an all-embracing and strongly welded together proletarian literary organization, admitting into its ranks not only writers who have already made a name for themselves, but also working class poets who have as yet to make a name for themselves.

There were violent disputes on this question which even led to a split in the proletarian literary movement.

THE conference put and end to this split and to these disputes. The conference was attended by all the amalgamations and groups of the proletarian writers of the Soviet Union, and proletartan literature was given a definite form at this conference as the All-Russian Association of Proletarian Writers (V. A. P. P.), a strongly welded together mass organization. The various groups and circles affiliated to this association form its component parts.

The most difficult and complicated task before the conference was the solution of the organizational question with respect to the national republics of the Soviet Union. But this question too was satisfactorily and unanimously solved at the conference. Republican associations of proletarian writers are to be formed in all the national republics. In these associations native proletarian writers are of course to play the most important role. These republican associations form part of the All-Russian Association.

APART from the questions of creative work and organization the conference gave very serious consideration to the question of the literary policy of the Russian Communist Party. During the last two years, proletarian literature had a hard fight in connection with this question with the section of the party headed by L. D. Trotsky. This peculiar "literary Trotskyism," declared that the fundamental literary force in the Soviet Union are not by any means proletarian writers, but so-called "fellow travelers," that is to say, hazy, petty-bourgeois writers more or less in sympathy with the Soviet power.

ACCORDING to Trotsky there is not and cannot be any proletarian literature, as the proletariat has now something else to do besides thinking about literature. And by the time the proletariat is set free for such activity it will have merged into a Communist society which knows no classes.

The supporters of proletarian literature told the Trotskyites that the non-existence of proletarian literature is impossible, as the working class stands in need now of this powerful weapon for the purpose of reacting on the psychology of the masses. They also pointed out that proletarian literature must not only be, but is already in existence and that Trotsky and his followers must be deliberately blind not to see it.

THIS does not on any account mean that the supporters of proletarian literature are against any contact with the "fellow travelers," and against making use of them generally. On the contrary, they asserted that there must be collaboration between proletarian writers and truly revolutionary representatives of these "fellow travelers," that the latter must be approached and educated in order to make them graduary adopt the viewpoint of the working class. But to accomplish this task one must have the support of proletarian literature.

THE conference listened attentively to the representatives of both these viewpoints. The literary Trotskyites did not secure a single vote. The fact must not be overlooked that one of the most gifted of the "fellow travelers," Vladimir Mayakovsky, fully endorsed the viewpoint of the proletarian literature and expressed himself emphatically against literary Trotskyism.

If already in May the 13th Congress of the Russian Communist Party favored the proletarian literature orientation, there is no doubt whatever that the conference which has shown the strength and unity of proletarian literature will contribute considerably to the realization of this decision of the party congress.

AT the conference proletarian literature was reviewed. It showed that this literature is already past the stage of infancy, it is past the period when the voice breaks, it has left behind it the period of vacillation, unsteadiness and disunity. In serried ranks it enters the next stage of increased creative production. The tasks are difficult, but our strength is unlimited.

BUILDERS AT WORK

SUB CAMPAIGN GATHERING SPEED

Bundles of Sample Copies Going Out

EACH day there is more evidence that the Second Annual Sub Campaign for 15,000 new subscribers by June 15 is going to hit its mark and very likely shoot past it.

Our offer of free copies of the DAILY WORKER for one week to locals is eagerly being taken up and one branch even wired in so they could begin a real membership drive in this manner. If your branch has not adopted this plan, be sure to bring it up at your next meeting.

From Detroit, Milwaukee and other cities we are receiving the assurance of local comrades that they are making the drive and that we will soon hear from them "with a bang," as one comrade puts it.

From New Orleans where a lone Communist and real BUILDER—J. C. Das—is doing his share, we receive two subs to begin with. This loyal builder assures is it is only a beginning for him and that he will "stick until June 15."

Others are doing the same. Our list of sub-getters will soon be reaching army size and here are a few whose NEW subs we listed today:

CHICAGO, ILL.—D. E. Earley, Thurber Lewis (3), John Heinrichson.
KANSAS CITY, KAN.—M. O. Sullivan.
BUFFALO, N. Y.—Chas. Dirba.

The Housing Situation in England

By J. Turner

IF we need any proof that British capitalism is crumbling, it is quite evident from the fact that it has utterly failed to house its workers. Prior to 1914 the situation was pretty bad but has since been aggravated by the lack of building and the terrible over-crowding that has followed.

Our mining villages and industrial towns are a standing disgrace to our so-called civilization. A report of an enquiry into the state of the coal industry says:

> "No one can read the grim story of the squalor, over-crowding, and insanitary conditions in which a great part of our mining population live today, without a sense of shame. Long rows of one-roomed houses, built of the stone of the locality, to which sometimes a larder was afterards added. There was generally no window or door at the back, the only door being that which led into a cinder-strewn yard—a quagmire in winter. An open gulley carried away all the slops of the tenants. At intervals, in the middle of the yard, huts would be erected, divided into privies, ash-pits, and maybe coal-houses, and these might be, but often were not kept in repair. Water could be drawn from a stand-pipe in the yard, one or two for each row of houses."

MOST of the villages consist of houses of one, or at the most two rooms, and in these, very often, large families have to live. The following cases are quite common.

In Consett (county Durham) in a house of two rooms, (the upper one being reached by a ladder thru a hole in the floor of the upper room,) there live a man, wife and 6 children, including two girls of 21 and 23 and a boy of 18.

The average room space for the whole county is 0.77 per person, (1921 census returns) and in the mining and industrial district it is very much less than that.

THE county of Lanark tells a similar story. In the north-east corner lives 1,539,000 people, (about one-third of Scotland's population) and the district is a mass of slag heaps, chimney stacks, blast furnaces, and insanitary houses. There are 321,471 houses in the country, 61,200 single-roomed, 155,285 two-roomed, i. e., two-third of the houses contain at the most two rooms.

The mining villages are clustered round the pit-shafts, and the dust and grime penetrates to every nook and makes the task of the women hopeless.

Their burden is increased by the fact that practically none of the pits have baths attached to them and the miner, returning home from work, covered from head to foot with grime, and often wet to the skin, has to strip and wash in the room that has to serve for living, dining, often sleeping, and sometimes as the only storehouse for the coals. The women are incessantly waging war against dirt, working from early morn to late at night, and the position is often aggravated by the fact that two or more miners live in the same house, and are employed on different shifts, and this means double work for the women.

ONE of the great evils of most of the mining villages and also many of the agricultural distrist is that the houses are owned by the employers, and so the tenant is compelled to leave the house when his work for that employer is finished, whether he has been stopped or left of his own accord.

In the early days of capitalism, when labor was needed for the machines, small houses were rapidly thrown up without any thot of sanitation or health. Many of these are still standing today and although condemned years ago, are still occupied.

Birmingham, a center of the iron and steel trades, is typical of our industrial towns. To cite but two cases from this city are quite sufficient.

1. Father, mother and 4 children all sleep in one bed and live and sleep in one room.
2. Father, mother and 9 others of the family, (aged 3 months to 5½ years) have one living room, bedroom and an attic.

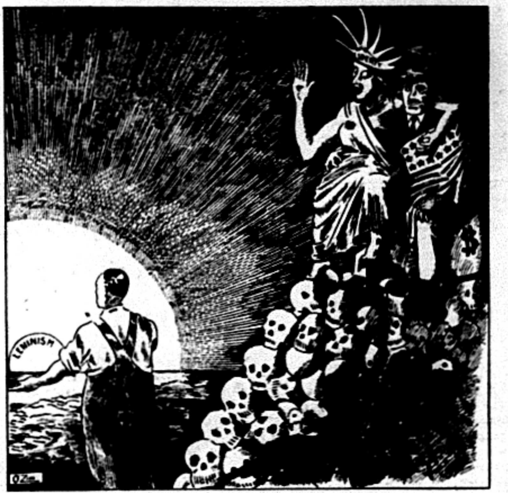
These houses often have no water supply or sanitary convenience.

FOR the privilege of existing in these hovels, the workers pay, not only exhorbitant rents, but often with health, and life, as the following shows:

The city falls easily into three divisions, the central wards, which are mainly slums, the inner circle of unhealthy wards, and the outer circle, where the richer classes live.

	Central Pct.	Middle Pct.	Outer Pct.
Back-to-back houses	51-57	27-47	0.1-8
Total death rate, 1914-18 (per 1,000 population)	19.3-21.8	13-17.8	9.4-10.9
Infant mortality: Death rate (per 1,000 births)	134-171	94-126	60-78
Measles (death rate per 1,000 population)	0.56-0.72	0.39-0.46	0.0-0.12
Bronchitis and pneumonia (death rate)	3.63-2.68	2.32-3.12	1.19-1.62
Phthisis	1.63-2.63	1.17-1.42	0.67-0.89
Infant summer diarrhoe	29-57	19-26	3-9

Turning on the Light



Rents Legislation

AT the beginning of the war, the housing situation began to grow more acute. Thousands of workers flocked into the industrial centers, until it was almost impossible to get a room. The authorities erected wooden huts as a tempory expedient, but these were not sufficent to relieve the position. Rents soon soared but as a result of organized opposition on the part of the workers, the rent restrictions act (1915) was passed, forbidding the increase of rents.

The first legislation, however, was to prevent eviction, for the dislocation of industry, that followed the outbreak of war had caused much unemployment, and to protect the workers the courts (emergency) powers act forbade evictions for non-payment of rent without the permission of the courts.

THE rent restrictions act (1915) applied to houses of not more than £35 annual rental, i. e. working class houses. No provision was made for furnished houses, with the result that many were let, containing a few inferior articles of furniture, and the landlord had complete control. This act remained until six months after the war, when it was replaced by a further act allowing 10 pct. increase in rent and covering houses up to £70. This was amended in 1920 by a bill to last three years and provided for an increase of 40 per cent and also included a clause making profiteering in furnished rooms illegal.

The position had now become so keen that "key money" was aften paid for the possession of houses, sometimes as much as £20 being paid for the key of a small cottage.

WITH the fixed rental, the return on property was small compared to those of industry, and much of the property found its way on to the market. Many of the workers bought their own houses, only to find that they had paid a fictitious price for them.

Building and Legislation

It became quite apparent, after the conclusion of the war, that there was no hope of private enterprise supplying the necessary houses, and the government took action by passing the housing of the people act (1919), making it compulsory for the local authorities to supply the shortage. 45,000 houses were built as a result, but on the grounds of economy, the subsidy was curtailed and operations almost seased. The loss on the building, which was being vorne by the state, was estimated at £10,000,000 for the year, the cost of the houses being £1,100 each.

Where did the Money go!

THIS was the natural question which arose out of the situation. The press said, "To the building workers." This was untrue. The material were under the control of rings who took adventage of the position to force prices up to the highest possible limit. The following tables are a comparison:

	1914	1918	Increase Pct.	1920	Increase Pct.
Bricklayers (per hour)	10 1-2d.	1-6d.	71	2-4d.	165
Laborers (per hour)	6 1-2d.	1-2d.	115	2-1d.	176
Cost of living	100 pct.		125		176
Bricks (per 1,000)	29.0	58.2		81.6	184
Iron pipes (per ton)	£7	£14.1		£23 4-6	232
Slates			64.7		222.2
Iron Bars (per ton)	£9			£32	246

Nails, 233 pct., timber 300 pct., baths, stoves, etc., 291 pct.

OTHER material had risen in a similar manner, and it is clear that the scheme failed because the rings exploited the situation. The result was that the rents of the houses were so high that the workers could not afford to pay them, and most of them were compelled to take in lodgers and thus bring the authorities up against the question of over-crowding in a new light.

Direct Labor

The class struggle reflected itself keenly in the administration of the act, and on most of the local councils a keen struggle waged for the use of direct labor in the building of the house, and thereby effect an economy that enable them to let at a cheeper rent. In the cases where this was carried out, the houses were let at a rent of 10 to 16 shillings per week, while those built by private contractors were often from 15s to £1-1 per week. The saving thus effected was good.

IN Bradford, the cost per house was £259 against the contract price of £1,004. In Tonbridge, the cost per house was £876 against the contract price of £1,070. In Newmarket, the cost per house was £761 against the contract price of £1,172.

The rings, however, did their best to cripple the position, and many of the councils found their building material held up. The Bradford council tried to solve the problem by purchasing a brickworks for the making of their own bricks. These were used by the direct labor that they employed and the surplus was sold to the contractors who were building for them.

The rings, however, were not at all in sympathy with the idea, and compelled the contractors, under threat of boycott, to refrain from using the bricks. And at one time, the position was such, that while the brickyard was stocking its surplus bricks, a contractor, who was building in the next field was waiting for bricks, which, when he received them, had to be carted two miles. Thru the reactionary element on the council and the action of the rings, the brickworks had to be sold, having proved a failure to solve the problem. In this way private enterprise exploited the position at every opportunity, and held up the supply of houses.

THE excuse that they made for the lack of building was that there was not sufficient labor to carry out the work, but the labor available had never been absorbed by the industry.

The ministry of labor figures show that in December 1924 there were 86,025 building trade workers unemployed, and 25,715 of the public works and contracting workers, while in August when the trade should be at its best, the figures were 78,068 and 22,825 respectively.

Labor Government and Housing

With the advent of a labor government the workers looked for some relief. Mr. Wheatley introduced his housing bill granting a subsidy of £6 per year covering a period of 20 years, providing that the houses were let at a rent of about 10s: per week. Conferences were called, both of the workers and the masters, and each gave their word that they would do all they could to make the scheme a success. The workers agreed to admit others into the trade after an intensive training, and the masters promised not to force up the price of the materials. In spite of this, the price of bricks increased almost the next day, and other materials soon followed suit. The threats of the government were of no avail, but they took no action. They were too busy enslaving the German workers, to think of the workers at home, and having accomplished their task, were thrown out of office before any material improvement had taken place.

Tory Government and Steel Houses

A TORY government followed, and Lord Weir, who is interested in the Clyde shipyards, found a method of building houses of steel plates. The government immediately gave its support to this method in spite of the fact that the cost exceeded that of the brick house. Some criticism was given of this type, and it was stated on good authority that these houses would prove to be extremely hot in summer and cold in winter, also verminous and damp.

The minister of health, however, was not to be put off so easily, and in replying said, "What if these allegations are true? Are slum houses free from vermin? Are they rain or damp proof? Are they always cool in summer and warm in winter?" Evidently the tory government thinks that the slum standard is good enough for the workers.

A dispute arose over the rates of pay of the men who were building them. The men employed in the erection were engineers, who received about £1 per week less than the building workers, and the Builders' Union claimed that these men should be paid the standard rate of the industry. Lord Weir refused to discuss the question, on the grounds that these men were members of the Engineers' Union, and received the agreed rates of that union.

THE rings once more took advantage of the situation, and the Light Castings Federation, the only one that need fear no competition, once more put up the price of their goods.

The Fight Against Evictions

After the end of the war, evictions became prevalent. The control had to some extent been relieved and it was now easier for the owner to obtain possession of his house. Many of the owners were desirous of getting rid and in order to get a better price for the house, first get rid of the tenant. The unemployed, unable to pay their rent out of the miserable pittance they received, were the greatest sufferers.

THEY were however, well organized, and were not prepared to take the matter lying down. They rallied their forces to the scenes of the evictions, and by force of numbers, either prevented the eviction of the tenant, or replaced the furniture after the officials had left. They interview local authorities, and were often successful in getting the notices cancelled. But while many of their members were houseless, there were in many localities, houses standing empty, and they took the law into their own hands, and very often seized the houses and put their members into them, while the landlord, rather than go to the expense of the law to move them, often let them stay.

Another tactic used successfully by the unemployed was to change over the tenants against whom the notices were served, so that when the officials came to carry out the eviction, the person against whom it was out did not live in the house, and so it was necessary to go over the whole of the proceedings afresh.

The workers have often come up against the police in these fights, and many have been severely injured and imprisoned for the part that they have taken in the struggle.

Rent Strikes.

THE revolt also found expression in rent strikes which took place in various parts of the country. A Tenants' Defense League had been established, to defend tenants, in the courts against evictions, and illegal increases of rents. The league was controlled by the social democratic element and was most careful to keep well within the law. In Manchester, a rent strike took place. Two streets were involved. The landlords had not given the necessary "notice to quit," and the tenants, relying on the support of the league, had a clear case. The league refused to give its support as they said it was unfair that advantage should be taken of a small error to deprive the landlord of his rights, and so the strike fell thru. In London and other centers, strikes took place, with varying degrees of success, but nowhere in the country was the fight so persistently and tenaciously carried on as in the Clydebank area in Scotland.

CLYDEBANK is a town of about 50,000 inhabitants, the main part of whom are engaged in the Engineering works of Beardmore and Singer.

The houses are owned by these firms and in 1914 they tried to force up the rents. The women of the district revolted and refused to pay the increase. The workers then organized for the fight in the Clydebank Housing Association.

Enthusiasm was strong, and in the windows cards were displayed bearing such slogans as "No Increase in Rent," "No Evictions," etc.

The landlords tried to force the increase from them by issuing notices of eviction, but they were not so easily beaten. Sentries were posted at the street corner to watch for the coming of the officials, and cycling scouts were in readiness, so that in a very short time, the workers could be rallied to prevent it.

The landlords then tried the tactic of suing their tenants in court for debt. On the day of the trial, when the courts opened, hundreds of dungaree clad men, straight from the workshop, crowded into the court, packing it to the doors. The whole of the workers of the district had rallied to the call.

THE authorities were aghast. Something must be done, so they got in communication with London. Something was done, the rent restrictions act was passed. A victory for working class solidarity.

With the termination of the act, the landlords demanded an increase of 60 per cent, although legally they only could claim 33 1-3 per cent. This the workers refused to pay and in August, 1920, the whole of Scotland declared a one day's strike in protest.

A legal flaw was round in the notices that had been served on them. The landlord and not his agent should have signed the notice, and they fought them on the grounds that they were not legal. The well-known case of Kerr vs. Bride was taken into the courts and fought on these grounds. The decision was given in favor of the tenant, and although it was carried to the county sheriff, the court of appeal, and in October, 1920, to the house of lords, the tenant still had the victory.

IN 1923, the government passed a bill allowing the tenant to keep the unpaid increases, but made no allowance for the return of those that the landlords had received illegally. It also allowed the right of appeal to the court of the sheriff for the making good of any "bona fide" errors or omission that may have been made. This was fought on the grounds that the errors made were not "bona fide" and as yet no settlement of the position has been reached and all the increases are still illegal.

The struggle is still raging, and in the meantime the rents that are mounting up as it is necessary for the landlord to refuse the offered rent otherwise that would become the agreed rent and he would have to commence the whole proceedings again. They cannot evict them, for the scouts are still alert.

THE labor council and provost are on the workers' side, altho there are £70,000 owing in rates, while the landlords have so far lost £150,000 and the amount is growing at the rate of £50,000 per month. But the workers are determined to carry on the fight until their demand for the prewar standard of rent is granted.

The Communist Party.

THRUOUT all the phases of the struggle, the Communist Party has been playing its part, encouraging and supporting the workers in the fight, whether in the constitutional or extra constitutional methods, and putting before the workers its program, such as:

Adequate house room for all badly housed and houseless workers.

Rationing of all housing accommodation.

No evictions of the workers.

No decontrol of rents.

Municipal housing schemes by direct labor.

and at the same time pointed out to them that the only hope for the solution of this and all the other evils from which they were suffering was thru the revolutionary struggle for the workers' republic.

SUN YAT SEN

The death of Sun Yat Sen, leader of the Chinese people's party, Kuomingtang, has brought to the attention of the world the mighty role played by him in the Chinese independence movement. He was an uncompromising foe of western imperialism and the Kuomingtang party, under his direction, accomplished wonders in uniting the Chinese masses. He was a staunch friend of Soviet Russia and was largely instrumental in bringing about the alliance between the two nations.

High Prices and the Farmer

By IRA SIEBRASSE.

WITH grain prices going up and the time for spring seeding approaching we are reminded that we must make an additional outlay for seed wheat.

While it is customary for farmers to save seed out of their last years' crop, we often sell short in the fall to meet pressing obligations. Then too a number of cases have come to my notice where neighbors have sold all their grain to get rid of weed plants that infest the grain since they do not have the necessary machinery for cleaning and the separation of foul seed. In nearly every such case the farmer has sold his grain at threshing time, but finds no seed in the market till the following seeding time. These farmers are especially hard hit by such market spurts where they were compelled to sell on a low market and buy back when it is high. The grain gambler has all the advantage over the grain grower.

HIGH wheat prices are lauded as the benefactor of the grain grower. This is only a half truth. A few grain growers may temporarily benefit where they have not sold out tho these are exceptional cases. In time the market manipulation gets the best of every grain grower for it depends chiefly on the cost of production as to whether the grain grower makes any profit whatever, and these market spurts have the bad effect of boosting the price of necessities and thus increasing the cost of production for every individual grain grower while only a few have perhaps received any benefit from the increased price of grain.

THE farmer is wrapt up in a system of production, he is also a consumer of grains for he is a grower and feeder of stock, wheat products, as bran and middlings, considerable of which is used in feeding pigs, calves and dairy cows; a local elevator here is grinding poor grades of wheat into stock feed for the home demand to avoid the high freight rate on shipping in other feeds, the result is that the increased cost of feeding becomes a very unprofitable undertaking. The grain grower is not the benefactor in this transaction usually, for grain and milling companies take their profit, from the grain grower and the feeder who frequently are one and the same farmer.

So whichever way the wheel turns it is not our fortune. The producer is always the loser.

THIS is a time of peril for the grain grower, seed is high priced with the general result, that when seed is high much seed is usually put in the ground. In the event of a good general crop of wheat it frequently takes several bushel of grain at the time of threshing to pay for one bushel of seed used at the time of seeding, this is especially true of spring grain seeding. So under present conditions if the wheat market drops with the coming of the next harvest the wheat growers will lose heavily. The farmer has learned all this and acts with caution but he is in a position where he is powerless to guard against the inevitable.

FOR the information of those who think the farmer will be financially benefitted from the increased price of grain, let us say that that will be carefully avoided by the capitalists that prey on the farmer. For the farmer does not set the price on anything he sells nor does he name the price on anything he must buy. Consequently he invariably finds the market down when he sells and up when he must buy. With no stability in prices the farmer has no control whatever over the cost of production.

Often the farmer produces a crop that actually cost him more than he can sell it for. If he fortunately gains a little on one crop, he most assuredly will lose on some other.

AS farmers, our only hope to get more of the product of our labor is to join with the workers in the other industries for workers' control. There may sometimes be reason to question whether some farmer is acting rational but to know the life that he lives and there is no reason to think that he is not a member of the working class.

All power to the dictatorship of the proletariat.

Heine for the Defense.

SPEAKING of General Wriesberg, Heine made the following observation in his closing speech: "This man, with whom we spoke and negotiated daily, now declares himself unable to state anything about the standpoint of the social democratic party."

On the government councillor Henninger: "We learn about him that he was the actual spiritus rector. And this man wanted to render Mr. Ebert harmless long before: To render the man harmless who was the strongest man for the national defense!

"We can actually scent the atmosphere of the time preceding the August 4, 1914. Bethman Hollweg declared this August 4 to be unforgettable. And the kaiser said that he knew no more parties. And there were still people who could not comprehend that they had now to shake hands with social democrats.

"And Henninger wanted to get him out of the way, this man who was a model of fidelity to the German people."—(Dec. 21, Rote Fahne).

"A Preposterous Idea."

WITH regard to Noske's visit to Chemnitz, Heine observed: "It is a perfectly preposterous idea to assert that Noske had any intention of causing a strike in Chemnitz, above all a munition strike. . ."—(Dec. 21, Rote Fahne).

Heine (barrister): "It is of course possible that the incitement and continuation of a workers' strike, especially a munition workers' strike, can in time of war be classified as high treason.

"This is possible. It was also the opinion held by the S. D. party during the war. I am however convinced that the effects of this strike have been exaggerated."—(Dec. 21, Rote Fahne).

Magic Formula of Parity.

REFERRING to the resistance offered by the revolutionary leaders to Ebert's demand for equal representation in the strike committee, Heine declared: "Parity, this magic word, heard with such delight by the workers. By means of this magic word the Reich was saved from Bolshevism on Nov. 10, 1918. With the aid of this magic word the S. D. party was enabled to exercise its political influence, even where, as in Berlin, its organization had broken down. The S. D. party could not command when it was aware that the command would not be obeyed. Had the social democrats at that time issued the command: The strike is a crime, we forbid the strike—they would only have aggravated the strike.

"In such cases it is necessary to employ moral influence with great care, and there was thus no other way but to join the strike committee. The influence to be exercised upon the strike was not to be in the interests of the party, as has been asserted without a shadow of proof, but in the interests of the state and the country."—(Dec. 21, Rote Fahne).

Bulldoze the Masses!

WITH reference to the leaflet distributed with Ebert's agreement, Heine declared:

"In leaflets one is inclined to exaggerate; and Scheidemann did the same thing in his speech of November 9. But what else could he have said to the masses? Whether the people had been victorious on November 9, or somebody else, these were mere rhetoric flourishes."—(Dec. 21, Rote Fahne).

Masses Must Be Deceived!

HEINE (barrister): "Since the social democrats had taken part in several strike committee meetings, they could not protest against the hand-bill. "It is very easy to say that everyone participating in a harmful business is responsible for it as if things were always so simple and straightforward in politics! An individual standing alone and only having to think of himself can always speak straight forwardly. But he condemns himself thereby to incompetence at dangerous moments. Those who think of the whole cannot accord themselves the right to show their colors openly."

"The danger was gigantic.

"In order to prevent the revolution being aimed at by Miller and his set, Ebert and his friends joined the strike committee. It is not treason to try and prevent the treason of others."—(Dec. 21, Rote Fahne)

HEINE (barrister): The speech held by Ebert at the Treptow meeting was characterized by Heine as follows:

"The witness, Lenhoff, has told us most effectively how Ebert spoke as party tactician. This is entirely a part of the total course of action undertaken by Herr Ebert: to keep up communication, to keep a hand in the game, to undertake loyal negotiation for the purpose of ending the strike in the interests of national defense. This was his aim and these were his means."—(Dec. 21, Rote Fahne).

Heine (barrister): "No juridicial deduction can discuss away the fact that the S. D. party joined the strike committee for the purpose of putting an end to the strike. The left radicals, who wanted to continue the strike, were equally well aware of this."—(Dec. 20, Vorwarts).

Saving Germany from "Russian Chaos."

HEINE (barrister):

"The role played by Ebert in January, 1918, precisely as in November, 1918, resulted in saving the fatherland. As compared with the mutinous sailors, the emissary, Liebknecht, and the people rushing about the streets with red flags, men like Ebert, without legitimation (Ebert was the only one who had received a legitimation from the kaiser) played their role 'simply out of genuine old German sense of duty.'

"On November 10, I spoke, on friendly and human terms, with the depressed General v. Wriesberg. At that time he recognized very well what we had accomplished. Many of these old officials held out faithfully and placed themselves at our disposal. It is an injustice that precisely these circles, who helped us at the time to protect ourselves from sinking into the chaos of Russia, should now measure with such narrow judgment the man without whom the whole of our efforts would have been doomed to failure."—(Dec. 21, Rote Fahne).

THE capitalist class is slashing wages in the textile industry! Wage cuts are in preparation for the coal miners of America! The "open shop" is raising its ugly head, threatening the living conditions of every worker!

We must distribute a million leaflets, "Strike Against Wage Cuts!"

We must organize shop committees!

We must initiate amalgamation of the weak craft unions into powerful industrial unions!

The party must do the work! The party must pay the bills!

Make a collection at once in your branch and send it in to the national office.

INTERNATIONAL NOTES

BELGIUM

BRUSSELS—At an extraordinary congress of Belgian miners recently held here to discuss the wage question, the delegation from the Knights of Labor, the militant miners' organization, affiliated with the R. I. L. U., was refused admission to the session. Four members of the latter organization which was holding a conference at the some time, entered the congress hall with the following communication addressed to the executive committee of the reformist organization:

"We renew our proposal for a joint congress of all miners' organizations with the object of deciding on the means for struggle to be used against the mine bosses' attack on wages.

"The delegation of the Federation of Knights of Labor demands to be allowed to participate in the work of the congress, and the right to speak in defense of the stand taken by the miners organized in the national Federation of the Knights of Labor . . ."

Upon the return of the delegation with the answer of the reformist chiefs, the congress of the Knights of Labor launched an appeal to all Belgian workers, and particularly to the miners, to support the proposals for united resistance that they had adopted; calling attention to the propaganda caried on by the committee of action (Communists and Knights of Labor) for preparing the miners for united resistance against the mine-owners, and attacking the reformists who ignored the proposal for a united front.

But Accept Wage Cuts.

The militant elements having been excluded from the congress by the Miners' Union the chiefs had no difficulty in getting the delegates to accept on behalf of the miners they represented the new 6 per cent wage-cut announced by the mine-owners.

It is not long since the bureaucrats of the Miners' Union forced the Belgian miners to accept an 8 per cent wage-cut by sabotaging the grea Borinage strike, which lasted for three months, and in which the miners displayed such a bitter fighting spirit and such steady resistance that the governor declared martial law. Indignation against the yellow chiefs reached a great pitch at the time. and now a wide-spread revolt is expected against this latest piece of treachery.

BULGARIA

BELGRADE—The relentless hunting down and persecution of the Communists and the Peasants' Party by the Bulgarian government, and the utter impossibility of carrying on any legal action of any sort whatsoever, has resulted in the flight en masse of workers, peasants and intellectuals to the mountains, from which, organizd in "tchetes," they are carrying on unceasing guerilla warfare against the government. These "tchetes" are composed of groups of 30 to 50 men, organized on a military basis, under the leadership of an elected commander. A systematic struggle against the fascists and the government is being carried on by the "tchetes," weakening and disorganizing the government apparatus, and in these fighting groups the masses have a real and effective weapon against their oppressors.

Bands of this sort have been formed in all parts of Bulgaria, and the government has never yet succeeded in capturing any of them. The peasants and workers aid them in every possible way, thus rendering the government's pursuit of them difficult in the extreme. Recently the government adopted a new method in its efforts to capture these revolutionary bands, proclaiming a reward of 200,000 to 300,000 leva for every member of the "tchete" taken. The Bulgarian government has already appropriated 30 million leva for this purpose.

GERMANY.

BERLIN—The central organ of the German Communist Party publishes information revealing the preparations being made by the government against the working class in anticipation of a general strike in all the leading industries. The whole navy is in readiness, the army newly equipped with ammunition, and submarines are patrolling the coast. Agreements in the mining, metal, transport and a number of other industries are just coming to a close and the sentiment in favor of united action against the merciless exploitation of labor under the Dawes plan in the form of a general strike is gaining tremendous momentum among the rank and file of the German workers. The government is doing its best to jail the Communist leaders and smash up the Communist Party thru the great anti-Communist "Cheka Trial" before the storm breaks, and the press is broadcasting warning against the Bolshevik danger, and throwing out dark hints about yet one more "Zinoviev Letter."

Shop Committee Congress.

The recent congress of shop committees of the Berlin-Brandenburg district demonstrated the extent of Communist influence in this important industrial district, and the readiness of the workers for the fight which is facing them. Of the 355 delegates present, 4 were social-democrats, 4 independent social-democrats. 1 syndicalist, 119 non-party, and 234 Communists.

Comrade Ruth Fischer, Communist reichstag deputy, addressed the congress, recalling the treachery of the social-democratic government and trade union officials, and telling of the paramount importance of trade union unity in the coming intesification of the struggle. In the course of her answer to an interruption on the part of a delegate opposed to unity, Comrade Fischer quoted a bitter attack by a leading organ of German heavy industry on the present unity tactics of the Communist Party, as fraught with the gravest danger for capitalist interests. Speaking of the new battle facing the workers, Comrade Fischer pointed out that the much-heralded project of the trade union bureaucrats for a referendum in connection with the eight-hour day had vanished into thin air, that they were trying to dupe the masses by going thru the motions of formal resistance, but that this, like their whole opposition to the Luther government was the purest bluff.

Welheim, a worker in the Siemens shops, and deputy to the Prussian landtag, recalled the conditions of revolution under which the shop committees were first brot into being, and showed the role that these councils might play in cases of strike and political crisis.

Disillusionment of Masses.

The session was marked by an incident significant of the disillusionment and disgust with the social-democratic leaders that revelation upon revelation of their treachery and corruption is spreading among their former working class supporters Among the workers who took the floor was a member of the social-democratic party, who works in one of Berlin's great metal concerns. He declared that many workers now perceived the full treachery of the social-democrats. The Ebert trial had finally opened their eyes. In the huge establishment where he worked there had been no meting of the shop committees for a year and three months, owing to social-democratic sabotage. In conclusion he said: "We want to work with you: We want to re-establish trade union unity, because this gives the only possibility for the proletraiat to get out of its present misery."

Vigorous resolutions were passed advocating trade union unity, amnesty for political prisoners, etc.

AUSTRIA.

AUSTRIA — The Austrian social-democrats have become involved in the same sort of unclean mess as their German and Swedish and Dutch brethren. A scandal is coming to light, the Sklars scandal, which promises edifying revelations quite up to the standards of the Barmat affair. With the aid of the social-democratic ministers, Sklarz and his accomplices stole about 300 milliard Austrian crowns which they used to further a number of crooked deals. The ministers most deeply involved in the affair are Matasia and Schueff.

The social-democratic press has not breathed a word about the matter, but the Communist Vienna Rote Fahne has been making up for the omission. At the same time that they are protecting these grafters, the social-democratic authorities are using the forces of the state against the Communists. Just lately they raided the secretariat of the Austrian Communist Party, and also seized the Red Soldier, the Communist paper for distribution in the army.

The Communist Party, which has just been re-organized on a firmer basis, recently held a great demonstration against the Ramek cabinet, and against the expulsion of the Polish comrade, Baral, condemned to death in Poland, who has been living in Vienna for the past four years.

Concerning Russian Women

By IDA DAILES.

MANY of us have "learned about women" of Russia from Tolstoi, Dostoievski, Gorki, Chekhov, and other great Russian writers of the years preceding the 1917 revolution. To us, generally speaking, the Russian women fall into three board groups: the neurotic, amorous woman of society as typified by Anna Karenina; the victim of the wife-beating peasant described to us by Gorki; and the interesting prostitute who seemed to be a fascinating subject for most of the Russian writers. There was much of the glamor of romance about these women, not only because of the intrinsically romantic types which were described but also because they were aided by the pens of the masters who presented them.

HOWEVER, I have just finished reading a little pamphlet entitled "Work Among Women," which contains a number of reports on various phases of the work of the Russian Communist Party and the Soviet government among the women of Russia and the Eastern Soviet republics. And it seems to me that there is more romance in the facts, figures, analysis and plans contained in these reports than there is in all the work of all the masters of Russian literature. Here the words are inspired not by literary genius, not by the urge of the artist to express himself, but by the simple necessity of stating what has been done, what the conditions are and what must be done. And it is truly remarkable to learn what has been done under the terrible heritage that was left to the Russian working class, and especially the working women of Russia, by czarist oppression, war, revolution, blockade and famine.

LET me quote from the introductory explanatory note:

> "In the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, Communist women concentrate all their talents and energies on constructive work, on the social reconstruction of their respecwomen workers to the economic and social reconstruction of their respective countries. The missed opportunities of many centuries are to be made good over night.
> "The reports of our women comrades are nothing but records of hard, practical and fruitful work. This work may seem to many humdrum, even 'reformist.' But those whose souls and minds are open to.. the great symphony of the class conscious march towards Communism, will be able to detect revolutionary chords even in this everyday work. They will realize that these reports are a record of untiring, self-sacrificing and skillful work and a reflex of the creative forces within the women's movement. All this characterizes not only the leading women comrades, but also the millions of women among whom they work."

The reports contained in the pamphlet cover the following:

> The Russian Communist Party at work among women. Methods of approaching working women. Women's delegate meetings. Mass methods of work. The press as a means of organizing the proletarian women. Methods of approaching the working women thru the unions. Forms and methods of work among the women of the Soviet East. Protection of mothers and infants. The woman worker and the communal dining rooms.

THERE is also an appendix, outlining a program for working women's study circles, dealing with questions ranging from factory production, technical equipment, etc., to the history of the world revolution and the Communist International.

When I read the report on work among the women of the Soviet East, I thought of the Negro problem in the United States. The contrast between the Soviet method of dealing with the enslaved women of the East and that of the United States in dealing with the enslaved Negroes is very striking. Both groups were freed formally by their governments. But in Soviet Russia formal decrees are not enough. The problem of bringing these women up to the economic and cultural level of the advanced sections of working women is being tackled vigorously and practically. Among other things, eastern women are being drawn into the Communist university and then sent back to the east to carry on theoretical and practical education and reconstruction among their countrywemen.

WHILE the Communist Parties of the western countries have entirely different problems to meet in their work among women, every Communist can read this pamphlet with interest and profit. The women of Russia will have much to contribute to the western preletariat in the way of practical experience when the western countries are faced with the problem of building up the Communist society in their own countries.

"The Processional"

A Cross Section of American Life.
Forty-Ninth Street Theater,
New York.

THE THEATER GUILD have once again jarred the conventional and long-established. Last season we had the "R. U. R." and the "World We Live In." Now we have "The Processional" a jazzy cross section of American life upon which the critics are furiously disagreeing.

The scene is laid in West Virginia with a strike 'n soldiers 'n sheriff 'n a Heart reporter (who is sorry for everybody but can't do a thing about it) 'n a Yiddish business man afflicted with a jazz-mad daughter (not satisfied with the "Victerola" that her pa-has bought for her)'n Psinski, the Polish-born strike leader who welcomes a week with the hero "Dynamite Jim" in a cellar as a golden opportunity to "explain the workers' position in history." There is our old friend the President of the "Law and Order League" the Sir Galahad of 100 per cent morality who warns the obsequious sheriff against "women who are making propositions to the soldiers" who have been brought in to break the strike. We have the "ku klux klan in solemn konklave assembled sitting in judgment on 'outraged womanhood'" who sentenced the heroine to a good whipping and the tar and feathers for being present when the outrage took place.

"Dynamite Jim" is the desperate identity who is the center of the piece. He lands in prison on the 4th of July because he does not feel like kissing "Old Glory" as he lies with it in the gutter. Having built up a reputation locally as an infernal nuisance the ruling class decided that a hanging bee is as good a way out as possible. They provide the coffin but Jim escapes and in doing so he kills a soldier. With the aid of Psinski he escapes to his mother's home—a leaky barn—all that is left to the family after a hundred years pioneering in the West Virginia hills. The melancholy Psinski nearly talks Jim to death. Eventually Jim is caught "by the seat of the pants" by the soldiers. He is turned over to the 100 per centers and they put out his eyes. He is then thrown into Charleston gaol. He rejoins the strikers who are trying to settle accounts with the ku kluxers Dawn see the latter disappear, for as Psinski says "Nightriders don't work in daylight." Jim loses his companions and in the forest he meets Sadie, the daughter of the Jewish businessman. She is now carrying a child of his. The Hearst reporter shows a way out. "The killing of a few people doesn't matter, but an illegitimate child is a serious matter," and proposes marriage.

Jazz plays thru the play, the action is rapid, running the gamut of comedy, pathos and tragedy. Some of the critics hail "The Processional" as a truly great play, an effort to portray the individualism, lawlessness and general irresponsibility of life in industrial America. The playwright, John Lawson, knows his West Virginia and its problems. He minces no words and hurls bricks very hard and very often which are calculated to make the average playgoer quite uncomfortable. The casting has been done with the usual Theater Guild thoroness, the players interpreting their parts with sincerity and understanding.

"The Processional" started at the Garrick and then went to the Comedy. It is now at the Forty-Ninth Street Theater. It should be upon its merits destined for a long run. It jars the placid and easy-going and is by no means entirely flattering to the radical. It stings and lashes and plays havoc with Babbittry, conservative and radical.

If you are just a big-town person go and see it, you'll view another America, an industrial jungle with its inhabitants. When the sky covering vegitation of the carboniferous period hid the steamy earth from the sun, it never harbored such denizens, such struggles, such blind efforts towards the light as "The Processional" shows have grown up around the petrified plants and trees which lie in the mountains after aeons of time. See it twice, anyway.—"AUSSIE."

Party Construction in C. I. Sections

has been done in connection with the formation of Communist fractions in non-party mass organizations of the working class and in connection with placing Communist fractions under the control of the party. And yet the few Communist fractions which exist mainly in parliaments are, because of their short-comings a source of much harm to the Communist parties.

CENTRAL and local committees of a considerable number of Communist parties do not pay sufficient attention to this question. The minute instructions of the E. C. C. I. of February 1924 on the organization of Communist fractions, their work and their relations with party organs compelled on the basis of the experience of the Russian Communist Party and other sections of the Communist International, have hitherto remained on paper, and in the meantime the actions of individual members of the Communist fractions are doing great harm to the Communist parties.

IN many countries Communist members of trade unions, co-operatives and other workers' organizations are not yet co-ordinated into Communist fractions. Hence it is easy for the trade union and co-operative bureaucrats from the social-democratic party to drive the Communists out of the above-mentioned mass organizations.

It is essential to organise nuclei in the workshops and to form Communist fractions. At the same time these nuclei and fractions must be given a proper lead by the party organs.

With a correct organization of the party and with correct and flexible tactics applied thru nuclei and Communist fractions Communist parties will be victorious in the struggle with capitalism.

All That Storm Left of Miners' Home.

INTERNATIONAL WORKERS' AID APPEALS FOR HELP TO WORKING CLASS VICTIMS OF THE TORNADO

Knowing that the working class is always the greatest sufferer in any calamity, and asserting that those whose daily business it is to rob and exploit the workers are scarcely to be expected to give the working class victims of the tornado in southern Illinois more than superficial attention, and will not do anything to strengthen the miners' union whose members have suffered he greatest disaster, the International Workers' Aid has issued an appeal for strictly proletarian aid to be given to aid the bereaved and suffering workers who are victims of the storm. The appeal follows:

• • • •

Help the working class storm victims! Thousands of workers and their families are left homeless and destitute by the ravages of the most devastating tornado in the history of the country.

Hundreds are killed and thousands injured! Whole mining towns have been razed to the ground; other towns and villages have been partially demolished.

As in all great tragedies, it is the workers who are suffering the greatest hardships. The miners in Southern Illinois, the most affected storm area, have won for themselves, thru many years of struggle, one hundred per cent organization. They made the mine owners afraid of them. They have formed a solid phalanx against attackers of workers' rights. Now they are in distress. Let the workers of America come to their aid!

Many relief agencies are at work. Thousands of dollars are being appropriated by the several states and by business interests to relieve the suffering survivors and rehabilitate the devastated area. But that isn't enough. It is never enough.

The histories of similar catastrophes have shown that the workers and their families are always the last consideration, that profiteering and grafting are rampant and inflict added and needless suffering upon the working class victims which is concealed by the capitalist press and covered up with hypocritical lies. Capitalism, when it pretends to be most Christ-like, is still capitalism

LIPTZIN, OF N. Y. LOCAL NO. 5, TO SPEAK TONIGHT

Protest Outrages of Manager Levin

Sam Liptzin, of the famous Local 5, Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, suspended by President Sidney Hillman from the joint board, will speak at the great mass protest meeting of Amalgamated members tonight at 8 o'clock, at Temple Hall, corner of Van Buren street and Marshfield Ave.

The meeting is to protest against the outrageous action of Sam Levin, manager of the Chicago joint board, in taking members of the union off their jobs and thus depriving them of a chance to earn a livelihood, merely for distributing a leaflet issued by Local 5 of the A. C. W. of New York City.

Predict Huge Demonstration.

Judging by the sentiment prevailing in the shops, this meeting is expected to be a huge demonstration against the Hillman-Levin machine for trying to drive members out of the trade, reduce them to starvation or compel them to obey the autocratic orders and follow the class collaborationist policy of the machine.

The inference can be drawn that the Hillman-Levin machine is picking this particular time to throw the best militant workers out of the shops, because thereby the machine will be better able to put over the new agreement with wage reductions, production standards and readjustments against the interests of the workers and for the interests of the manufacturers. The machine openly says the bosses should be helped.

Tell of Many Assaults.

Meanwhile, stories of the outrageous assaults on the rights and the persons of the members by the officials continue to pour into the DAILY WORKER.

Sister T. Reznick was in her shop Friday and a girl told her that Scala, business agent and general executive board member, was in the shop and raided the place just like a gendarme of the old czarist Russia. He was ransacking drawers and boxes, and when asked what for, he answered:

COKE MINERS IN REVOLT AGAINST BIG WAGE CUT

Operators Slash Pay $2.25 per Day

By ARNE SWABECK.

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

PITTSBURGH, Pa., March 22.—Coming out to a man five thousand miners of the unorganized territory, Fayette County, Pa., which was so shamefully betrayed by John L. Lewis and his gang in 1922, have struck work in protest of a wage cut scheduled to take effect immediately and to lop off one third of the present scale of wages, making a cut of $2.25 a day.

A goodly part of the strikers are Negroes, and all stand solid refusing to go back to the 1917 scale. The strike is spreading through the county.

Against Steel Trust and Subsidiaries.

The strike is complete in the following camps: Tower Hill No. 1 and No. 2, Allison, Mount Braddock, Royal and Orient, the later place having just been bought by the Byers Iron and Steel Rod company. These camps are located in the heart of the Fayette county coal and coke region.

The mines are owned by the H. C. Frick Coal and Coke company, the Hillman Co., and the Reiney Co. So far the strike is on only the mines of the two latter companies, the H. C. Frick Co. having not as yet posted notices of wage cuts, evidently holding off to see how well this first rebellion turns out.

Immediate Eviction Notice Served.

A wage cut took place in these mines last year in June but the pres-

FAIRMONT, W. Va., March 22.—Eleven bodies have been removed from mine 41 of the Bethlehem Steel corporation, near here, where an explosion entombed 34 miners last week.

All eleven bodies were found in the left heading, which has now been sealed. The right heading, where the other 23 bodies are expected to be found, is now being explored.

R. M. Lambie, chief of the West Virginia mine inspectors, said there was practically no hope of finding any of the miners alive.

RIKES TO BE CRUSHED BY PERMANENT MARTIAL LAW, IS MEANING OF STATE POLICE

(Article III)

By MANUEL GOMEZ

State police means perpetual martial law. It means what amounts to ilitary intervention in every strike. It means government by irresponsible d heavily-armed troopers, free to invade any community in the state with r without the permission of local authorities, and to interrupt meetings, ake arbitrary arrests and tyrannize over the workers and poor farmers.

As I pointed out in former articles, the wealthy backers of the Dunlap olice bill in Illinois and similar bills in other states are far more interested n the workers than in the farmers—at any rate when it comes to this matter of "police protection." The state constabulary would be a mobile police force which they could throw into industrial communities in addition to the police already there and which "would not have the disadvantage of being held in check by local organs of government."

Permanent Martial Law

That this is equivalent to permanent martial law must be obvious to anyone who stops to think about it for five minutes. Military and police rule—the rule of clubs and bayonets—is the latest product of capitalist "democracy" which the bankers and businessmen of Illinois are trying to force upon the workers.

How do the workers of Pennsylvania look upon the state constabulary, the original and model force? Are they overjoyed at the thought of a visit from the "cossacks"? Do they feel that this half-disguised system of permanent martial law is for their protection?

Condemned by Pennsylvania Labor Unions

Well if they do, they have a queer way of expressing it. There is not a bona fide labor organization in Pennsylvania which does not denounce the state police as an agency for oppressing the working class in the interests of organized plutocracy.

Up to a few weeks ago Pennsylvania newspapers were full of news of the new barracks which were to be established for the state police in

BRITISH LABOR CLOSING RANKS FOR BIG FIGHT

Miners' Chieftain Is Taking the Lead

That British labor is girding itself for a titanic struggle with the employers is becoming more evident every day. A. J. Cook, chief of the miners' union appears to be taking the lead in organizing the forces of labor nationally to meet the united front of the master class thru their Federation of British Industries.

The British Minority Movement of which Cook is a prominent member, is a counterpart to the American Trade Union Educational League and is the brains and driving force of the united front campaign.

As the DAILY WORKER previously pointed out there is a big division in the ranks of British trade unionists and the battle is raging fiercely in the columns of the London Daily

Kansas City Audience Had Two Workers

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 22.—The "crowd" which listened to Professor Raphael Abramovich, counter-revolutionary emissary of the Second (socialist) International, here recently was limited to sixty, about evenly divided between rich Jewish merchants and beefy Irish policemen.

All workers were barred. However, two workers who were dressed well enough to be mistaken for bourgeois, we admitted. These challenged Abramovich in the midst of his lies, which were more brazenly reactionary than the utterances of Hughes or the late unlamented Curzon.

"HANDS OFF SOVIET RUSSIA!" MEET, MAR. 25

Mass Demonstration in New York City

NEW YORK, March 22.—Acting under the cloak of relief for political prisoners, a new committee has been formed in New York for the purpose of carrying on a campaign against Soviet Russia. Altho there are some liberals in this committee whose "sympathy" with Soviet Russia must be unquestioned, the mainspring of the committee are the counter revolutionary socialists and anarchists.

The revolutionary and class conscious workers of this country have shown that arch-counter revolutionary of the Second International, Mr. Abramovich, that he can find no support here. The United States government is considering the recognition of Soviet Russia—and the counter revolutionary Vladecks, Cahans, and Hillquits, start a campaign against the first workers' and farmers' government in the world.

The Workers Party, Young Workers' League, and the International Workers' Aid have arranged a mass demonstration, which will take place on Wednesday, March 25, at 8 p. m., at Central Opera House, 205 E. 67th St. This demonstration will show that the workers of New York are also able to mobilize their forces under the slogan of "Hands Off Soviet Russia!" The International Workers' Aid is the only working class organization aiding proletarian prisoners in the capitalist dungeons. The appearance of the new committee will only divide the efforts of the workers to assist their revolutionary comrades in prison.

Workers of New York. Appear in your thousands. Show the enemies of the Soviet government that there is no room in America for them. Show your solidarity with the working class prisoners tortured in the capitalist jails. Be at the meeting and bring the workers of your shops.

THIS SAD STORY RECITES FALL OF WILLIAM MAHONEY OF ST. PAUL

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MINNEAPOLIS, March 22.—The days when the olfactory organs of the prodigal son were greeted on the threshold of his parent's home by the delicious odor of calf-soup, are no more. The fatted calf is no longer killed to make a holiday and a feast for the returned wanderer. But the prodigal son is slaughtered to make a Roman holiday for the golden calf. In proof of this contention we will place the late (politically speaking) William Mahoney of St. Paul in the dock.

bare of work again forced restoration of the old scale.

These camps are completely company owned. The miners live in company houses and buy their necessaries in company stores. Immediately at the beginning of the strike, a ten days' eviction notice was given to each striker and the credit in the company stores ceased. Whatever indebtedness the striking miners may have to the store will be balanced against their next pay.

State Police Install Martial Law.

The coal and iron police, which is a special privilege in the state of Pennsylvania, giving owners of coal mines and steel mills the right to deputize such special police, have taken possession of the territory.

During the 1922 general coal mine strike the 40,000 unorganised miners of Fayette county came out and made common cause with their organised fellow workers. They were organized into the U. M. W. of A. when at the settlement of the strike Lewis and the officials of District No. 5 left them all in the lurch and they were finally forced to go back to work completely unorganised, that is at least those that were not victimised by the coal barons.

Lewis Wrecks and Betrays Union.

Special organisers and stool pigeons dispatched by John L. Lewis have since been busy in that territory, not to organize, but to steal all the charters they could get hold of the locals which were organised during the strike, believing that thereby the officials would be absolved from any responsibility for the miserable conditions of the workers.

The Hillman company, whose mines have been struck some time ago, was permitted by President Fagan and the rest of the District No. 5 machine to sign an agreement covering its mines within District No. 5 but exempting those in Fayette county, altho Hines and O'Leary, two of the machine, had originally voted against it.

Want Rank and File Control.

Since then they have both come out and explained that action as a perfectly good union principle in their opinion. Naturally the miners in the struck region and throughout Fayette county are bitter at the betrayals of the officialdom of the U. M. W. of A. but at any and all times are ready to join hands with the rank and file members of the union.

As fast as wage cuts notices are made, the strike is spreading and strike committees to take charge of the situation are rapidly being organised.

Shut Down in West Virginia.

MORGANTOWN, West Va., March 22.—Every union mine now operating in Northern West Virginia will be closed by April 1st, if the present wage scale is in operation at that time, according to a statement issued by the Consolidation Coal Company, one of the biggest coal combines in the world.

This mighty industrial octopus has mines in Maryland, Pennsylvania and Virginia in addition to the pits it operates in this state. It has already suspended operations in twenty two mines in this field and the remaining six are expected to cease operations on April 1.

It was stated unofficially that many Morgantown operators who have contracts with the union will shut down on April 1st. While no statement was made officially, that the mines would open non-union after April 1st, it is hinted that this will be the strategy of the coal operators not only in West Virginia but thruout the country. The coal barons believe it is easier to fight the union by shutting down the mines and letting the scab pits take care of the market until the hungry workers come to terms.

While this danger threatens the United Mine Workers of America John L. Lewis is doing nothing to prepare for the inevitable struggle with the operators but is busy as usual fighting the radicals.

Sinclair Gave No Cash to Navy for Teapot, Is Charge

CHEYENNE, Wyo., March 22.—The contract which former Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Ball signed with the Sinclair Oil interests, turning Teapot Dome over to Sinclair, provided that crude oil royalties should not be paid the navy in cash, it was disclosed here in the government's annulment suit.

The contract Fall made provided that royalties would be taken by Sinclair in exchange for tanks. This, it is thought, is a violation of the provisions under which congress has the sole power to appropriate money for purchases made by the navy.

Liptzin Here in 'Amalgamated' Fight

"Shut up, if you know what is good for you!"

Collaboration Is Exposed.

In Alfred Decker and Cohen pants shop, where Brothers Rudman and Savonovsky were taken off their jobs, when these workers went to get their pay, they were told that they couldn't go inside the shop for fear they might see and talk with others.

However, they visited the other workers anyway and when they explained to other workers of the new orders given by the union thru the bosses, all exclaimed: "Now we see that close co-operation is really existing between the union officers and the bosses!"

The machine is using every trick possible. In the Alfred Decker and Cohen shop they are raising race prejudice. They say: "Why should Italians fight for Jews?" When this failed, they tried something new.

Efforts to Check Attendance.

This new trick is a stall to cool down the anger of the workers and is put out as a rumor to prevent the big protest meeting tonight. The word is being passed around that the victims who were taken off their jobs are going to be returned to the job. Then they say: "It is no use to go to protest meetings!" But the workers see thru this scheme of the machine to spoil tonight's meeting at Temple Hall.

Everywhere the cry is: "Out to the protest meeting! We must show the Hillman-Levin machine that they dare not tamper with the bread and butter of the workers! We reserve the right to ourselves to criticize the officers of our union! The right to protest against their arbitrary action of expelling locals, as in New York, or individual members, as in Chicago!"

The case of Brother Lieberman, who was taken off the job from Hart, Schaffner and Marx factory "M," proves that the Hillman-Levin machine is not interested altogether in distribution of leaflets, but also to drive out of the shops the members who are militant left wing workers. Lieberman was called to Levin's office, and when he was asked if he distributed leaflets, he replied that he did not.

Witnesses Don't Matter.

Levin then said, "Bring witnesses to prove you didn't!" But when Brother Lieberman brought four workers of his shop to testify that they did not see him distribute any leaflets, he was told: "It is no use for you to bring witnesses. You can bring the whole shop to testify for you and it wouldn't help you any. Whatever Kagan, the shop chairman, says, will go with me!"

Because Kagan is a part of Levin's machine, Levin will not take the word, even of all the workers in the shop, but of one member—his tool—against all. When Brother Lieberman said to Kagan, "If you state that I have distributed leaflets, you will be telling a lie!" Kagan could not deny it, but only said, "So you will call me a liar?" "And even if I did distribute leaflets," said Lieberman, "which I did not, I would have a perfect right to do so."

The meeting tonight, at which the members of all Amalgamated locals are invited, will be addressed by Sam Liptzin of New York, Local 5, who will tell of the fight against the Hillman machine.

APPEAL FOR AID FOR WORKING CLASS VICTIMS OF THE STORM and takes advantage of helplessness to make profit.

A tent, a loaf of bread and limited medical care is all the workers can expect from bourgeois relief organizations. These miners who were already starving without a sign of pity from capitalist relief agencies, will not be given more than scant care now. Before the disaster the miners had been hard hit by unemployment. They were very close to destitution even then. There was no thought of giving them "aid" then. There was thought only about the possibility of wrecking the miners' union thru long continued hard times.

But now the whole region is affected—mines have been wrecked, business establishments have been demolished, aside from the miners' dwellings. In a word, a whole district has been literally taken off the map, a section of capitalism has been made useless. That is why chambers of commerce and boards of trustees are so responsive to the "needs of the stricken community."

Capitalism, the coal operators, and their agent in the miners' union, John L. Lewis, have both declared that there were 200,000 miners too many! What sort of care, then, can these victims of the storm expect from these vampires who would work them for profits—then ask them to starve to death quietly and peacefully when they are not wanted—when they are surplus? All the care these vultures give will be little and hypocritical. Such relief can only mean a continuation of their present destitution.

And that in turn will mean what? It will mean that the miners will not be strong enough to fight back attempts that will surely be made to break down their morale and take away their union and what it means to them.

The workers must protect their brothers in the mines and their industries against such unfair and base attacks. The workers must let the miners and workers of southern Illinois know that they don't have to rely solely upon the employing classes and their agents. They must let the miners know there are those willing to help them protect the organization that means so much not only to the miners, but to the whole working class.

The workers of the whole country must come immediately to the aid of their fellow workers in distress. The workers must see that relief work is carried on without distinction and without discrimination. They must dig down in their own pockets to provide relief for workers and their families.

The International Workers' Aid calls upon all workers to contribute funds immediately. The I. W. A. has undertaken to bring relief to the workers and their families in the storm district.

The I. W. A. seeks not only to provide for immediate physical wants, and medical attention, but aims also to provide for the destitute workers' families a measure of economic security, enabling them to protect their organizations and combat the attacks of the employers in their present weakened condition.

THE big problem confronting the working class all over the world today is not so much the abolition of jails, but the question of who should occupy the jails. The robbers and their agents or the robbed? In Russia the robbers and their agents go to jail. It looks like a very mild punishment for such colossal burglars and murderers. Here and in all other capitalist countries the robbed and their leaders, particularly the leaders, go to the penitentiary. Communists cannot too often repeat that jails like war are inevitable under class rule. Both are undesirable. Nobody wants war except a capitalist admiral or general, a moron or the salvation army. But in order to elminiate the causes of war, a war must be waged against capitalism.

ELEVEN UNION MINERS FRAMED UP FOR MURDER

West Va. Coal Barons Use State Police

Mine Workers of America, on the charge of murder.

The union men were landed in jail by the coal baron's police, charged with the murder of Ray Tobin on the night of January 15. The men are James Ryan, John Hogan, Ted Summers, Joe Burk, Irvin Schafer, Ed Rhodes, Julius Kolkrai, Cecil Harris, Nick Serdich, Milton Haught, and Jim Burk. The warrant was sworn out by Tobin's widow.

Scabs Kill Union Miner.

On the night of January 15, the miners say John Kello, a union miner, was walking down the road in Grant Town, near the Union Boarding House and the Union Hall. A band of non-union miners, having just left Anderson's pool room, were coming the other way. They stopped Kello and Tobin fired on him, the miners say. Kello fell dying, and the miners rushed out of the Union Boarding House to defend him. In the volley of shots that ensued, Tobin was killed.

It is noticeable that no one has been arrested for the murder of Kello, altho it is known who was in the party which attacked him.

Counsel for the defendants has asked for a change of venue, on the ground that, Justice Tom Ashcraft, who issued the warrants is also an employe of the New England Fuel and Transportation company owning the mines in Grant Town where the scabs were employed.

Held Without Bail.

The union leaders are being held without bail, pending the convening of the May grand jury.

The West Virginia kept press is printing long articles against the union miners, hinting that the men have confessed, and spreading the report that the miners shot Tobin before Kello was killed. The miners deny this.

State police cossacks made the arrests.

Tobin was a company detective of the worst type, having been employed previously as a mine guard at the Dakota mine. He was out to stir up trouble among the union miners.

The followers of Tobin were all scabs employed by the New England Fuel company, who had been imported to displace the union miners.

The New England Fuel company recently discharged union men and reopened the mine, employing mine guards to protect the scabs.

FRANCE COLD TO PACT FOR ARMS LIMIT

Demands Guarantee of Her Frontiers

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

WASHINGTON, March 22.—France is still proving to be the stumbling block in the efforts of President Coolidge and the Baldwin ministry of Britain toward the holding of a second arms conference in Washington next fall or winter, it was admitted today by administration officials.

Some days have elapsed since President Coolidge publicly proclaimed American willingness to invite the powers to Washington for another arms reducing parley, and in that time the reactions of the world capitals have been carefully noted. France has been cold to the proposition. The Parisian press, which is taken here to reflect the attitude of the French government, has been downright and bitterly hostile.

Two Main Objections.

French objections to again coming to Washington are based primarily on two grounds.

1. A belief that a second arms conference would inevitably result in limitations being placed on aircraft and submarines, two arms in which France is now energetically engaged in strengthening herself to offset British, American and Japanese supremacy, and,

2. Unwillingness to submit to further armament or restriction of any kind without an accompanying pact by which the other world powers, including the United States, guarantee her security and present borders.

This security pact was a part of the French-promoted plan by which the league of nations was going to hold a disarmament conference. It was now collapsed thru Britain's unwillingness to commit herself definitely and irrevocaby to a French alliance.

There Is Another Big Storm on the Horizon,- the Social Revolution

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL

TODAY, Southern Illinois, and strips thru Missouri, Indiana, Kentucky and Tennessee, are struggling to mend the havoc wrought by last week's storm. Lock at the Illinois mine fields. The coal diggers have ceased to burrow for coal. They are digging graves. While the fresh earth is being heaped upon the coffins of their dead the wrecked cities of the living are reared anew.

There are cities and villages in southern Illinois because there is fuel in the ground. But it is the miners who bring up the coal. It is the building tradesmen who erect the dwellings of rich and poor alike, cause store and factory buildings to rise bringing a municipality into existence; all on the broad, bent back of the coal miner underground.

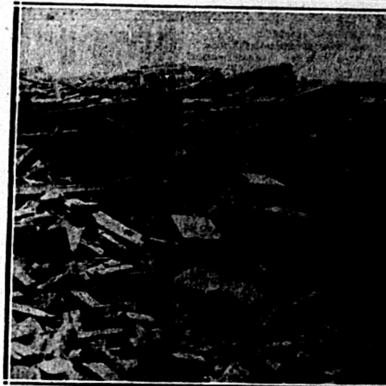
Conditions for these workers will not change with the rebuilding now that the storm has passed. They will remain pretty much the same. It is just the same as saying that conditions do not change for the workers under capitalism.

• • • •

Capitalist charity born of hypocrites' tears will get a crust of bread for some of the homeless. But that will soon be a thing of the past. The hard facts of life must then be faced anew.

The coal miner, penniless and perhaps jobless, will somehow get another shack for his wife and babies, if they still live. The new home like the old one will hardly keep out the rain and the snow, let alone stand against the next tornado's blast.

Wreckage of Workers' Homes Caught in Storm



All that was left of part of working class district after storm hit West Frankfort, southern Illinois coal mining town.

The miners' homes, just like the homes of other workers, are most often to be found on the lowlands, "on the flat" or "in the hollow," where the spring floods get them, if the wind passes by. It is the workers' homes that are built of wood, food for flames.

It is different with the mine owners' residence, or the abodes of the owners of any industry. These are built strong and comfortable of stone or granite. They stand against the storm. All the wreckage of last week's storm showed the broken remains of the homes of the working poor, not of the idle rich. The capitalist has his castle on the hill; just like the robber baron of old. Go into any American city and the rich live on "the heights," where the rising floods in the springtime never reach.

• • • •

All this is true, not only of American workers, but of those who toil in all capitalist nations.

When the last great earthquake shook Japan, it was the workers' districts in the great cities that suffered most. They were destroyed. The abodes of the plutocracy were as quake proof as it was possible to make them.

While the death-dealing cyclone last week swept the middle west of the United States, a devastating fire brought destruction to Tokio, Japan. But it was again the working class district of Tokio, with 10,000 workers made homeless, and the class government of the owners trying to keep the facts of the disaster secret. The truth might stir the thinking workers of Japan to action.

• • • •

The latest issue of the New York Times arrives. This is the organ of the plutocracy. It gives headlines equal in size to the burning of two gorgeous hotels in the millionaires' colony at Palm Beach, Fla., and to the midwest disaster. The fact that a few parasitic millionaires have had their winter holidays interfered with is of equal importance to the misery and sufferings visited upon the workers of one of the busiest coal mining sections of the nation, in which hundreds died, thousands were injured, and tens of thousands made homeless. The names of "the guests" inconvenienced at Palm Beach are of greater importance than the dead in Missouri, Illinois, Kentucky and Indiana. Hence they must be given the first page display. They got it.

• • • •

In Soviet Russia the workers and peasants took over the homes of the parasite rich. It is time that the workers and poor farmers of the United States followed in their glorious footsteps; pending the time when suitable homes can be built for all, proper shelter for human beings against the elements. Such shelter will never be secured under capitalism. It will be achieved under Communism. Let the workers and poor farmers of America think it over. Hurry the day when the capitalists will be the victims of the big storm—the world social revolution.

BRITISH AND U. S. BAGMEN QUARREL OVER MARKETS

South America Main Theatre of War

British and American capitalists are at loggerheads n almost every part of the world. In some places a gentleman's agreement exists, but these agreements are destined to be of short duration. In China for instance, tho British and American capital had different games to play they united against Japan, and to some extent against France.

In South America, however, the struggle between British and American capital is out in the open. British capital, practically dominated the Argentine and Chile and until quite recently Mexico. The revolutions in those countries can be principally traced to the intrigues of those rival interests.

Flew to Wall Street's Bosom.

When President Alessandri of Chile, was forced to flee for his life by the Altamariano forces last September, he took refuge in the American embassy. The British supported his enemy. Britain has the money invested in South American railways, owns most of the banks, but the United States is purchasing the politicians, and capturing the markets.

No laws can be passed by any South American republic without the sanction of either the British or American capitalists. This fact is no longer hidden beneath flowery verbiage. It is openly admitted. It will be remembered that General John J. Pershing has just returned from a trip thru South America. He was temporarily clothed with semi-ambassadorial powers. He dined with politicians, kissed Argentine children and danced the Spanish tango with the charming daughters of Argentine senors.

The Prince of Wales is to follow Pershing's trail. He may beat the general on the polished floor and perhaps will win more favor with the dark-eyed daughters of the South, but as a "heavy sugar daddy" he will not be able to hold his own with "Black Jack." The male gold diggers of the southern republics will send in their bills to Wall Street, tho they might admit the prince can swing a wicked heel and tote an elastic elbow.

The Prince to the Rescue.

The situation in the Argentine stands roughly as follows: The British bagmen are still in the lead as far as investments are concerned. They own most of the railroads and the biggest and best banks. They have considerable social standing there. Two billions of British capital is invested in the Argentine against $200,000,000 of American capital.

But the superior ability of the American factory to produce cheap goods that compare in quality with the British products and the comparative nearness of the Argentine market to the United States is shoving J. Bull's business men out of the commercial picture.

Soviets Adopt Metric System.

MOSCOW—(Rosta)—The work of putting all weights and measures in the Union of Soviet Republics on a metric system basis is progressing rapidly. M. Y. de Couverville and a mission from France charged with the job of carrying out this work recently arrived here and has already set to work.

M. de Couverville is well known in scientific circles in both France and Russia which he had often visited for scientific purposes before the revolution.

HOLD 3 REDS INCOMMUNICADO 'FOR UNCLE SAM'

Police Refuse Bail Over Sunday

Three members of the Young Workers League, Valeria Meltz, Benjamin Fogel and Sam Plotkin, were held incommunicado by the police all day yesterday, folowing their arrest while distributing leaflets in front of the Boston Store, corner State and Madison streets, Saturday evening.

The three Comunists were held without any charge being placed against them, the desk sergeant at the La Salle street police station, 180 North La Salle street, declaring that they were "being held for the government."

"Doesn't Know" Charge.

Valeria Meltz is in a cell at the Clark street police station, 625 S. Clark street, and Comrades Plotkin and Fogel are in jail at the La Salle street station.

Police Officer Edward Quinn, who with Officer Stein made the arrests, told the DAILY WORKER, when reached at his home that he would turn the three comrades over to "the government" at nine o'clock this morning at the La Salle street station. When asked what charge they were arrested on, Quinn said: "I don't know; I'll have to see about that tomorrow."

Boston Store Complained.

"The leaflets they were distributing were improper," the desk sergeant at the La Salle street station told the DAILY WORKER. "The Boston Store complained about them." The sergeant said he "did not think the charge would be serious, as unless the prisoners plotted to overthrow the government they did not violate the law." The DAILY WORKER reporter was not permitted to talk to the arrested Communists.

The leaflets distributed were mimeographed bulletins addressed to the employes of the Boston Store, as they left their work at six o'clock Saturday evening. The leaflets were the regular monthly bulletin of the Young Workers League shop nucleus composed of the employes of the Boston Store.

Comrade Meltz has been arrested twice before in front of the Boston Store, once for distributing leaflets and once for selling the Young Worker, official organ of the Young Workers League. The leaflets had not all been distributed when the arrests were made.

Demands of League.

The bulletin set forth the demands of the Young Workers shop nucleus among which are abolition of the speed-up system, abolition of fines for mistakes which are caused by the speed-up methods, better wages and a half holiday on Saturday.

George Maurer, secretary of the Labor Defense Council, was unable to secure bail for the comrades, as they have not yet been booked on any charge, being held as "open." He declared if they are not released this morning, he will at secure a writ of habeas corpus.

The desk sergeant at the Clark St. police station told the DAILY WORKER that Comrade Meltz was "already in the hands of the government. We are just keeping her in custody for the federal government," he said.

This statement was contradicted by Officer Quinn, who admitted that no charge had been placed against the three Communists and said the "federal govrenment" had not yet been informed of the arrests.

David Bentall, attorney for the arrested Communists, was unable to obtain bail because they have not yet lowed to talk to his clientsL2A1fi been booked. He was finally allowed to talk to his clients.

FRENCH PAPAL TOOLS MAKING TROUBLE FOR HERRIOT GOVERNMENT

PARIS, March 22.—Bitter reaction was reflected in the papers today on Friday's riotous sessions of the chamber of deputies. Two adjournments were forced by the fiery reception accorded Premier Herriot's announcement the government intended to make schools all over France non-sectarian.

The chambers of deputies was not in session, the adjournment carrying over to Tuesday.

THIS SAD STORY RECITES THE FALL OF WILLIAM MAHONEY OF ST. PAUL

with ballast. Mahoney stepped on the stage as a radical. His act went fairly well for a while.

The Workers Party was leading a national drive for a farmer-labor party. When Mahoney began to get pounded by the reactionaries he joined the anvil chorus against the Communists and became the yellowest red-baiter of them all. But this did not save him as will be shown in this story.

The Workers Party was the backbone of the farmer-labor party in Minnesota. The fakers decided to drive the Communists out of the F. L. P. They used Mahoney to good advantage in this campaign. There was nothing too dirty for "Ol' Bill" to do. He expected a handsome reward, and he got it—in the neck.

Mahoney Lost His Head

The upshot of all the maneuvers to rid the farmer-labor party of Minnesota of the Communists was a fake unity conference held in St. Paul on March 20. Mahoney was officially the head and front of it. What happened at this "unity conference" makes sad reading for Mahoney and other renegades who expect the reactionaries will easily forgive them for their past sins when their usefulness is imparilled.

Mahoney was chairman of the farmer-labor federation. Ralph Harmon was secretary. The tornado that hit the Ohio Valley causing death and destruction was hardly less fatal than the political whirlwind that enveloped Mahoney and his henchman Harmon. When the wirlwind passed Mahoney's political entity was missing.

The "wise" old politician, walked blindly into the trap prepared for him by the non-partisan league gang and the O'Connor democratic machine. While Mahoney was using up all his available gray matter attacking the reds, Parson and Townley were devoting a little corner of their brains to the task of tying the can to Bill. They had decided that Magnus Johnson would become chairman of the convention and Frank Starkey secretary. Twoo banana shins were placed on a skid, Mahoney was blind-folded and—the rest is left to the imagination.

Mahoney on His Knees

Heming Nelson, a prominent farmer, declared that Mahoney must resign and also his henchman, Ralph Harmon. Mahoney begged to be allowed retain his office until his term expired. Like Nero when, in a bored manner turning his thumbs down on an obnoxious christian, the convention yawned, dropped Mahoney and passed on to the next order of business.

Floyd Olson, candidate for governor of the farmer-labor ticket Dick Wiggins, Tom Sullivan, and Al Bastis, socialist alderman, backed Starkey. A. C. Welch, charged that Mahoney is known among the farmers of Minnesota to be as much of a trader as Tom Van Lear. Mahoney backed a man named Engstrom for chairman but was compelled to withdraw him. The old constitution was readopted with the addition of a new clause which refuses membership to anyone who is in favor of the overthrow of capitalism or opposed to "representative" government.

Before the fake unity convention was held, thousands of copies of leaflet issued by District 9, of the Workers (Communist) Party were distributed among the workers and poor farmers of Minnesota. The leaflet reads:

The farmer-labor party was brought into existence by the untiring efforts and perseverance of the rank and file workers and farmers thruout the state. During the war period when active workers were being thrown into jail, when others were being tarred and feathered, the movement was not troubled by job-hunting political shysters. Since that time, however, one group of fakers after another have attempted to take control of the party you built and use it for their own personal political ends.

A. C. Townley first tried to destroy the party by turning it into a "balance of power" organization functioning within the old capitalist parties.

He was closely followed by F. A. Pike, who tried to eliminate the trade unions and the farmers' organizations from any voice in the party. He tried to make the farmer-labor party respectable, by destroying it as a working class movement. In this he was ably assisted by Thomas Van Lear, who by the way, still has considerable explaining to do on matters pertaining to his handling of the Minneapolis Daily Star.

A. B. Gilbert later took up the cudgels, this time to make the movement respectable by eliminating the Communists. He finished by betraying the movement and giving his support to the enemies of the workers and farmers in the republican party.

Another Betrayal.

The men mentioned all stand discredited before the rank and file. But with the passing of these men the campaign against the party has not stopped—a new group has taken their place and are at present carrying out a scheme which, if permitted to materialize, will place the control of the farmer-labor party in the hands of middle-class elements composed of rich farmers, reactionary labor leaders, small bankers, and business men.

A so-called "unity" convention has been called to meet in St. Paul on March 20. This conventoin does not represent a desire for unity—neither will it give expression to the economic or political needs of the workers and poor farmers; it was called by those former progressives, William Mahoney in conjunction with Senator Buckler and a few state legislators. The motive back of this convention is not "unity" but "respectability"—capitalist respectability. They do not want a party that will lead an aggressive fight to protect the interests of the workers and farmers, but rather a party that will be supported by a middle-class element who will use the party to secure political office for themselves. This is another effort to destroy the farmer-labor party, as a party representing your interests.

Not for Unity.

The call issued for the March 20 conference designates it as a "unity" convention—yet the first act of the county convention in St. Paul and Minneapolis was to unseat delegates because they were members of the Workers (Communist) Party. They feared these workers because they knew by past experience that they would be unable to silence these delegates while putting over their schemes of liquidating the farmer-labor federation and again betraying the interest of the workers and farmers of Minnesota. Another evidence might be mentioned, that the executive committee called the convention in Minneapolis, St. Paul and Duluth at a time when workers could not attend, and as a result, these counties will send a block of delegates who will support the officials in their maneuvers.

Communists Pledge Support to Workers and Farmers

During the past two years the Workers (Communist) Party has taken an active part in forming a farmer-labor party on a class basis to fight on the political field for the interest of the workers and poor farmers. Thru the united efforts of the left wing in the farmer-labor movement of Minnesota, the farmer-labor federation was formed in March, 1924—the purpose of this organization was to unite all working class elements, working class political groups, trade unions, co-operative and farmers' organizations, for the struggle against their common enemy the capitalist class. The Communists have constantly pointed out the dangers of this movement falling into the hands of the unscrupulous middle class politicians and labor fakirs which would mean the destruction of the federation.

The farmer-labor movement in Minnesota is at the present time confronted with this danger, and unless an intensive organization campaign is made, the workers' and farmers' efforts during the last two years will be wasted.

No political working class organization will develop unless all groups of exploited workers and poor farmers are made in integral part of such political organizations.

As in the past, the Workers (Communist) Party pledges its support to the farmer-labor federation and calls upon the workers and poor farmers to enter actively and aggressively into the work of arousing their fellow workers to the need for immediate action.

Workers! Farmers! Go into your economic and political organizations—there raise the slogans.

The immediate calling of a state convention of the farmer-labor federation.

Down with the political crooks and betrayers.

Organize and strengthen your unions.

For a workers' and farmers' government and mobilize against capitalism by giving your support to the Workers (Communist) Party of America.

Seattle Labor Protests Expulsions

fight against reaction. It is given in full as follows:

A statement by six delegates charged with being members of the Workers (Communist) Party of America.

To the officers and delegates of The Seattle Central Labor Council:

You have before you tonight for your consideration and decision a report of your strike and grievance committee in the matter of the expulsion of six delegates from this council on account of political opinion. In the first place, the undersigned, individually and collectively, most emphatically protest against this discrimination; and we ask "Why are the political opinions of only six members investigated? Why does not the council propose to try republicans and democrats for their political opinions, and expel them from the council if found guilty?"

Further, we refer you to the fact that in the past, rulings have been made by the president of this council (President Mundy), that the local unions (and the local unions alone) who elect the delegates to this council are entitled to pass upon the qualifications of the delegates and the constitution of the American Federation of Labor specifically declares that the credentials submitted to any Central Labor Union by any affiliated local union shall be accepted. "Why then," we ask, "do members of this council propose to expel us on account of our political ideas?"

Affirm Belief in Communism.

We hereby affirm our belief in the principles of Communism as set forth by all leaders of the Communist movement since Marx wrote his Communist Manifesto in 1847. We deny that the members of this council have the right to call our political opinions in question. The A. F. of L. convention of 1890, settled this question once and for all, by declaring that no discrimination should be made against any member of this organization because of religious or political beliefs. This guarantee is also incorporated in the obligation taken by the candidates on joining many of the international unions affiliated with this council.

If it can be shown that any delegates are guilty of disrupting the labor movement, then we agree that such delegates should be summarily dealt with, but insofar as no proof of any disruptive actions on our part have been submitted by your committee, we demand that the charges made against us be dismissed forthwith.

The charge has been made that the principles of Communism are inimical to, and disruptive of, the labor movement. We categorically deny this charge and the implications contained therein, and we affirm on the contrary that Communism, properly understood, offers the one hope of freedom and emancipation for the oppressed and exploited workers everywhere.

Many international unions, such as bakers and machinists, in their constitutions have affirmed one of the basic principles of Communism, namely that the workers as a class must organize to fight the bosses, who are already consciously organized internationally on class lines. We Communists go one step further than this, and we declare that the workers must organize politically on class lines, for the purpose of destroying government by graft and corruption—witness the notorious Teapot Dome scandal—and for the purpose of wresting political power from our enemies, the bosses, and substituting, instead of government by big business and the banks, government by the industrial workers and working farmers.

Against Capitalist Parties.

Some members of this council believe that instead of building independent political organizations of the working class, we should co-operate with the political organizations of our enemies, the republican and democratic parties, (the parties of big business, of the open shoppers and the union busters). As Communists, we declare such tactics to be detrimental to the interests of labor, and affirm that in every case in history where this plan has been followed, it has led ultimately to disaster for the workers.

In this connection we might refer you to a recent attempt of this nature, namely, the endorsement of Edward Clifford, for governor of the state of Washington by many labor organizations, which resulted after his defeat in the primaries, in thousands of workers who had voted in the primaries for Clifford, following the lead of said Clifford and voting for Hartley, the arch-enemy of labor, in the general election; and we point you to subsequent actions of Mr. Hartley (as for instance his stand on the child labor amendment) as proof of the correctness of the Communist position that the workers have nothing to gain, but every to lose by co-operation of this character with the capitalists, and future events in Mr. Hartley's administration we are sure will further vindicate the Communists in this contention.

It is because of numberless instances of betrayal of this character that we have come at last to the point where we affirm the Communist position—independent political action of the working class as a class free from all entangling alliances with the parties of our enemies, the bosses—and we claim the right to take this position without interference from those members in this council who are still so backward in their political thinking as to believe that the workers can gain from alliances with the organizations of their enemies.

Furthermore, as Communists we believe that "the times are ripe, and rotten ripe for change," in labor's economic organizations. Sixty years ago the plan of organizing workers by crafts and professions was in harmony with social and industrial development, but today we affirm that such organizations, facing the united organizations of the bosses, are obsolete and moribund. The next step in the evolution of labor unions is toward unity—no more splits—no more dual unionism—class unity in the economic organizations, as in the political organizations of the workers.

Oppose Jurisdictional Disputes.

At the present time, great international unions, instead of fighting the bosses, fight each other. Witness the present fatricidal war between the carpenters and the sheet metal workers, which is wrecking the California Building Trades Council, and in which in some cases (as in Kansas City last summer) attempts have been made to organize dual unions of carpenters to scab on the union carpenters who were striking, (not against the bosses) but against the sheet metal workers, members of another union in the building industry. We maintain that these events, arising out of an out-worn form of organization (however good such organization may have been in its day) are the real danger to our labor movement, and that such fights are disrupting, wrecking and destroying organized labor. The Communists in this connection raise the old trade union slogans: "In Unity is Strength." or "United we Stand and Divided—into Craft Unions—We Fall."

The next step in industrial evolution, the historical order of the day for trade unionists to consider, is the development of our present organizations from craft to industrial unions, based on the present industrial and economic development of society (such as the United Mine Workers of America). The present condition where union fights union, instead of fighting the bosses, we declare as Communists will destroy organized labor unless it is checked; and against this tendency we raise the slogan: Amalgamate the Unions Before the Amalgamated Organizations of the Bosses Destroy the Unions.

Thinking workers, we submit, must all admit that the day has come, when we should create and build a labor movement, able and fit to cope with the industrial problems of the middle of the twentieth century, instead of relying on the forms of organization that were developed to fit the conditions of the middle of the last century—the conditions out of which craft unionism was born. Stagnation spells death, life means progress. The labor movement must move with the times if it is to prove of real service to the workers as a class.

Future With Communism.

These are two points in the Communist program on which we are well aware, many members disagree with us. But insofar as we have not proposed to expel them for their ideas, we deny them the right to censure us for our political opinions. And in answer to the charge that these Communist ideas disrupt the labor movement, we affirm on the contrary that such ideas put into practice will save the labor movement. Not the progressive ideas of Communism, but the out worn forms of craft union organization—a relic from a long dead century—together with the modern centralized organizations of the bosses are breaking up and wrecking our labor movement.

We maintain that the future will confirm the program of the Communists. Industrial unions will be the unions of tomorrow. Independent political parties of a class character will be the parties of tomorrow; and in standing today for these new ideas of labor we declare to you, fellow delegates, that social and industrial evolution is with us; that history itself fights on our side, that the ideas we fight for today (and for holding which you may tonight expel us from this council) are the principles on which the labor movement of the whole world will be based in years to come.

We are fully aware, however, that any new idea is always opposed by conservatism, but looking back across history we see that all attempts to destroy ideas which were based upon real social factors (no matter how such ideas have been fought) have resulted in the final victory of said ideas. It has been said that "the blood of the martyrs was the seed of the church," and we declare to you that instead of killing Communism by attacking us, you are building the Communist movement, and making Communists by your action.

Will Continue Struggles.

Furthermore, as Communists we declare to you that our reading of history shows us that the liberties and rights of the people have been won thru hundreds of years of struggle and suffering. We see pioneers of new thought and of new ideas, in all ages, hailed to prison, drawn and quartered, broken on the wheel, and even burned at the stake or lynched for fighting for the rights that we now enjoy, as a free gift from the struggles of these fighters in years gone by. We say to you that we would be renegades and traitors to the workers cause if, believing as we do, we permitted you to censure our convictions without a protest.

We fully realize that we are in the minority, that we may be hopelessly outnumbered in this fight; nevertheless if expelled from this council tonight, we will be compell to carry our protest to the members of those local unions who sent us here as delegates, and to the organized labor movement of Seattle and the state of Washington generally. Failure to do this would render us moral cowards and mental prostitutes; believing as we do, that our opinions as set forth above have a real value for the organized labor movement.

Hence our appeal from your decision (if you expel us tonight) to the body of organized labor. If expelled, we must try by all means in our power to vindicate our right to hold opinions contrary to those in this council who may adhere to the political faith of the republican or democratic parties, and we assure you, as true union men, whose record of willing service to organized labor over many years, is well known to most of you, that we will leave no stone unturned to place our ideas and our defense before the entire labor movement.

Will Continue Fight.

Finally, whether we are expelled or not, we pledge to you our belief in the principles of organized labor; we honor its historic traditions, and respect the fights for labor's freedom, but respect for the past does not blind us for the needs of the future, and as we have fought in the past for our labor movement, we propose to continue that fight in the future according to our convictions.

We urge you as a group of trade unionists to vindicate by your votes tonight our right (and the right of all members of this council) to hold political opinions without inference and to advocate new and progressive ideas without being victimized.

Remember that once the right to hold opinion is violated, no one knows where such action may stop. Today, we are on trial; tomorrow it may be you will be pilloried. Therefore we urge you to keep the record of organized labor in Seattle clear from any taint of heresy hunting, by voting against any motion which would expel or victimize any one for their ideas or for their opinions.

With fraternal greetings, we remain,

Paul K. Mohr, Bakers' Local No. 9; M. Hansen, Painters' Local No. 300; H. G. Price, Machinists' Local No. 79; J. C. Carson, Carpeters' Local No. 1184; W. H. Jones, Painters' Local No 300; J. Havel, Bookkeepers' and Stenographers' Local No. 16304.

STORM WRECKED WORKERS NEED PERMANENT AID

Many Miners' Bodies Still Missing

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

WEST FRANKFORT, Ill., March 22.—Thousands of Southern Illinois miners and their families were nursing their wounds inflicted by the tornado, with no shelter other than inadequate tents to shield them from the biting March winds that are sweeping across the barren plains of "Egypt."

Doctors and nurses, worn out from caring for the injured for so many hours, are appealing for more aid. Many amputations were hastily made, some without anaesthetics, and the injured are threatened with blood poisoning and pestilence as a result of the unsanitary conditions which prevail.

The bodies of six workers are still buried in the debries of the C. and E. I. railroad coal chute which was toppled down by the storm.

Peter Allard, member of the Workers (Communist) Party in Christopher, informed the DAILY WORKER that the towns of Christopher, Herrin, Marion, Dowell and Duquoine were untouched by the storm. "I have not heard of any Workers Party member who was hurt by the storm," said Comrade Allard, "Although some may have been hurt in West Frankfort."

The miners working five hundred feet underground in mine No. 18 of the Industrial Coal company here when the storm broke, felt the shock of the tornado. The fan was put out of commission, and the electric lights went out. The miners climbed to the surface by means of the airshaft ladders.

Negroes Accuse New York Judge of Aid To Mob Lynchings

NEW YORK, March 22.—A delegation of Negroes has called on Judge J. H. Tiernan, protesting against his statement when sentencing a Negro Elijah Barrett to two and a half years in Sing Sing on the charge of robbery, "If this had happened in your home state of Virginia you would have been burned at the stake."

Tiernan told the prisoner that he wished he could give him a more severe sentence and rebuked the jury for their "leniency."

William L. Petterson, Negro lawyer, who represented Barrett, accused Judge Tiernan of "fostering race prejudice and praising mob rule and lynch law."

IMPERIALISM OF BRITAIN BEHIND TURKISH REVOLT

Back Koran Reaction to Grab Mosul Oil

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

CONSTANTINOPLE, Mar. 22—The clash between the nationalist movement consolidated in the American government of Mustapha Kemal and British imperialism allied with feudal landlordism and the Mohammedan church is reaching a decisive stage as Kemal is mobilizing his army to crush the reactionary forces coming out of Kurdistan, led by Sheik Said. With these also is the commercial capitalists of the seaport towns, who are influenced by British interests very strongly.

Kurdish Rebels Carry Koran.

Recently all reactionary forces have combined to form the so-called progressive republican party, which led the attack on Kemal. The insurgents are leading the nomadic tribesmen, numbering some 30,000 mounted men, who carry the green flag of the Holy Prophet and the koran as well into battle as instructed by the priests, while crying religious slogans.

However, these nomads occasionally forget the fight against Kemal to plunder Turkish villages as a profitable side line, while neglecting the fight on the Angora government.

The insurrection broke out in the eastern districts in which the large landowners dominate. And behind them is the power of English intrigue interested in depriving Turkey of the great Mosul oil fields. Again the imperialism of oil impels a weak and backward people into civil war.

Imperialism and the Church.

The outbreak of the insurrection came deliberately at the time of the investigation of the Mosul question by a commission of the league of nations. It was also caused by the intention of the Kemal government to abolish the taxes levied by the church, which often reached as high as 80 per cent of the crop.

Kemal is supported by the petty bourgeoisie of the cities which desires to liberate itself from imperialist control and bring modern capitalism in being in Turkey. To do this Kemal is mobilizing 100,000 men, carrying on among them an intense propaganda to convince them that they fight for the republic against reaction and British imperialism.

A tribunal of the government is being sent to Kurdistan to try by martial law the Kurdish rebels and to do summary justice to deserters who went over to the reactionary forces.

HOOVER FAILS IN PLOT TO GET WORLD'S POTASH

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 22.—The French and German potash interests have combined into a syndicate which will dictate potash prices and markets, it is learned here. Germany controlled the potash fields until after the war, France confiscated Alsace-Lorraine, and with this territory part of the potash fields.

The German-French syndicate now controls practically all the world's potash beds, just as Germany did before the war. When Germany was in sole control of the potash beds, American capitalists used the American embassy at Berlin, and the entire forces of the government in an efort to secure a reduction in the prices of potash. Now with the German-French syndicate formed, American capitalists again will use the government, it is thought, to attempt to interfere in the monopoly.

Herbert Hoover has for many months been using the government's money to make a survey of the potash situation for American capitalists.

The French-German syndicate marks another step in the alliance between German and French industrialists.

Turks Mobilize to Fight British for Control of Mosul

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

CONSTANTINOPOLE, March 22.—Mustapha Kemal Pasha has decided to fight the British for control of Mosul, rather than accept an unfavorable decision from the league of nations.

A Turkish army of 80,000 is now mobilized at Kurdistan, near the Mosul border, under the command of Gen. Kemeledine Samy Pasha. Now that the revolt of the Kurds, stirred up by British capitalists, has been defeated, the Turks are mobilizing all available men and supplies as notice to the British imperialists that Turkey must receive its share in the Mosul oil fields.

The Workers Party in Action

SHOP NUCLEUS No. 1 IN NEW YORK CITY SHOWS WHAT CAN BE DONE IN STRUGGLE FOR WORKERS

By ANTHONY CHRISTMAN

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, March 22.—Our shop nucleus is the first one organized in Greater New York in a shop were 150 workers are employed. Our task as members of the first nucleus of the party was to demonstrate to the rest of the party members the advantages to be derived from the organization of our party on the shop nucleus basis. We fully realized our responsibility and as Communists we went to our task and this is what we have done.

As soon as we were organized we initiated and carried on a campaign against the long working hours and forced the boss to give in to our demands in spite of an existing agreement between the union and the boss for over six years. This made the workers in the shop look to us for leadership. They realized we are fighting in their interest and we gain their confidence and they came to us for advice and told us their grievances.

Elect Own Shop Committee

Our next step was an attack upon the shop committee controlled by a group of reactionaries working in the interest of the boss and forced them to resign. A shop meeting was called for the election of a shop committee and we put up a full slate of comrades and sympathizers headed by the nucleus organizer running for shop chairman. All were elected by a vote of 97 to 12.

It is worth mentioning that this is one of the union shops controlled entirely by the reactionaries previous to our nucleus. The workers know us as Communists.

All this agitation was carried on by type and hand-written leaflets posted in the different parts of the shop where workers could read them, taking care to link up every shop issue with the class struggle and the Communist movement. As a result we have today full control in the shop and we are in position to mobilize the workers in our shop whenever Communist work has to be done.

Membership Is Increasing

Our membership in the meantime has been increased from three members to fifteen and at our last meeting we adopted the slogan of doubling the membership by May 1st. We made it compulsory for every member of our nucleus to read the party press. Beginning with our next issue our shop bulletin will be semi-monthly.

Is the shop nucleus superior to the territorial branch? We say it is.

Cicero Cops Can't Cop Communist Cash; Next Round in Courts

The only discordant note at the well attended international frolic and dance last Saturday night, given by the Workers Party of Cicero, Ill., was the presence of two big uniformed policemen, occasionally reinforced by a plain clothes man and another uniformed cop. No one knew just what they were there for until the end, when they came to the committee and asked for "theirs." They announced that no dance could be held in Cicero without the presence of police, and their fee for sitting in a corner of the hall was $12.00.

The secretary of the entertainment committee, Comrade Danta, replied that the cops had been neither requested nor needed, and exhibited the hall license which permitted the running of dances and said nothing of hiring police. The need of making a test case had been clear for a long time and this was the time to do it. So the "wagon" was called and Danta was taken away, with Charley Erickson and William F. Kruse driving almost on the patrol flivver's tail light to bail him out.

At the station the sergeant was hard-boiled. "Are you going to pay us or aintcher?" When Danta stood put he was booked on a charge of "refusal to pay for police service." When Kruse, on behalf of the Labor Defense Council, suggested that Danta, a resident and citizen of Cicero, should be released on his own recognizance, the heavy-weight sergeant almost managed to rise from his chair.

"Wotter yuh buttin in for? Think we don't know how to run this police department? When yuh come inter a police station yuh keep your mouth shut. See?"

So cash bail of $25 was put up and Danta will appear for trial Monday morning.

Olgin to Lecture on Russian Books at Workers' School

NEW YORK, March 22.—Moissaye J. Olgin will lecture on "The New Era in Russian Literature" at the Workers' School, 108 East 14th street, on Tuesday, March 24th, 8 p. m.

This lecture continues the series on the Russian revolution conducted by Comrade Olgin at the Workers' School, in which he analyzes the effects of the revolution on all phases of the life in Russia.

In discussing Russian literature, Comrade Olgin will first deal with the literature of the pre-revolutionary period, and then will show how the revolution marked a turning point in literary conceptions and production. He will also analyze and explain the new Russian literature of today, taking up various writers and their works.

The literature and art developed by the revolution have been a proof of its tremendous creative power. And in this literature and art we see the development of a new proletarian culture that expresses the struggles, hopes, achievement—the revolutionary ideology—of the workers and peasants in Soviet Russia.

Remember the date of the lecture—Tuesday, March 24th, 8 p. m., at 108 East 14th street.

BRITISH LABOR CLOSING RANKS FOR BIG FIGHT

Herald. On one side are Cook, Smith, Purcell, Bromley, Bramley and their supporters and followers while on the other are Frank Hodges, J. H. Thomas, Philip Snowden and their yellow socialist backers. The socialists are offering co-operation with the capitalists as a solution of the economic question while the Cook forces are urging the organization of the workers for the overthrow of capitalism.

The following statements by A. J. Cook are taken from the London Daily Herald, a conservative organ which is exasperatingly respectable:

"The sufferings of our men, the call of the women and the cry of the children bid us go forward. If there is war and strife this year, it will be the ruling classes that will provoke it."

A. J. Cook, secretary of the Miners' Federation, made this declaration in a speech at Barnsley.

"The most significant sign of the times in connection with the present disputes in the industries of this country," Cook went on, "is the great desire of the workers to join hands in the struggle.

"The invitation of the Miners' Federation to the other unions to join to fight the employers has been responded to beyond our expectations.

Perturbed Tories.

"This action seems to have created a stir in the dovecotes of the tory camp, as the speeches delivered by Lord Birkenhead and the prime minister prove.

"The frenzied appeal to the trade unionists and their leaders to act cautiously and prevent further trouble and conflict, especially Lord Birkenhead's desire to protect the rights of the trade unions and his attitude on the question of the political levy, form another proof of the fears the proposed joint action of the miners with the other unions have instilled.

"Opportunities will be presented to the tory government," he proceeded, "to insure peace for a period in the industry by accepting our minimum wage bill.

"Will the prime minister declare that a miner is not worth 12s a day? Let him do so. It will be at the peril of the tory party.

"The action of the tory government in rejecting our compensation bill is evidence conclusive to us of their 'sympathy' towards the miner.

"There will soon be no left and right wing, but one united movement industrially and politically, that will seriously organize for the overthrow of the capitalist system.

The Immediate Struggle.

"Our present struggle is one of wages. That is the immediate demand, but the interests of peace and the desire for same compels us to usher in a system of society that will make that possible.

"Therefore we are preparing our nationalization bill to place before the country to prevent a recurrence of eternal war in the mining industry.

"We are fast learning to recognize," Mr. Cook added, amid cheers, "that there is a class war, and we shall organize definitely to carry forward our policy with an idea of eliminating class privileges and positions in this country.

In addition to the railway and transport workers' unions, which have been approached by the Miners' Federation regarding the scheme for an alliance, steps are being taken to enlist the support of other bodies, including engineering and shipyard unions.

"Our intention is to meet representatives of all the unions in this country, either separately or jointly and then to go finally to the general council of the Trades Union Congress," declared A. J. Cook, secretary of the Miners' Federation.

"It is the definite policy of the Miners' Federation," he said, "to make arrangements for mutual aid in regard to disputes, and to set up some machinery immediately, so that we can act together, either when we have been attacked, or in defense. From the replies I have received, and the interest taken in this suggestion from the miners, I am confident that arrangements will be made for all the unions to act together, co-ordinated by the general council of the Trades Union Congress.

"It will be an alliance for action and the suggestions or the Miners' Federation is that all programs should be submitted to this body and examined in order to secure united support before any struggle is decided upon. The alliance is a counterblast to the Federation of British Industries."

War Fleet to Australia.

NEW YORK, March 22.—The American fleet, which is maneuvering in Pacific waters to impress Japan and England with its fighting capacities, will arrive in Australia in July or August. Prime Minister Bruce of Australia, speaking for the capitalists, said in a cablegram that he hoped the fleet's visit would bring "good relations between the two democracies."

BUILDERS AT WORK

'BORING IN' IN BOISE, IDAHO.

Where They Expect a Shower of Beer Every Saturday.

Comrade Theodore Pierce is a BUILDER—one of those kind of builders whom difficulties simply won't stop. We sent him bundles of the DAILY WORKER to get subs in the campaign and to build up the circulation in this notoriously reactionary district. They tried to keep him from selling the DAILY WORKER in the streets and then they tried to stop him from giving them away. But our builder continues his work and we have received from him his first remittance to cover some sales made.

His letter which we print here, will help to give you a picture of the conditions in the state that some years ago restrained Comrade "Bill" Dunne, now editor of "our daily," by court order from even entering the boundaries of the state.

> Dear Comrades: I have been doing all in my power to spread the good words printed in the DAILY WORKER but have failed to get another sub for the paper. Yet, several promised that when they are able to subscribe they will.
> I have been selling three or four each evening and am sending you $1.50 to help pay the cost of printing. I will take every sub I can later.
> I have been asked by a number if I had been pinched yet for selling radical literature. I tell you, this is one of the most damnable states in the union, filled with Catholics, Mormons, Penticostals, Holy Rollers and the like. They all looked for Jesus the 6th of February but he didn't come so they are now looking for old John Slemp to come back, who died fifteen years ago. He was Boise's Brewery man and they say he will cause a shower of beer every Saturday.
> Superstition is all the go here so you see I have a hard bunch to work with. It will take time to do much yet and I am getting more every day to read the DAILY WORKER and hope to get some subs soon so please continue sending the five daily and I will sell and give free copies to the poor workers that are on starvation. Fraternally yours, THEODORE PIERCE.

SLUMP IN WHEAT SHOWS COOLIDGE FOOLED FARMERS

Stocks of Wheat Shown to Be Still High

By LELAND OLDS.

Will the recent break of 25½ cents a bushel in the price of wheat in 3 days and the steady decline to a level 55 cents below the middle of January wake the farmers up to the fact that they were duped by a fictitious price situation into electing Coolidge? According to Griswold in the Chicago Journal of Commerce, "the oldest trader on the exchange has no recollection of a situation that is comparable to this."

"In a normal market," says Griswold, "no exaggeration of opinion, no distortion of market news could drive a single wheat option close to the prewar level and then chop 55 cents off the price" before the option expires. Of course this wasn't a normal market but one which had been artifically inflated to take the wind out of the political sails of the farmer-labor combination.

Foreign Demand Exaggerated.

A month ago the Journal of Commerce reported a growing suspicion in board of trade circles that the much talked of foreign demand for U. S. wheat had been exaggerated.

About the same time the New York Times pointed out that the term world shortage of wheat had been somewhat loosely used.

It said that, excluding Russia, production would be about 3,100,000,000 bushels which compares very well with 3,142,000,000 in 1922 and 3,106,000,000 in 1921. The estimated yield never reached 3,000,000,000,000 in any other post-war year.

The department of agriculture is now letting people down gently. Its latest says that there is enuf wheat on hand in the country "to meet domestic requirements for feed, seed and flour, allow for exports equal to those from March 1 to June 30 last year and leave a carry-over of about 51,000,000 bushels."

It points out that in the first eight weeks of 1925 Australia and Argentine furnished the world market 56 per cent more wheat than a year ago and that the world's commercial stocks Feb. 1 were 375,000,000 bushels, the largest since the war except 1924 and only 5,000,000 under that year. Also 3 per cent more acreage has been sown to winter wheat than in 1924.

Clearly, as pointed out in February by a large grain exporter, it is time the grain interests were asking how will this country dispose of its grain, not how high will the price go.

Farmer Out of "Boom."

The high prices around election did not go to the farmer. He delivered his wheat between July 1 and Feb. 1 at an average of $1.24 a bushel, most of it having been sold far in advance of the boom. And according to the Annalist "There is no available evidence of the continued increase in the wealth of the farmer collectively; on the contrary the most reliable information from the middle west goes to show that altho most farmers' expenditures since last summer have been on old debts, farm indebtedness is not yet on a normal basis."

Wheat at over $2 was only an election promise. It fooled many into believing that it would hold until the next crop altho all the real friends of the farmer pointed out that it was artificial. But that hope gave Coolidge the west. It is now fading. Where do the farmers get off?

Crime Grows as Children Toil.

NEW ORLEANS—Statistics gleaned from the New Orleans juvenile court show that crime since 1924 has increased 15 per cent in both sexes under 18 years over 1923. Various reasons have been given by those in authority, but the most potent has been ignored. The employment of boys and girls of tender age when they should be in school has increased owing to the fact that wages in general are materially lower.

India Cold to Roosevelts.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 22.—The application of Tehodore Roosevelt, Jr., and Kermit Roosevelt for permission to go thru the Hunza Pass from India into Turkestan has been refused by the viceroy of India. The trip was to be made under the auspices of the Field Museum of Chicago.

DEFENSE FUNDS NEEDED AT ONCE

The three young Communists who were arrested last Friday in connection with the Paris Commune Pageant, and were released Wednesday must be properly defended. The Labor Defense Council, New York division, intends to fight their cases thru the United States courts—for the comrades face deportation. "These people ought to be shipped out of the country," said the judge. The comrades will not be shipped out of this country, unless the government shuts off every avenue of appeal that the workers of this country thru the Labor Defense Council will utilize.

To carry on a proper fight, funds are needed. Thousands of dollars will be required—and the workers of this country must furnish it. All comrades and sympathizers with the Communist and revolutionary movement must do their share.

Take up the matter in your trade unions and fraternal organizations. Get them to pledge their support and make donations. No time dare be lost, for the hearing begins on March 30. Collect funds on the subscription lists of the Labor Defense Council, New York division, and forward to them to the local office, 108 East 14th St., New York City.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BOSTON, Mass., March 22.—The workers of the Pacific Mills in Lawrence are in a state of ferment due to the increase of the speed-up system.

The company has a fake shop committee, which they "permitted" the operatives to elect upon the condition that members of the committee to be elegible must have been employed for more than one year, than they must be citizens, they must be "acceptable" to the company, and the votes must be counted by the company management.

No Control By Workers

There is no control by the workers, who claim that many members of this fake committee were not elected by them, but were just stuck in by the management counting them as "elected."

Recently this shop committee "accepted" in the name of the operatives, but against their real wishes, the doubling up of work in all departments of the Pacific Cotton Mills, affecting 1,000 workers.

Workers Join United Front

So resentful are the workers that at a meeting on March 13, a committee of Pacific Mills workers was elected to work as a part of of the united front committee of textile workers formed to fight the manufacturers' association in their wage cuts and speed-up drive. At least half of the workers affected attended the meeting.

Beginning yesterday, meetings are being held outside the mill gates at the Pacific, Everett, Arcadia and Lawrence Duck mills, in an effort to mobilise the wide discontent against the wage cut and speed-up. If a strike should develope in Lawrence it may spread thruout the other cotton centers of New England.

Settlers in Far East.

CHITA, Mar. 22.—Fifteen thousand settlers are expected to arrive in the Far Eeastern republic from the central states of Soviet Russia who left these parts because of lack of land. The Far Eeastern agricultural committee has worked out plans for equipping these settlers with the proper modern agricultural machinery.

Find New Iron Beds in U. S. S. R.

MOSCOW—Recent geologic survey of the Murmansk region has shown the existence there of considerable mineral resources. Thus, it is estimated that there are 700 million poods (11,290,000 tons) of iron ore, lying at the bottom of a lake and constituting the richest mine in Karolia.

Letters From Our Readers

Detroit, Feb. 2, 1925.

To the DAILY WORKER:—In the old times the American bourgeoisie liked to drape themselves as knights of "Liberty," and the glory of American democracy was so widespread that the naive European really believed in the democracy of the United States and imagined her a country of liberty. Comparatively not long ago when I emmigrated to the United States in 1912, running away from the persecutions of the Russian czar, without any trouble I was allowed to enter the United States, granted a license to practice medicine and became a member of the Amerscan medical association.

When I went for a visit to Soviet Russia and came back in January, 1924, it was very different. Notwithstanding that I had the visa of the American consul, was a member of the American medical association and had an American certificate that I am legally authorized to practice medicine, I was immediately arrested on the boat without even permission to see my family waiting for me on the pier and was taken to the worst jail I ever saw, even worse than the jails of the former czar.

This jail is located on Ellis Island. All day we several hundred prisoners were locked up in one room and at 7 p. m. we were led to the bedroom

The bedroom was a room filled with small iron cages and on top of each other with iron bars. No pillows, no sheets, but ward blankets. There was a continuous unbearable odor of sulphur fumes. Every night we were led to a different bedroom freshly filled with sulphur fumes. In this way the U. S. preserved from the contagious foreigners by fumigating them with sulphur gas. When we came in we started to sneezing and coughing. For a long time we could not fall asleep. When at last worn out we did fall asleep, at 6 a. m. the guards of the prison started to beat with iron sticks on the iron bars at our cages. It meant to get up. When I was called for a hearing before the immigration board they asked me: "Why did you not fight, being in Soviet Russia, against the Soviet government?" To entertain the prisoners at Ellis Island once every week a patriotic lady with a rotten voice came and sang: "My Country," commanding us also to sing and then there were priests to instruct us poor sinners in religion and fear of God.

Dr. M. A. Rivkim.

The U. N. I. A.

To the DAILY WORKER: The so-called Universal Negro Improvement Association is now an instrument in the hands of the capitalist white guard organization, the ku klux klan.

Ever since Marcus Garvey, the founder of the U. N. I. A., a Negro mass organization, held a conference with Emperor Simmons, founder of the new klan organization at Atlanta, Ga., a few years ago, it has been rumored that Garvey and the U. N. I. A. are tools of the anti-working class organization, the ku klux klan.

An, editorial in the Negro World, official organ of the U. N. I. A., Feb. 21, 1925, captioned, "Soviet Russia as a Disturbing Nation," proves that the klan secretly controls the Universal Negro Improvement Association.

The contents of this Bolshevik-baiting editorial is taken mainly from the rouged and painted and silk dedecked kept mistress of the capitalist class, the Saturday Evening Post.

This editorial contains unbelievable lies and filth concerning the first workers' and farmers' government of the earth, and calls the Communist leaders of Russia shrewd demagogues.

Be not deceived American Negro workers by this wolf in sheep's clothing, the U. N. I. A. It is now an organization of the murderous ku klux klan, and not a Negro organization.

The workers' and farmers' government of Soviet Russia is the only real and sincere friend of the Negro and other dark workers.

The Communist leaders of Russia and elsewhere, are the only champions of the exploited and oppressed Negro workers as well as white workers.

Long live the workers' and farmers' government of Soviet Russia, the hope and inspiration of the oppressed and exploited workers all over the earth.

Long live the Communist leaders of the world!—Gordon Owens.

A Hint to Coolidge.

To the DAILY WORKER: Considering how in the present scientific age, the torch of knowledge having been brandished about and its rays cast into every chink and crany of our planet, to say nothing of other worlds, it seems strange that we should have overlooked the greatest of opportunities for utilizing a product that has been worse than wasted. I refer to that most highly organized form of all matter—the human body.

With a president advocating economy and our means of production in control of organized greed directed with an eye to profits, and always clamoring for dividends, does anyone doubt that there are thousands of men, women and children to whom a piece of human flesh would be acceptable, either stewed, baked, boiled, or roasted?

Think of the great waste during our world war, which could have at least in part been prevented and utilized by our wonderful cold storage system. But disregarding wars and accidents that take life, can we go on multiplying and putting this valuable product under the ground where it is lost completely?

Of course there would be a lot of parasites, undertakers and preachers, who would fight against losing their graft, as a jackal might fight for a carcass. But neither parasites nor jackals put up a very strong fight.

Considering commercial rivalry as the source of modern war, we would be in a fair way to end war when very man with a nominal expense could have his stew in the pot, or roast in the oven. The present system is literally cannibalism, only it is limited in practice to kings and rulers both thru sovereign and economic power.

Kings have been named "people eaters" in that they devour us by taking the things whereby we live. If this could be properly presented to President Coolidge, no doubt he, with his appreciation of the virtues and benefits of thrift and economy would immediately see the value of the system and act accordingly—Fred B. Cobb, Marianna, Pa.

Raphael Licked in Rochester

To the DAILY WORKER:—The workers of Rochester repudiated the lies of Abramovich about Soviet Russia, when he tried to speak at the Jewish Workmen's Circle Hall, 456 Joseph Ave. The Jewish Workmen's Circle, Branch 27, which held the meeting, is composed of petty shopkeepers and fish-peddlers.

The chairman of the meeting was Charles Massinger, member of the chamber of commerce, a well known business man and red-baiter.

As soon as Abramovich tried to speak the hall was filled with cries for Soviet Russia and against Abramovich.

In spite of the help the socialists secured from the police, the meeting was soon under the control of the revolutionary workers.

The workers did not give Abramovich a chance to speak, even for half an hour. I hope he gets the same dose wherever he goes.

Yours for Communism, John Peterson, Rochester, N. Y.

MARTIAL LAW TO CRUSH STRIKES, IS POLICE PLAN

Meaning Behind Fight for State Cossacks

Berks county. But the workers of Reading and other Berks county communities raised such a storm of protest that Governor Pinchot was forced to countermand the order. The workers of Berks county do not want any of the cossacks quartered upon them.

The brutalities and assaults against workers committed by the Pennsylvania state police have already become household stories in every industrial town in the state.

Foster Cites Brutality of Cossacks

During the great steel strike of 1919 the anti-labor reign of the Pennsylvania constabulary was particularly bloody. William Z. Foster, leader of the steel workers in that titanic struggle, cites example after example to show that the state troopers acted virtually as hired gunmen of the steel trust, stopping at nothing to interfere with the successful course of the strike.

Foster's testimony is confirmed and supplemented by the report of the commission of inquiry of the Interchurch World Movement, headed by Bishop F. J. McConnell.

State Police Condemned Even by Church

The interchurch report which contains hundreds of affidavits showing constabulary violence states on page 178:

"In Monessen, where the strikers held out solidly for a long time, with the exception of the arrest of many Russians on vague charges of 'radicalism' the policy of the state police was simply to club men off the streets and drive them into their homes... In Braddock, however, where some of the mills were partly operating, the state police did not stop at mere beating."

An interchurch commissioner spent half an hour talking with strikers in a little room in Braddock used as union headquarters. A moment after his departure, state troopers rushed into the place demanding "that speaker" and threatened to close the headquarters because "a meeting" had been held.

Charges of assault brought against the state police in Butler, declares the report, come not only from strikers, but from non-strikers and businessmen as well. And in Clairton, on the Sunday before the strike, numerous men and women were attacked by the state constabulary and arrested while they were attending a mass meeting for which permission had been given by the local authorities; workers in the uniform of discharged soldiers were among those at the meeting ridden down by the state troopers.

State Police Assault War Veterans

Capitalism respects no uniforms which are not directly in its service! Discharged soldiers no longer form part of the capitalist state machinery. And when they attend strikers' meetings they even become "un-American."

Affidavits charge that men were thrown into cells and kept there several days before they were given a hearing. This occurred in practically every strike center. In Donora the constabulary rode into the headquarters of the strikers, drove the men out and placed the 98 men present, including the local organizer, under arrest, refusing to release them on less than $500 bail each.

Still later veidence comes from the coal strike of 1922, during which the reckless anti-labor exploits of the Pennsylvania troopers attained such notoriety that Governor Pinchot was obliged to appoint an investigating commission.

Union Organizer Against State Police

William Broad, a union organizer of Indiana, Pa., swore to the following story before the commission:

"On April 16, 1922, at Marion Center, Pa., while engaged on my work as organizer for District No. 2 U. M. W. of A., I was halted by three state policemen as I was about to call a mass meeting on an isolated piece of ground away from the mines. These troopers went from house to house and prevented men from attending the meeting. The troopers refused to arrest the drunken men who were interfering with the citizens on the street, after I had requested them."

This testimony could be swelled by a multiplicity of affidavits covering all sections of the state affected by the strike. Every scrap of evidence goes to show the troopers usurping all authority and acting as Judge Gary's private army. There are no instances of the constabulary favoring the workers.

Martial Law Disguised

That is the way the undeclared martial law of the cossacks expresses itself in the concrete issues of the class struggle. All government under capitalism is anti-labor government, but the worst excesses of all take place when a system of martial law is established. Pennsylvania presents an example of permanent martial law. Constabulary rule in Illinois would produce the same effects.

DAILY WORKER CORRESPONDENCE GROUP ORGANIZED BY MILITANT WORKERS IN PITTSBURGH DISTRICT

PITTSBURGH, Pa., March 22.—To help forge the weapon for working class power, a group of militant workers in Pittsburgh., Pa., have decided to combine their efforts to more effectively bring the stories of the lives and struggles of the toilers of this hell hole of capitalism into the columns of the DAILY WORKER. A DAILY WORKER correspondence group has been organized and each participant has selected a certain incident of their experiences in the class struggle as the basis for their first story.

Thruout the Pittsburgh steel and mining district the soil has become stained with the blood of workers falling as victims of the brutal assaults inflicted upon them by the tools of the trustified industries whenever they attempted to resist the imposing of abject slave conditions. Many have fallen as victims of the lust for ever more profits caught in the ruthless machine of exploitation and killed or maimed for life. Such incidents are called mere industrial accidents and forgotten. Still others have been compelled to go from place to place searching in vain for an opportunity to make their scant livelihood; victimized thru the blacklist system established jointly by the employers and union officials fearing exposure of their manipulations for personal gains.

To the workers there has been no relief from these grievous conditions, many of their organizations have been smashed and little means have been found for expression of protests. The standard of living of the workers no matter how low is constantly threatened by fresh wage cuts, some of which are being put into effect right now. The stories of these conditions will become available told in simple terms by the members of the Pittsburgh DAILY WORKER correspondence group.

Some of the first subjects to be taken in the stories are: Victimization of miners in District 5, methods of wage cutting in the Westinghouse plants, the unemployed metal workers in Pittsburgh, the recent industrial victims in the Woodlawn Steel mill, the Cannonsburg Meadowland miners section, and how the workers live in Braddock.—Arne Swabeck.

NEW YORK CITY HOSPITALS ARE DISEASE TRAPS

Workers Exposed to Disease in Clinics

NEW YORK, March 22.—Bad conditions in the city's public hospital clinics used by wage earners and their children who cannot afford expensive private treatment are exposed to public view in a report by Miss Frances L. Howland of the New York City visiting committee of the State Charities' Aid association.

The hospitals are actually disease traps, the report shows. At the children's clinic at Belleveue, largest public hospital, the tiny waiting room, only 10 by 14 feet, is so overcrowded with patients that infectious diseases spread from one to another. In the isolation room, intended for one patient at a time, four and five are grouped together with serious consequences. At the Willard Parker Hospital, children with one communicable disease, are frequently found to have caught others.

In the women's wards of the big Kings County Hospital, public health institution for Brooklyn, beds are so crowded together that nurses have difficulty in giving surgical dressings. There is no room for segregation and clean and septic cases used the same room. At Riverside Hospital food has to be carried such long distances that it is cold before it reaches the patients.

Fire hazard conditions abound, especially in the psychopathic wards at Belleveue, where in case of fire mentally deranged patients from several wards would have to use the same narrow stairway with obvious panic resulting.

Economist Shows America Invents Japanese War Scare

NEW YORK, March 22.—Professor Charles A. Beard, who made two extensive surveys of Japan since the war, casts the cold light of the economist on the Japanese war scare in the March 25 issue of the Nation.

"The substance of the controversy with Japan," he begins, "is not immigration; it is China—trade and profits."

Japan does not want war, he shows. War would lose her the silk trade with America and war she cannot wage competantly with America so long as she depends on other nations for iron and steel and war machinery. But American imperialists see a successful war bringing them Formosa and neighboring islands and the South Manchurian railway, also "moral responsibility" over Korea, Manchuria and Mongolia. In addition the creation of a few thousand more millionaires. The immigration issue is a mere pretext for scaring up hysteria: there was no appreciable immigration anyhow.

Wall Street-Calles Socialism

The socialist party of Mexico is to be reorganized, state dispatches from Mexico City.

All elements supporting the Calles government will be admitted to the party following a conference scheduled for April 1st.

This rather novel qualification for membership in a party hitherto calling itself revolutionary is more evidence of the traitorous work of the Yankee imperialist-labor faker-yellow socialist combine which visited Mexico City during the El Paso convention of the American Federation of Labor.

We recall a sob letter written by one Nellie Seeds Nearing, ex-mate of Scott Nearing, to The Nation showing how Mexican workers supported the union label campaign of the A. F. of L. by throwing their scab Stetson hats in the Rio Grande after the big fat American brothers—most of whom had Stetson hats themselves—had pledged their support to the Mexican masses.

It is now quite plain that the Mexican workers are going to lose the rest of their wearing apparel. The reorganization of the Mexican socialist party on the basis of support of the Calles government which is now engaged in breaking up the Railway Workers' Union preparatory to returning the railroads to Wall Street, is one more step in a plan of plunder that is designed to strip the Mexican workers to their coffee-colored skins. Some of the skin itself will be lost before the imperialist jackals, their Mexican retainers, the American labor fakers and slimy socialist elements are satisfied.

The coming unity is unity for American imperialism. It is one more example of the betrayal of the masses to the capitalist masters by the parties of the Second International—the international to which no self-respecting leech or louse would consider affiliation.

The Communist parties of Mexico and the United States are the only organizations carrying a struggle against the domination of Latin America by Wall Street. The support for these campaigns comes from the workers and farmers of imperialist and semi-colonial countries alike and the struggle will continue with increased success since the socialist party has exposed itself as the champion of the oppressors.

Disarmament

France wants no agreement for lessening armaments. The French press is speaking harshly of any interference by the Coolidge administration in the schemes of French militarism. It warns the government of the danger of entering into any further treaties that would call for even a temporary halt in the militarization of Europe.

French imperialism looks with a knowing eye at the trap set for it by its American and British rivals. Aircraft and submarines will be on the order of business of the next disarmament conference if one is ever assembled and these weapons are too valuable for France against England for her to surrender them lightly.

The territorial arrangements made by the Versailles treaty are not permanent and everybody knows it. They are productive of endless friction and guerilla warfare as was the case in Danzig the other day with the constant menace of these breaking out into larger conflicts. France wants, therefore, to ties the allied nations to these frontier agreements; it is not only the question of the Franco-German frontiers, but those of Poland, Roumania, etc.—the French vassal states.

Inasmuch as Great Britain and America have interests in eastern Europe opposed to those of France, the demand of the French press that, in return for a limitation of French aircraft and submarines, the frontiers of France and her allies be guaranteed, amounts to making a farce of all disarmament proposals.

Such proposals can be nothing else than a farce, but it happens that French imperialism is slightly more cynical at the present time than its American and British prototypes and therefore more frank.

France may be forced to limit her military preparations by pressure from the House of Morgan, but this will indicate only that she has been brought within the circle of American imperialism and only such reductions will be made as will make interest payments more probable while not weakening her as an enemy of Great Britain.

Some liberals are already getting ready to give three cheers for Coolidge, the great peacemaker, but anyone who becomes enthusiastic over any disarmament conference under imperialist auspices is hopelessly insane. Only sheer imbecility can account for enthusiasm over this one.

The Milwaukee Leader says the British trade union report on Soviet Russia is a mass of contradictions. So is capitalism, but the Leader does not fight capitalism while it does fight Soviet Russia and its working class supporters.

Seattle Reactionaries Lose

Read the clear and direct statement of principles made by the Seattle Communists in the Central Labor Council in answer to the charges of the reactionaries and contrast it with the vicious and hysterical denunciation of Communists and their aims in the labor faker press.

There are in the labor movement as well as in other sections of modern society what Veblen calls "vested interests." It is an axiom that the most bitter enmity is aroused by anything that irritates the pocketbook nerve and which threatens to cut off its source of nourishment.

Communists attack the vested interests of the labor fakers openly.

In Seattle there was during the war period an orgy of graft and corruption in which the upper strata of the labor movement and most of the officialdom took part. This gang, the remnants of it at least, are still in power. Long ago the welfare of the workers became something to sneer at. The fight against the bosses and the state was shoved into the background and the labor movement became a field for private enterprise.

The Seattle Communists exposed this condition and the economic security of the fakers was threatened. They feel that the Communists must be driven out of the labor unions that peace and profit-making may continue. In this maneuver they display some cunning, but the Communists have gone to the rank and file and hell has broken loose. It is not so easy to expel Communists and it is still harder to do it quietly.

The Seattle reactionaries have not been able to unseat the Communist delegates as yet. Whatever the final result is the mass of the organized workers will have a better understanding of the role of the Workers (Communist) Party, a better appreciation of the anti-working class attitude of fakerdom and a stronger will to fight for their class.

The Seattle reactionaries cannot win because the Communists have already counted coup.

Polish and American Capitalism

The Polish government which is trying to send Stanislav Lanzutsky, worker and Communist member of parliament, to the gallows, borrows $30,000,000 from the House of Morgan and spends the most of it in the United States for war supplies.

Unemployment in Poland is chronic, the country is being systematically looted by French capitalists, its military budget has increased to $160,000,000 per year and it is deporting all militant workers in the territories it received under the Versailles treaty from Germany and Russia.

The Polish "democracy" is a government of terror. The working class is enslaved four times—to the Polish priesthood, to the Polish white guards, to the French imperialists and to the House of Morgan.

The Polish hangman's government is persona grata with the ruling class of the United States. Our rulers look with grinding approval at the terror directed against the revolutionary workers and peasants of Poland. It pledges its support to the finance-capitalists who loan money with which to finance this murderous activity. Most of all is Poland praised as a bitter foe of the workers' and peasants' government of Soviet Russia.

The demonstrations in this country against the execution of Stanislav Lanzutsky which will be carried out by the Polish workers under the leadership of the Polish Federation of the Workers (Communist) Party are therefore not only protests against the Polish capitalism. They are directed just as much against the Morgan government of the United States which acts as paymaster for the murderers of the Polish working class.

'Peaceful' Denmark

Fifty thousand workers in basic industries are locked out in Denmark. In a few days it is believed that 130,000 workers will be involved, as many unions have already stated their intention of answering the lockout by striking and tying up all Danish industry.

Wage demands made by the workers in cement factories, metal factories, sugar and butter plants, have been refused by the bosses altho, like in all European countries, the cost of living is going up.

The Danish conflict is significant because it is this little nation whose exports are principally foodstuffs and where heavy industry merely supplies the needs of the domestic market that the reformists have pointed to as an example of peaceful progress; the Danish co-operatives have been held up as forms that would solve the class struggle peacefully.

Yet, the Danish workers are forced into battle in spite of the non-imperialist nature of Danish production. They are part of the world's working class just as the Danish capitalists are part of the world's idle ruling class, the Danish unions with their syndicalist structure and tendencies will have to recognize this basic fact.

World capitalism has closed long ago all peaceful paths to freedom even in pastoral Denmark.

Communists recognize the realities and strip the camouflage from capitalism, but this they could not do if capitalism itself did not suck into its maelstrom the whole working class no matter how ardently sections of it desire to "co-operate" to Communism.

The Hillman machine has a revolt on its hands that it cannot handle. Its suspension of Local 5 of New York, its starvation tactics in Chicago—forcing members of the union out of their jobs because they distributed a legal leaflet—has tended to solidify the mass of left wing sentiment. The rule or ruin policy is not going to stand the test.

For the first time in his career Czar Hutcheson of the Carpenters' Union has had to back up. He speaks with less assurance to the Chicago militants since he got trimmed in Detroit.

RAISIN GROWERS FORCED TO GIVE UP SALES POOL

Had Refused to Deal with the Workers

CHICAGO, March 22—After thirteen years of ups and downs as the largest raisin growers' group in the United States, the Sun Maid Raisin Growers' Assn. of California is returning to competition for the 1925 crop. They failed to sign up 85 per cent of the crop for their pool.

This news and the story of the raisin growers, is told by J. C. Coleman, former raisin grower and representative in the association from his district.

Boosted Price.

"The Sun Maid raisin growers center in the San Joaquin valley about Fresno," Coleman explains. "When they got 85 per cent of the crop into their co-operative producing and marketing pool in 1912 the price had been running from 1¼ to 3 cents a pound for the prepared raisins.

"They brot it up to 3½ cents the first year, to 7 cents in 1917 and 14 cents in 1920. Then it slumped rapidly to 4 cents a pound in 1922 and about 1¾ cents in 1924. In 12 years they had gone the whole price cycle and are back where they had started but hopelessly in debt and no way to get out. Now in 1925 the plan is given up.

Banks Ruined Growers.

"What were the reasons for the rocket-like ascent and fall? The retail price of raisins has nothing to do with it because that has remained fairly constant ranging up to 25 cents a pound, no matter what the wholesalers and jobbers paid the growers. It is a story of overproduction, mistaken labor policy, real estate sharks, selling difficulties and opposition of the big banks.

"No sooner had the raisin growers established a guaranteed price for themselves with extra cash distributions if the market price went above the guarantee than speculative growing by outsiders began to increase the acreage vastly above the requirements. The raisin production in 1924 was double pre-war. This made the maintenace of the 85 per cent pool almost impossible. The gambling in land values had been beyond belief.

Refused to Deal with Labor.

"The association suffered from a boycott by labor consumers since it refused to deal with organized labor, either A. F. of L. or I. W. W. It suffered also from a boycott by the Retail Grocers' Assn. because it sold to chain stores at wholesale rates, discriminating against the retail grocers. Tho upheld by the supreme court this practice makes no friends among the thousands of retailers still outside the chain systems. The wholesalers boycotted them for the same reason. Direct selling, proposed in 1922, was no longer possible because of the $20,000,000 deficit in the association treasury discovered at that time.

"Large investments in packing plants and in research proved extravagant on a falling market. The big banks looked with displeasure on the banking conducted by the association for its members without charge and put a stop to it."

RUSSIAN COMMUNIST TELLS HOW WORKERS JOIN COMMUNIST PARTY NUCLEI IN THE DYNAMO FACTORY

To the Workers of Western Countries.

Dear Comrades: Not so long ago I described our life, and to-day I will tell you something about the second Lenin levy.

A few day ago we had a meeting in the factory of all the members of the bureau of the party nucleus for the purpose of admitting working men and women to the party.

Up till now 120 questionnaires have been examined, and people were called up accordingly, every one in his or her turn for their "confession of faith."

In the corridor outside the nucleus bureau there was a big throng of people; everyone tried to be first. Patience is a virtue which our chaps do not know, for did not the "Dynamo" workers show up well in "October," (Nov. 7, 1917) being the first to throw off the yoke and mount the barricades?

On Wednesday, instead of the usual "Party Day" in the theater of the workers' palace, the "proletarian smithy," a general meeting will be held to receive the above-mentioned working men and women into the party. Before anyone can be finally admitted into the party those present at the general meeting are asked if they have any objections, and then the vote is taken.

Here is a sample taken from my note-book of what kind of people are admitted into the party:

Alexandra Zakharova has worked years, employed in the factory since the age of 14. Abjured all mythical beliefs and prejudices since that age.

Michael Kizikov, aged 26, volunteer already in the Red Guards from 1917 to 1923 and now in the teritorials. Father and mother are peasants, employed in the factory as a roofer.

Alexandra Zakharova, has worked in the factory since childhood, almost illiterate. Woman delegate of the women's section and does, also, other social work. Some one taxes her with having an "ikon" in her room and she is told that if she wants to join atheists she must "break off all communication" with gods.

"If it is necessary, I will remove the 'ikon,' for I have had my doubts about it for some time, and I do not want to part with my fellow-workers."

It was decided by a unanimous vote to admit her, and to insist that she attend classes of general and political education. She is to be a candidate for 6 months.

Michael Oblizin, factory chauffeur. Fought in the civil war, was an official member of the party since the age of 19, but left it because he could not understand the new economic policy. He is now sorry and is suffering mentally. Admitted as a candidate for 6 months.

Martha Nikitushkina, employed as a presser since the age of 16. Does social work, has gone thru a course of political education, her parents are peasants.

"My room is but small and there is no room in it for any gods; where the 'ikon' used to be is now the electricity meter." She was admitted amidst loud applause.

All attempts at objections to her admission were drowned in loud applause, which grew in volume when it was announced that the whole Young Communist League was entering the party.

But here is a difficulty—there are no proper premises to hold party meetings. Even before it was a rather tight squeeze, and with the new comers we shall be 400 party members, a whole regiment of Communards.

Our cultural commission has begun to be very busy. It has approached the nucleus and the manager of the factory and asked them to help us out of the difficulty. There are many schools and there is an influx of people, but premises—there are none. We had five rooms in the restaurant, but they have been taken up long ago for different purposes in their turn. Previous to the recent mass influx into the party there were three schools for political education, two more schools have ben opened, as well as a Marxist circle and a workers' correspondents' circle, three circles for the liquidation of illiteracy and one circle for agitators and propagandists, etc.

What is to be done?

And the influx is continuing and what a lot more rooms will be needed for various commissions and nuclei. It almost looks as if we shall have to meet in the office after office hours.

The general meeting took place as usual, but today the International was sung even with more than the usual enthusiasm.

And truly when one hears the words:

"Arise ye starvlings from your slumbers, arise ye criminals of want, for reason in revolt now thunders and at last ends the age of cant." One begins involuntarily to ask oneself how much the workers have received from the menshevik lackeys; miserable creatures, what have you mensheviks given to the starved and wretched of the earth?

PARTY STUDENTS WILL SEE BOTH SIDES OF CITY

Hell Town and Gold Coast Contrasted

This afternoon, after the adjournment of the last class at three o'clock, all the students of the Chicago Lenin School will be taken on a trip thru the stock yard district of Chicago and then on a bus trip thru the "gold coast" section for contrast.

Public Speaking Course Begins Today.

Today at 10 a. m. and continuing thru the week till the end of the school, Comrade Thurber Lewis will give his class in Public Speaking which will be a practical course and take advantage of the material already presented in the other classes.

The school enters upon its second week with a great deal of success already to its credit. Already as many as thirty lectures have been delivered on the various subjects. Both students and teachers are highly satisfied and feel that the school has done much more than merely teach the comrades attending so many subects. It has created an excellent atmosphere and spirit.

The schedule for today is as follows:

9 A. M.—Trade Union History and Tactics: Dunne.
10 A. M.—Public Speaking: Lewis.
11 A. M.—History of American Communist Movement: Bittelman.
1 P. M.—Elementary Marxian Economics: Lerner.
2 P. M.—Leninism: Gomez.

Germany to Enter League.

PARIS, France, March 22.—The German government is about to demand admittance to the league of nations, a dispatch here states. France intends to insist on reparations and security treaties as the price of German admittance.

ONE RESULT OF INTENSIVE TRAINING.

(The Impressions of a Student)

By F. S. F. (Detroit)

The fact that our national office is situated in Chicago is a result of the fact that Chicago is one of the best concentrated centers of capitalism—has the most developed slave pens and the largest ones in the entire country.

Our classes—situated in this center—have taught us the dynamic forces that operate. We can ascribe to the economic conditions, and the resultant class antagonism why our national office is really situated in this vicinity. The way we arrive at such a conclusion is by the "Dialetic" reasoning. A combination of the two will give us the "Dialectic Materialism," the fact that we arrive at our conclusion thru the understanding of these economic forces.

Such is one result of our "Intensive" training classes.

The students now think in terms of commodities, surplus value, dialectics, Internationals and ways of organization. This is far from being an evil. The result of this course is taking deep root. It is being impressed on the plate of the memory of each and every student. It is not only impressed thereon but will remain for many a day. Every student will go back to his city a wiser and more active member.

Not only that, the course has created a desire to know more. It has shown a realm of pursuit that will assist our movement in its actual every day struggles—books that will give us a theoretical knowledge of how to fight the actual fight of rallying the working class, our own inactive members first, and the trade unionists and members of other organizations composed of workers but so far not infused with the class consciousness that is necessary for the final fight against capitalism.

This new thing, the understanding and the desire to know more what lies in these instruments of clearer class consciousness, will permeate into the very beings of our other members who have not had the chance to visit this school. They themselves will also try to understand the history of the labor movement and this will, in turn, create a clearer vision of what they are fighting for.

So this experiment, I am confident, will prove more than an experiment—a means of gathering our forces to act consciously for our final goal.

For the Recognition of Soviet Russia

EDITOR'S NOTE.—The following declaration on the recognition of Soviet Russia was adopted at the tremendous "Paris Commune" celebration held recently in Madison Square Garden, New York City. It might well serve as the basis of similar resolutions to be urged elsewhere. It is as follows:

FOR seven years Soviet Russia has struggled against a world of enemies. From the moment of its birth the first government of workers and peasants found itself confronted with the united forces of capitalism emerging from the world massacre gorged with profits and greedy for further plunder.

The international imperialism of western Europe and America in its effort to extend its dominion over the whole world found as the sole obstacle in its path the new power of the workers and peasants in Soviet Russia, and their allies, the revolutionary workers of all other countries combined in the Communist International.

Capitalist imperialism, represented chiefly in the governments of Great Britain, France and America, launched a combined attack upon the new Soviet power. Bayonet and machine-gun, torture and starvation, boycott and famine, every weapon was used to force the Russian workers to their knees, to break their power and restore capitalism and czarism. The American government co-operated eagerly in this nefarious onslaught with the European reaction and its agents, the Kolchaks, Judenitches, Wrangels and Denikins.

Capitalism failed. Soviet Russia won thru untold sacrifices, the Russian workers and peasants triumphed, expelled the white guards of international capitalism and saved the revolution.

The collapse of the military offensive was followed by a diplomatic offensive. Thru economic isolation and diplomatic suasion, the capitalist world hoped to gain what it could not take by force. At Geneva, at Lausanne, The Hague and London the imperialist governments attempted to wring economic concessions from Soviet Russia and force her to surrender the conquests of the revolution, to recompense and reinstate the landlords and capitalists.

And again capitalism failed. Again Soviet Russia won. The diplomatic offensive failed as the military offensive had failed, as boycott and famine had failed to break the proletarian dictatorship.

Baffled, defeated, vanquished, international capitalism fell back from its intended victim and sued for peace. One after another the leading powers of the world have recognized Soviet Russia—Great Britain, France, Germany, Italy, Poland, the Scandinavian countries, Japan, China. Until today there is no country of any importance in which Soviet Russia is still unrecognized except the United States of America. This last and strongest citadel of international capitalism still delays recognition, fearful of the growing prestige of Soviet Russia and the increasing influence of the international Communist movement, and hoping to extract greater economic concession from the Russian workers and force them to submit to the capitalist yoke.

Wherefore, we, the workers of America, 20,000 in mass meeting assembled, looking upon Soviet Russia as the champion and defender of the working class of all countries—the industrial workers of the west, as well as the oppressed people of the east, believing the only means whereby the workers can achieve their emancipation and clear the way for a Communist society to be the dictatorship of the proletariat as exercised by the Russian workers; regarding the federation of Soviet Republics as the chief bulwark against an all-devouring capitalist imperialism, with its attendant misery, slavery and war; seeing in Soviet Russia with its control of one-sixth of the surface of the globe an all-important factor in world economy, whose isolation from the rest of the world dislocates the economic life of all other countries, causing unemployment and other evils; therefore

BE IT RESOLVED, we, the workers of New York, 20,000 strong in mass meeting assembled, demand the immediate full, free recognition of Soviet Russia without conditions, and we call upon all other workers of America and upon the trade unions to join us in a protest against the government of the United States for its persecution of Soviet Russia in the interests of a clique of capitalist bondholders, for the lying propaganda against Soviet Russia spread by its own department of state over the seal of Chas. E. Hughes, lackey and servant of Wall St.

LONG LIVE THE COMMUNE, THE GOVERNMENT OF THE WORKERS AND PEASANTS!

LONG LIVE THE FEDERATION OF SOCIALIST SOVIET REPUBLICS!

LONG LIVE THE SOVIET UNION—AND ITS ALLY, THE COMMUNIST INTERNATIONAL!

DOWN WITH THE EXPLOITERS, THE IMPERIALISTS, THE WAR-MAKERS, AND THEIR GOVERNMENT!

ARE THE REDS MOLLYCODDLES?

THIS question will be answered by the Finninsh Workers' Gymnastic association at the International Unity Demonstration, and benefit entertainment, at Ashland Auditorium, Sunday afternoon, March 29. The muscular strength will not be displayed after the manner of Paavo Nurmi, who developed his speed running away from the working class movement—it will be a beautiful exhibition of co-operative strength of a group of finely trained gymnasts—the very living symbol of the constructive building of the new order out the perfectly harmonized strength of organized workers.

And just to show that the women comrades will carry their full share of these tasks of the future there will be a prize-winning group of Czecho-Slovak girl athletes. Altho there is a national convention of Bohemian workers' sport organizations in Chicago on that day, these girls will show their solidarity with the workers of other nationalities by a brief appearance on the program.

These will be only two of a long list of splendid program numbers—the longest and best list ever assembled on one stage. Some of the foreign speaking comrades know the excellence of one or the other of these numbers but no one has ever seen them all on one joint program.

Proceeds of the show will benefit the Irish Workers' and Peasants' Famine Relief and the Labor Defense Funds.

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

GENTLE hints appear in the news dispatches from China on the advisability of capitalist intervention to save that country from the warring generals whose armies number in the aggregate approximately 2,000,000. What the scribes of the bourgeoisie mean is, that the tremendous unexploited wealth of China must be saved for the plunderbund whose itching fingers have hitherto been unable to close on the juciest plums because of the opposition of Sun Yat Sen, now dead.

UNFORTUNATELY for the capitalist powers, the history of their relations with China in the past is not conducive to breeding conficence in their future dealings. The death of Sun Yat Sen is a heavy ross to the Chinese masses but the Koumingtang party still remains and the power of the workers and peasants of Russia is behind the exploited masses who stood with Sun thru the many years of his conflict with the greedy capitalists.

THE catholic church which is such a bulwark of "law and order" is proving in France and in Mexico that when its interests are threatened, it throws its pacifist pretentions to the winds and fights vigorously for its privileges even against the existing governments. In Alsace, school children were called on strike against the secularization of the schools and the bishops issued a statement denouncing the government teachers for perverting the wills of the children with rationalist ideas. The extreme conservatives are lined up with the bishops against Herriot. The cardinals declare that politics must be subordinate to religion, which means that the government must be subordinate to the church.

IN Mexico the slumbering hostility to the church which has existed since the Carranza revolt, broke out afresh last week in Mexico City resulting in loss of life. A section of the clergy and the least superstitious of the catholic population have decided to sever relations with Rome. It appears that the Calles government turned over one of the richest catholic churches to the separatists. The orthodox bishops do not relish the idea of losing their property, so they fight or get others to fight for them.

"GENERAL" DAWES intends to carry his fight against the senate rules to the country during the summer in a series of speeches. We are also informed that he has presented refractory senators with specimens of his famous underslung pipe. Pehaps it is the pipe of peace, or it may be possible that the wily goddess nicotine is capable of sending the enemies of the vice-president into deep slumber thru the ministrations of the pipe. "Beware of Greeks bearing gifts" should be the slogan of the senators whom Dawes wishes to placate with his briars.

THE British tory government is going ahead with its project to build the Singapore naval base. This is looked upon as a threat against Japan. Ramsay MacDonald in the house of commons warned the government that Soviet Russia was gaining increasing influence in the Far East and that the building of this base would tend to throw the people of the Orient still closer to the Communist government. This he suggested rather than said, was one of the greatest dangers liable to spring from the tory decision to rebuild the Singapore base. MacDonald is a socialist of the Victor Berger-Morris Hillquit type.

THE German campaign for the presidency of the republic has opened. The Communist candidate is Thaelmann. Dr. Jarres, the candidate of the right bloc, insists that he is loyal to the republic but insists also that he must have the right to express his admiration for the old imperial colors and his contempt for the November revolution which sent the kaiser into exile. There is no doubt but in the event of the victory of the right bloc at the polls, that steps will be taken

Relief Committee Leads St. Patrick's Parade

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

NEW YORK, March 23.—The famine in the west of Ireland was dramatically brought to the attention of Governor Al Smith and Mayor Hylan, yesterday, by members of the Workers Party and representatives of the Irish Workers' and Peasants' Famine Relief Committee when, banners describing the distress of 750,000 workers and peasants were carried in front of the automobile in which the mayor and governor were seated, as they led the annual St. Patrick's Day parade up Fifth Avenue.

Several Irish comrades broke thru the masses on the sidewalks and stepped in front of the governor's automobile. Smith called the adjutant to remove them, but the demonstrators were not daunted by the military dis-

Factories and Tipples Lost in Storm

MURPHYSBORO, Ill., March 23.—With more than 175 of her dead laid to rest in the St. Andrews and Tower Grove cemeteries, Murphysboro turned toward its relief work and rehabilitation today.

Fifty one of the more seriously injured were taken by special train to St. Louis hospitals. Funeral services were held from dawn to dusk Sunday with religious services over each body. Tents have been received for all the homeless and those who have been forced to sleep in store rooms, railroad stations and public buildings are equipped only temporarily with living quarters, food and clothing.

Industries here must be reconstructed. A force of workmen is employed rebuildnig the Brown factory, the Mobile and Ohio railroad shops, and roundhouse.

The M. & O. R. R. shops, division offices and railway station were demolished.

HARRY JENSEN IMPLICATED IN BALLOT FRAUD

Vote of Local Switched, Delegates Charge

Local No. 1786, of the Carpenters' Union, voted against the proposed agreement submitted to the inside or millmen locals of the United Brotherhood in Chicago. This agreement called for the acceptance of the old scale of $1.15 an hour while the rank and file wanted the higher wage scale secured by the the painters and other sections of the building trades.

When the officials of the district council announced the tabulation of votes at last Friday night's meeting, the delegates from Local 1786 were amazed to hear that the secretary of their local had reported that the local had voted for the $1.15 scale recommended by Harry Jensen, president of the district council.

Voted Against Low Scale.

The delegates promptly informed Jensen that their local had voted against the low wage scale as they demanded an agreement giving the millmen as high a scale as any other section of the building trades. Jensen gruffly told them, that he had the report of the secretary and would not accept the statements of the delegates as authoritative. Tho the secretary of Local 1786 was in town, and it was a quite easy task to get in touch with him in order to set matters right, Jensen refused to consider any attempt at verification of the alleged report of the secretary, but declared the low wage scale was carried.

They Are Suspicious.

The members of Local 1786 are wondering what kind of a private agreement Harry Jensen has with the contractors. They cannot imagine that he would be so insistent on recommending a low wage scale and aiding in a conspiracy to switch votes in order to put over that agreement unless there was something in it for him.

It is possible of course, that Jensen may be working for the contractors from an honest belief that what is good for the bosses is good for the workers and that the less the carpenters get for their labor, the more the employers will have to spend on their luxuries for themselves and their numerous parasites. Perhaps—but not one carpenter in a thousand believes that Jensen's insistence on a lower scale for the carpenters than the painters are getting is done from any other motive than one of self interest. In other words they believe he is making his hay at their expense.

Militarist Gets the Job.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—General John J. Pershing, commander in chief of the American forces in the world war, today was named by President Coolidge as president of the plebiacitary commission which will supervise the holding of a plebiscite to decide the sovereignty of the disputed provinces of Tacna and Arica, between Chile and Peru.

CAPITALIST COURTS SHOW DETERMINATION 'TO GET' COMMUNISTS

NEW YORK, March 23.—More Communists are on trial. The capitalist court is determined to get the three young Communists who were arrested on Friday, March 13, for rehearsing for the Paris Commune Pageant which was such a tremendous success at Madison Square Garden. The "Communists must be shown their places."

The Michigan cases are still before the capitalist courts—and more of the comrades will be brought to trial in a short time. The cases of Lassen and Vijtauer, Communist editors, are still pending. These three new cases must be defended with all energy. These young comrades face deportation. "Such people ought to be shipped out of the country," said the judge.

THEY SHALL NOT BE DEPORTED—and they will not be deported, if the class-conscious workers come to their defense. Funds are required thousands of dollars will be needed. Send your contributions to the Labor Defense Council, New York division, 108 East 14th St. Collect in the shops, trade unions and fraternal organizations. Let the workers know how the capitalist government treats the workers of this country. Agitate—mobilize the workers to the defense of the revolutionary workers.

MacDONALD, BRITISH SOCIALIST LEADER, PAYS TRIBUTE TO LATE LORD CURZON

LONDON, March 23.—Fulsome eulogies of the late Lord Curzon were delivered in the house of commons today by Premier Stanley Baldwin and former Premiers MacDonald and Lloyd George. The house of lords adjourned today in respect to the memory of the notorious reactionary representative of the British ruling class.

It is quite likely that MacDonald's tribute to one of labor's greatest foes will result in more trouble for the beneficiary of Sir Alexander Grant's biscuit factories.

Militants Lead Fight Against Slavery

By Gilward Schwartz.

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

BROOKLYN, N. Y., March 23.—The retail grocery and dairy clerks of Brooklyn are out on a general strike. On last Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock 500 clerks discarded their badges of servility—the white coat and apron, and donned the union badge of struggle, consisting of strike picket signs on their chests and backs.

Police Fail to Cow Them.

These signs declared that they would work no more for 12 to 15 hours a day, but only nine hours, and that $15 to $25 a week will not be accepted as a wage, but their demand for a $35 minimum to enable them to eke out an existence must be granted by the proprietors.

The interference of police and gangsters did not affect their militant spirit in the slightest. They declare they will tie up Brooklyn in their fight to unionize around these demands every store in Brooklyn.

Many Settlements Made.

The first day of the strike brought 100 settlements with individual and small chain store proprietors. The organizer of the union, David Vacker, says he cannot satisfy the demand for settlements fast enough.

The strikers meet daily at the office of the union, 204 East Broadway, New York City, and are being addressed by the leading members and officers of the union, the largest percentage of whom are members of the Workers (Communist) Party or the Trade Union Educational League.

JOHNSTON TALKS TO JOHNSTON IN ENGINEERS' HALL

By ALFRED WAGENKNECHT

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

CLEVELAND, March 23.—"Guess we will have to go out and hire an audience." These were the first words I heard when I entered engineers' auditorium. I looked towards the speaker and found "B. & O." Johnston, president of the International Association of Machinists the person addressed.

A Funeral.

"B. & O." Johnston had been brought to Cleveland by the progressive party of Cuyahoga county to stir it into life. All the meeting needed was the sweet scent of roses to make it a funeral. LaFollette got a majority of 8,000 votes in Cleveland in the presidential election.

Eighty political butterflies, decorated eighty of the twelve hundred seats in engineers' auditorium to learn what happened in Chicago. In Chicago a few short weeks ago Mr. Johnston was turned down cold by the railroad brotherhoods. This frost was no less apparent at his meeting in the

BRITONS DOUBT APPEARANCE OF BEN. MUSSOLINI

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

LONDON, March 23.—The report of Benito Mussolini's appearance at the celebration of the sixth year of the fascisti organization is received with considerable skepticism in England. It is pointed out that strict censorship prevails in Italy and that owing to the recent strike of metal workers the fascist regime is in greater danger of being toppled over than at any time since the black shirts marched on Rome.

Fascist dispatches say that the dictator spoke only for a few minutes from the balcony of the foreign office, and that 150,000 people cheered him.

LABOR DEFENSE ASKS FUNDS FOR STRICKEN LABOR

Miners of the Storm Area Need Aid

The condition of the thousands of coal miners and other workers in the storm devastated district of southern Illinois, was taken up at the last regular meeting or the Chicago Council for Labor Defense and Relief, and the several score of delegates from local unions and working class fraternal and political organizations responded with enthusiasm.

The local secretary, Wm. F. Kruse, pointed out that such catastrophes were exploited by capitalist relief agencies for anti-labor purposes, citing the raid on the Japanese unions under cover of the earthquake, and similar instances. This storm-swept area embraced also some of the most militant of the miners' union locals, and the International Workers' Aid was duty bound to see to it that these militants were not made to suffer by capitalist discrimination. Working class relief for working class needs has been practiced extensively in Europe, and recently the Dortmund mine disaster was made an inspiring demonstration of international solidarity.

Aid For Miners.

The storm that has just visited inexpressible suffering on a large section of the union coal miners and other workers in southern Illinois and the adjecent fields, is likely to be seized by the capitalist class to further beat down the workers' resistance and destroy their union organization. This danger is particularly present in a district such as this, which has been at the forefront of militant struggle against both the bosses and the labor bureaucrats.

The Chicago Council for Labor Defense and Relief therefore calls on the organized workers thruout the state and nation to be on guard against attempts to use the capitalist charitable agencies to discriminate against the more militant workers, and calls for a working class relief fund from the labor movement thru the International Workers' Aid

Start Collections Immediately.

Plans were outlined immediately to take collections at dances given by the Workers Party branches in Cicero and on the south side, as well as on Sunday gatherings of Russian, Jewish, and Italian workers.

Coal miners from the stricken area will report on the needs of their districts and will canvass local unions and other organizations to raise this fund. All contributions should go to the I. W. A., 19 S. Lincoln St., Chicago.

TO PROBE MINE BLAST AS ALL 34 BODIES ARE TAKEN FROM W. VA. PIT

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

BARRACKSVILLE, W. Va., March 23.—Up to 1 o'clock this afternoon thirty bodies had been removed from mine 41 here, wrecked by an explosion last Tuesday night.

The other three bodies have been found and will be removed to the surface late this afternoon, rescue leaders said, following which an "official investigation" will be started by Governor Gore and other officials to determine the cause of the disaster.

COKE REGION STRIKERS, 45,000 STRONG, SCORN LEWIS MACHINE AND CHEER COMMUNIST LEADERS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

UNIONTOWN, Pa., March 23.—The situation of the coke miners' walkout remains unchanged. All the operators have cut wages from 35 to 50 per cent. The miners have not accepted this infamous wage cut, and have abandoned work about 95 per cent being out on an unorganized strike. There are approximately 45,000 miners in the coke region.

T. U. E. L. Committee Leads Strike.

Meetings are being held everywhere by the aid and initiative of the Progressive Miners' Committee, members who were formerly expelled from the United Mine Workers of America by John L. Lewis and his machine. They are welcomed enthusiastically by the strikers and cheered at every speech.

Yesterday Chiccolini talked to 500 miners at Allison. He explained the necessity of unity with all other rank and file miners if they want victory. Chiccolini is well-known about the coke region and the miners know him from the 1922 strike when he fought the Lewis machine.

A Victim of Lewis.

At the last international convention at Indianapolis, Lewis denied Chiccolini a seat, altho he had a regular credential from the local of which he is president.

The miners do not trust the Lewis machine any more, and rely only in the leadership of the Progressive Miners' Committee who they know will not betray them as Lewis did in 192

Resolved to Fight Under Progressives

Once, at least, the workers are opening their eyes and beginning to realize that only under the leadership of the Progressive Miners' Committee of the Trade Union Educational League and with the guidance of the Workers (Communist) Party, can they have victory.

Forty-five thousand miners are resolved not to allow the bosses to impose this dastardly wage cut!

PEASANT LEADERS OF PHILIPPINES HELD BY WOOD'S COSSACKS

MANILA, P. I., March 23.—One hundred leaders of the Katipunan Macabula Macasilage, the peasants' organization here which has been fighting for contracts with the large landowners which would assure a decent living, have been arrested, charged with sedition. The arrests were made by constabulary sent out by General Leonard Wood, who has been aiding the landowners, many of whom are American capitalists.

The constabulary have been trying to crush the peasants' resistance to conditions which verge on actual slavery. Macabula, leader of the rice growers, has been killed, and seven other leaders were slaughtered by Wood's American constabulary. The peasants organization numbers more than 12,000 tenants.

POLISH WORKER MUST NOT DIE, LABOR'S SLOGAN

New York Meeting to Protest Hanging

NEW YORK, March 23.—The workers of this city will stage a mighty protest against the threatened execution of the Communist deputy Lanzutsky of Poland, in a monster mass meeting which will be held in the Central Opera House, Wednesday evening, March 25, under the auspices of the Workers Party, Young Workers League and the International Workers' Aid.

In a statement issued by the arrangements committee the Polish government is warned that the workers of the world are watching its actions closely and the death of Comrade Lanzutsky will not be without serious consequences to the fascist government of Poland.

"Lanzutsky, Communist deputy in the Polish parliament is sentenced to death, by the white guard government because he exposed the brutal action of the Polish bourgeoisie against the workers and peasants," reads the statement, and "fighting for the workers is a crime in Poland and also in Spain where Maurin leader of the Spanish workers is in jail awaiting execution."

Mossaiye Olgin, editor of Novy Mir, Israel Amter, Joseph Manely, Ludwig Lore, Jack Stachel and William Weinstone will be the speakers.

Delay Judge's Hearing.

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., March 23.—With one witness mysteriously missing and another dead—killed at Murphysboro in the tornado there—the congression sub-committee probing the official conduct of Federal Judge George W. English, adjourned until tomorrow.

POLISH POLICE KILL WORKERS WITH POISON GAS DURING FIGHT

MOSCOW, March 23.—In February in the mining district Dombrowa (Poland), the agent provocateur Kamienski, who had insinuated himself into the Communist Party, met his fate. The police made an attempt to arrest the workers Valtshik and Piarski, whom they suspected of the murder of Kamienski.

The two men blocked up the entrance, offered resistance. The police opened fire, which lasted for several hours, but failed to get at the workmen, altho they had the assistance of a military detachment. Finally they employed poison gas, by which means they succeeded in killing the two workmen, who had already been wounded. This is the first time that poison gas was used in the class war.

REACTION IN UNION AND CHURCH RESTRAINS TEXTILE WORKERS FROM 'DISTURBING THE BOSS'

By WILLIAM SIMONS.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WILLIMANTIC, Conn., March 23.—As soon as the writer appeared in Willimantic at the beginning of the strike, he immediately noted that there was no working machinery for giving out news. He suggested to several members of the strike committee that a daily bulletin be sent out from Willimantic to all labor papers. It was soon apparent that all the capitalist papers of Hartford, New Haven and other cities were maintaining a conspiracy of silence.

The suggestion was repeated to Miss Amy Hooker, chairman of the grievance committee (not called a strike committee), and to Miss Kelleher, organizer for the United Textile Workers of America, from Scranton, Pa. The latter replied that it would be taken up with President McMahon, when he arrived.

Red Tape Excuse for Doing Nothing.

This was not done, and the next day, Thursday, I had a meeting with the press committee, where I laid the plans for a press bulletin before them, offiering my services to institute it. The press committee did not feel authorized to act, and referred it to the grievance committee that afternoon. The understanding in the morning was that I would be given an oppor-

$15,000.00 Blast Shakes Up Chicago Stockyards District

The stock yards here were thrown into a panic today when a terrific explosion lifted the roof from the building housing the Live Stock Press, Inc., shattered scores of windows in adjoining buildings and caused damage estimated at $15,000. Two employees in the press building escaped uninjured. Gas which accumulated from a leaking pipe, is believed to have caused the blast.

BOSTON STORE AND COPS FAIL TO DEPORT REDS

Released After Two Days in Jail

The three members of the Young Workers' League arrested Saturday evening for distributing leaflets in front of the Boston Store, were finally released at 1:30 p. m. yesterday on bonds of $100.00 apiece after the Boston store, with the active co-operation of the police officials of the central district, had unsuccessfully attempted to hold the Communists for deportation.

Valerie Meltz, Joseph Plotkin and Benjamin Fogel, all members of the Young Workers' League, were booked on charges of "disorderly conduct," after Edward Quinn, in charge of the police who made the arrests, refused for two days to book them, declaring they were "held for the government." The comrades were ordered to appear in night court last night.

Altho the lieutenant at the LaSalle St. police station had told the DAILY WORKER reporter on Sunday, that the three Communists would be released on bonds at nine o'clock yesterday morning Quinn did not put in an appearance until ten o'clock.

Seeks Deportation.

Quinn refused to book the Reds on any charge until he had talked to the department of justice agents at the federal building. Accompanied by the DAILY WORKER reporter and George Maurer, secretary of the Labor Defense Council, Quinn took the "evidence" against the three Communists, consisting of the bulletins which exposed the long hours, small pay, speed up system and fines inflicted on the employes of the Boston store, and a few personal letters taken from them, to the bureau of investigation of the department of justice in Room 578 of the federal building.

The federal detectives, however, could find nothing in the letters or leaflets which advocated "violent overthrow of the government," and refused to hold the comrades on a federal charge.

Still Quinn was reluctant to sign the complaint against the Communists. "I don't want to be holding the bag," he told the DAILY WORKER reporter. "I'll make the Boston store sign the complaint. They're the ones who insisted on the arrests."

Boston Store Behind Arrests.

Quinn then made his way to the Boston Store, Madison and State St., and while the DAILY WORKER reporter waited, urged the managers of the Bostone store to sign the complaint. This they refused to do, insisting, however, that the comrades be booked. "They don't want to sign the complaint," Quinn said, "because they don't want to get mixed up in lawsuits. They're pretty sore about those leaflets."

Quinn then returned to the LaSalle St. station, 180 N. LaSalle St. and agreed to book the Communists. They were charged however, not with distributing leaflets, but "disorderly conduct."

The Young Workers' League members were ordered to appear in night court last night, room 1128, city hall. The desk lieutenant of the central district said they would no doubt be dismissed. "We have to ask bail and book them in order to keep our record clear," he admitted. "You know we kept them such a long time they have to be booked."

Put Six in Cell.

Comrades Plotkin and Fogel were at first put in a cell with a man who had delirium tremens. Sunday night they were six in a cell, and had no room to lie down thru the night. The bread, Comrade Plotkin said, was sour flour mixed with water and hardened. The food consisted of a smelly bologny sandwich.

During a part of Sunday night the two Young Workers' League members had as their cell mate, Julius Weisberg, who had killed the bootlegger Morris Goldman, in front of the Palace Theater. Weisberg admitted the killing, but declared he shot in self defense.

Valerie Meltz was taken to the police station at Harrison and Clark Sts.

Wall Strret Sends Pershing to Subdue The South Americans

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 23.—Gen. Pershing, who with General Leonard Wood is the chief military tool of American imperialism, has been asked by President Coolidge to head the Tacna-Arica plebiscite commission.

Pershing is expected to enforce a military dictatorship upon the workers of Chile and Peru just as Wood is subjecting the Filipinos to the dictatorship of U. S. capitalists.

Coolidge recently ruled that such a commission should be formed. While Peru and Chile are quarreling over Tacna-Arica, Pershing is to step in and secure the property for Wa'l St.

TEXTILE WORKERS STILL UNDER CAPITALISM HEAR HOW WORKERS LIVE IN SOVIET RUSSIAN MILLS

The textile workers of America, hundreds of thousands of them, are being driven deeper and deeper into misery, low wages, and extreme exploitation by their capitalist masters in combination with the powers of the capitalist government.

In this moment, when their eyes and hearts are filled with tears of both suffering and anger, a letter comes to them, which the DAILY WORKER publishes below, telling them how the textile workers of the cotton mills of Soviet Russia live, and how they control their owns lives thru their own workers' Soviet government which they won by revolution. The letter follows:

"Dear Foreign Comrades: As I know that your bourgeois press is not only giving you a wrong idea of the life of Russian workers, but is even distorting facts, I who am myself a worker will endeavor to describe in this letter our factory life to help to give you a right idea of it.

"Our factory is in the center of the textile industry, in the Ivanovo-Voznesensk district. It is a cotton mill which employs eleven and a half thousand men and women. After the October revolution our workers took the factory into their own hands and kept it going. The workers chose from amongst themselves capable people from the bench, and these elected persons became the head of the management. Our workers were not long in realising that they themselves were the true masters of this gigantic enterprise.

"Once workers have assumed power, they begin to improve the conditions under which they have to work and live, and they improve production at the same time. They formed a protection of labor department which looks after the needs of the workers: provides them with suitable clothes and footwear, fats (if necessary for the kind of work they perform), etc. We have special rest homes where those whose health has suffered can spend from a fortnight to one month with full pay. Workers who are tubercular are sent to sanitoria, and health resorts for longer periods, and they also receive their full pay. In 1924, over 600 of our workers spent some time in rest homes, sanitoria, and health resorts.

"Working women—the mothers—are also well looked after, and perhaps their privileges are greater than those of the men. For instance, during pregnancy they are given two months' leave of absence and two months after the birth of the child. During these four months they receive full pay and their places are kept open for them. During the nine months when she is nursing the child, a working woman works only six hours instead of eight while receiving full pay. During this period she receives a special monthly grant.

"We have children's homes and creches where mothers can leave their children and can be certain that they are better looked after there than at home. All this is provided free of charge. Our working women have been given equal rights with men and are drawn everywhere into social work. In our factory there is not a single organiation without its quota of women. They are on the factory committee, in the club, in the co-operative, etc. There are women who occupy responsible posts such as chairman of factory committees, factory managers, etc. In our factory engineers are only employed as experts. Relations between them and the workers have undergone a complete change.

"Our workers have no longer to submit to rough treatment by the engineers, as the latter are aware that they will be dismissed for such behavior. And the time is not far distant when we shall have our own engineers, technicians, chemists, mechanics, etc., who have sprung from the working class.

"For young workers there is in our factory an apprenticeship school where they get a thoro training and from where they can enter higher educational establishments. Their labor is also protected.

"The factory has a club where the workers can increase their knowledge. It has a well-stocked library and a reading room, and all sorts of circles and sections are organied by the workers themselves. The former masters would not have given all this to the workers, and neither will yours.

"For the adult men and women there is a higher grade school. The attendance there is not very numerous—about 300 people a day. On leaving this school they will go to higher educational establishments, as the doors of universities and technical colleges are opened wide to our workers.

"The adult and young workers of our factory publish wall newspapers. Thru this press many shortcomings are remedied, production is improved and old customs and habits are combatted—the achievements of these wall newspapers are very great indeed. Production is growing from month to month.

"Our workers are anxious in all their doings to carry out the injunctions of the leader of the world proletariat, Comrade Lenin.

"Dear foreign comrades, should this letter be reprinted in your press, I will write you regularly every month in more detail and will describe the life of our peasantry.

"My comrades and I await your reply, and shall be particularly glad to receive a letter from the textile workers in your country.

"With Comradely Greetings,

"Malyshev, Workers' Correspondent of the Wall Newspaper, Rodnikovsky Rabotchy."

NO "ST. PETERSBURG" IN UNION OF SOVIET SOCIALIST REPUBLICS

BERLIN, March 23.—Letters addressed to "St. Petersburg, Russia" were returned to the German postal authorities in Berlin with the notation "Country and city unknown." Soviet postal authorities have sent the following instructions to Berlin: "St. Petersburg" is now Leningrad. All letters addressed to Russia must be addressed to the "Union of Soviet Socialist Republics."

Defies Virgin Island Council's Demand for Police Force Change

NEW YORK, March 23.—Governor Philip Williams of the Virgin Islands, a U. S. naval appointee, is playing the part of a most hard boiled colonial governor.

Replying to the Colonial Council's three resolutions calling for investigation of the police force, for a new form of government to replace the naval administration, and for a new franchise law extending the popular vote, Governor Williams says coldly:

"After mature consideration of the matter contained in these resolutions, I cannot help feeling that the interest of the people of these islands would be better served in some other way... I cannot help but feel that any step of the colonial council which might lead to political agitation at the present time would be unwise."

The governor also failed to give the council satisfaction for a statement recently made by his police chief Nolan that "these niggars down here don't want law and order."

Metal Manufacturers Grow.

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R.—Leningrad reports show that the Northwestern engineering works trust has produced over six million rubles' worth of various metal manufactured articles during the first quarter of the current working year (October-December, 1925), as comparpd with only four million rubles' worth produced during the same period of the year 1923-24.

ITALIAN STRIKERS' VICTORY INSPIRES OTHER WORKERS

Fascist Union Strike Upsets the Bosses

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ROME, March 23.—The labor situation is almost normal again today, work having been resumed almost everywhere. It is stated that the strike will cease today in the few places where the men are still out.

Resumption of work is complete in Turin, except at the plant of the Fiat Motor company, which declared it would end its lockout on Monday. At Trieste and Monfalcone an agreement has been reached between the masters and the men which will become effective next week.

Tho the strike resulted in only a brief interruption of work, there is no doubt that the fascisti stirred up a dangerous hornets' nest by calling the strike in Lombardy. The spell which the fascisti have cast over the workers in the last two years was broken and there is difficulty in restraining the workers from making demands for increasing their wages a hundredfold.

Other categories of workers, especially the textile workers, are now in agitation declaring that the soaring living costs render their present wages insufficient. Restiveness of the laboring masses is everywhere apparent.

Besides, by stirring up rivalry between the fascist and the socialist trade unions for favor, the masses are inclined in each organization to make excessive demands upon the industrialists, lest one group be forestalled by another.

In addition, the recent labor agitation fostered by the fascisti has alienated the support of many industrialists, who have hitherto backed fascism, even contributing party funds, considering the gift a kind of insurance policy against the possibility of strikes.

Plan New Outlet for Non-Union Kentucky Coal

WASHINGTON, March 23.—The Owensboro Rockport and Chicago Railway company filed a brief with the interstate commerce commission today asking authority to construct a line between Elnora, Ind., and Owensboro, Ky., crossing the Ohio river at a point midway between Rockport and Owensboro on a bridge to be built as part of the railroad.

The company asserts the proposed road will provide a connecting link between the transportation systems of the north and south, provide another crossing point on the Ohio river, give transportation to large coal fields in Southern Indiana, now without such facilities, give an outlet to the northern markets for Kentucky coal and prove of advantage to farming interests of Southern Indiana and a portion of Kentucky.

Miners Rush to Do Storm Relief Work

Harrisburg, Ill., March 23. — The mines in Gallatin, Mercer and Hamilton counties, today found barely enough men at work to start operations. The miners have rushed to the storm-stricken areas to do relief work.

Hundreds more will leave tomorrow. Many miners have refused pointblank to work at their daily tasks and threatened to quit if such action was necessary to expedite their journey to the stricken districts.

Flood Follows Storm at Griffin.

GRIFFIN, Ind., March 23.— Flood waters closed in on what once was Griffin from three sides today, washing away wreckage and driving relief workers to safety.

But there was little left for the flood to destroy. Only one house was left standing that the tornado passed, and all survivors of the storm have fled.

Authorities in charge of the situation have forbidden the sale of railroad tickets to Griffin except to those having Red Cross permits.

Five Burn to Death In Firetrap Blaze

NEW YORK, March 23.—Five persons, including two women and two children, were burned to death in an East 47th St. firetrap here. Four persons were badly burned when the old 11-family tenement was destroyed.

Including those killed were Mrs. Katherine Walsh and her 17 months old baby son, Joseph; Mrs. Margaret Otto and her six year old daughter, Blanche, and Thomas Carey.

Spanish Dictator Totters

MADRID, Spain, March 23.—Primo de Rivera, military dictator of Spain, has not put into force any reforms which he promised the workers of Spain. Rivera decreed reorganization of the municipal government a year ago but made no move to put it into effect. The general rules Spain by virtue of the support of part of the army. He has no parliament.

Feast and Party for Fascisti Show United Front of the Capitalists

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL

TODAY, it is easy to study the unity of the whole capitalist class thru two such events in New York City as William Randolph Hearst's "Gypsy Ball," in honor of the American ambassador to Spain, Alexander P. Moore, and the luncheon given the new Italian ambassador to the United States, Giacomo de Martino.

Many bankers, industrialists and their intellectual hirelings were present at both affairs, crawling on their bellies in homage to two of the bloodiest dictatorships in the world today— Spain and Italy. But the great capitalists are expected to associate in such company. It is the fact that Hearst's money, taken from millions who believe that his papers fight in their interests against the capitalists, paid for one of these affairs, that should interest the workers, while so-called "insurgent" politicians, like Royal S. Copeland, U. S. senator from New York, a Tammany Hall man, associate of New York's labor officialdom, graced the occasion, along with a melange of "grand dukes" and "grand duchesses" from Russia, of the vintage antedating Nov. 7, 1917.

• • • •

Judge Elbert H. Gary, head of the U. S. Steel corporation, an ardent admirer of Mussolini, must have choked a little as Thomas W. Lamont, of J. P. Morgan & Co., expressed faith in the economic future of Italian fascist rule, while the news was still fresh of the strike of 100,000 metal workers. The fascisti spell over masses of Italian workers is broken, and Gary knows what that means. It is significant that at this luncheon to Mussolini's representative, in addition to Gary, Lamont and a host of others like them, there were present chancellors, presidents and professors from the New York University, Cornell University, the College of the City of New York, and other "Goose-Step Colleges," headed by Dr. James R. Angell, president of Yale University. Their presence showed how much they are being depended on to help put the fascisti idea over in this country. They are to help cement the American alliance with Italian "white terror" rule over labor.

The Hearst affair at the alien Ritz-Carlton fell under the censor's blue pencil insofar as the Hearst press is concerned. It is not good for the common reader of the Hearst sheets to know the company that the multi-millionaire publisher keeps. Some of his bunk might not then rest so easily upon their stomachs.

Moore is a Pittsburgh editor; co-worker with Hearst in chloroforming workers into believing that capitalism is good for them. Moore worked the Pittsburgh steel district, and the fact that Gary and the steel trust are still in power is testimony to his success.

This man Moore, Hearst's guest, applauds the rule of King Alfonso in Spain, that not only sent the educator, Francisco Ferrer, to death not so many years ago, but today imprisons and murders workers wholesale to maintain capitalism in power.

• • • •

The Hearsts did their best to entertain their fascist crowd. The Crystal Room of the hotel was turned into a woodland glen thru the aid of 400 pines cut in Maine and shipped to the party. The jazz orchestras of Lopez and Whiteman were there. Mrs. Hearst was herself attired as a gypsy bride, in white satin heavily embroidered in gold, and wearing pearls. All night long the festivities continued until at dawn breakfast was served, and then Moore went on his way across the Atlantic to speak for American capitalism at the royal court in Madrid.

• • • •

From Morgan, Lamont and Gary to Tammany Hall, with its Senator Copeland and his official labor allies, isn't so great a stretch.

It was J. Ramsay MacDonald, the labor-socialist premier of Great Britain, who heard the voices of Poincare and Mussolini, instead of those of the workers and peasants of Soviet Russia, when he came into power.

The united front against the interests of the working class extends far. That is something that the workers must learn. The Hearst party to Moore should reveal to them the nature of some more of the feathers to be found in the left wing of American fascism. It might be well to remember the old adage that goes something like this,—"He who is not with us is against us."

SERVICES FOR DR. SUN YAT SEN DRAW FIFTY THOUSAND WORKERS

CANTON, March 23.—Fifty thousand workers here attended a memorial service for Dr. Sun Yat Sen, dead leader of the Chinese against foreign imperialism. Seventy labor guilds were represented at the services.

Governor Hu Han-min of Kwantung province, and Wu Chao-chu, secretary for foreign affairs of the provincial government, were among the speakers. Dr. Sun's testamentary address was read to the workers in the Cantonese dialect.

I. T. U. Takes Hold in New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, March 23.—The strike situation in New Orleans as regards the newspapers, which have been out of the union fold for the past nine years, has been taken out of the hands of the local printers' organization by Pres. Lynch of the International Typographical Union.

Coolidge's Trade Commission Shields Electrical Trust

WASHINGTON, March 23.— What was called a sinister consequence has followed the placing of William Humphrey of Seattle on the federal trade commission, thereby making the majority of that body a reactionary one.

The commission has announced a change in its rules. Henceforth it will investigate complaints of unfair methods of competition in business only if there exists, in its opinion, "public interest" in such inquiry.

Moreover, the commission has notified the senate that while it will investigate the tobacco monopoly's attempt to crush the associations of tobacco producers, it will not carry out the request of the senate—contained in the same resolution—to investigate the electric power trust and the propaganda for and against public ownership of power.

President Coolidge has thus succeeded in killing the federal trade commission insofar as it has been a non-partisan body for investigation of the misuse of power by private monopolies.

Mrs. Gompers Withdraws Suit.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 23.— Mrs. Samuel Gompers has withdrawn her suit contesting the will of her husband, when alive, president of the American Federation of Labor, it is announced here. Mrs. Gompers had contested the will because Gompers left her the minimum allowed by the District of Columbia law, one-third of his estate. The rest was left to Gompers' sons and grandsons.

LENIN SCHOOL A LANDMARK IN OUR PARTY

Forty Students with Serious Purpose

By MORRIS CHELOVSKY.

The Communists are a part of the working class, its most resolute, most most sacrificing and farseeing section, which due to its historical view of the march of history is able to lead all other sections of the proletariat.

To make the above more concrete and to prove its truth, our party has made a beginning. The Lenin School in Chicago will be a historical landmark in the history of our party and the Communist movement in the United States.

A short time ago we would have considered it a dream, but now it is an accomplished fact. More than forty students, every one taking this work seriously, have left the mine, the factory or shop and set himself to study, not study for the sake of study, but in order to better serve the interests of our party and the proletariat.

No matter what is being studied, whether the history of the party, the labor movement, or economics, they are all being studied with a purpose.

Unlike the students of the bourgeoisie who study to attain a higher and more dominating post in capitalist society and perpetuate that society our proletarian students are studying how best to destroy this society.

Our school is not separated from the struggle, but combines the two, theory and practice. The students in Chicago actively participated in the work of the party, branch meetings, city central and the distribution of leaflets as well as at the Abramovich demonstrations.

The Lenin School is a great step in the Bolshevization of our party. The result will be paid to the party a hundred fold when the members of the class disband, go back to their various localities with a better and clearer understanding of the class struggle, and like real Communists will set themselves the task of proving the value of the school by a more determined struggle against our oppressors.

Workers Join in Protest Against Child Slavery

Many workers young and old interested attended the child labor mass meeting held in Chicago by the Young Workers' League.

William F. Dunne, editor of the DAILY WORKER, explained what the child labor menace meant to the working class of America, telling of conditions of child workers in the textile mills and telling of some of the extremes to which the capitalist class went in order to defeat the child labor movement. Barney Mass, acting secretary of the Young Workers' League spoke, showing how child labor was increasing in America and telling of the work of the Young Workers' League in its child labor campaign and in organizing the young workers against child labor. John Edwards, member of the national executive committee of the Young Workers' League also spoke.

This meeting was arranged by the Chicago league in connection with the anti-child labor campaign of the Y. W. L., which is trying to intensify the fight against child labor in view of the great increase of child slaves in America at the present time. The Young Workers' League is calling upon the young workers to join in a united front fight to abolish child labor in America, under the leadership of the Workers (Communist) Party and the Young Workers' League.

Coolidge to Give Tool of Railroads Recess Appointment

WASHINGTON, March 23.— When President Coolidge re-nominated Thos. Woodlock, former editor of the Wall Street Journal, to be a member of the interstate commerce commission, on the day senate was to adjourn, the members who had defeated Warren for attorney general were angry enuf to reject him too. However, they decided on a simple refusal to call together the committee on interstate commerce to consider his name. They knew that Coolidge would then give him a recess appointment but they would deal with him again next December.

At the same hour came the news that the St. Paul railway had been thrown into a receiver's hands. Woodlock is looked upon as a masterly inflater and waterer of railroad corporation values. It will be his task to induce the rest of the commission to grant higher freight rates instead of lower rates, thereby restoring public confidence in the claim that the rail properties are worth between twenty and thirty billion dollars.

SECTION OF THE TRADE UNION EDUCATIONAL LEAGUE

'INVESTIGATION' BY HUTCHESON IS A HOWLING FARCE

Article 5 Answering Secretary Duffy

By J. W. JOHNSTONE

In Secretary Duffy's circular letter to local unions and district councils, "explaining" the expulsion policy of Hutcheson, he naturally did not mention what immediate expulsions were contemplated or that the process of expelling political opponents was to continue. Hutcheson's expulsion cyclone has swept quite a large territory and does not seem to have spent itself. Los Angeles, Chicago, Detroit, Philadelphia, and now it has reached New York.

Lapidus Victimized

The newest prospective victims are the officers of Local 376 and Joseph Lapidus, campaign manager of Morris Rosen who was the left wing candidate for general president in the recent carpenters' election.

Mr. Duffy notified these members to appear before a special investigation committee of the G. E. B. on March 18th, to answer the charge of circulating "scandalous, scurrilous, and defamatory literature." (At this writing no word has been received as to the results of this investigation.)

This is the same old chestnut that Brindell (Hutcheson's crony) used when expelling his opponents before he went to the penitentiary, and is also in general use by John L. Lewis, Frank Farrington, and other labor fakers.

The Reason Behind It

The real reason back of this action, however, is seen in the vote cast in Local 376 in the general election—Hutcheson received 8 votes, Brown 4, and Morris Rosen 232, for general president. And it would not do to allow this sentiment to develop in such a large center as New York without at least trying to smash it.

Section 55 of the general constitution could not serve Hutcheson's purpose in a local where he could only get 8 votes, so, as in the other expulsion cases, it is placed in cold storage. The skids have been greased and a fake "investigation committee" selected by Hutcheson to give a legal atmosphere to a verdict that has already been reached.

"A Fair Trial"?

Just consider for a moment the farce that is being enacted. The G. E. B., or rather Hutcheson, because he is the G. E. B., have charged these men with having committed a so-called crime; then they select a committee from amongst themselves to investigate and prove their charges true (although they are supposed to have investigated the foundation for such charges before making them).

Next comes the pronouncement of sentence and punishment by the same group of men, who also enforce them. After which this same man, or body of men, pass upon the appeal of the expelled and sustain the first decision.

Hutcheson is a staunch republican, a 100 per center, a lover of American "democracy." He favors the ku klux klan. And it therefore goes without saying that he is opposed to the dictatorship of the proletariat.

Hutch a Capitalist Among Capitalists

And, why not? Like his friend and co-partner, John L. Lewis, he is a wealthy man, a raiser of blooded stock, and the carpenters' union is the means by which he increased his wealth and personal advancement. So anyone who stands in his way must be crushed, no matter by what means.

The progressive carpenters ran their candidate for general president on a program of action. The candidate, Morris Rosen, was unknown. It was the program that the rank and file were asked to consider and not the individual. The local unions were circularized with copies of the program asking the endorsement of their candidate by the local unions on the basis of the program. Following is a skeleton outline of the program:

1. "Affiliation to the building trades department of the American Federation of Labor.
2. "Abolition of the national board of jurisdictional awards.
3. "Job control.
4. "Five days—forty-hour week.
5. "Uniform agreements to expire at the same time.
6. "All agreements to be ratified by the rank and file.
7. "A joint drive with other trades to organize the industry 100 per cent.
8. "Old age pensions.
9. "Reinstatement of the Los Angeles expelled members. (These were the first of the present series of expulsions.)
10. "The right of minority to freedom of expression within the union.
11. "The right of the general president to suspend members without trial, to be abolished.
12. "National convention to be held biennially.
13. "Committee on rules to govern convention, to be elected by the delegates assembled.
14. "Organizers to be elected by referendum in the districts they represent.
15. "Amalgamation of the building trades upon a departmental basis, along lines laid down by the 1913 convention of the building trades department.
16. "International affiliation with the international building trades secretariat, to include the Russian building trades.
17. "Independent working class political action.
18. "Recognition of, and trade relations with, Soviet Russia."

In all of these 18 points, and in the letter that went to the local unions with the program, Hutcheson or the administration is neither mentioned or criticised. So we get the full meaning of what is meant by "scandalous, scurrilous, and defamatory literature," at least according to the perverted minds of the Hutcheson administration.

If you advocate any measure that is not endorsed by Hutcheson, or use any words not in his vocabulary, then it is "scandalous, scurrilous and defamatory," Section 55 of the constitution, nothwistanding. That section simply does not apply, but it requires the superior brains of a G. E. B. special investigation committee, and the punishment is expulsion.

Works for Scabs and With Police

Of course Hutcheson is very sensitive to clauses, 6, 10 and 11 of the progressive carpenters' program, as it reminds him of his usurpation of power, his signing of the Chicago scab-agreement without the consent of the membership, his expulsion of the 16 members of the Los Angeles locals by telegram on evidence submitted by the police.

In spite of the open rebellion of the rank and file against his ruinous and disruptive tactics in expelling the most progressive and the most active members of the union, he is determined to carry out this expulsion policy no matter how much it disrupts or disorganizes the Brotherhood.

Opposition is Uniting

This time, however, he is meeting with an intelligent and powerful opposition. The members of the union who voted for Willis K. Brown are lining up with the left wing and are jointly against the corrupt Hutcheson administration. This combined force cast 45,000 votes (official count) in the last election against Hutcheson. It is a force to be reckoned with and one that cannot be defeated by the expulsion of a few of their leaders.

Hundreds of locals are on record against the expulsion of these militants and are demanding their reinstatement. Passing resolutions is good, but not sufficient. The entire membership must be informed of the situation and mass membership meetings should be called, so that this ruinous policy may be stopped. This has already been done in Chicago and Detroit.

Committes should be elected to visit local unions and acquaint them with what is going on in their organization. While Hutcheson is waging a war on the militants, he is in close collaboration with the enemies of labor,—as witness his surrendering of the carpenters of Chicago to the Landis award. He was, and still is, a close associate of Robert P. Brindell, of New York.

In my next article I will deal with Hutcheson's relations with the crook, Brindell, from 1916 until Brindell went to the penitentiary.

Smith of Minneapolis, Seeking New Pastures, Picks on Great Falls

By LEFTIST.

GREAT FALLS, Mont.,—Brothers: Just a few lines to let you know that Bill Green, Gompers' successor, has landed in this burg with the honorable Mr. Smith of Minneapolis "fame." Undoubtedly the reason for their visit is to help Brother Ely to subdue the militants and to try and fasten his class collaboration policy on the labor movement of Great Falls.

Smith spoke before the Labor Assembly last Friday. He immediately launched into a bitter attack on the left wing, and the left wing immediately came back and let him know that he would have a fight on his hands if he came here for the same purpose that he went to Minneapolis.

Brother Green will no doubt tell us, before he leaves, that the conference table is more to his liking than the field of struggle, and that we must show the boss that it is to his interest to please allow us to organize.

This probably will be followed up by Smith's demanding the expulsion of all those who do not accept his policy, but who demand that the fight between capital and labor be carried out on the basis of the class struggle.

I expect Smith to appear before the carpenters' union at it's next meeting. If he does, he will find out that they are not all dead ones.

Spanish Fascisti Need Money.

MADRID, March 23—Bachelors over 25 years of age and childless widowers are taxed from 20 to 60 per cent under the provision of a statute passed here today.

GREEN, IN ATTACK ON REDS SAYS UNIONS MUSTN'T STRIKE, BUT COLLABORATE WITH BOSSES

BOSTON, March 23.—In a plea for class collaboration, naked and unashamed, delivered before the Harvard Union, Harvard University, the night of March 20, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, disavowed the class struggle and the idea that capitalism will be distroyed by a proletarian revolution.

Social Pacifism.

He stated his view of the situation in this way: "The trade union movement has been passing thru that period when physical controversies and the tactics of force were most effective; it is now in a period when its leaders must seek the conference room, and there, by exposition and demonstration, convince conferees of the justice and wisdom of labor's position. In such service labor is finding a special need for trained representatives and effective information."

He described with warm approval the "B. & O. plan" of "co-operation" in shop responsibility between the B. & O. railroad company and its federated shop unions. Success in collective bargaining, he declared, is based upon unreserved recognition of the union on the one hand, and a willing concession by the workers, on the other hand, of "the right of employers to control, direct and manage industry to receive a fair return upon invested capital."

Green Against Proletarian Rule.

Referring to the anti-union employers and to "so-called members of the proletariat" who take sharp issue with this conception of trade union rights and duties, Green said the workers in this group are opposed to collective bargaining because "they assert it means wage slavery."

"They do not believe in wage contracts or wage scale regulations," he continued. "They preach class war and class struggle. They are opposed to the existing social order, to what they term 'capitalism,' and pretend to look forward to the time when capitalism will be destroyed and the rule of the proletariat will be substituted in its place.

This is a Lie—Bill Green.

"They believe that any improvement in wages and working conditions which comes to the workers thru the medium of trade unionism and collective bargaining prevents the final triumph of the proletariat and the early realization of their predicted millenium. The enjoyment of high wages and humane conditions of employment by the workers is regarded by this second group as an obstacle in the way of progress while poverty and suffering are looked upon as stepping stones to success."

Green could not offer any proof that his ideas of no strikes and class collaboration would bring the workers the desired "high wages and humane conditions." His lie that revolutionists are not in favor of improvement in wages and conditions likewise was lacking proof. And he failed to mention that the criticism levelled at him and his kind by revolutionists, is precisely that their theory and practice of class collaboration and pacifism in the class struggle totally prevents high wages and humane conditions.

"Obviously modern trade unionism is opposed to these two extremes and of necessity is forced to contend against the vigorous opposition which emanates from these groups. Confronted by hostile employers and the workers' revolutionary group, trades unionism is pursuing its own policy, fighting for public acceptance of its creed and philosophy."

"Dreams" Come True in Soviet Russia

In conclusion, Green remarked that "Many wage earners have had dreams of ownership in industry, but even so we all know that whatever the ownership—private, governmental or employe—the vital problem for us is the terms and relations we have with management. To deal with this problem, labor must always have its voluntary organizations directed and managed by itself.

"Working men and women are no longer mere fixtures in industry but instead are intelligent, understanding human beings with a concept of life which emphasizes the cultural and spiritual rather than the material. We want to make it possible for the workers to acquire more of culture, refinement and education."

Pittsburgh Carpenters Drive Another Nail in Popular Coffin

PITTSBURGH, Pa., March 23—Dear Comrade: This is to notify you that Carpenters' Locals 142 and 333 have endorsed the resolution sent out by Local 2140 of Detroit, Michigan against the expulsion policy of President Hutcheson and the G. E. B.

Local 142 is the largest one in this city. Please publish this in the T. U. E. L. section, so the carpenters will know that even conservative Pittsburgh is against the expulsion policy.

LOZOVSKY WRITES UPON ANARCHO-SYNDICALISM

Its Theory of Union, Party and State

By A. LOSOVSKY.

(General Secretary of the Red International of Labor Unions.)

In the last article I wrote of the "trade unionism" which, prior to the war, was limited to economic views and held no conception of the new society to be won by a working class revolution, a movement which accepted capitalism as permanent.

The second kind of pre-war labor movement, which represents the opposite side of trade union movement is known by the name of "anchro-syndicalism." If trade unionism is connected with Anglo-Saxon countries, anarcho-syndicalism is connected with the Latin. The birthplace of anarcho-syndicalism is France, there it had its greatest development and there also was created the theory which united numbers of workers of the Latin countries.

A Healthy Reaction.

What are the main characteristics of anarcho-syndicalism? Trade unionism as we said, is devoted to the interests of one craft. Anarcho-syndicalism—and this is surely the progressive side of it—is devoted to the interests of the working class. It was a healthy reaction of a certain part of the proletariat against the opportunism and reformism which had existed in labor organization, trade union as well as political. The first characteristic of anarcho-syndicalism which differentiates it is that it puts first the general class interests and struggles—not for betterment within capitalism, but for the overthrow of the system.

The Syndicalist Fallacy.

The second characterization of the anarcho-syndicalist movement within the international labor movement is its anti-political character. Anarcho-syndicalists consider the union as the primary organ for the class struggle. They believe there are no other organizations except the trade unions which can conquer capitalism. All political parties—say the anarcho-syndicalists—beginning with the bourgeois and ending with the socialist, and at the present time with the Communists, are, from the social point of view, mixed organizations; while the trade unions represent a purely labor organization.

A party is a union of citizens. A trade union unites the producers. In the party there are may be workers and also people from other classes. In a trade union—only workers. This is why the anarcho-syndicalists place the union ahead of the party. This is why the trade union happens to be the main weapon of the social revolution in their view.

Besides that, in the opinion of the theoreticians and active workers of anarcho-syndicalism (of whom we may name Sorel, LaGuardelle, Grifuel) the characterization which differentiates the trade unions is that they not only are the basic stronghold of the working class in its struggle to overthrow capitalism, but also organizations around which the new society will be built. According to the belief of the anarcho-syndicalists the trade unions will not only make the revolution but will also create the new society. The trade unions will organize production, regulate production within the industries, will govern the public economy. This is the social philosophy of anarcho-syndicalism. But this is not all.

Anti-State and Non-State.

There is one more characterization of anarcho-syndicalism which is, in full, inherited from the anarchist theory concerning the state: The state, independently of its form or contents, is an enemy. The structure of the state in itself—the anarchists always write the state with a capital "S"—is an organ of exploitation, of one part of the people by the others, and that exploitation is always used against the workers. Therefore, before the war, the question of the dictatorship of the proletariat was a very vague and theoretical one.

The anarcho-syndicalists were always out-spoken against the dictatorship of the proletariat, for from their theory, the latter will mean the continuation of exploitation. They are anti-state, claiming that the state should be destroyed. They thot of the new society which will arise from the social revolution as one in which the trade union will play the leading role. They imagined it as a non-state society, which would be regulated only by the trade unions and which would be occupied only by the problems of productions, distribution, etc.

Individualinsm Versus the Masses

However, this is only in the future; but what differentiates the anarcho-syndicalists from the other trade unionists? Anarcho-syndicalism in its direct struggle uses some methods which differentiate it from other movements. First of all, it believed in the initiative of the minority, and according to its ideas that minority with initiativee could in many cases take the place of the mass. The anarcho-syndicalists in general shared the anarchist distrust of the masses. The individual plays the more important role. This minority with initiative can not only start something, drag the masses along, but also build for the masses, instead of them.

This role of the "militant minority" is one of the main characteristics of the anarcho-syndicalist point of view. And, from this angle, they brot into the everyday struggle things that we do not see in other movements. They brot into the struggle an element of adventure which could always be seen in their custom of exaggeration of the role of the strike. Organizing strikes as often as possible, they even created a special terminology—"revolutionary exercises," figuring that every strike is a good thing. They claim that a strike is always for the benefit of the working class and it drags in a certain amount of workers into the movement and sharpens the social relations and the struggle between the classes.

Utopian and Romantic Theory.

A careful and long preparation, the study of the objective conditions of strikes, the realistic calculation of the relation of forces and the calculation of the role of the masses and the relation between the masses and the militant minority, all this has been entirely ignored by the anarcho-syndicalists and considered as of no importance at all.

They imagined the social revolution as beginning suddenly, without the necessary organizational, political and other historical surroundings. At last they present the idea of sabotage, or what we call the "economic terror," as a means of compulsion against employers. They have been out-spoken against large, strong trade union treasuries, looking at it from the point of view that the trade unions are, as a matter of fact, like plain people, the one that has much money is not very active in the strugge; and therefore, the trade union that has much money in its treasury, wil be afraid of losing it and will not be as militant and ready for strikes as necessary.

This is, in short, the characterization of anarcho-syndicalism within the trade union movement of the world, and which is especially characteristic of the Latin countries, France, Spain, Portugal, Argentina, Mexico, etc. In Italy, notwithstanding the fact that it is a Latin country, the trade union movement took another form.

Philadelphia A. C. W. Joint Board Voting Is One Steady Job

PHILADELPHIA, Pa.—According to the constitution of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, only one election is necessary for the election of officers. But according to the joint board of this city, if those elected are left wingers, before they can be installed they must have been elected twice.

Two weeks ago Local 140 had their election and the right wing was badly defeated, so they appealed for a new election, which was conveniently granted them, and a special joint board committee elected to take charge.

We have always had open elections, but this time, at the request of the right wing, the joint board decided to have a secret ballot. Despite all maneuvering, however, it was a complete victory for the lift wing. The T. U. E. L. candidates were elected by an overwhelming majority.

The chairman, vice-chairman, secretary, treasurer, six out of seven delegates to the joint board, six out of seven local executive board members, of the T. U. E. L. slate were elected. It is hardly expected after this crushing defeat that the right wing will demand still another election.

WHAT THE MINERS' INTERNATIONAL IS AND OUGHT TO BE

Dawes Plan is Slave Plan For World

By ALEX REID.

As a miner who is following the pick, when the boss permits, which is becoming more seldom, and noticing that the condition of the miners thruout the world is becoming more deplorable, the same situation prevailing everywhere, it might not be amiss at this time to inquire into the cause from well-informed sources.

The cause of the bad situation in Europe, which is reflected in America, is neither more nor less than the monumental disgrace—the prostitute child of the international chamber of commerce, better known as the despicable and infamous "Dawes' plan."

The effect of this plan is seen in the German mining industry, which has speeded up to a terrifying degree. Approximately 20 per cent of the miners have been discharged from the industry since 1922, and yet production has been increased approximately 18 per cent. Wages have been decreased until the miners receive barely enuf to subsist upon.

The average wage of the German miners is $1.25 per day, and their work day has been extended from seven, to 10 and 12 hours per day. The cost of living has increased to the point where wages cannot touch the bare necessities, which is reducing the miners to abject slaves exerting themselves to the limit of endurance, as is seen in the enormous increase in accidents.

On top of this, the threat is made to cut further into their wages, and the importation of men from the surrounding countries is steadily going on for use as scabs if necessary.

Similar conditions prevail in Poland and other countries in Europe. In Great Britain, France, Holland, and Belgium, the miners are practically starving. Hundreds of thousands of miners are unemployed. Wages are being cut on every hand. The hours of labor are lengthening, and conditions, the result of years of struggle, are being lost with every break.

The conditions forced upon German labor and the workers in like countries of Europe, thru the Dawes' plan, is the standard being set for the whole world. French, Belgian, and British miners are unemployed because cheap German reparations coal has taken their market. British and American coal is being undersold in Spain and Italy at $1.25 per ton. Competition is the slogan—and the mine owners are stressing every means to break the miners' union so that no organized opposition may prevail against them.

On this side of the ditch, the Dawes' plan is getting in its work just as it is in Germany and the rest of Europe. The mining districts of West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee and Alabama are mostly "open shop," and the conditions of the miners there are horrible, working 10 hours per day on starvation wages, with no provisions for safeguarding the life and health of the miners.

The companies owning the mines there, also own the stores, so if a miner chances to make anything at the mine he is relieved of it at the store. The houses the miners live in, mostly like barns, are also owned by the companies, as likewise the town, the doctor, the judge, the police thugs—literally everything in and around the mines.

Hundreds of miners with their families are living on the hillsides, in tents, all thru the long hard winter, with scarcely anything to eat—the little children without shoes or proper clothing, and no school to go to. The miners in this pitiful condition are being threatened with further wage cuts and longer hours.

And the coal coming from these districts in competition with that from the organized fields, has resulted in unemployment and starvation thruout Illinois and the union-produced coal all over America.

Nova Scotia is on strike against another reduction, and conditions there are heartrending. The beasts of BESCO, the mine owners of the province, are organized for a crushing onslaught against the miners, and the miners have met them by stripping the mines completely. The miners have withdrawn even the engineers and pumpmen, in this fight which promises to be a fight to the finish and one of the hardest in their history.

Wherever international capitalism rules today, we have a similar condition. Standing out prominently in contrast to such conditions in capitalist countries, however, is that of the miners in Soviet Russia, the only country which has not been affected by the Dawes' plan, and the only country in the world where the miners' conditions of employment are steadily growing better.

Keep in mind the conditions we have just reviewed of the miners in all capitalist countries of the wo today, and then take a look at condition of the Russian miners shown by the following conditi cited:

They have the six-hour sh steady employment the year round voice in the management of mines and in the determination wages; extra pay for product above an established average, clo inspection and enforcement of safety regulations; two weeks' v tion on pay, or a month if the w is particularly dangerous or healthy; splendidly equipped homes which were formerly the aces of the Russian nobility; medical service; etc.

BULLETS MEET LABOR PROTEST AND STRUGGLES

Workers Must Oppose This Growing Terror

NEW YORK, March 23.—A few days ago, the press reported that in Halle, Germany, 10 Communists were killed and 40 wounded by the white guardist. When a protest meeting took place in Berlin, another revolutionist was killed and several others seriously wounded.

The situation in Halle became so serious, since the workers were aroused and were preparing for action, that the government, to save its face, had to dismiss the chief of police, who had engineered the blood-bath.

Urge Bigger Bulgarian Army.

The Bulgarian Zankow hangman government has requested the league of nations for permission to add 4,000 more soldiers to the army that keeps the fascist government in power. In Macedonia, the murder of prominent leaders of the peasants takes place every day. In Greece, the strikers, led by revolutionary Communists, had to face the police and government troops. White terror is destroying the best fighters of the Spanish workers. In spite of the power of Mussolini, the workers of Turin and Milan are out on strike—and are challenging the government.

In China a strike of the railwaymen is answered by British imperialism. In Sweden and Denmark big strikes are taking place, in which the police are very active. In Rumania the workers are hounded from place to place. The revolutionary workers and peasants have to face the gendarmerie every day. In Palestine, the "holy land," the imperialists are shooting down and imprisoning the workers. In Turkey, which recently fought a gallant fight against the league of nations and had the support of Soviet Russia, the new capitalist rulers of the country are making every effort to crush the workers and poor peasants.

Answer This Wednesday Night

Capitalist bullets against the protest and struggles of the workers!

At the same time, new attacks are being made on Soviet Russia, because the workers' and peasants' government has imprisoned active counter-revolutionaries, who have conspired and organized to destroy the Soviet government. In this dirty work they have been aided by the imperialist governments.

The answer of the workers of New York to these vile facts will be given next Wednesday night, March 25, at 8.30 p. m. at the Central Opera House, 205 E. 67th St. The Workers Party, Young Workers League and the International Workers' Aid have arranged a demonstration and all the class-conscious workers of New York must be there. Tell the workers in your shop and bring them to the meeting.

Carlson Lectures.

A series of six lectures on "Imperialism" will be given by Comrade Oliver Carlson at 521 York avenue, Workers Party headquarters, Philadelphia, beginning April 2. All party and league members or sympathizers who wish to register for the class should get in touch with R. Baker, city secretary, or Comrade Herman, of educational committee. Both can be located at 521 York avenue.

Letters From Our Readers

The Land Toilers.

To the DAILY WORKER: This letter is from the fruit growing district of the Northwest. You city workers and miners are no worse off under United States big business than the farmers and fruit growers. You are hired to run the machines for the trusts.

The only difference is that we are forced to buy our own machinery and materials and pay exhorbitant prices. On top of that we pay taxes every year for the plow, harrow, mower, sprayer, horse, cow, calf, chickens, pig and piglet and anything like furniture. We must pay it promptly too, or we are auctioned off to the highest bidder.

We could endure being skinned when we buy, but our selling part is unendurable. Last year this Columbia Valley fruit was killed by spring frost. In 1923 we shipped a full crop to you city folks. It sounds unbelievable, but it is true that in 1923 I shipped 1,886 boxes of apples to a New York firm, furninshing my own boxes and lost money on the shipment.

At the rate you are paying for apples in Chicago and New York I should get about $2,000 for my apples. But I receive a bill that I owe the New York firm $600.00.

Now then, it costs me about 90 cents to raise a box of apples, including high irrigation taxes. So at that rate I am paying over a thousand dollars on top of what I paid to raise my apples.

Still, many are wondering why farmers leave everything and run away from the land to the cities. I am not the only one losing money. The case I have cited is the case of thousands of other land toilers, in one form or another.

And why are we in this predicament. It is more the fault of the United States capitalist owned newspapers and journals. They are keeping the toilers in a lethargic sleep so that they can be more easily robbed.

Once in a while in later years I have seen a farmer here and there awakening, and rubbing his eyes, when he gets a severe jolt in the place where his pocket book is supposed to be.

The DAILY WORKER is an eye-opener, but it is the hardest job to introduce the paper to our bourgeois-minded farmers. They still hope to succeed under the present system.

All signs point to the fact that they won't, and if they do, it will be temporary prosperity only. So brother farmer may as well jump off his lame donkey or crippled old elephant, and join the ranks of real fighters for real freedom.

"Farmer and Fruit Grower," Kennewick, Wash.

From Non-Union Town.

To the DAILY WORKER:—I am writing this from a non-union town so to speak, altho there are two organizations in this town and either one are real unions, viz.: the A. F. of L. and the American Federation of Failway Workers.

Neither of these organizations are doing anything to amount to anything. In this burg the capitalists and manufacturers can exploit the workers to the limit, because of the fact that a great deal of religious hatred exists among the exploited masses.

The Slavs in this burg have been so misled by Jim Maurer and Co., the renegade socialists, that it is very hard to get the slaves to join any kind of a revolutionary organization.

The manufacturers of this burg can easily exploit the slaves of this back woods town by simply playing the socialist party and catholics against the slaves.

There are very few DAILY WORKERS coming in here as you can see by your sub list, due to the easy manner in which the plutes can use their organs of propaganda.

Hoping you will give this burg a write up in your paper in order to help to wake up the slaves.—George Mussen, Reading, Pa.

AMERICAN COMMUNISTS CALL FOR LABOR SOLIDARITY WITH FILIPINOS

purposes, just as it strives to do with the working class in this country.

Macabula was killed by agents of American imperialism. The poor peasants' organization, which he led, was fired on by the so-called Philippine constabulary reinforced by government riflemen in motor cars, with the tacit if not open approval of Governor General Wood. You do not need to be informed why. The Nueva Ecija movement that General Wood seeks to drown in blood is aimed at the very roots of the system of privilege on which General Wood's masters in Wall Street, New York, live and grow fat.

Despite the lies which are spread to glorify American imperialism, almost feudal conditions reign in the rice fields. Thousands of acres of rice lands are owned by single individuals and corporations enjoying fantastic profits, while the Filipino peasants who plant, grow and pick the rice are obliged to live under the most abominable conditions, in practical subjection to the owners of the estates. Large sums of American capital have penetrated into the Philippine rice-growing industry in recent years; in fact, American capital completely dominates the situation. The native landowners are mere servants of the big rice merchants, export firms and bankers. They are, of course, bitter enemies of the exploited peasants. But American imperialism cannot shirk responsibility for the conditions that prevail in the rice fields.

You can well be proud of the heroic struggle which your brothers in Nueva Ecija have been carrying on against overwhelming odds. That this struggle has borne fruit can be seen in the revision of tenantry contracts to which the landlords were forced to agree. That it has alarmed the privileged classes thruout the Philippine Islands is evident from the extreme measures which were called up against it, of a scope and brutality unprecedented since the early years of the American occupation.

We know that the Nueva Ecija massacre was not the result of "excess of religious mysticism," as some American newspapers pretend, but was visited upon the organized peasants to prevent them from gaining possession of the rice lands. As one correspondent admits, the whole struggle in Nueva Ecija "was purely an arraying of the lower peasant class politically against the owners of the property . . ."

American imperialism fights these movements not only because of the capital directly involved. General Wood, pro-consul of Wall Street, irreconcilable foe of Philippine independence, fears the movements of the workers and poor peasants also because he sees that they are inextricably bound up with the movement for national liberation. He knows that emancipation for the toiling millions of the Philippine Islands is impossible without the overthrow of American rule and he allies himself with all the forces of privilege in the islands.

On with the struggle! The Workers (Communist) Party of America, organ of the class conscious workers in the United States, extends its fraternal greetings to you and assures you that it will fight side by side with you for the overthrow of American imperialism. Our battle is your battle.

Down with the profit-hungry money kings of Wall Street!

Down with American capitalist exploitation and imperialism!

The land to the peasants and the factories to the workers!

Unconditional independence for the Philippines!

Solidarity among workers and poor peasants thruout the world!

Under the banner of the Communist International!

Steel Town Owned By Charles Schwab Celebrates Commune

BETHLEHEM, Pa., March 23.—The Bethlehem city central committet celebrated the Paris Commune with all branches represented, including Hungarians, Ukrainians and Jugo-Slovaks. Of course the population of Bethlehem is about 50,000 people, who are not interested in the condition of their workers.

Chas. Schwab has got his iron hand on the people of this city. He won't let anyone go anywhere or read anything, that would be of benefit to the working class. He doesn't care if the people read jokes, novels or any kind of capitalistic publications which poison the minds of the people.

Bar DAILY WORKER

I remember the time, when there was a stand, which had a few copies of the DAILY WORKER; but that, too, was stopped by Charles Schwab's agents. If the standholder had wanted to keep this paper on his stand, he would have lost his license, and most likely be driven from the city.

This shows that nobody but Charles Schwab and his friends rule this city. We have a mayor and other officials, who are elected by the people; but all these officials are bought by the gold coins, that Charles Schwab shows them. That is why Charles Schwab has the power in this city, over all the people and officials.

The American constitution gives freedom of speech, and freedom to organize or belong to any organization, to every one. That is only written on paper and not carried out in true facts. The American constitution was made by these capitalists for their own benefit.

Steel Enslaves Town

Charles Schwab keeps all the working masses of this city enslaved, as the Russian czar did before the revolution. Soviet Russia gives freedom to all working masses—women as well as men—which they didn't get before. America gives nothing to the working masses, instead, she enslaves them.

We, the workers of Bethlehem, women and men, appeal to all the workers to help us get a freedom of speech, and a right to start and continue any movements for the benefit of the working masses.

Juniors' Work in Cleveland

CLEVELAND, O., March 23.—On Tuesday, March 31, at 8 p. m., a meeting will be held at the local headquarters, 5927 Euclid Ave., Room 13, on "junior work" under the auspices of the Young Workers League.

At this meeting representatives of the Young Workers League and the party will explain the work of the Junior Section and the reasons why all Communists must support this work and counteract the effect of the capitalist propaganda in the schools, movies and press.

Plans will be presented at this meeting to promote the work of the Junior section in Cleveland and make it function more effectively. This will require the assistance of all the members of the party and Young Workers' League.

The capitalists do not overlook the possibilities of corrupting the minds of the children. We must, thru our Junior section, carry on our Communist education among the children.

All party members, their children, Y. W. L. members and all workers interested in this work should be present at this meeting. Your branch should do its utmost to make the meeting a success.

GOMPERS' CHIEF LIAR IS CANNED BY 'BILL' GREEN

No Doubt Some Other Ananias Wants Job

WASHINGTON, March 23.—President William Green of the American Federation of Labor celebrate St. Patrick's day by opening the door of Chester's Wright's office and inviting Chester outside. When Chester tried to get back he found the door locked and the key missing.

Wright was the chief of Sam Gompers' labor information and publicity bureau, which office he held for six years. A former socialist, and editor of the New York Call, he proved invaluable to Gompers in his constant attacks on the radicals in the labor movement.

The major part of the publicity sent out by Wright consisted of lies against Soviet Russia and the Communists. The brain waves of Gompers and Matthew Woll, the disappointed crown prince were given the widest publicity by Wright. He was on intimate terms with the department of justice and exchanged infromation with William J. Burns, when that gentleman was chief of the investigation department of the department of justice.

The reason given for Wright's forced resignation is the necessity for reducing expenses in the publicity service. Wright is the first of Gompers' personal staff to be given the gate.

As a sort of apology for his loss of a very important office Wright issued a statement to the Washington correspondents, announcing that he had originally intended to quit his office on April 1st but confessed that "circumstances" made an earlier departure necessary.

He will continue to hold several offices he declared, including the editorship of International Labor News Service, a scandal sheet issued to bankrupt "labor" sheets.

Lies of Chamber of Commerce on Power Exposed by Senator

WASHINGTON, March 23.—In the closing hours of the special session of the senate, a spirited denunciation of the trick turned for the electric power trust by the Smithsonian Institution, in circulating a lying report on the financial condition of the publicly owned Ontario hydro-electric commission enterprises, was delivered by Senator Norris. He pointed out the falsehoods with which this report bristled, showed that it is being sent broadcast by the U. S. chamber of commerce, and proved by the sworn testimony of the Niagara Falls chamber of commerce delegates before the senate finance committee that Ontario power is sold to factories at one-half the rate paid to American companies by American factories just south of the border.

FOREIGN IMPERIALISTS USE CHRISTIAN CHURCH AS TOOL TO ENSLAVE CHINESE WORKES

By SINBAD

PEKING, China, March 23.—Since the beginning of December 1924 there have been many rumors and signs of a fast growing anti-christian movement which centers in the various student bodies and groups of intellectual Chinese all over the country.

It seems as if the Chinese are beginning to realize that the missionary's purpose is not only to tell them of the glory of God and the pleasure of the other world but is also and mainly to break paths in the wilderness so that foreign imperialism can secure China in its bloody grasp.

It is needless to say that in every case of imperialist domination said domination has been secured by first sending missionaries to preach the gospel, whether catholic or protestant.

Against Foreign Imperialism.

Only now are the newspapers beginning to consider the anti-christian movement as a serious and perhaps menacing problem. One of the local papers, North China Daily News, in its issue of January 7, 1925, prints an article (which savors a great deal of Rodney Gilbert) dealing with the menace and causes of the present anti-christian movement. The gist of the article is that the anti-christian movement is becoming very closely interlinked with a growing anti-foreign movement.

Reading the article we see that a student strike in Yale College in Changsha has "turned into bitter anti-christian movement and anti-foreign imperialism propaganda, handbills are sent to all the provinces and telegrams to all christian schools. Some of the printed matter is a bitter attack on all christian education as imperialistic and urges that all christian schools ought to be closed."

The article goes on to find out the cause or causes of these sudden movements, and discovers what seems to it the three possible causes.

Priests Defend Capitalism.

They are as follows:

1. That the old mandarins are backing the movement. (This is absolutely ridiculous after reading the statements made by the participants in the movement. Such phrases are impossible to have been made by such a conservative group as the mandarins who are fast being entirely obliterated.)

2. "So-called imperialism." (The author of the newspaper article looks at imperialism as if it were an etheral thing existing in the minds of a very small group.) He quotes a letter from a prominent Chinese christian advocating the earnest endeavor on the part of the missionaries "to prove to the people by their actions that christianity and the spreading of its ideals has nothing to do with imperialism and its expansion." This in my opinion is suggesting something like tearing a limb from the body and expecting both, body and limb, to function as before the disconnection.

3. "Bolshevik poison" is at the bottom of it all. It puzzles me that, after seven years of continual verbal dysentery directed against the first workers' and peasants' republic, the newspapers are not exhausted and the source of the dysentery is seemingly endless.

Claws of Foreign Capital.

The second reason which the naive writer calls "so-called imperialism" doubtless is the only one of the three that may be or rather is the main cause of the movement. But no. The main reason, the prime cause of the new-born movement is the desire to decisively stop the inroads of foreign imperialism which if allowed to continue as in the past will in time have accomplished its aim in regard to China.

Then, the present anti-christian movement can be accepted as a move which the student class of China had at last begun, to destroy: "The teeth and claws of foreign aggression, the christian church in China."

Whether the movement will succeed and attain its object is a matter of time but it is the start. The ball has been started and until it has been rolled into the sea the students and people of China should strive with all their force, with all the power they have at their command. They should strive until they drive the whole crew of foreign imperialists including the band of missionaries whose purpose, may I repeat, is to squeeze from China the best that she has, into the deep blue sea.

The Business of Christianity.

One year ago Robert Dollar, one of the foremost capitalists of China and of the Pacific coast on the American side in a speech delivered in Shanghai gave as the reason for the contribution of money by the christian business men in China to the missions in China, that without the christian missionary the christian business man would never have been able to secure any foothold in China. This from a representative of foreign imperialism in China should be enuf to dispel any doubts that may have arisen in the minds of some of the readers of these articles that perhaps I was wrong in making some of the above statements.

JAIL CUBAN STUDENTS FOR PROTEST AGAINST AMERICAN IMPERIALISM

HAVANA, Cuba, March 23.—Students of Havana University were severely beaten with clubs by police here who endeavored to break up their demonstration against American imperialism.

Five hundred students gathered in front of the presidential palace and demanded that a committee be allowed to see the president. They were protesting against fines of $200.00 each which were placed against three of their number for denouncing a parade organized by President Zayas. Zayas, who is under the thumb of the American capitalists who rule Cuba, organized the parade as an expression of loyalty to the United States for its recent ratification of the Isle of Pines treaty.

The students and many workers had hooted the paraders, and three of their number were arrested and fined.

When the students demanded the lifting of the fines, Zayas refused to see them. The crowd of workers and students shouted "Down with American imperialism," and "Send Crowder away."

The police immediately attacked them, and several shots were fired. After a battle with the police, the students retreated to their medical school, where they ran up a banner inscribed, "Down with the corrupt judge."

The government has charged the leaders among the students with "sedition."

Steel Trust Calls For Strangling of China by Foreigners

PEKING, China, March 23.—Competition among American, British and French capitalists for control of China is growing keener. The large American corporations, with billions of dollars invested in China, are calling for stronger foreign intervention. Each nation is backing a different war lord, and thus further weakening China.

The United States Steel Products company, and the Pressed Steel Car company, branches of the steel trust, the American Locomotive company, and the General American Car company, are among the firms calling for intervention, while at the same time they endeavor to suppress the growing sentiment here against any foreign intervention.

Czecho-Slovakia Workers Hit.

The effects of the Dawes reparation plan are being felt in Czecho-Slovakia. In the Ostrauer district furnaces are closing down and hundreds of workers are left without employment. In the iron and steel industry workers who demanded higher wages to meet the rapidly increasing costs of living are laughed at, discharged or forced to accept reductions.

G. BERNARD SHAW SUFFERS IN TILT WITH G. ZINOVIEV

English Anarchist Uses the Scrub Brush

The Commune, a little anti-Emma-Goldman anarchist sheet published in England helps to rub some of the tinsel off George Bernard Shaw, the intellectual tin god of British Fabianism, and the manner in which the job is done is neat and effective, and worthy of reproduction:

A STORM IN A TEACUP
By D. PATERSON.

"And the cause of the war was, . . . that one side broke their eggs at the large end, . . . and the other side broke theirs at the small end."—Gulliver's Travels.

There has been a great deal of discussion among socialists up and down the country about the recent quarrel between George Bernard Shaw and the Soviet Republic of Russia, via Zinoviev. This is to be deplored in so far as it indicates a still lingering belief in Shaw as the intellectual leader of socialism. Some people still persist in regarding him as a sort of social Napoleon who is to tell us when and how we are to accomplish our emancipation.

The cause of all the trouble seems to be that the Russian people have had a revolution and have endeavored to infuse into it the philosophy of one, Karl Marx, instead of consulting G. B. S. on the matter. Now, to anyone who knows his Shaw, this is an unpardonable offence. In fact, one could imagine George setting up in business, in his own modest way, with a signboard like this:

GEORGE B. SHAW, Limitless,
Consulting Engineer for Modern Revolutions.
None Genuine Without this Brand.

Evidently the Russian people should have written to Shaw stating their complaints, and he would have diagnosed their case, sending them several tons of his "Revolutionists' Handbook," with a new preface specially written for them. Then acting on his advice, they would not have planted that stout old oak, socialism, but instead, would have gone in for some of the carefully tended hothouse plants of the Fabian nursery, such as municipalisation, nationalization, etc.

Shaw in His Regalia.

Now that Shaw has definitely donned the cap and bells, serious students of social affairs should pay as much attention to him as they do to Cornelius Chips, who, every week, produces wierd and wonderful concoctions of alleged humor in the "Lot o' Fun," "Funny Wonder," etc. We must disregard all these dialetical thunderbolts of Shaw's, as they have only one end in view, and that is, not socialism, but placing George in a perpetual limelight.

Communism is the only hope of the world! All else is illusion! Under the latter title comes Shaw. So let us go ahead with our Communist propaganda and leave George to bask in the sunshine of some fair duchess' smile.

Shaw, trading on whatever scraps of reputation he still has as a socialist is commanding the ear of many alleged socialists in these isles and leading them into a blind alley.

In the past he may have written to make people think, but now he most certainly writes to make them laugh. This is much safer and more profitable as the master class do not mind anyone criticising modern society so long as it is only a joke. Whenever anyone attacks it seriously and shows that the only hope is Communism, ushered in by a proletarian revolution, then, sooner or later he is rewarded with a prison cell.

A DAILY WORKER sub means another Communist.

BUILDERS AT WORK

FIRST WEEK OF CAMPAIGN SUCCESSFUL.

Look for Two Bricks.

THE fist week of the Second Annual Sub Campaign carries a bright promise for the future. About 70 NEW subs were added to our list besides over two thousand short-term new subs which were a hang-over from various local sub campaigns held during February and March and which we do not count among the regular new subs in the present campaign. This week proved also one of the best on our records in securing about two hundred renewals on expiring subscriptions.

The second week of the campaign is going to at least double the results, if Monday morning's mail is any indication. In addition, ten thousand special folders are now going into the mail to reach every reader of the DAILY WORKER and every branch of the Workers (Communst) Party in this country. These are sure to bring a response that is going to make "our daily" much bigger, much stronger, better able to build the Communist movement in this country.

By the end of the week the campaign should be gathering increasing speed. Readers of "our daily" will be advised of what is expected of them and branches will set in motion the campaign to "Build the DAILY WORKER"—"to make another Communist."

The gathering momentum of the campaign needs the help of every single reader and every single member of our party. The task set is a simple one for the individual determined Communist, "Get a Sub and Give a Sub"—is a task of securing two NEW subs by June 15, a task so simple in itself but so great in results that means the DAILY WORKER by June 15 will be well on the way to reaching twice it's present strength and by the end of the year it can proudly lay claim to ranking among the great Communist dailies of the world.

If this task is accomplished, you will proudly be laying claim to belonging to a greater American Communist Party—because you can't "Build the DAILY WORKER" without building the Communist movement.

When it can be done so easily by getting two NEW subs—what is your Communist answer? The blanks for the purpose are in this issue—look for two "bricks."

PACKING HOUSE PENSION SCHEME IS TOTAL LOSS

400 Workers Taste Capitalist Law

After a two-year legal battle four hundred pensioners of Morris & Co., with more than 1,000 dependents, lost their fight to force the meat company to continue its pension fund, discontinued in 1923 when the firm was absorbed by the Armour interests.

In 1909 Morris & Co. established a pension fund, directing that the employes who were to benefit were to contribute 3 per cent of their wages, that Morris & Co. were to contribute $25,000 to the fund annually until a total of $500,000 had been reached, and that an employe who had been in the service twenty years and who was 55 years old, was entitled to a life pension with certain provisions for his widow and children after his death.

Yesterday Judge Ryner held that the pensioners, who had filed a bill for an accounting in which they asked that the company be forced to re-establish the fund, were in court "without equity." Briefly, his opinion was that Morris & Co. was not bound by any implied or expressed covenant or contract to continue supporting it.

In 1914 the fund reached $500,000, the sum set in the contract. The fund totaled $1,000,000 in 1923 when the Armour interest bought out Morris & Co.

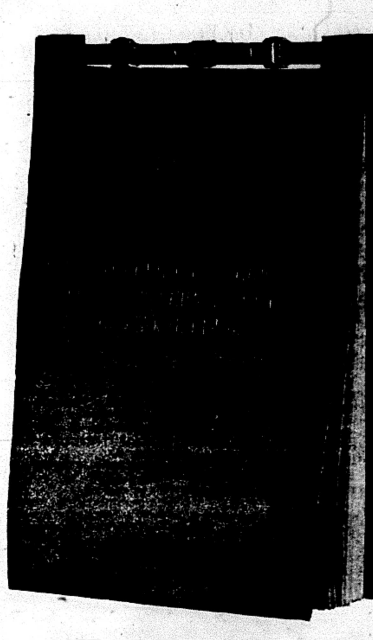
Crisis in Brazilian Industry, Employers Attack Wage Scales

RIO DE JANIERO, Brasil, Mar. 23.—The Brazilian industrial crisis is becoming more serious. The Sao Paulo factories, which normally produce goods to the value of about $115,000,000 in a year, have been cut to eighteen hours a week, one-third normal capacity.

The firms are making an effort to avoid heavy losses by the employment of all possible means to generate power in the individual plants, including the installation of engines and tractors.

The employes are being forced to continue on a limited basis of working hours, receiving greatly reduced wages.



The Arsenal of a Communist

This patent-clasp, leather binder, reproduced in actual size (adjoining) is of grained leather, gold-lettered and with a pocket for receipts. The clasp allows all sheets to be detachable.

Due to the prohibitive cost of the binder no commission can be allowed on subs sent in for which a binder is to be sent.

The binder will be sent without charge to every worker sending in a year's sub to the DAILY WORKER—or two 6 month subs, or four 3 month subs or a total of $6.00 worth of subs, ($8.00 worth in Chicago) AT ONE TIME.

The Binder Will Include

A full descriptive catalogue of all literature, information and prices of all Communist publications in all languages, advertising and printing, and note paper for your use.

Here Is a Full Communist Arsenal to help the busy worker in the labor movement to fight for his class and to guide him to a full study of every phase of the principles and practice of Communism. This will also serve you as your proof of service rendered to the labor movement when you "Build the DAILY WORKER."

The Party of Action

The Workers (Communist) Party is probably engaged in the most intensive activity in its history.

On the domestic front it is leading the great struggle of the left wing in the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America against the Hillman machine—a struggle in which whole sections of the union have joined—with Local 5 of New York playing a prominent role.

In the United Mine Workers of America it has organised around its program serried thousands of coal diggers; it leads in the fight for unemployment relief, against the open shop drive, against expulsions, for nationalization of the mines.

In the strike of the Willimantic textile workers the party and its press are a powerful influence.

In the Machinists' Union the party supports the center slate of Anderson against Johnston, the shameless tool of the capitalists. It leads the fight against the B. and O. plan and the struggle for amalgamation.

In the Carpenters' Union the left wing, organized around the Communists, have checked the offensive against the militants in Detroit and Chicago. The Hutcheson machine has been defeated temporarily.

In the strike of the miners in the Connelsville, Pa., region, the party program against wage cuts has rallied the strikers to it. The party press alone carried the news of this struggle written by workers for workers.

In Minnesota the party rallies the workers and farmers to save the farmer-labor federation from the middle-class politicians, and the Communist program is the program of the whole left wing in the labor movement of that state.

In Seattle the party has drawn many workers to it by its fight in the Central Labor Council and its general activity.

In New York the party's school is equipping the comrades with the knowledge needed for the party work.

In Chicago the district Intensive Training School lasting for two weeks is pointing out the lessons of the struggles the party is carrying on and training the party comrades from all over the district for their tasks.

On the international front, the party has defeated the counter-revolutionary socialists, in their attempt to arouse sentiment against Soviet Russia and world trade union unity, in a decisive manner. The name of Abramovich is a hissing and a byword to the workers of his nationality in this country as a result of the party's activity.

The party is organizing nationwide demonstrations before the Polish consulates to protest against the railroading of Stanislav Lanzutsky, Polish Communist, to the gallows for his loyalty to the working class.

Demonstrations before the Japanese consulates and embassy in protest against the suppression of the Japanese working class by the sedition law recently passed, are also being arranged.

All over the United States the party is carrying on the organization of relief for the famine-stricken workers and peasants of Ireland in the face of the sabotage of the suffering Irish masses by the capitalists and middle class.

The Workers (Communist) Party of America claims to be a party of action.

It is.

Completing the Chain

The New York Times, that staunch friend of American capitalism, has come out for the B. and O. plan.

This makes the chain complete. On one end is William Johnston, president of the International Association of Machinists and the entire officialdom of the American Federation of Labor. In between are the yellow socialists—the Milwaukee Leader has endorsed the scheme—and the liberal intellectuals. At the other end is the New York Times, the most outspoken foe of the working class and their organizations.

The chain is now around the necks of the workers and willing hands are drawing it tighter.

Beginning on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, this company union scheme, disguised as "co-operation" and sponsored by Johnston, has spread to the Canadian National railways, the Chicago and Northwestern and the Chesapeake and Ohio railroads. All the railway shop unions are included in the plan wherever it is installed.

The comment of the New York Times on this mass betrayal of the workers is interesting and illuminating:

> "The very existence of a strong and well organized union is evidence of a fund of creative and executive capacity among workingmen which has not been drawn on by their jobs. The program in question is designed to tap this for the good of industry as a whole, instead of damning it up by resistance and repression."

The Times is a little verbose, but its meaning is clear. The B. and O. plan, says the Times, is designed to tap a reserve fund of energy possessed by the workers. Unlettered petty bosses are accustomed to describing this process of more intensive exploitation as "taking it out of their hides."

Unions as combat organizations of the workers are inimical to the interests of the bosses, but unions that organize for production are welcome as the flowers in May. The B. and O. plan therefore kills two birds with one stone—it increases production and it makes the union part of the profit-making machinery of the capitalists.

No wonder William Johnston is hailed as a "constructive labor leader" by the plute press.

But the militant workers already, and the mass of the organized workers soon will understand that the Johnstonites are essentially destructionists. They destroy the unions in conjunction with the bosses.

It is no accident that the New York Times praises the B. and O. plan in its editorial columns just as an election campaign in the Machinists' Union is in progress, an election campaign in which William Johnston and the B. and O. plan are on trial before the membership.

Haiti and the Monroe Doctrine

The French government, irritated by the pressure of American bankers, demands that the American occupation of Haiti be referred to the league of nations.

With the suppression of the native population of Haiti by American marines our readers are familiar. Since 1915 the government of the United States has maintained an armed force on that island and conservative estimates of the number of Haitians slaughtered in the process of bringing them to a realization of the superior character of American democracy place the figure at 3,000.

The Haitians are Negroes, French is the language of the people and they have revolutionary traditions dating back to the overthrow of the French forces of occupation and the establishment of a Negro republic.

In the western hemisphere the American government has never tolerated interference by European powers. It has assumed the right of determining unhampered its attitude toward the other governments and peoples of Mexico, Central and South America and the Caribbean islands. The basis of this attitude is the Monroe doctrine, originally drafted to set forth the position of the United States government in these matters, but now a charter under which American imperialism enjoys the privilege of overthrowing and setting up governments at its pleasure in the nations to the south.

In addition to the desire to make a little trouble for its creditors the French government has another ax to grind. If the Haitian question comes before the council of the league a precedent is established for the discussion of other areas of occupation and the appeal of Egypt against British occupation could be heard.

The American finance-capitalists have little to fear from this project even tho the league acts on it. The French will be made to keep their mouths shut by a gesture of calling the millions of dollars of short term notes held by the House of Morgan, Great Britain will oppose the setting of any such precedent and the Haitians will continue to be murdered by marines.

The incident is of interest only as showing that the Monroe doctrine was a guarantee of non-interference by European powers in the territorial arrangements of the western hemisphere only as long as America did not meddle in European politics.

In world affairs American imperialism now holds the center of the stage. European governments know that American government policy drives toward placing them in the same position as the government of Haiti—under American financial and military control.

Miners' Strike in Pennsylvania

Our news from Uniontown, Pennsylvania, tells of the strike of coal miners in this stronghold of the steel trust.

The wages of the workers have been cut from 35 to 50 per cent and a great protest movement, at present embracing about 65 per cent of the miners, is in progress.

This coal field is largely unorganized. During the strike of 1922 the miners joined the United Mine Workers of America, but were betrayed by the Lewis administration and its local henchmen. The Uniontown territory was left out of the Cleveland agreement signed after the strike and the miners and their families left to starve or go back to work on the bosses' terms.

The miners continued the strike for many weeks with relief being furnished by the Progressive Miners' Committee and the Workers (Communist) Party.

Now they are on strike again. Unorganized, they have refused to accept the coolie conditions offered them by the coal and steel capitalists. They have, in this challenge to the coal barons, set an example that the organized coal miners would do well to follow before it is too late.

In the organized fields the Lewis administration and the coal operators' association jointly break down working conditions; jointly they try to drive the unemployed miners out of the industry; jointly they make war on the Communists and the left wing.

But the union is something else than officials. It is the fighting organization of the coal miners and the officials must not be allowed to destroy its effectiveness.

The Workers (Communist) Party will do and is doing all it can to aid the Pennsylvania strikers in their fight. But the miners should organize and demand admission as a body to the United Mine Workers of America. As members of the union their splendid fighting spirit and their numbers will add strength to the already large and determined left wing section.

JOHNSTON TALKS TO JOHNSTON AT ENGINEERS' HALL

Empty Seats Greet "B. & O." Bill

auditorium of the locomotive engineers. Everything connected with the C. P. P. A. seems chilled to the bone.

In the hall William Schats, one of Cleveland's lonely socialists was nervously walking up and down an isle. He probably had not yet heard that he had been disconnected from the C. P. P. A. outfit by his national office. The next thing that came to notice was a rush into the street by one of the audience, who there purchased two copies of the Workers Monthly, returned, gave one to a friend, and both then hid their noses in them. We mention these things because time was passing, an audience was not coming and this seemed all that was occuring.

Then, going on nine p. m., Albert Coyle, chairman of the meeting, told the few present that the audience was small, but select. If an absence of workers makes an audience select, then that one was, one hundred per cent. He introduced Peter Witt, the nationally known humorist of the Cuyahoga valley. Witt scolded Coyle for calling a political meeting at this time of year. The argument was that the reason the audience was small was because the meeting was being held upon the wrong day of the wrong week in the wrong month.

Peter is Long-Minded

Peter spoke a long time. He exposed the city council of which he is a member. He told the eighty staunch and true present, that the council was owned by the New York Central railroad and the Union Trust company. He is surely right. But a couple of minutes later he entered into a long defense of the city charter and the Cleveland proportional system of representation. This "people's" charter must be preserved, he said. And yet, it was upon the basis of this charter and its proportional system of election of councilmen that 20 New York Central councilmen out of a total of 25 were elected at the last municipal election.

He closed with a sigh for cleanliness in government. Then Coyle arose to introduce "B. & O." Johnston. At this point another noteworthy occurance took place. Peter Witt, in full view of the audience, stuck his nose into a red-covered Workers Monthly, and read for some time, oblivious to his surroundings. Workers Party literature seems to interest and bother these gentry some.

Hard Time Starting

Johnstone was introduced as one who believes in things that are right, just and decent; one who brought many groups together into a tremendous political movement. Nothing was said as to who drove these groups apart again.

"B. & O." Johnston had a very hard time getting started. His speech was like the sputtering of a Ford with two spark plugs fouled. He looked every bit the defeated politician and the first half of his speech was filled with references to the probability that many there may be who were disappointed and discouraged because of the small vote LaFollette got. This did not cheer the codfish aristocrats that composed the audience one whit.

Righteous William

Finally he said that he thought the people did not want a labor party, a class party. The republican and democratic parties were class parties and that was proof enough that all class parties were no good. In England there were classes, but here there were so many justice loving people who had to be counted in on any progressive movement. He admitted that there was a big job ahead to set the world right side up but said there was no need of a revolution except in an orderly way. Our form of government gave us all means to get back our government, to place it into the hands of the righteous, he counselled.

Praying For Help

Then came the peroration. All thru the meeting Johnston had been speaking much of the time with his eyes closed and his arms outstretched. Was he at one time a salvation army lassie? During his peroration he indulged in this mannerism more than ever and talked much about the Almighty, the creator and this world that he gave to all the people. Johnston must have two dozen stock perorations. The one he ended his speech with was a hash of all of them. Fact is, he never found himself during all his speech, never really got started, which means that he is as broken as is his C. P. P. A.

Did you ever spit in the ocean? Well, that's the Johnston meeting in Cleveland. He's another of the coterie of labor leaders who prefer the conference table to the strike. He also believes that between capital and labor there is an interdependence so fixed and irrevocable as to make complete success attainable only thru understanding and co-operation. The Workers Party will yet get the goat of these lame ducks that quack, quack in the employers' barnyard looking for pick-ups in the dung-heap.

RAIL WORKERS' WAGES THREATENED AS CROOKED FINANCING THROWS ST. PAUL ROAD INTO BANKRUPTCY

By LELAND OLDS
(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

Threat to the wages of thousands of railroad workers comes as the natural result of the dishonest financing which led the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad into receivership March 18. According to a 1914 report by the interstate commerce commission the company has been deliberately misleading its stockholders and falsifying returns to the extent of at least $100,000,000.

The experts' report which preceded the receivership should be dismissed as a frame-up to provide the bankers with a pretext to take possession. Talk about Panama canal competition, farm depression, etc., will distract attention from the essential fact that railroad magnates financed a long time speculation of their own by an unwarranted increase in the St. Paul's funded debt, used the excessive interest charges to create the appearance of bankruptcy and so created a situation in which they can take possession at a fraction of the real value of the properties.

The road is not really bankrupt. It has shown a net income every year for the past decade, the total being $197,261,000, a fairly decent amount. Total net income for the last five years has amounted to $90,203,000 and for the last two years the yearly average has been over $21,000,000. But the swollen bonded debt of $435,000,000, overshadowing the $230,000,000 capital stock, absorbs about $21,000,000 in interest charges alone, making it possible to engineer the receivership.

Deception in Financing.

This excessive debt was saddled on a prosperous road to build the Puget Sound extension to the coast. For purposes of high financing this extension was separately incorporated. As a speculative adventure it should have been financed by sale of new stock to the interested financiers.

The deception connected with this financing, as exposed by the interstate commerce commission includes:

(1) Inflation of the cost of construction of the Puget Sound extension and also of the early profits of the extension by charging operating expenses into construction expense. By this juggling of accounts stockholders were fooled into going along and investors into taking the bonds.

(2) Deliberate falsification of reports to the commission to show an investment in road and equipment $100,000,000 in excess of the true cash investment in order to be within the law in floating the bonds.

Traffic Equipment Fails.

(3) Setting up an entirely inadequate charge for depreciation of equipment in order to show a fictitious profit. This produced the shortage of rolling stock which in recent years has prevented the road from taking full advantage of the increased traffic offered.

The company's charge-off for depreciation of equipment was only 1 per cent per year which means, says the commission, "that its equipment has an estimated life of 100 years, a position that is wholly indefensible." By this means the company inflated its apparent net profit by $2,000,000 a year.

The present difficulties of the road are of course, blamed on government war time operation. But the exact reverse is the truth. Only government operation with its guaranteed continuation of the fictitious pre-war profits and its provision of credit for new equipment prevented the receivership from coming in 1918 or 1919 instead of 1925.

Reaction Restrains Textile Workers

tunity to appear before the strike committee.

But when I sent in word that I was there, the reply was from Miss Kelleher that she would take it up, and let me know. Foreseeing this, I had prepared a letter on it from the district executive committee of the Workers Party. The letter was then sent in, read, and tabled for a week.

This in the face of diminishing and disappearing space in the capitalist press, and labor papers getting second-hand reports from the head office of the United Textile Workers. Such a suggestion of practical benefit to the cause of the strikers was rejected, because it came from the Workers (Communist) Party.

The DAILY WORKER.

For several days, the DAILY WORKER had been sold in the Gem Theater, before and after the morning meeting. But today, the chairman of the grievance committee told me in the hall, that many of the girls were opposed to the sale of the DAILY WORKER in the theater. I asked if this was an official action of the grievance committee, to which she replied that it was the opinion of many of the girls. I complied and am sending a letter to the grievance committee, asking if that is the official action of the committee. If it is, a protest will be made by the Workers Party, for discrimination against a working class paper.

The religious prejudice of many strikers is affecting the sale of the DAILY WORKER. One young chap, who had bought it before, refused to buy it further, because one article he said called the pope a bloodsucker. He refused to buy a paper which was showing up the profits of the American Thread Co. and calling upon the workers thruout the country to come to their aid. That young chap said: "How can I believe your news about the labor movement, when you tell lies about the pope?" However, many strikers get the DAILY WORKER regularly.

Miss Kelleher, in answer to another letter forwarded by the Workers Party, stated that the DAILY WORKER did more harm than good to the strikers' cause, and that it should not be sold in the city. I replied that the Workers Party would not give up the right to tell the truth to the working class, or to sell its papers where workers could be reached.

I pointed out that capitalist papers were sold in the city, supporters of corporations like the American Thread company, and that the strikers had sold a capitalist sheet which for business reasons came into Willimantic for the first time when the strike began, and played up the strike; now, having the paper on the stands, little is written about the strike.

The Strike a Secondary Consideration

A strike meeting on the 17th of March, after the parade, had to be adjourned, in order that the vast majority of the strikers might attend services. About 80 per cent of the women attend services regularly at St. Mary's church. During Lent, they march to church every Wednesday and Friday night; and to high mass at seven Sunday morning, the usual hour for going to the mill during the week. No rest for the wicked.

Last night, as I watched the church goers return on foot, the priest was riding by in his comfortable auto, alone in a large car.

The Church Influence.

Church influence is turning many of the strikers from the only working class paper that militantly defends their interests. It teaches them to respect the capitalists, the overseers and foremen, a policy concurred in by the union leaders. They take pride in the "fine quality of help" in this town of 13,000 which merely makes the company more ruthless. The aim is to have "gentlemen and gentlewomen." They are told by the church and union leaders to be "perfectly quiet" all the time.

Heavy Pall.

The sombre pall laid on the workers is evident now. One has a feeling of being weighed down, when he enters a mill town, whether it be New Bedford, Lawrence, Mass.; or Dover, Concord, New Hampshire; or Paterson, New Jersey (visited frequently by the writer).

The long, monotonous stretch of massive structures of grey stone, or red brick, with row after row of prison windows, whose framework reminds one of iron bars, oppresses one, a constant reminder that human beings are merely grist in this mill. And near by, the company houses, all one color, that uniformity which the capitalists warn against, as the future lot of the workers under Communism.

The March of the Dead.

At the beginning of the strike, there were regular gatherings at the mill gates, and parades into town in the morning at seven, and one at noon. But the businessmen and automobiled gentry complained that the march interfered with traffic. So the grievance committee, fearing to alienate the businessmen, eliminate the afternoon parade.

The morning march continues, at seven each morning, to the hall. Strict orders come from the grievance committee that the march must be a quiet one. President McMahon in his speech on Wednesday, praised the strikers for their quiet on the march.

Don't Disturb His Majesty, the Boss!

One feels as he marches along, the same as in a prison mess hall, where talking is forbidden by menacing guards, and still carried on by the prisoners thru the corners of the mouth. Men, women, boys and girls, talk while they march, some of them, but there is a hush, a damper on all.

One must not disturb the city. The respectable businessmen, and chamber of commerce members must not be aroused from their quiet slumber, after nightly debauchery. The bourgeoisie must sleep restfully on, unmindful of the bitter industrial struggle in which 2,500 textile slaves find themselves.

Anti-nationalistic!

Every time the Bronx English Branch of the Workers Party runs an affair, all those present always ask "When will your next affair be? This one was so enjoyable." The branch has it as its policy to keep these anxious comrades and friends in suspense for at least six months . . Now it may be answered: "Our next affair is the Anti-Nationalist's Concert and Ball on Saturday, April 11, at 1347 Boston Road, Bronx, New York City. Admission fifty cents. Now that you know —you must come!

THE IRISH FREE STATE government has announced that it will redeem, in 1927, the Irish republican bonds issued during the sharp fight against England, since 1916. Approximately $15,000,000 was raised in this manner in the United States. The subscribers will be requested to invest the proceeds in various Irish enterprises. The Irish Free State has no money to redeem those bonds. But it will secure a loan from Threadneedle Street or Wall Street, and the bankers will own the industries that will be established from the proceeds of the bond redemption. The Free State is a business government.

HOW many millions has William Randolph Hearst invested in airplane factories? This question will not down, in the minds of those who know the kind of patriot Hearst is. Hearst and his good man Brisbane devote columns of space daily to howling for the biggest fleet of war aircraft in the world. They now demand that Coolidge repudiate his secretary of war, John W. Weeks, who seems to be closely connected with the battleship builders.

play and kept on marching. They were greeted by cheers from the ranks of Irish workers who lined the sidewalk.

What the Banners Said

The banners carried the following inscriptions:

"750,000 Irish workers and peasants are starving."

"The Irish workers and peasants call on their American comrades for aid."

"The DAILY WORKER helps the destitute workers and peasants while the capitalist press is silent."

"The Free State government is putting thru a hanging bill while the workers and peasants are starving."

"Connolly and Pearce died to free Ireland; The Irish Free State lives to enslave it."

"Support the Irish Workers' and Peasants' Relief Committee."

Comrade Gralton, Byrne, McKiernan and Mrs. Keog broke into the parade much to the chagrin of the Irish American politicians who hate nothing more than an "Abramovich" episode at their respectable St. Patrick's Day parade their annual contribution to the cause of Irish freedom.

Irish Revolution Veteran

But Comrade Gralton shouldered a Thompson machine gun against the Black and Tans in Ireland, and he and his comrades were not concerned with maintaining the dignity of the murderous Irish Free State government. They wanted to bring the agony of the starving women and children on the west coast of Ireland to the attention of the working masses of New York, particularly those of Irish birth and descent.

Despite the efforts of the adjutant, the banners were carried in front of the governor's auto within fifty yards of the reviewing stand when the police forced the unwelcome paraders out. But thousands along the avenue saw the banners and the friends of a real Irish workers republic sent up hearty cheers.

Leaflets Distributed

Thousands of leaflets telling of the Irish famine were distributed along the line of march and also at several halls thruout the city where dances and other entertainments under the auspices of Irish societies were being held. Communists carried the famine posters in the grand march at one of the biggest Irish dances in the city and were cordially greeted.

The Irish Workers' and Peasants' Relief Committee besides securing valuable publicity for the famine situation in Ireland also did a good job in exposing the hypocrisy of the capitalist politicians who were cashing in on their alleged sympathies for Ireland.

Police Bill Hearing Soon

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 23.—The Dunlap police bill, which the bankers and manufacturers are trying to pass the legislature against the protest of the labor unions, is expected to come up in the senate military affairs committee Wednesday for a public hearing. The bill aims to provide a force of armed cossacks to break strikes.

Reed objected to Warren because of his interest in the sugar trust.

PEN[illegible]SY COAL STRIKE SPREADS

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

THE Milwaukee Leader essays the task of explaining the late Sun Yat Sen to its readers. The perpetrator of the atrocity on the dead rebel, tells us that Sun had little use for Bolshevism and "hoped that somehow the big financiers would realize as he did, that China would become an easy prey to Russian Bolshevist propaganda and intrigue, unless the statesmen of Europe and America backed Chinese democracy." This is a foul slander of the greatest rebel leader in the history of China.

AFTER indulging in predictions that China will not have a socialist government for several generations, the fossil responsible for the idiotic editorial takes another whang at Sun Yat Sen: "That Sun Yat Sen, disappointed in his hopes of Wall Street help, finally accepted help from Moscow, is the natural jump of a utopian mind from one extreme to another." But yet "his approach to Moscow was the most realistic bit of statesmanship that Sun ever attempted." Rather realistic for a utopian dreamer!

WHAT Sun should have done, suggests the Leader, is to co-operate with capitalism in building up Chinese industries so that the foundation would be laid for socialism. "Chinese nationalism, led by henchmen of foreign and native capitalism, must be the pace maker of Chinese democracy. Any Chinese republic that is now possible must be a capitalistic republic. In it Sun Yat Sen's movement has a mission, the same mission that the socialist party has in all other nations. But before a real socialist party develops in China, there must be a strongly developed capitalist industry and a strong modern labor union movement. Several generations must pass, before such things can become realities." This is the socialist dope.

IT is doubtful if the most effective Communist writer, could more clearly explain the philosophy of the present day socialists or pen a more damning indictment of their surrender to the big capitalists, than the Milwaukee Leader editorial writer has done. In plain language, it means that the workers must co-operate with the capitalists in exploiting the industrially undeveloped sections of the world. The Chinese must become the willing agents of foreign capitalists who are bent on coining profits out of the bodies of the Chinese workers.

BECAUSE China is industrially undeveloped, the thing to do is to give Wall Street a free hand in exploiting the coal, oil and other mineral deposits. The mission of the socialists is to hurry industrial evolution along. That is the excuse for supporting the Dawes' plan in Germany. During the war, pro-German socialists held that if Germany won the war, the kaiser would force socialism on the world at the point of the sword. This argument was as ridiculous as the headline that appeared in a Duluth, radical publication, in 1918, which predicted the success of the German social revolution because Hindenburg threw in his lot with the rebels.

THE yellows of the socialist party and of the socialist labor party gnash their teeth in rage because the Russian revolution succeeded despite their choicest Marxian predictions. Even the fink Abramovich holds that he is a better Marxist than Lenin. He is the kind of a Marxist that is welcome in the front rooms of the big masters of industry. According to this gang of coyotes, the class struggle must be chloroformed and the workers must enter into a united front with the capitalists. And of course, socialism is several generations away! If the workers insist on fighting the bosses the socialist "Marxists" will find it necessary to line up with the bosses in defense of Marxism. This is their philosophical excuse for treachery.

AS James Duncan, former secretary of the Seattle Central Labor Council, said at a recent meeting of that body during a discussion on the right of Communists to seats in the council, the Communist Party is bound to supplant the moribund socialist party. The reason is not far to seek. The Workers (Communist) Party is the leading foe of the capitalists. The socialists have made peace with the bosses.

CLEANERS, DYERS 1800 STRONG, GO OUT ON STRIKE

Demand 44 Hours and 5 Per Cent Raise

Eighteen hundred members of the Cleaners', Dyers' and Pressers' Union, No. 17742, walked out on strike yesterday morning, demanding the 44-hour week and a general increase of five per cent in wages.

The strike action followed a rousing meeting at the Union Park Temple, 1507 Ogden Ave., at which the 1,200 members of the union present voted unanimously for the strike.

The agreement of the Cleaners' Union with the employers has expired, and the employers refused to standardize the working hours or give an increase in wages. The men have been working sometimes 44 hours and sometimes 48 under the old agreement.

The wages of the cleaners, dyers and pressers under the expired agreement varied from $3.00 to $60.00, according to the eight different kinds of work under the jurisdiction of the union. All members of the union ask a 5 per cent increase in wages.

T. Weiss, secretary of the union, who was one of the principal speakers at the strike mass meeting, said picket lines will immediately be sent out to cover the struck shops.

OHIO REDS LEAD FIGHT ON POLICE AND 'BIBLE' BILLS

Leaflets and Speakers Cover Whole State

(Special to The Daily Worker.).

CLEVELAND, O., March 24.—The biggest, best organized and most effective campaign against the state constabulary law and compulsory religious training in the public schools yet launched in this state is being waged by the Workers (Communist) Party.

The party has mobilized every city central committee for this work. Two leaflets have been published. One deals with the state police bill and the "yellow dog" contract labor system, the other with the compulsory religious training.

Both leaflets combine exposures of

SAM LIPTZIN OF LOCAL FIVE AMALGAMATED, NEW YORK, FLAYS LEVIN AND HIS GANGSTER ALLIES

Sam Liptzin, an officer of Local 5, New York, which was expelled from the Joint Board by the Hillman machine was sent to Chicago by his local to tell the tailors the story of the reign of terror carried on in New York by Hillman. After witnessing the action of Levin and his gangsters at the Temple Auditorium, he wrote the following open letter to Levin:

An Open Letter to Sam Levin.

Mr. Sam Levin: You claim to have the Chicago tailors' union in your pocket and you openly demonstrated last Monday night, the "strength" of the Amalgamated in this city. You proved that not only have you the union in your pocket but that you also have the underworld in your arms. But not the tailors.

If you thought for one moment that the tailors were with you and that the tailors appreciate your work, you would not be afraid to come on the invitation of those workers you have thrown out of work to answer to the tailors for your shameful act against the constiution of the Amalgamated. It seems that you cannot face the masses and that you found yourself forced to use the gangsters of the underworld to "cover" your shamelessness. And furthermore, at the machine-controlled meeting which you called in a neighboring hall, you made insinuations against me and stated that I came here on money supplied by "agents" to break to union.

You, know that this is as false as your conception of the labor movement. I am here because I was sent here by my local union to explain to the tailors of the country the causes of your terror as well as of Hillman's dirty policy with which he led and misled the Amalgamated.

Mr. Levin, how long ago is it since you conferred with this "agent"? Is it long ago since you invited us to the Pennsylvania Hotel in New York—Brother Rinish and myself, the former now being general organizer of the Amalgamated? Then you sought our friendship in your and Hillman's struggle in Chicago against Frank Rosenberg. And you were even ready at that time to call yourself a "left," but only in order to make us believe that Rosenberg was a reactionary, and that we should get the support of the New York members for you in your fight against Rosenberg at the convention. You did not even think at that time of the bad conseqence to the organization. Luckily we knew only too well the politics of the Chicago Amalgamated. We listened to your appeals for our support and we laughed in your face. And we did not endanger the organization to make Levin safe for the machine and the machine safe for Levin.

Naturally as was to be expected, Hillman was successful in making the "job" and now you say that you have the Chicago union in your pocket.

But there is one thing we would like to know, Mr. Levin. Altho you have the Amalgamated in your pocket and the bosses have you in their pocket, the future history of our organization is not written yet. The day is coming, Mr. Levin, when the broad masses, those who bled and suffered and are still suffering today, will wrest the control out of your hands and the union will function to defend the interests of the working masses in the shops.

That day is nearly here.

Sam Liptzin.

COMMUNIST LEADING AMALGAMATED STRIKE IN BALTIMORE, MD.

By THOMAS OWERKING.

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

BALTIMORE, Md., March 24. — The Amalgamated strike tied up the Baltimore clothing industry today. Anthony Jenkins of the Workers Party is leading the strike which went into effect at nine o'clock this morning. Pants and vest makers are out in sympathy with the cloakmakers, demanding an increase in wages. The strike is under the direction of the joint board and Schlossberg here: This is one of the places where wage reductions were taken under Hillman's direction two years ago, which Hillman claimed was a great victory. The workers are now trying to regain what they lost thru such leadership.

This morning at a mass meeting Jenkins spoke in Lithuanian as many of the strikers are of this nationality, while Schlossberg addressed them in English.

RUSSIAN AMBASSADOR MAKES MAIN SPEECH AT SUN MEET IN BERLIN

BERLIN, Germany, March 24.—At a celebration organized by Chinese residents of Berlin, members of the Kuomingtang, of which the late Sun Yat Sen was the leader, the Soviet ambassador to Berlin, Kreshtinsky, and two other Communists made the principal speeches.

The speakers denounced intervention of foreign capitalists in China.

LEVIN AND HIS SLUGGERS SCARE HALL MANAGER

But Workers Get Facts at Shop Doors.

An army of sluggers under the leadership of Sam Levin and his two principal assistants, Sam Rissman and Burr, intimidated the manager of the Temple Auditorium from opening the hall which was engaged for Monday evening for a mass meeting of members of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, by members of the organization who were pulled off their jobs by Levin, for distributing leaflets telling of the expulsion of Local 5, New York, from the joint board in that city. Sam Levin is manager of the joint board in Chicago.

The Amalgamated members flocked to the hall to hear Sam Litzpin of Local 5, New York, who was scheduled to be the principal speaker. When the workers arrived they found the army of sluggers armed with guns and blackjacks led by Levin. The manager feared that if he opened the Temple for the meeting, the hall would be wrecked by the Levin sluggers, so he demanded a guarantee that those who had engaged the hall should pay for possible damage. This was refused.

Intimidating Members.

Levin and his sluggers went thru the crowd trying to frighten the assembled clothing workers, who waited patiently expecting to have an opportunity to hear about the struggle that is being waged against the Hillman machine in New York.

The police and the Chicago Tribune were on the job to assist Levin and his slugging crew. On Tuesday morning the World's Greatest Liar published a highly colored yarn, ridiculing the Reds and May Day, the day on which the workers of all countries celebrate. Even the officials of the Amalgamated have not yet officially repudiated May Day. Levin told the Tribune reporter that the clothing workers who engaged the hall, were preparing to take over the clothing factories in Chicago on May Day, and had called the meeting to send out the glad news.

The rejoicing of the Levin sluggers was short lived. On Tuesday morning two leaflets were distributed at the shops. During the distribution several workers were arrested by the police. One leaflet read as follows:

"Organize and Fight!"

"To the members of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers:

"The gunman and slugger rule of the Hillman-Levin machine closed Temple auditorium last night to the thousands of rank and file members who came to hear how the legal

Egypt's Parliament Disbanded When Pro-British Are Beaten

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

CAIRO, Egypt, March 24.— The Egyptian parliament was dissolved a few hours after it had convened, by the pro-British premier, Ziwar Pasha, when it was found that former premier Zagloul Pasha, who is opposed to British domination of the people of India, controlled the parliament.

Zagloul was elected president of the parliament, and two members of his party were elected vice president, following the opening of parliament at ten o'clock. None of the ministers of Premier Ziwar's cabinet was present.

Ziwar then entered, and ordered the parliament broken up and new elections held May 23. The new parliament will be opened June 1.

State Rushes Thru Official Whitewash of W. Va. Mine Blast

BARRACKSVILLE, W. Va., March 24.—With the recovery of all 33 bodies of the men caught in the mine of the Bethlehem mines corporation here in an explosion a week ago tonight, the state investigation of the blast swung into swift action today.

The investigating commitee will explore the mine's workings with the expectation of completing the investigation by Thursday.

PENNSY COAL MINERS WELCOME FRATERNAL SPIRIT OF MILITANTS

PITTSBURGH, Pa., March 24.—The miners are welcoming the fraternal spirit shown by the radical workers of Pittsburgh and vicinity, the Pittsburgh Labor Defense Council and the Free Speech Council of Western Pennsylvania having gone on record to do anything in their power to help the miners who are deserted by the U. M. W. of A. officials and attacked by the operators.

At the recent meeting of these organizations, the following resolution was adopted:

Resolution.

"Whereas, five thousand miners who were working upon the premises of the Hillman and Reiney coal companies in Fayette county, have struck work in protest of a wage cut and eviction notices being served upon them by these companies to leave their homes within 10 days, and

"Whereas, during the strike in 1922 six thousand miners' families were evicted by the coal companies from their homes in a brutal and illegal manner, therefore, be it

"Resolved, that the Labor Defense and Free Speech Council of Western Pennsylvania go on record to do everything in our power to prevent any arbitrary acts by the officials of Fayette county and to see that the right of assemblage and free speech prevails."

MARINES KILL CHINESE TROOPS NEAR SHANGHAI

Rivers Flow Blood as French Look on

SHANGHAI, China, March 24.—At the present time preparations are being made for the recommencement of hostilities which began last week and which for a while scared the fat foreign community in Shanghai amidst their cock-tails and whiskey-sodas at the fashionable clubs here.

The skirmishing which took place in some cases inside the boundaries of the French concession and the foreign settlement (British) was almost disastrous to several of the respectable citizens of Shanghai who had been led by idle curiosity to investigate the matter by going to the scene of battle personally thinking the whole matter a huge farce.

Foreigners Scared

They were disillusioned when several bullets came close enough to be heard. And when several of the bullets hit at their feet and at times the

The court ordered that the money paid as a deposit should be returned to Sinclair interests.

NEGRO MINERS JOIN FIGHT IN COKE REGION OF PENNSYLVANIA; REVOLT GROWING AGAINST CUT

(Special to The Daily Worker)

UNIONTOWN, Pa., March 24.—A strike against wage cuts that started last week in the coke region is spreading. One more mine of J. W. Reaney & Co. has been closed down by the men.

Altho there is no organization as yet, the miners are preparing themselves to conduct the strike. Most of these men went thru the national strike of 1922. They were well steeled in the struggle.

Negroes Now Fighting Alongside Other Miners.

At that time the operators were able to bring Negroes from the south to replace some of the men on strike. But today there is a different story to tell. It did not take the colored workers very long to see the purpose they were being used for. As a result they are fighting side by side with the white miners against any reduction in pay.

It is bad enough to have to dig coal with a pick at a rate of $1.50 for a three or four-ton car, but the operators want to reduce this price to $1.05 for the same amount of coal. The diggers feel that if they have to starve they will do so, but not starve piling up profits for the operators.

So-Called "Independents" Wait Outcome.

So far about 12 mines attempted to cut wages. The Frick Coal and Coke company and the other independent mines are awaiting the outcome of the strike, whether they will also cut or pay the same wages. If an attempt is made by them to cut wage the feeling against any reduction in wages is such that it will result in a strike of the entire Fayette county field.

The capitalist class in its greed for profits soon teaches the workers to close up their ranks. Once a group of workers is used against the other, they begin to see the need of class solidarity.

LUMBER BOSSES FACE TRIAL FOR NEGRO'S MURDER

Whipped Laborer and Burned Body

CROSS CITY, Florida, March 24.—The first of the murder trials growing out of the killing and burning of Lewis Barker, a Negro logging laborer, got under way here today when the case of G. W. McCrane, one of six men under indictment, was called in the circuit court with Judge Mallory F. Horn presiding.

Four other white men and one Negro are to face separate trials on this murder charge at this term of court. Two of them, Thomas W. Higginbotham, whipping boss in the Martin Tabert peonage case in 1923, and E. G. Priest, pleaded not guilty along with McCrane, when arraigned.

The other men under indictment for first degree murder are: D. A. Parker, logging superintendent, who is still at large and John H. Winburn, a deputy sheriff. Winburn was expected to be brought here today from a jail in an adjoining county to testify for the state in McCrane's trial. Charlie Hart, a Negro, who is alleged to have confessed and implicated the white men under indictment, also will face trial.

Barker mysteriously disappeared from the lumber camps here October 19 last what was believed to be his funeral pyre—a bed of charred bones beside an old stump in the swamps near Shamrock—was unearthed by investigating officers later.

State's Attorney J. R. Kelly is basing his case on the theory that Barker was severely flogged and then shot and his body burned to cover up the crime.

CARPENTERS IN LOCAL 181 WIN BIG VICTORY

"Expelled" Members Are Restored to Rights

The long fight of Local 181 of the Carpenters' Union for the five members who were declared expelled by a former president o fthe local ended victoriously last Monday night when the five were restored to full membership rights at a well-attended meeting in Wicker Park Hall.

The militants in Local 181 scored a double victory when they elected Phil Flecker as president of the local against Jacob Olson, Harry Jensen's man. While the voting was taking place Jensen and his henchmen were standing right by whispering to the members to "Vote for Jacob Olson" the old party political hack who does odd jobs around city hall for the republican party.

This is a violation of the constitution, but what is the constitution to a labor faker? However, the whispering campaign was unsuccessful and the candidate supported by the militants was elected.

Committee Reported.

The committee appointed at a previous meeting of the local, to investigate the expulsion and all the circumstances surrounding it, reported that there was nothing illegal in the resolutions signed by the expelled members but that the language might be improved. The committee therefore recommended that the defendants apologize for the offending tone of the language used in the resolutions which were the basis for the proceedings against them and that they would promise to have nothing to do with any organization opposed to the principles of the United Brotherhood. This was an easy condition to comply with as none of the "expelled" members belonged to any such organization.

When the five members entered the hall, they were given a great ovation; the members cheering them wildly. Each of the five were requested to comply with recommendation of the committee as a condition for reinstatement. They admitted that they were not college students, and that it was quite possible the language could be improved on, but they had nothing to take back so far as the principle and content of the resolution was concerned.

Kjar Stood for Every Line.

Nels Kjar was the last of the "expelled" members to be called on. "I stand for every word in the resolution," he declared. This statement was received with cheers by the members present. Kjar also admitted that he is not a professor of English and that it is quite possible a stylist

CHICHERIN EXPOSES CONNECTION OF GEORGIAN MENSHEVIKS WITH FRENCH IMPERIALIST GOVERNMENT

(Special to The Daily Worker)

TIFLIS, March 24.—George Chicherin in his foreign affairs report to the third meeting of the central executive committee of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, touched also the relations between the so-called Georgian government in Paris and the French government circles and said:

For several years the French government assumed the role of a protector of the past Jordaniya government. Since 1920, when the British left Batum, British policy has changed considerably with regard to Georgia. British policy aimed at the possession of the straits as permanent navy bases, which should allow British sea power to control the littoral of the

FRENCH LEAGUE WOULDPROBEU.S. RULE IN HAITI

Washington Shocked at the Suggestion

WASHINGTON, March 24.—The action of the French league of the rights of man in initiating a move to bring the question of the United States' invasion and illegal occupation of Haiti, an independent nation, before the league of nations, created a sensation in government circles here.

Seventy-five per cent of the senators and deputies are members of this league and its demand that the French government bring the Haiti grievance before the league council, is only short of being an official action of the French government. That the Washington government will consider itself affronted provided Herriot complies with the demands of the league, would be putting it mildly.

Haiti is affiliated with the league of nations but the country is unable to pay the expenses of a delegate as its funds are controlled by the Wall St. bankers.

The black republic of Haiti was invaded by American marines under the reign of Woodrow Wilson, in 1915. Once they got in, they refused to get out and have ruled with an iron hand, inaugurating a reign of terror which was not surpassed by the bloody rule of the Spanish in Cuba.

Rich "Statesmen" Would Guard Their Millions from Taxes

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 24.—Secretary of the Treasury Andrew Mellon, multi-millionaire banker and head of the aluminum trust, conferred with senators here in a further effort to reduce the income tax on large incomes. Mellon has already saved himself and his millionaire friends millions of dollars by reducing their income surtax.

One of those who will benefit by the cut in taxes, Senator Smoot, also a wealthy man who was on the "inside" of the Teapot Dome oil scandal, has joined forces with Coolidge and Mellon in advocating the lowering of income taxes.

Fight Over Phone Charter.

FRANKLIN, Ind., March 24.—Counsel for the Indiana Bell Telephone company objected strenuously this afternoon when Attorney General Gillion questioning George G. PICTURE MAKER FIRED FOR PROTESTING AT BAD WORK CONDITIONS

When Isidore Lebovitz asked the management of the Illinois Moulding company of Chicago, manufacturers of picture frames, to either give him material that was not rotten, or increase his wages, the superintendent, Jake Molnar, immediately discharged Lebovitz as a "dangerous Bolshevik."

Lebovitz was paid three cents a frame and could make at most only 36 cents an hour with the faulty material given him. Lebovitz asked for better material, and was curtly told that the company was in business to make money, and was going to make lots of it, regardless of the pay given the employes.

A few minutes later Lebovitz was given a check for his wages and told to get out and not come back.

Two hundred men and women, mostly of immature age, are employed in the factory.

Carpenters in Local No. 181 Win

could make the resolution read better but it was not too strong for him. When the local finally ended the war on Kjar and his fellow workers there was great enthusiasm, but not among the few followers of Harry Jensen.

Altogether it was a rather bad evening for the fakers. Lackey, one of the vice-presidents of the brotherhood presided during the early part of the meeting, and saw the fakers getting trounced. When turning over the gavel to the newly elected president, he expressed the hope that in the future the problems of the local would be thrashed out on the floor and would not be taken outside. Tho he did not mention the DAILY WORKER, he hinted that the publicity it gave to the cases of the five "expelled" members and to the struggle against Hutcheson, was not appreciated in Indianapolis. But the militants appreciate it and know that the Communist daily was a tower of strength to them in their victorious fight.

Jensen Was Angry.

Girls sold the DAILY WORKER outside the hall and scores of copies of a booklet exposing the expulsion policy of Hutcheson thruout the entire Carpenters' Union. Even Jensen was asked to buy some of the literature. He was so excited that he expressed his regret the news girls were not of the opposite sex, so he could beat them up. But the "opposite sex" was well represented at the meeting inside and Harry did not show any desire to test his pugnacity on them.

Ina Larson, secretary of the local who was instructed at a previous meeting to reply to queries from other locals regarding the situation in Local 181, read his reply last Monday, but the members voted it was unsatisfactory and advised him to throw it in the waste basket. They then instructed him to tell the enquiring locals the truth emphasizing the fact that Kjar and the four other brothers were not expelled by the local but by the president of the local.

Only Frighten Hall Manager

leaflet of Local Five of New York has been made an excuse to take down members from their jobs.

"Fellow Workers!

"Do we intend to stand for this rule of the gun and blackjack forever?

"Have we no rights at all in the union that we built? Is the money we pay as dues to be always used against the membership?

"Is the Hillman-Levin machine to destroy the union without protest from the rank and file?

"Last night the whole machinery of the Hillman-Levin administration, business agents and shop chairmen forced the manager of Temple Hall to close its doors to the members who had come to hear Brother Sam Liptzin of Local No. 5. The manager either had to keep the hall closed or have it wrecked. Manager Levin was in charge with a squad of policemen at his back.

"Remember! It is the Hillman-Levin machine that denies the right of free speech to members in halls they have paid for themselves.

"Organize the members in your shop to protest.

"Keep up the fight in your local. Get ready for the next meeting.

"Support Local No. 5.

"We are met with machine sluggers when we meet to protest wage-reductions and tyranny.

"The Hillman-Levin machine is afraid to allow discussion of these matters.

"Let's save the Amalgamated.

"It is our union and we must protest it from the disrupters and fakers.

"Committee of Members Taken Down From Their Jobs.

The Class-Collaborationists.

The Hillman-Levin combination in the Amalgamated not only carries on a policy of expulsion, even going to the extent of pulling the militants off their jobs but they are trying to tie the union to the clothing bosses more effectively, because more cleverly than ever the old and corrupt United Garment Workers did in its palmiest days.

The militants in the men's clothing industry under the leadership of the Trade Union Educational League are carrying on a nation-wide campaign against this class collaborationist conspiracy. This is the reason why Hillman and Levin are engaged in the task of trying to get rid of all those who will not agree with them in this policy of betrayal.

Another leaflet on the agreement was distributed at every shop yesterday morning.

CLOTHING COMPANY BOSS FRAMES UP ON WORKERS PARTY MEMBER

Dave Foster, member of the Workers Party, is held in the Desplaine street station on a complaint signed by Harry Novak, foreman at the National Tailoring company, charging Comrade Foster with assault with a deadly weapon.

Foster was distributing leaflets at Green St. and Jackson Blvd. when he was arrested. Detective Norton who is working out of the Desplaines station made the arrest. David Bentall, Labor Defense Council attorney who is looking after the legal interests of Dave Foster and also of Valeria Meltz who is held in the West Chicago Ave. station, was informed by the police that Foster would probably be booked on a disorderly conduct charge.

The most deadly weapon on Foster's person when he was arrested was the leaflet.

McAndrew Gets in Bad with School Board Trustees

This afternoon the school board will vote on Superintendent McAndrew's recommendation for his new teachers' councils. This matter came before the administration committee meeting Monday afternoon but the superintendent failed to get it thru. The vote resulted in a tie.

At Monday's meeting the superintendent came in for censure for what the board together with the business manager considered the superintendent's arrogating to himself the right to give power to the principals' club to make decesions on matters coming strictly under the duties of the board and the office of the business manager. The crash came when the superintendent recommended that the principals' club be furnished with copies of bulletins sent to school engineers and that bulletins be submitted to the superintendent for approval when regulations which might affect educational work were being made.

Trustee J. Lewis Coath charged that the principals' club was trying to run the board of education. Business Manager Byrnes said that the rule if put into effect would subordinate the business manager's office.

REDS TEACH LAW TO CICERO COPS AND STOP GRAFT

Police First Learn of the 18th Amendment

The eighteenth amendment saved the Workers (Communist) Party of Cicero, Ill., twelve dollars, and the secretary of the entertainment committee from going to jail. This suburb of Chicago has the reputation of being much more than moist, so it is to be expected that the city attorney's knowledge of law includes only the pre-Volstead period.

When Comrade John Danta, who was arrested last Saturday for refusal to contribute to the police department, came up for trial, the city attorney claimed that there was a city ordinance which provided for the paying of police at every social gathering. The only disagreement seemed to be over the price, the cops claimed six dollars per man, the city attorney said that five was the rate. The ordinance later read, called for three. The judge decided that the difference must be overtime, since the police are always right.

City Attorney Disappears

But David J. Bentall, lawyer for the Labor Defense Council, had done a little advance investigation. He suggested sweetly that if there were such an ordinance of course we would obey it, but the city should be compelled to produce the law. So the city attorney went out to look it and the court and case waited. A half hour passed, an hour, still no word from the law. The court disposed of some other cases, the day's work was over, and still no law. So the police were sent after the city attorney and finally brought him back, triumphantly bearing the law.

Case Dismissed

But Bentall showed that it provided that at entertainments where intoxicating liquor was sold there had to be police. Sincethe 18th amendment there were no more such entertainment, hence the law could not apply. The cops felt foolish. As if the 18th amendment made any difference to Cicero or its laws! "Are you trying to kid us?" asked one of them. But the judge and the city attorney and the bailiff held a caucus. "Discharged." And the Lithuanian Workers' Hall will get along nicely without hiring police in the future.

"Bloody" Balfour Goes to Jerusalem in Cause of British Imperialism

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL

TODAY, Lord Arthur James Balfour, known as "Bloody" Balfour because of his support of brutally coercive measures against the Irish peasantry, was due to enter Jerusalem, on his visit to the Holy Land, on behalf of the British Empire's interests.

• • • •

All is not going well with British rule in the Near East. So the lion must take this way of showing his paw. British aid to Sheik Said and his Kurds, also supported by big Turkish capitalists, against the Turkish Angora government, has proved of no avail. The aggressiveness of the Angora government is shown by its threat to seize Mosul, one of the big keys to control of Near East oil. The British stool pigeon here was King Hedjaz. He was forced to give up Mecca to Ibu Suiad, supported by Angora. Suiad is now the dominant figure in Arabia.

One of the contributing causes of the world war was German ambition for "The Berlin to Bagdad Railroad," opening the way to the Persian Gulf and India, competing with the British all-sea routes. Now the Arabs threaten this self-same route to India,—one of the brightest jewels in the British imperialist crown.

• • • •

On his way to Jerusalem, Lord Balfour also gets the bad news that the anti-British Egyptian spokesman, Zagloul Pasha, has won a notable victory in the Egyptian parliament. The British puppet king, Fuad, has been forced to dissolve parliament, calling for new elections May 23. This would indicate that the recent crisis in Egypt, punctuated by the assassination of Sir Lee Stack, the sirdar, has in no way abated. London sees black clouds along the Suez.

• • • •

Balfour enters Jerusalem with Arabs and Jews alike heatedly spurning his coming. The British lord's reliance, however, as always is on the king's troops, in this case the Ninth Queen's Royal Lancers, who shift from Palestine to Egypt, and back again, as the occasion warrants.

• • • •

The Palestine Arab Congress has issued an appeal to all Arabs to strike on the occasion of Balfour's visit. The more militant elements among the Jews, have also posted a proclamation, not only protesting against "the deceitful Balfour, imperialist and chauvinist," but also denouncing "imperialistic Zionism." It would seem there is something more that is hot in the Near East besides the desert's sands.

• • • •

Balfour first got into British politics during the Russo-Turkish war, nearly 50 years ago. But the British have a different Russia to deal with today. In fact, all London-inspired propaganda insists that the Bolsheviks are behind all the anti-British moves in the Near East. The London imperialists cannot understand why these subject nations do not enjoy and welcome the British tyranny.

Terror and suppression against the Irish, the bloody war against the Boers in South Africa, which had not only Balfour's consent, but his active direction, were but stepping stones on Balfour's way to the prime minister's seat of power, first held by him in 1902. The inhabitants of Palestine, over which the British now exercise a "protectorate," are well aware of his past history. They know that his coming bodes them nothing that is good.

• • • •

The Near East, with its oil, is a powder barrel set down in the midst of the conflicting imperialist interests of the great capitalist nations. While Great Britain struggles to protect her interests, the diplomats of France, Italy and the United States are no less active. It is, therefore, very significant that London has been forced to send Balfour to Jerusalem at this time. It no doubt fears that the peoples of the Near East intend that they shall no longer be crucified on the British imperialist cross.

Ohio Workers Fight Cossack Rule

the methods and purposes of the two proposed laws and a call to the workers for action against them.

Alfred Wagenknecht, district organizer for the Workers (Communist) Party has sent the following letter of instructions to all city central committees of the party:

"We are sending you under separate cover a package of two different leaflets. One leaflet exposes the state military police bill now before the Ohio legislature. The other opposes the bill for compulsory bible reading in the schools.

"You are to AT ONCE carry out the following program in regard to these two leaflets.

"1. You will sign and send to every labor union in your city a copy of a letter addressed to unions which we are sending you in this same package. You are to include one of each of the leaflets in this letter.

"2. You are to distribute the leaflets we are sending you without delay. The state legislature may adjourn in two weeks and we must get action on the leaflets before these capitalist law makers go home. Especial attention is to be given to a distribution of these leaflets at union meetings and in labor temples and labor union meeting places.

"3. You are to elect comrades to visit the unions and address them upon the subjects of the state military police, the compulsory bible reading bill, the voiding of the yellow dog contract.

"We repeat—this work, these tasks must be undertaken AT ONCE. Call a meeting of your executive or your local officials and carry out the work without delay.

"Fraternally,
"Alfred Wagenknecht,
"District Organizer."

Never have the unions and other workers' organizations of this state had brought to their attention in such a well-organized manner and in material that is easily understandable such important issues of the daily struggle.

A special section of the leaflet on the state police bill is written especially for the exploited farmers. It explains how the industrial capitalists are trying to use the farmers against labor and calls on them to resist this plot of the industrial lords and their banker backers who exploit the farmers.

The connection between the foes of the child labor amendment and the authors and sponsors of the compulsory religious training bill is shown clearly in the leaflet. It also shows the special interest the ku klux klan is taking in this legislation.

Both leaflets carry an advertisement for the DAILY WORKER and it is unquestionable that the Communist press will greatly benefit from the campaign as will the whole party.

The energy displayed by the party on these issues has given it the leadership in the struggle against these measures aimed to further enslave the workers of Ohio mentally and physically. The liberal friends of labor and labor officialdom are opposed to these bills but they fight them in a half-hearted and confused manner.

The Communists have brought the issues clearly before large numbers of workers with a keenness of analysis and a militancy that leaves no room for misunderstanding of the role of their party as the most conscious and active section of the working class movement.

Machine Companies Merge.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 24.—Secretary of State Frederick Schortemeier today approved the merger of the Cloverleaf Machine company of South Bend, and the Universal Conveyor company of the same city. The new firm will go under the name of the Universal Conveyor company and received authority to increase its capital stock from $25,000 to $75,000.

LABOR DEFENSE FLAYS GAG ON FOREIGN WORKER

Pushes Unity Pageant for Irish Relief

The Holiday bill, which provides for the deportation of any foreign-born worker convicted by a capitalist court of a "crime," and which was rushed thru the house of representatives under gag rules that limited debate to forty minutes and forbade amendment, was the subject of a resolution at the last meeting of the Chicago Labor Defense Council.

The council pointed out that "the real purpose of this measure is to help the bosses to get rid of active foreign-born workers, as well as to intimidate the unorganized masses and foment differences between native and foreign-born workers."

All labor organizations, regardless of race, color, creed or politics, are urged to join hands in this new fight against the interests of the workers.

Protests should be sent direct to congressmen and senators in Washington, and to the defense and relief council for publicity in the Labor Press.

Act on Polish Murder.

The threatened execution of Stanislaus Lanzutsky, member of the Polish parliament, on the charge of making a Communist speech, was forcibly brot before the council by F. Gobert, of the Polish section of the Workers Party. The council went on record as supporting any campaign of protest and demonstration against this judicial murder, and pledged co-operation in any united efforts undertaken by labor organizations to this end.

The case has aroused world-wide protest among the working masses and is being raised in every country by the International Red Aid. The work of the I. R. A. was endorsed by the council.

Push Sunday's Demonstration.

The plans for Sunday afternoon's International Unity Demonstration, at Ashland Auditorium, were gone into in detail. There is a very rich program, including three speakers of nation-wide prominence, opera singers and dancers, gymnasts, drama, pageantry, and a motion picture (the last if the censors and courts permit, but the information contained in the movie will be shown just the same.)

Help is needed all this week at the headquarters, 19 S. Lincoln St., to get out the advertising material for the big demonstration. This is no mere entertainment. It is a March Celebration for the benefit of Irish Relief and Labor Defense—and it is at the same time a mighty demonstration against the Abramoviches, MacKenzies, etc., who seek to turn the American workers from their support to Soviet Russia. All class conscious workers will turn out and bring a big crowd to the Ashland Auditorium on the afternoon of Sunday, March 29.

DEVER TRACTION BILL PERMITS USE OF SCABS

Machinists Oppose Big Bankers' Project

Four Chicago local unions of the International Association of Machinists, Locals Nos. 128, 134, 366 and 390, have voted against the Dever traction ordinance, which would give the bankers a perpetual franchise on the Chicago surface lines, free of city tax payments.

Trade unionists point out that a few corrupt and conservative union officials, allied with the Tribune-Dever-News political machine are attempting to swing the workers for the ordinance by promising them millions of dollars worth of work.

This promise will not be fulfilled, union members say, because the bankers who are the chief support of the Dever ordinance are the same group who support the non-union Landis campaign against the building trades unions and who insist on the "open shop."

The promise of the politicians a decade ago that if the workers voted for the ordinance giving the railroads the Union Station they would get work, is being recalled.

As soon as the workers passed the ordinance, and work was begun, it was found that non-union labor had been hired at scab wages. Non-union painters, carpenters, plumbers, etc., were employed to work on the new station. The same thing will happen if the Dever ordinance is passed union men say.

Farmer Killed at Crossing.

MATTOON, Ill., March 24.—While funeral arrangements were made today for Eart S. Anthony, a farmer, of Matthews, Mo., killed Sunday when a Big Four train struck the automobile in which he was riding, three companions, Paul E. Ryberg, Fred Glad and Carl Glad, all of Paxton, Ill, were recovering from severe injuries. The men were on their way to southern Illinois to view the storm scenes.

SECTION OF THE TRADE UNION EDUCATIONAL LEAGU

A WORKER FROM NEW YORK GETS A. C. W. LESSON

Not a Communist Yet But Has Brains

By L. K.

Several years ago, when I came from New York to Chicago, I was told by some members of the Amalgamated Clithing Workers, that it would be very hard for me or for anyone coming from that city, to remain working in Chicago in the clothing industry.

In answer to my question why the situation would be so gloomy to one coming from the East I was told that the union in Chicago is the reason for it.

Further discussion on the same question convinced me that my informants, being left wingers, who were dissatisfied with the policies of the organization and were proposing some changes to better or improve conditions, upon hearing me say, during the discussion that, if corruption and graft, or other foul and dishonest practice on the part of the official is found, then it is up to the members of the organization to bring such individuals before the various boards to demand justice and thereby rid the organization of such men or women who indulge in this kind of practice.

I also argued that, if it is true that a machine exists among the officials for the purpose of abusing their power, and so control everything within the organization that no one would ever get any results if attempting to expose them, seemed to me at that time to be absurd and unjustified, since there are so many boards to consider any grievance which may be brot before them for consideration, and therefore by such provisions the organization would be free of individuals who are inclined to indulge in foul practice.

Discovered Left Wingers Told Truth.

I expressed such view on a theoretical assumption, and my informants assured me that things are not smooth in reality, and I was told that I will soon be convinced of the contrary. My informants were, therefore, right when they said it would be hard for me to stay here, judging from history and experience that conditions, as far as the power of a union official is concerned, is far less limited here than in the East.

I have learned since. I have had some practical experience to what extent a business agent can abuse his power and get away with it. There is sometimes sufficient reason not only for the condemnation of his acts but ground enuf for ousting him as an official and member of the organization.

So far as I know, this was not done and will not be done until their acts as officials are subject to examination or, much better, the proposal to deprive him of his opportunities resulting after serving several terms as official.

Heart Sickness Calls for Action.

I shall now give some experiences I had here with business agents, which finally led me to believe that some change must take place before the workers can be freed from the heart-sickening effect of the thought that we suffer too often as a result of being betrayed by our own leaders.

A business agent ordered people in a certain shop to do additional work for the same price. The people of that shop struck against the order of their agent. At the time of the strike this agent used his influence and power to frighten the people into submission to his order, and when not successful in the attempt he would abuse the one who encouraged the strike or bring one from New York and therefore had no right in this organization.

Union Official on the Other Side.

He used all kinds of foul tactics and kept this up until even the labor manager, the man representing the contractor, admitted our just claim. The result was that the people in that shop won their fight at the time when their own business agent fought together with the boss against the workers.

The same business agent, on another occasion, when having for consideration a similar case, this time instead, as before, fighting the people directly fought them this time indirectly when a case was to be taken before the labor board, he told the people in the shop that they did not have a chance to win their case.

That One Person—A Left Winger, You Bet.

So when one of the workers thought differently from his agent, trying to get someone in the shop for the purpose of bringing the case for consideration before the board, could not get anybody, because from what the agent told them they feared to do anything, and the case was fought by one person in the shop, yet resulted in victory for the workers because the labor board decided in its favor.

Again, this same agent rendered a decision which caused a section of about twenty people to lose their jobs in Alfred Decker & Cohen. He was not taken to account for that, except that the people in that shop would no longer tolerate him there, and was thus substituted by someone else.

A Fine Man to Represent Workers.

The reason I relate the deeds of one agent only is because I do not know the others. I do not even know one-tenth of what this agent has done which might be of a similar nature as far as the worker is affected by it. The things related about him, are things that happened in two shops, and he takes care of twenty shops or so. His benevolent deeds, therefore, if summarized would show that he has just as much right to represent labor as a degenerate has a right to teach morality.

A Few Questions.

How can such a business agent be presented in true light before the workers? Can he be exposed under these circumstances? Are the people free to testify against him and not suffer in many ways? Is not the agent in position to punish everyone that attempts to check him in any way? Is it not a fact that he can secure a good job for lackeys and friends?

Is it not a fact that the business agent can say directly and indirectly who shall and who shall not get an employment insurance? Is it not a fact that in this industry everyone is out of work long enough to be entitled to his insurance? Yet, how many get their full share?

If the unemployment insurance was for the purpose of helping the worker, why then, is this in the hands of every business agent to recommend insurance for whoever they may see fit? Why, if this insurance is meant in good faith, leave this in the hand of politics?

Why not standardize the contribution and distribution of insurance, like the payment of dues and assessments and thereby avoid a condition where one is deprived of his insurance because his agent has a grudge against him?

Come On Levin—Speak Up!

Why does the manager of the joint board ignore the unfair distribution of the insurance? Why, when his attention is called to the fact that a certain business agent, together with Stewart of the unemployment insurance office, pays out insurance to people who have been suspended and are therefore not entitled to insurance according to rules? Why not bring a stop to all this?

This plea is not made by a left winger, a Communist or even a socialist. I am not affiliated with any of them.

I want truth and justice first, for everybody, and I challenge anybody in the organization, including the manager, to deny or disprove any of my statements regarding the business agent who was cited as an example to what degree he can now abuse his power and be free to do so again unchecked.

Are There Any Takers?

I will go further and agree to pay one hundred dollars to any institution agreed upon, if anyone can disprove the fact that I, together with others, and then myself won an increase in wages at the time when a business agent fought against us together with the boss.

This should be stopped and can be stopped by limiting both his powers and service.

CUT 'ONLY 33 PER CENT' SAYS BOSS, EVICTING THE TEXTILE STRIKERS

NORWICH, Conn., March 24.—The Hygienic Fiber company notifies strikers they must get out of company tenements and that their group insurance is cancelled. Superintendent Brightman denies strikers' statement that wage cuts range up to fifty per cent, saying that the reduction is only thirty-three and a third percent.

RANK AND FILE CONFERENCE IN HOT CONFLICT

Demands Special Convention of Dist. 5

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—The Progressive Miners' Conference of District 5, met here March 15 with about 70 miners participating. It was a very successful and enthusiastic conference, nothwithstanding the fact that the district officials had issued a circular to every local union, warning the individuals that they would be expelled from the union if they attended this conference. And that, if necessary, the charters of the locals would be revoked.

Officials' Bluff Called.

The officials also sent to the conference a half a dozen so-called organizers to intimate and threaten those who had the courage to come. They were invited to come in, and be good or get out. They got out.

The following questions were discussed and action taken upon them:

1. The Moundsville prisoners, and the best ways and means of preparing and circularizing petitions for their release.
2. Relief for Moundsville class war prisoners and families.
3. Elections of district and section publicity committees for the Moundsville prisoners.
4. Resolution adopted calling upon the government to compel the mine owners to reopen the closed-down mines, in the same manner as they compelled the officials of the U. M. W. of A., during the strike of 1919, to force the men back to work.
5. Resolution passed calling for a special district convention to impeach the officials of District 5.

Following is a copy of the resolution calling for the impeachment of the district officials:

Resolution

"WHEREAS, an investigation and itemized account of the expenditure of $3,000,000 out of the District Defense Fund and investigation of the expenditure of $1,500,000 by Feeney and O'Leary reported to have been spent in the coke region strike have been demanded by several local unions of District No. 5 U. M. W. of A. without any response from the district officials.

"WHEREAS, Local Union No. 4646 U. M. W. of A. has publicly charged the officials of District 5 with malfeasance of office and misappropriation of funds stating its readiness to submit proof to substantiate this charge, and

"WHEREAS, very little effort has been made by the officials of District No. 5 to secure the release of our brothers now incarcerated at the Moundsville prison although the rank and file membership of District 5 has repeatedly demanded that such action be taken, and

"WHEREAS, numerous grievances of local unions of this district as well as of individual brothers working in the mines against the unfair advantage taken by the coal operators and their violations of the working agreement, are pending without any efforts made by the officers of District No. 5 to have such grievances properly adjusted, therefore be it

"RESOLVED, that this local union go on record demanding that a called special district convention of District No. 5 U. M. W. of A. be called on or before July 1st for the purpose of taking up impeachment proceedings against the district officers for neglect of their duty to the organization, and be it further

"RESOLVED that this resolution and demand for such special district convention be sent to all locals of District No. 5 U. M. W. of A. in order to secure the endorsement of fifty local unions as required by the constitution, and be it still further

"RESOLVED, that copies of this resolution be sent to secretary-treasurer of District No. 5 and to the secretary of Local 4564."

The conference went on record for a militant struggle upon a national scale against wage cuts.

Make Billion Dollars Profit from Railways in 1924; Wage Falling

Heavy reduction since 1920 in the railroad wage bill, with no corresponding reduction in the total paid by the country for its transportation, rolled up the profits of about a billion dollars which 1924 handed to railroad owners. According to interstate commerce commission figures railroad wages have fallen $875,000,000 since 1920 while railroad gross revenue fell in the same time be only $185,000,000.

Railroad wages in 1924 amounted to $2,866,905,348 compared with $3,043,161,163 in 1923 and $3,742,486,936 in 1920. The reduction of over 20 per cent in 4 years was made possible in part by the severe wage reductions ordered by the rail labor board for lower paid employes and in part by heavy reduction in working force.

The average railroad employe, including the high salaried officials as well as the low paid manual worker, received $1,624 for his year's work. In 1923 the average was $1,583, and in 1920 $1,794.

'COME BACK IN BUT SHUT UP,' SAYS SIGMAN

I. L. G. W. Officials Have An Espionage Act

By A. SIMONS

NEW YORK CITY.—After months of careful deliberation and microscopic examination of the records and activties of the "undesirable" militant elements, the general executive board of the I. L. G. W. U. issued a new edict permitting the expelled members to re-enter the union.

The conditions for their re-admittance are precise, but far reaching, namely, "COME IN AND SHUT UP," keep your mouth shut at your local meetings, keep your mouths shut in your shops, and in the market. Beware not to think or utter a word of heresy against your "leaders," even in your sleep. Don't run for office, don't vote and you shall be privileged to pay dues and taxes to fill the coffers of the treasury.

Alas! What generosity! Yet there are skeptics, who dare to question the thorogoing carefulness with which the G. E. B. of the I. L. G. W. deals with important union problems. Even the gods themselves could show no greater vigilance in guarding themselves against the undesirable elements. True enough, the officials of the international were not original in the persecution of revolutionists. They did but emulate the noble example of the gentlemen Palmer and Daugherty, who of course dealt more effectively with the undesirable radicals.

Lack Power to Deport

Deportation was the solution of Palmer and Daugherty. The officials of the international are surely not to be blamed for using less effective methods. Tho following in the footsteps of the former they could but carry thru their deportation policy within the bounds of the International. Would these bureaucrats possess the same power and facilities, they would not hesitate to adopt the method of deportation from the country.

Not in vain, did the officials of the international make common cause with democrats and republicans under the LaFollette banner. Not in vain, did they find expression for their aims and aspirations in a movement, whose soul aim it was to combat Bolshevism in this country. Great minds run in the same channels.

Yet, not all is well, with this new decision of the G. E. B. which is intended to readmit the expelled to membership in the union on the conditions of "keep your mouth shut." It is a well known fact that the international officialdom undertook the expulsion policy in order to save the union from the danger of Bolshevism.

The question then arises: If the expulsion policy has been successful, (as is often stated by the officials) and the international has been saved why reinstate the members, and thus subject the union to new dangers. True enough, according to the new order, the lefts will have to shut up. But can the international put a lock on the mouths of the militants? Do they ever hope to accomplish what even the capitalists who possess far greater powers than Sigman, Feinberg and company have failed?

Assuming, however, that the international had been saved from the left danger, the left lies prostrate at the feet of the officialdom, then why place such conditions for readmission? Yes, it seems that not all is well with the international.

By readmitting the militants into the union, the international will conclude an important chapter in the life of the once great and powerful labor organization. The left wing movement is an outgrowth of the very life and conditions of the workers in the ladies garment industry. The international, as well as other unions, is becoming ever more helpless in dealing with its trade problems. The employers, on the other hand, are becoming more powerful and are putting forth new challenges to the union. The contracting system, against which the rank and file warned the officialdom, has become a dominant factor and is eating away at the very vitals of union conditions.

The little sweat shops have increased and multiplied like mushrooms under the summer's rain. The period of employment is continually on the decrease, and is followed by long season of total unemployment.

Wages are being officially and unofficially reduced, and exploitation in the needle trades is becoming more ruthless. The fallacious policy, or lack of policy, pursued by the officials of the international, has reduced the union to such a state that even Tammany politicians, such as Governor Smith, etc., are hailed as the saviors, the new messiahs of the union.

The hopes of the workers for a better livelihood are becoming paler. A radical change in the entire structure and policies of the union, has become the crying need of the hour, if the union is to be saved from the present chaotic conditions. The militant workers in the international, who represent the most active and devoted elements insisted on the changes in order to meet the new conditions. Expulsion was the shameless answer.

Expulsion Made Things Worse

The lefts were expelled, but the conditions of the workers have become even more deplorable. The entire machinery of the union for the past two years has been directed to force the local unions to obey the orders of Sigman and company. Local unions were mercilessly destroyed. Thousands of dollars contributed by the workers, for organization work have been wasted in the struggle against the militants.

The wedge between the rank and file and the officialdom is becoming ever more distinct, and their interests diametrically opposed. Every organization campaign undertaken, was done without plan and merely as a cover for the destructive work carried on by the officials. The militants tho outside of the union have, nevertheless, like true rebels, done their duty toward the workers, and were found on the picket lines and in the front ranks of every struggle.

Union Forced to Retreat

Weakened and demoralized as a result of the internal struggles, the unions were forced to retreat in face of the organized strength of the employers. Would the officials of the international have had the vision and the courage to face the results of their destructive policies, particularly on the expulsion of the most active and energetic elements who constitute the very life blood of the organization, they would welcome back into the union the expelled members, and adopt the policies advocated by them. But, these officials will rather see the union go to destruction, than admit their mistakes. This fact is once more demonstrated by this new decision of the G. E. B.

The age long and undisputable truth —that ideas based on progress cannot be suppressed by the methods of Palmer and Sigman, was once more corroborated. The program advocated by the left wing answers the most vital needs of the workers in the industry, and finds its response amongst the active workers in every organization.

The urgent need of a radical change in the system of organization is still more greatly emphasized by the developments in the industry itself.

Sigman and Company Are Bankrupt

The present leaders have no definite plans of meeting the difficulties and leading the union out of its present chaotic and helpless condition. Neither have they any substantial criticism to offer against the plans advocated by the militants, such as, industrial instead of craft unions the shop delegate system, etc., plans which were not born in the idle minds of closet philosophers, but came as a result of years of experience, and are alredy recognized as the inevitable process of reconstruction by the labor movement of Europe.

It is nothing short of absurdity to attempt to suppress the movement for union reconstruction by methods of expulsion. Still more absurd is the present order of the G. E. B. to readmit the militants while denying them the right to express their ideas on union problems or to hold office in the union.

Gag Opponent Before Argument

This decision is the best proof that the officials of the international can only argue with militants whose mouths are shut, and thereby take no chance to run on the ballot against the militants.

This order is an open admission that the militants have the complete confidence of the rank and file, notwithstanding the attempt of the entire yellow bunch to stigmatize these active workers as disrupters of the union.

Is there need for stronger proof, that Sigman and his colleagues have outlived their usefulness in the international?

Machine Process Calls On Workers to Own and Control it or Starve

NEW YORK, March 24.—The machine is displacing the last group of craftsmen in the laundry business. Mechanical pressing machines can now do all the ironing on shirts so that the organized shirt ironers are being displaced from their jobs.'

There are still some 4,000 so-called hand laundries in New York, of which about half have agreements with the Laundry Workers' International, the shirt-ironers' union. The washing of most of these hand laundries is done however by machines in the large steam laundries and increasingly the ironing is being done my machines.

Mangles have long been used for ironing flat work but the new pressing machines can finish laundered shirts and garments. One big two ton arm presses down and smaller machines do the finishing touches. Steam laundries, using semi-skilled and unskilled help with machines, are rapidly gaining complete control of the washing of family as well as hotel, restaurant and hospital laundry.

BRICKLAYERS AND PLASTERERS NEED AMALGAMATION

Industrial Unionism Would Unite Crafts

NEW YORK, March 24.—A jurisdictional strike the operative plasterers and cement finishers union is calling on account of trouble with the bricklayers' union has halted $22,000,000 worth of construction of the Thompson-Starret company, general contractors, in New York, Philadelphia and Chicago.

The dispute between the two unions started in Florida towns where the plasterers union insisted on its right to form plasterers' locals to control plastering work that the bricklayers had been handling. Rival statements by the two unions are at odds; the plasterers claiming that the bricklayers were attempting to freeze their union out in Florida and the bricklayers claiming that the plasterers union violated an agreement.

The plasterers say the strike on the Thompson-Starret jobs is intended to penalize the bricklayers union for its Florida policy. Thompson-Starret are said to be using a plastering firm that was involved in the Florida trouble. A conference between the heads of the two unions has been arranged, but not to talk amalgamation.

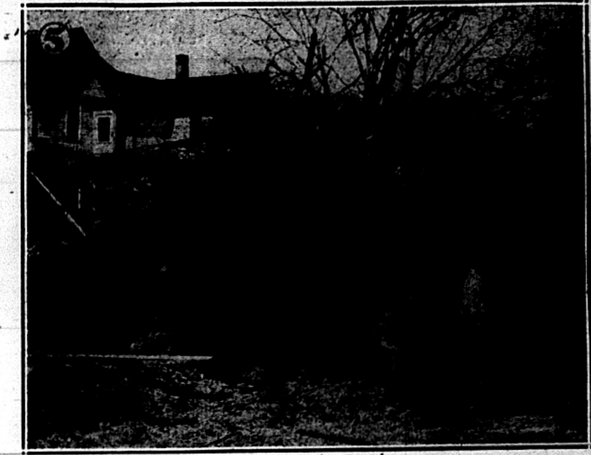
"Workers Suffer the Greatest Hardships," Says International Workers' Aid

Soldiers were sent to the stricken district. The United States flag was planted in the midst of the ruins. But the federal government at Washington did not contribute a cent to the relief of the storm stricken. The soldiers were there to save the property of those who have. The workers, most of them, lost everything, if they had anything of value to lose.



The powerful wind, that uprooted giant trees, played havoc with the shacks that served many of the workers as homes. The better constructed houses stood against the storm.

Mother of 5, Faced With Eviction, Tries To End Life With Gas

Mrs. Charles Storch, 1433 N. Leavitt St., who workers for $10.00 a week in a laundry, tried to kill herself and her five children by turning on the gas, because she could not pay the rent and was threatened with eviction. Mrs. Storch, tho only 29 years old, has a leaking heart brought on from overwork. She was forced to send her 11-year-old son, Martin, to work in industry, but even then was unable to earn enough money to feed and shelter her children.

Mrs. Storch said she was told by "charity people," "that I ought not to work too hard on my feet all day, but I couldn't see the kids starve."

She was saved from death by one of her sons, but now faces starvation.

Hoover and Mellon Undisturbed.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—Secretaries Hoover and Mellon say that the startling collapse in the price of wheat, following the "inevitable and natural" rise in the price of that commodity, should alarm no one. They insist that the country remains sound, prospects for the farmers good, and the present speculation unlikely to injure anyone but the gamblers.

Hitherto, the administration has been impressed with the farmers' good fortune in high prices for wheat. A world shortage was given as the only excuse for the steady rise in the market.

Businessmen Blame Engineer.

FRANKLIN, La., March 24.—A coroner's jury here found Frank Mathews, engineer of a Southern Pacific San Antonio bound express, guilty of causing a head on collision with mail train No. 109, west bound. The Southern Pacific did not use automatic signals at the place where the wreck occurred.

Sanitary Trustees Get Millions from Crowe Gang, Charge

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 24.—Trustees of the sanitary district of Chicago are charged with wasting or stealing $15,000,000 yearly in a resolution offered the senate asking an immediate investigation of graft within the district.

The Crowe-Barrett-Brundage political gang, which is in control of the district, are alleged to have hired hundreds of political allies who do no work. Forty to sixty per cent of the employes do nothing but draw salaries, according to the resolution, the salaries ranging from $1,200 to $36,000 annually. These employes include members of the legislature, and their friends, it is charged, and the well-paid trustees lobby in the assembly on the taxpayers' money.

Fabulous commissions, bribes, graft, and lawyers' fees, for doing nothing, are also charged in the resolution.

Frick Head Quits

WASHINGTON, March 24.—Rush Holland, assistant attorney general of the United States, has resigned. He follows his associate, Seymour, into private life and the practice of law. The last conspicuous member of the Harry Daugherty cabinet within the department is gone. Holland denies that the new attorney general desired him to leave.

Holland attended the Teapot Dome hearing before the senate public lands committee, a year ago, as the representative of the administration. He was particularly solicitous as to the dealings between Fall, Ned McLean and the White House. Thru the office of Wm. J. Burns, then head of the bureau of investigations in the department of justice, McLean secured the use of a government code book, and sent his famous dispatches concerning "peaches," "apricots," "cherries," etc., referring to republican party leaders.

"Career Man" to Persia.

WASHINGTON, March 24.— Hoffman Philip, the new minister to Persia, has been in the diplomatic and consular service since 1901, and served in Tangier, Morocco, Colombia, Brazil, Uruguay, Abyssinia, Constantinople, and as chief of the Near East division in the department at Washington. He is one of the earlier group of "carreer men" in the service. His background is socially and financially anti-radical.

J. BULL'S ENVOY MAY LET JOB TO OPEN SHOPPER

Unless He "Whispers" to Labor Fakers

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON, Mar. 24.—Sir Esme Howard, British tory ambassador to the United States, has been asked by the building trades council of the District of Columbia whether it is true that he has let the contract for the new $1,000,000 embassy building to a builder who refuses to recognize the unions. If so, the council proposes to notify the British Trades Union Congress, and let that body bring political pressure to bear upon the British government. Howard has replied that no contract has been let. He makes no pledges.

This incident recalls the fact that the U. S. chamber of commerce, when it set out to erect a $1,000,000 headquarters building opposite the White House, announced that from top to bottom it would be an "American plan" or nonunion job. Herbert Hoover's friend Julius Barnes was then president of the chamber of commerce. After much delay and many disappointments, Barnes and his building committee discovered that they could get quick results only by letting the job to a contractor who employed exclusively union men. Accordingly they made a secret verbal agreement with John Donlin, then president of the building trades department of the American Federation of Labor, under which a union contractor did the work and the unions refrained from calling attention to the defeat of the program of the open shoppers.

Sir Esme Howard is now a tory ambassador as the Federated Press correspondent points out but he was appointed to his present position by the so-called labor government of the yellow socialist Ramsay MacDonald. He was as much of a scab and imperialist then as he is now.

Engineer Attacks Van Sweringen Rail Merger Before I. C. C.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—The first attack on the plan of the Van Sweringer interests to acquire control by lease of five big railroad systems was made before the interstate commerce commission today by Albert I. Stiles, of New York, in a petition to intervene in the merger project.

Stiles, who is an engineer and a holder of common stock in the Chesapeake and Ohio railroads, assailed the proposed Merger plan, claiming that the promoters had grossly misrepresented the value of the stock of the dissatisfied shareholders.

MARINES KILL CHINESE TROOPS

fences just in front or behind them, they threw their self-assurance, that as they were foreigners they were more or less divine creatures, to the winds and flew for their dear lives.

Then of course the newspapers (foreign) got busy demanding the consular body here to appeal to the diplomatic body in Peking to stop hostilities here as several foreigners had been in danger of losing their precious lives.

Marines Allow Slaughter

Siccawei Creek which forms the boundary between part of the French concession and Chinese territory, was the place over which the retreating Chinese soldiers attempted to enter the concession.

Foreign marines were landed and the volunteers and police forces were called out and the bridges crossing Siccawei Creek destroyed with the exception of one. The retreating troops were allowed to cross this bridge but were immediately disarmed and taken in trucks to several temporary internment camps. At one time when the soldiers were hard-pressed and to save their lives were forced to cross the bridge in large groups a machine gun was trained on them, by French marines ruthlessly killing many and wounding many more.

A party of boys (American) who went to see the hostilities described the scene after the incident. The creek was discolored with the blood of those who had been killed and one or two of the dead were hanging from the bank with their heads in the water. The wounded lay on the bridge and on the other side, the red cross organization not being allowed to go to their aid.

French Murder Chinese.

After this the soldiers were disarmed one by one and taken to the temporary internment camps. These camps were nothing but riding schools which, being close to the boundary, afforded appropriate detention space. The first night the soldiers had nothing to eat and were forced to sleep on the muddy ground without blankets. They were on the point of rebellion, but nothing happened until the next day when at one of the riding schools a party of shivering, hungry men attempted an escape.

Two of the marines and one of the privates in the S. V. C. ran after them. The orders which had been issued that day were, in case of an attempted get-away the guard was to first fire on the ground and then at the fleeing soldier. The S. V. C.-ite lost his nerve, but the marines fired without mercy and mainly without firing on the ground in the first place which would have in all probability scared the refugees, who would have returned, killed two and wounded the others so that none managed to make good their escape. The next day a rude mat shed had been constructed and the Chinese chamber of commerce donated food to the starving troops. Then arrangements were made for the repatriation of the interned soldiers.

The first batch of four thousand strong were put aboard the S. S. Talma and were sent to Tsingtao from whence they went by rail to Tsinan, from where they are supposed to have been sent to their various homes, but rumor has it now that as soon as they had arrived at Tsinan they are immediately taken into the service of Lu Yung-hsiang, one of Chang Tso-Lin's powerful generals.

Fighting to Continue.

Lu is coming south in order to punish and completely disable rebellious Chi, who besides being financed by foreigners, is disappointed at having been forced to resign his post at Nanking and who at the present time is near Shanghai and was the main cause of the scare Shanghai got last week. Chi is practically the only one who opposes Chang now, Wu Pei Fu being entirely off the stage by this time.

FASCIST COMING TO LECTURE AT BARUCH JOINT

Institute Proud of Blackshirt Guest

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

NEW YORK, March 24.—Fascist propaganda under the most respectable auspices is the program for next summer. The propagandist is Count Antonio Cippico, Italian senator, fascist and friend of Mussolini, who will deliver six lectures on "Italy and the Mediterranean Area" at the fifth annual sessions of the Institute of Politics in Williamson, Mass.

High power publicity attends the sessions of the institute of politics and the workers of America next summer will be treated to feature news stories of the charms of the Mussolini dictatorship.

The announcement is contained in a publicity release received by the federated press of the list of lecturers and round table leaders for the coming sessions. The count is given more space and attention than any of the other Europeans scheduled to visit the institute. His fascism is emphasized and the fact that he was appointed senator by the king at the request of Mussolini.

Robert Masson, prominent French banker identified with the Dawes plan; Sir Frederick Maurice, British strategist and director of military operations during the war; Dr. William E. Rappard of the Permanent Mandates Commission of the League of Nations; Lionel Curtis of London University; Leo S. Rowe (U. S., director-general of the pan-American union; Philip Marshall Brown, professor of international law at Princeton University and Edwin F. Gay of the Harvard School of Business Administration are among the other lecturers and round table leaders.

4,891 Red Electric Stations.

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R.—There were 4,891 working electric stations, of which 690 were stations of public utilities, in the territories of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics by the end of 1924, according to figures communicated in a report presented at a special meeting of the presidium of the people's supreme economic council by Golzman, head of the central electricity board. The state commission for electrification has drawn up a plan providing for the creation of 38 more stations this year with an aggregate power of 1,500,000 kilowatts.

BUILDERS AT WORK

HERE IS ACTION IN A CHICAGO BRANCH

Your Branch Can Do This!

The Irving Park branch of Chicago is growing rapidly. It has doubled its membership in the last three months and it is for reasons similar to this campaign they are now conducting:

In accordance with the suggestions for the DAILY WORKER drive, the branch executive committee (on which are such live wires as Comrade Walter Schuth and Sam Hammergmark—advertising manager for "our daily") decided to secure a list of names and addresses of workers in their branch vicinity. Then they ask that to each of these workers we send the DAILY WORKER for one week—and to pay for the mailing the committee collected among themselves enough money to cover the postage so as to spare the branch treasury. Then they gave each branch member ten names of the workers to whom these papers will go, so they can visit them when the week is up to "get a sub."

This meets with the national plans of the campaign and on this method the DAILY WORKER is only too glad to co-operate. Here is a plan for every single branch of the party thruout the country to follow and here is the field in which you will not only "Build the DAILY WORKER" but in which you will find membership for your branch to build the Communist movement in this country. If you fail to get subs or members the least you will do is to advertise the official organ of our party.

• • • •

These Builders

sent in NEW subs to build "our daily" on Monday, March 23:

ROCKFORD, ILL.—M. Lundquist (4 subs).
CHICAGO, ILL.—A. Swanson, M. Krenn.
NEW YORK CITY—Workmen's Circle 386, Bronx, (4 subs);
J. Halebsky.
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—Esther Grobard; N. Mattson.
POCATELLO, IDA.—Allen Blomquist.
KANSAS CITY, KAN.—R. Osadchey.
WORCESTER, MASS.—Wm. Mattila.
McKEESPORT, PA.—Wm. Mikadee.

• • • •

And in Conclusion—

jot down this little reminder: Be sure that your branch members know that for each $6.00 worth of subs ($8.00 in Chicago) sent in they are to receive a splendid leather folder with patent clasp making all sheets detachable and containing a full descriptive catalogue of Communist books and pamphlets. It's a complete "Tool Box De Luxe" for the busy builder of the labor movement. Due to the prohibitive cost of these folders, naturally, no commission can be allowed on subs for which the folders are sent.

RECOGNITION OF SOVIET RUSSIA GREATLY URGE

Increasing Interest i Growing Trade

(Special to The Daily Worker)

"NEW YORK, March 23.—The co tinuous and constantly increasing d mand for recognition of Soviet Russi which is expressing itself on all side and especially in the labor movemen took on the form of a virtual demo stration at the gigantic mass gathe ing at the Paris Commune Pageant i Madison Square Garden on Sunday, a which 10,000 workers were present.

Chafing Under Delay

The response of the vast audienc showed that the working class o America is chafing under the unseemi delay in opening trade with the fir Workers republic, which has contr of one sixth of the earth's surfac with resources almost unlimited wai ing for the hand of labor to turn the into channels of use for the masses o workers thruout the world.

All the leading capitalist natio have been forced to open trade rela tions with Russia and full recognitio has been accorded by many, while th United States is still holding back t the detrement of the entire nation an retarding development of industry an agriculture in Russia.

No reason whatsoever has been pro duced except that Russia is controlle by a government of workers and farm ers. The workers and farmers in al countries can see no danger in thi and are crying loudly for uncondition al recognition of the new republic of the working class.

Will Soon Compel Action

With sentiment expressing itself a it now does in the larger cities as well as in rural communities the toiling masses feel that their voice must soon be heard and that the capitalist rulers must soon be compelled to take action in conformity to the universal demand that is now heard on all sides where workers gather to consider their highest interests.

Letters From Our Readers

In Ford's Sweatshop.

To the DAILY WORKER: It is almost one year ago since Ford began to lay off his employees as the result of glutted market for his "tin lizzies." Working days were cut down from six to three and two days per week. So it was impossible to live on such wages of three and two days per week in the city where cost of living is the highest. So thousands of workers were job hunting in vain all last summer.

Those who were lucky to work part time were speeded up as usual. In the motor assembling department there are two shifts working 8 hours each, with half hour for lunch and recreation. But that was last December, and since this department has been transferred to River Rouge plants the new system has been set and 8-hour shifts are maintained, but recreation was cut down first to twenty minutes and later to fifteen only. These slave drivers think that these few minutes are enough for another four hours of work. This motor assembling is the fastest work in this shop. Men have to work before moving line at terrific speed. Yet there is one foreman to every few men. Some men were hired here this week but thousands are waiting to get jobs. I've seen men carrying blankets with them about ten o'clock in the morning from one department to another. Some of these poor workmen have been waiting the whole night in the cold to be in line next morning. But many have been shivering with cold all night with hopes of getting employment, only to be turned away next morning.

Much could be said about working conditions here but some other time. Yours for overthrow of capitalist system.—Pleb., Detroit, Mich.

P. S.—I would be glad if some of this letter could be printed in the DAILY WORKER.

From An Illinois Miner.

To the DAILY WORKER:—As the workers should write of their work, I have decided to write the following concerning the working conditions in the Dowell Coal Co.

About 18 months ago the company wanted to develop some territories and demanded of our local to let them work double shift gangs. After a protest from the local, the local finely agreed to let them develop the territories, but with volunteers. But when the company would hire a new man, it was the gang for him or no job. Also to the coal diggers that would finish his place, he was also told nothing but the gang. Take it or get your tools on top.

But things are changing. The mine manager received a letter from the chief, Dr. Young of St. Louis, stating that there was too much screening and yardage, that a stop had to be put to the gangs. The mine manager decided to put a stop to the double shift, but leaving the one shift gangs. But that threw out 76 men. Now to replace these men the company wants to break our agreement. They want to put 24 men to each cutting machine instead of 20 men. The local called a special meeting for the above condition. And the local voted down the company's proposition. The stand the local took was that they (the company) had enough territories in the mine to add more machines. And that would not break our agreement. A Coal Miner—G. R., Dowell, Ill.

Sinclair Broke Soviet Contract.

MOSCOW, Russia, March 24.—The trial of the Sinclair Oil company here for their failure to live up to their contract with the Soviet government regarding the Saghalin Oil concession, disclosed that Sinclair had promised to induce the American government to force Japan to evacuate Saghalin, according to a news dispatch.

If the Sinclair company failed to force Japan's withdrawal, according to the dispatch, the contract was to be cancelled after a year had elapsed.

Holding Power by Terror

Chicago is the stronghold of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' machine. In New York the wholly illegal and arbitrary action of the Hillman administration has lost the support of at least 75 per cent of the membership.

In other centers the membership is lukewarm. The Hillman-Levin gang in Chicago is desperate. They know that if the left wing revolt in Chicago, a revolt already under way, gains much more impetus the Hillman machine is wrecked. Its use of the blacklist and starvation, put into effect by taking members from their jobs for distributing a leaflet issued by Local Five of New York has aroused widespread resentment.

The machine makes no pretense of carrying on organization of the unorganized, it is preparing to surrender to the bosses in the new agreement, but last night it mobilized at enormous cost to the union an army of sluggers to prevent the blacklisted members holding a meeting.

By threats to wreck the Temple auditorium, the manager of the hall was intimidated and the doors kept closed to the thousands of rank and file members who had assembled at the call of a committee of the blacklisted workers. Dozens of the workers who distributed the leaflet calling the meeting, and the leaflet distributed this morning telling the gangster methods of the Hillman-Levin administration, were beaten up. The Chicago administration is holding power by terror alone.

The answer to the Hillmanites must take the form of an extension of the struggle to every district of the Amalgamated. The truth about the Hillman administration, long masked as a friend of Soviet Russia and the left wing of the labor movement, must be told to every member of the union.

This is what the machine fears and this is the reason for the desperate form of its attack on the rank and file.

Mexico's "Labor" Government

Some time ago the press carried the news that a "labor attache" had been sent to the Mexican embassy in Washington. The liberal "friends of labor" fell all over themselves in explaining that this was an important event and that it occurred only because there was a "labor" government in Mexico.

The function of this labor attache is now plain. From Washington emanate press reports excusing the destruction of the union of railway workers by the Calles government. There is no denial of the fact itself, but certain "explanations" are made. The labor attache uses against the railway workers the old lie used against the Communists by the Mexican labor officialdom—that they supported de la Huerta.

His press interviews contain such glib phrases as "aristocracy of labor" and emphasize the "high" wages of the Mexican railwaymen. These workers have been deprived of the right to strike and the railway property is to be handed back to Wall Street.

The Calles government with its labor attache publicity service is consequently a government, not of labor, but of American imperialism. Its chief support comes from the officialdom of the Mexican labor unions just as support of the program of American imperialism is received from the officialdom of the American Federation of Labor.

If American imperialism cannot have its way in Mexico while the railwaymen's union lives then the union must be destroyed. This is the policy of the Calles government, it is the policy of Morones and his henchmen in the Mexican Federation of Labor, it is the policy of the Greens and Wolls and it is the policy of Wall Street.

No sooner had the El Paso convention consummated the union of the labor officialdom of the United States and Mexico than the Workers (Communist) Party told the working class that this was the first step to betrayal. The party was correct. The war on the militant Mexican workers is in full swing. It will be followed by other betrayals until all power of resistance is wiped out.

Against this foul scheme the militant workers of Mexica and the United States must fight with all their power. The Communist parties of the two countries must enlist in the struggle the workers of all North and South America.

Anyone that seriously believes that religion has no political character should read the story of the Catholic revolt now in progress against the French government. Foreign-born Communists are deported from France—but the agents of the vatican operate openly and carry on a campaign against the public school system and for the return of the monarchy.

Our idea of something that is not news is a German cabinet crisis. Like the unemployed in England, it is a permanent institution.

The steel trust does big things in a big way. It has just cut Pennsylvania miners' wages $2.25 per day.

The Racial Purity Bugaboo

The aristocracy of the south, which could be called much accurately the southern degeneracy, appears in its warfare on the Negroes in the panoply of a champion preserving the purity of the Nordic strain.

To keep the Anglo-Saxon blood stream untinged by the mingling of the two races is considered an enterprise worthy of untinted praise. In pursuit of this high purpose the horrible deaths suffered by Negroes at the hands of white mobs is supposed to be a small price to pay.

Just what is this bugaboo of the race mixture? Is it bad per se and is there such a thing as pure racial stock? Is the so-called white race a distinct product of nature, unaffected by the fact that black and yellow races inhabit the same planet? Does the maintenance of racial inequality, expressing itself in suppression of one particular race preserve the racial purity of either the dominant or the conquered race?

Answers have been given by science to all these questions—answers uncolored by racial prejudice. That the facts as established by impartial investigation are not more widely known is a tribute to the censorship powers of the Negro haters and baiters.

In the first place science has been unable to establish that racial mixtures alone produce inferiors. The offspring of mixed unions maybe and often are inferior, but this is shown to be the result of social and not biological conditions.

The white race is no more a pure stock than are the yellow and brown races. It is an amusing fact that the race most despised by the white ruling class—the Negro—is the purest racial stock in the last and most important question, that of the effect of racial discrimination and suppression in maintaining racial purity of the dominant group, let us hear from a scientist, Doctor Alain Locke of Harvard university, a Rhodes scholar and specialist in ethnology:

> I can say it is my opinion that race amalgamation proceeds much more rapidly where the races are socially and economically unequal, and that it is this kind of miscegenation that is from both Negro and Caucasian points of view undesirable.
> Considering that the considerable amount of race intermixture has up until recently been the outcome of such exploitation of the economically and socially weaker group, we must, I think, conclude that almost any degree of amalgamation in the future could not produce deterioration of physical stock or of the standard of living in this country, since it has not done so thus far.
> Theoretically, then, no unbiased mind can be opposed to the principle of race amalgamation. On the whole, nature has answered that question affirmatively.

It will be seen by the above that the suppression of a race automatically increases the number of racial mixtures. Doctor Locke is not alone in this opinion, it is generally held by all investigators and is the result of exhaustive research. A Negro burned at the stake becomes in the light of sober scientific judgment a torch which lights the path on which the male and female of both races meet and mingle.

Science establishes the basis for programs and action, but it cannot liberate the Negro. It is useless to try to reason with the holders of blind hatreds. Thorold Rogers, a great English sociologist, said many years ago:

"No time is so much wasted as that spent in arguing with persons who have strong convictions but no knowledge."

Our job is not to convert the capitalist class of the north and south. Our job is to destroy the prejudices injected into the mass mind of the working class by capitalist publicists. This work must keep step with organization of both black and white workers. The mass pressure of both is the only thing that will wipe out the horrors of racial strife under capitalism.

Freedom for all races can come only with the dictatorship of the working class building the Communist society.

The Filipinos' Struggle

Underneath the struggle for national independence for the Philippines is the clash of class forces. The rice field workers are the latest section of the Filipino working class to feel the iron in the dictatorship of American imperialism.

As in all colonial regions the imperialists strive to win the landlords and middle-class elements to their side, to get them to betray their countrymen. In the internal struggles between the native exploiters and the workers the colonial government appears always as the protector of the property owners. American capitalists, by showing favors to the native bourgeoisie, win some of them to their side. Both unite to crush the workers' and peasants' organizations.

The uprisings against intolerable oppression that occur from time to time, like that of the Katipunan Macabula Macasilage of which we told yesterday, a hundred members of which are now in jail, are ruthlessly suppressed. Then the uprisings themselves are used to show the "incapacity of the Filipino for self-government."

The working class organizations of every colonial country are the basis for any strong independence movement. To these organizations of the Filipino workers and peasants the American working class must give its fullest sympathy and support.

Poison gas is used against the workers in Poland and two are killed by this method. Poland has a "democratic" form of government. Do you remember the outburst of indignation in the capitalist press when the German militarists first used poison gas? Have you seen anything at all in the capitalist press about the use of it by the terrorist Polish government?

FOES OF SOVIET RUSSIA INCREASE THEIR ACTIVITY

Communists to Explode Latest Dodge

NEW YORK, March 24.—The counter-revolutionaries are raising their voices against Soviet Russia with increasing vehemence. Abramovitch has had his say—and has been turned down by the workers of this country. Now, a new attempt is being made to attack Soviet Russia, disguised under the name of a committee to aid political prisoners "in all countries." Prominent among the members of this new committee are yellow socialists whose record in the counter-revolutionary movement is clear. Cahan, Vladeck, Hillquit—the yellowest of the yellow are the associates of this committee.

It is not strange that this committee begins its work at a time when the capitalist world has been forced to recognize Soviet Russia and the only big power that still holds aloof is the United States. The forces making for recognition in this country are growing—especially among the capitalists who absolutely require a new—market—and especially want Russian oil. To offset this movement toward recognition, the international socialists are doing everything in their power to slander Soviet Russia. Nothing serves them better than to carry on a campaign for the relief of political prisoners in "all countries."

These counter-revolutionaries are trying to prove that the "political" prisoners in Soviet Russia are imprisoned for mere expression of opinion. This is a lie. They are there for active organizational work against the First Workers' and Peasants' Republic in the world.

These counter-revolutionaries pay little heed to the brutal acts of the capitalist governments against the workers and struggling farmers. They do not heed the cry of the imprisoned revolutionaries in Germany, Poland, Hungary, Greece, India, Bulgaria, Spain, Korea, Java and China. They say nothing about the recent arrest and sentencing to death of Stanislav Lanzutsky by the Polish government for standing in parliament for the rights of the workers; of Maurin, the Spanish revolutionary for defending the interest of the workers.

The workers of New York will give an answer to these counter-revolutionary attacks and will express their solidarity with the imprisoned revolutionaries in the capitalist prisons. On Wednesday, March 25, at the Central House, there will be a mighty voice of protest against the imprisonment and torture of the revolutionaries in the capitalist dungeons and a forceful condemnation of the new attacks on Soviet Russia.

All class-conscious workers must be there. Auspices: Workers Party, Young Workers League and the International Workers' Aid.

HERRIOT FOES WAGE OPEN WAR ON GOVERNMENT

PARIS, March 24.—The life of the Herriot government will be cut short if the extreme nationalists can bring about its overthrow. It should not be difficult considering the shilly-shallying policy followed by the left bloc since it assumed power.

Millerand opened war on Herriot, making his principal attack on the recognition of Soviet Russia and the suppression of the French embassy at the vatican. Millerand is a former socialist.

Britain continues to ask France for payment of debts and is using Germany in Britain's present diplomatic war on her former ally.

Two Million Jobless Don't Trouble Green, "Business Is Good!"

BOSTON, Mass., March 24.—America's army of unemployed numbers two million, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, said as he departed for Fall River to meet the textile workers of that city and New Bedford.

The federation president saw no cause for alarm, however, saying that the business outlook was good. Prospects for peace in the coal fields were bright, he said, despite talk of a September strike.

"One person's guess as to the cause of unemployment is as good as another's," Green said, blithely waving aside the continual development of the machine process, the science of political economy and other things he is too ignorant to understand, and too comfortable to want to learn.

All Play and No Work.

NEW ORLEANS, March 24.— The International Union of Steam Engineers are in semi-annual convention in this city and will continue for six days at least. "Automobile rides, boat rides and several banquets have been scheduled for the program." They have not as yet settled down to business, altho in session four days.

LANZUTSKY MUST BE SAVED!

THE Polish bourgeoisie are plotting the murder of Stanislaw Lansutzki, railroad machinist, Communist deputy to the Sejm, parliament and leader of the Polish revolutionary proletariat. Comrade Lanzutsky was a member of the Polish socialist party, until 1921, when becoming convinced of its treason to the working class which it was meant to represent, he left the socialists and entered the Communist Party. Comrade Lanzutsky at once became a leading figure in the party by his courageous stand in the Sejm and at workers' meetings, and his fiery advocacy of revolutionary action against the bloody Polish bourgeoisie.

From the first the Polish government sought a pretext for waiving "parliamentary immunity" (always an empty fiction where Communists are concerned) and silencing this champion of the workers and peasants who was daily becoming a greater menace to the bourgeis exploiters. His arrest finally came in connection with the events of the fall of 1923, when the smoldering spirit of revolt against the bloody Polish bourgeosie burst into flame and swept the whole country.

In the fall of 1923 a strike of Polish railroad men developed into a great general strike, during which nationwide revolutionary mass demonstrations of workers and peasants were held. On Nov. 6, the commander of the Cracow garrison, being met with a refusal when he ordered an immense mass meeting of workers to disperse, sent troops to enforce the carrying out of his orders. The soldiers, however, themselves workers and peasants, refused to fire on the crowd, fraternizing with the workers, and finally united with the latter to seize the city for the proletariat. For three days they held power, until the socialist traitors, true to their Judas role, came to the rescue of the Polish butchers, and, telling the workers that the government would settle their grievances, and that those who had participated in the revolt would not be persecuted, persuaded them to relinquish power.

On Nov. 11, Comrade Lanzutsky addressed a great meeting of railroad workers in Przemysl, showing them the revolutionary significance of the Cracow uprising, and pointing out the necessity of seizing—and holding—power. Though afraid to take any action against Lansutzki at the time, when the masses were still seething with revolt, the government began plotting to use this speech as a pretext for his arrest. At length, on Dec. 18, 1924, the procurator demanded that the Sejm should waive Lanzutsky's right to parliamentary immunity, and hand him over to the police. The socialist parliamentary fraction without the consent of which immunity could not have been waived, agreeing, Lanzutsky was given up, and the next day taken to prison. The charge on which he was arrested was a violation of paragraph 58 of an Austrian criminal code, several centuries old, an ancient law of monarchistic times dug up by the "democratic" Polish republic as an excuse for murdering the man whom they so hate and fear.

While the session of parliament that decided on Lanzutsky's betrayal was being held, the streets before the building were thronged with infuriated workers demanding his release, and the government massed special guards thruout the city, to prevent a serious uprising.

In all the industrial districts of Poland demonstrations are being held demanding the release of Lansutzki, and as the date set for the trial approaches, excitement is reaching fever heat. From end to end the country rings with the cry of the proletariat: "Lanzutsky must and shall be saved."

Chicherin Exposes the Mensheviks

Black Sea. Great Britain got free access to the Black Sea and left it to France to watch over Georgia.

French Admiral Governs Georgia.

After the evacuation of Batum by the British, Mr. Lloyd George told Krassin that Great Britain could not interfere with the relation between the Soviet Republics and the Caucasus, but would regard the Caucasus as the sphere of influence of the Soviet Republics. This took place shortly before Georgia was proclaimed a Soviet Republic, and, as a matter of fact, Great Britain took no action.

During the time of the Jordaniya government, Georgia was practically governed by the French admiral, Dumesnil, who had his agent, Mr. Chovalier, at Tiflis. It was Dumesnil who systematically inspired the Georgia menshevik government with enemity and faithlessness towards the Soviet Republics.

The treaty between the Soviet Republics and Georgia contained a section which legalized the Communist Party in Georgian territory; and it was this section which turned into a trap. The legalization gave the Jordaniya government the opportunity for numerous expulsions, and all sorts of repressive measures, to indiscriminate executions in the villages, particularly in the South-Ossetia, so that the treaty virtually came to an end.

Starves Armenia.

This policy was imposed by Dumesnil upon the menshevik leaders—Jordaniya, Gegetchkori, Ramishvilla, Dshugelli. In obedience to the French suggestions the menshevik government prohibited the transit of corn to Sovietized Armenia. In Armenia the Soviet Republic was proclaimed at the moment when the Dashnaks government concluded the shameful Alexandropol treaty with Turkey, by virtue of which Turkey was entrusted with the protection of the remaining part of Armenia against the "inner enemy," so that the safety of Armenia was bound up with the fate of the Soviet power.

At the same time when the mensheviks were delivering orations that the enemies of all civilization were marching against Georgia, they caused starvation in Armenia and made it impossible for her to fight on. When the insurrection began in the neutral zone between Georgia and Armenia hopeless.

The Jordaniya government having forbidden the corn transit to Armenia, the Georgian representative in Moscow suggested that the insurrection was probably organized by French agents. When the Armenian Communists hastened to the assistance of their comrades, the Dashnaks occupied the Erivan from behind.

The Moscow wireless station could hear the conversation going on by wireless between Admiral Dumesnil, the Tiflis menshevik government and the Dashnaks at Erivan. The insurrectionary working people were, accordingly taken between the fires of the French fleet, the menshevik and Dashnak soldiers.

At the same time Dumesnil prepared a landing in force for the protection of the Jordaniya government, that is, for an attack upon the rising workers and peasants. One may safely assent, that the Sovietization of Georgia was a measure of self-protection against the offensive policy of the French admiral.

Stole All They Could Carry.

The Jordaniya people went on board of a French ship to Paris, heavily loaded with valuable objects which they appropriated.

In the French recognition formula it is said: France recognizes the Soviet power, where the Soviet power has been recognized by the population. In order to exclude the possibility of applying this ambiguity to Georgia, Mr. De Monzie handed over a document to Comrade Racovski, in which it is expressly stated that the above formula did not include Georgia. The same assurance was given us recently by the French ambassador Mr. Herbette. Nevertheless, when Mr. Renaudel declares the contrary in the French chamber, the French government keeps silent.

When Comrade Cachin pointed out in his speech that Georgia for the sake of security had to keep up close relations with the other Soviet republics, Mr. Herriot in his reply did not touch the essence of the question, but simply declared that Cachin entertained imperialist views.

Without the recognition of Soviet Georgia no understanding with us is possible.

IRON LEAGUE ADMITS STRIKE HURTS BUSINESS

Asks for Permanent Injunction

NEW YORK, March 24.—The open shop iron league contractors are losing orders hourly because of the strike of iron workers' union in New York, counsel for Levering & Garigues Co., member of the league, argued in the hearing on making the injunction against the unions permanent.

Judge Merritt Lane, representing the Iron League company, admitted that if the union were not permanently restrained by the court, the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers would succeed in making the building industry of New York and vicinity completely closed union shops.

He said that Iron League contractors are at present the only ones not working under agreements with the iron workers union. All other trades connected with building are completely organized and all other iron contractors than those in the league deal with the iron workers' union.

Iron League Illegal

Frank P. Walsh, attorney for the International union and Locals 40 and 361, Local 197 of Steam Derrick Workers and Local 170 of Riggers and Machinery Workers, pleaded that U. S. District Judge Knox vacate his temporary restraining order against the unions because no complaint nor affidavits had been served on any of the defendants.

He argued that the Iron League itself came to court in bad faith because it is an organization existing illegally to restrain trade.

Walsh called attention to the fact that previous cases in the state supreme court brought by certain of the Iron League and National Erectors association in the Bronx courts were further attempts to injure the union in its legitimate business. He argued intimidated and confused union workers so that they were not able to do even the permitted strike activities.

In the state case the Iron League was denied its injunction and the other case is still pending. Judge Lane denied that the earlier cases had anything to do with the present one.

A Long Drawn Struggle

Judge Knox advised the Iron League complainants to serve their papers upon the defendants so that the union's case may be properly prepared for hearing in two weeks. He took under advisement whether he would extend the temporary injunction which is expiring before further hearing on its merits.

The iron workers' strike against the Iron League is the continuation of one called last summer. Strikes on all jobs where iron work is sublet to Iron League members are in force. The union demands a closed union shop.

Washington English Branch Announces Powell's Departure

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 24.—The city central committee of the Workers (Communist) Party has passed the following resolution commending Comrade Powell's work as secretary of the Washington city central committee. Comrade Powell has left Washington.

The resolution states:

WHEREAS; The uncertain business conditions of the capitalist system, under which we all exist, have compelled Comrade J. Powell, secretary of the city central committee, to leave the city of Washington;

THEREFORE; Be it resolved by the English branch of Washington local of the Workers Party of America, in regular meeting assembled, that we express our hearty appreciation of the effective manner in which Comrade Powell has conducted the business of this organization during his sojourn in this city. Comrade Powell's indefatigable work for our party has been an inspiration to all of our comrades in this city.

Comrade Powell takes with him our gratitude and leaves with us the certainty that his efforts for the emancipation of the wage slaves of the world will remain unabated, regardless of where he may locate. Be it further

RESOLVED, That the secretary be instructed to send a copy of this resolution to Comrade Powell and to the editor of the DAILY WORKER. S. R. Peachman, secretary; L. J. Bradsky, recording secretary.

RECORD [illegible] TATE POLICE ONE OF BR[illegible]TY AND VIOLENCE AGAIN[illegible] LABOR ORGANIZATION

BY MANUEL GOMEZ.

(Article IV.)

"Organized upon a strictly military basis, it (the state constabulary) appears to have assumed in case of strikes that the strikers are its enemies and the enemies of the state, and a campaign should be waged against them as such."

So concludes the report of the United States Industrial Relations Commission regarding state police.

This report was published in 1916. Since then strikes have been broken, union men clubbed and jailed, and radical meetings assulted, more than ever before. It is not strange, because there are more state policemen now.

The political power of the capitalist class is becoming more and more highly centralized. Raw force has become the favored method of dealing with working class opposition.

Seventeen States Under Martial Law

Seventeen states of the United States now have armed troops of state policemen. The bankers and businessmen back of the Dunlap bill want to add Illinois to the list and they will succeed unless the workers and poor farmers of the state take active steps to prevent them.

Previous articles in this series have exposed the consistent anti-labor tactics of the Pennsylvania state constabulary, the original and model force. It has been proved beyond the shadow of a doubt that in the 20 years of its existence the Pennsylvania constabulary has been purely and simply a militant instrument for use against the workers.

Not One Proven Benefit

But perhaps Pennsylvania is an exception? How about the other states in which constabularies have been established? Is there a single instance in which the toilers are benefited instead of regularly beaten up by the state troopers? There is not. Notwithstanding all the flamboyant propaganda paid for by chambers of commerce and rotary clubs, the facts prove that these state police have in no sense been used to "protect rural communities" but merely to protect the ill-gotten gains of the rich against

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

THE mine operators of the northern part of West Virginia are up to their necks in frame-ups against the union miners of that region. In Grant Town, a mining camp a few miles from Fairmont, a mine guard was killed outside the union hall. A union miner also was shot dead. The aftermath of the shooting affray is, the indictment of several union miners for the mine guard's death, while nothing has been done by the state about the dead union man. Indeed, the newspapers circulated the report that the members of the miners' union who also lost his life was hiding in the mountains.

THIS section of West Virginia was once a stronghold of unionism. Now, the operators are out to crush every vestige of trade unionism there. A few miles from Grant Town an explosion took place in a mine that was running open shop. It was a gas mine and the operators failed to take the necessary precautions. Over thirty lives were lost. In order to cover up the negligence of the operators, several union miners were arrested on a charge of having dropped a dynamite bomb into the pit.

THE state of West Virginia has long [illegible] a fortress of reaction and it [illegible] the modifying influence of the United Mine Wokrers of America, is now disappearing. The capitalist press and all other agencies of publicity are speaking with one voice against the miners' union and John L. Lewis who should be on his toes planning the fight of his life on the operators is whiling away the monotony of his existence granting interviews to capitalist papers on the necessity of driving 150,000 miners out of the coal industry.

THE coal barons in southern West Virginia have liquidated their war against the miners' union, for the good reason that there is no longer a union. Even the notorious Don Chafin parked his gat. There are no targets. But in the northern part of the state there is still some life left in the once powerful United Mine Workers of America. The bosses are determined to kill every trace of unionism and to kill those whom they knew from past experience will never bend the knee to the operators.

• • •

THIS does not look very much like a section of that American republic which the secretary of the socialist labor party praises so highly in his drawthumping whine for mercy in the case of Milos Vojovenic, a member of his little party who is threatened with deportation because the government made the mistake of taking him for a Communist. After wading thru the bulky bundle of appeals to the

MINE STRIKERS HELD FOR GRAND JURY IN MURDER FRAME UP

FAIRMONT, W. Va., March 25.—The preliminary hearings for 12 striking union miners arrested last week by county officers and state police on the framed-up charge of the murder of Ray Tobin, mine guard and gunman at Grant Town, were concluded this evening before a commission composed of three justices of the county.

The men were all held for the action of the grand jury without bail. Those held for the murder are: James Ryan, John Hogan, T. C. Summers, Edward Rhodes, Joe Burk, Irwin Schafer, Jim Burk, Cecil Harris, Victor Romaine, Mil-Cecil Haught, Julius Kolkrai, Wm. Beckisk, Alias Yoka, Nick Serdich, the thirteenth men arrested, was released because of lack of sufficient evidence in the case.

Tobin was shot after he had fatally wounded John Kello, a union miner. Tobin was employed by the New England Fuel company to help break the strike.

2,000 CLOTHING WORKERS STRIKE AGAINST CUTS

Baltimore Strike of A. C. W. Growing

BALTIMORE, Md., March 25. (Bulletin.)—The strike of the clothing workers called by the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union is developing hourly. Fully 2,000 workers are out. Lithuanian locals are all out, with the Polish, Bohemian, Italian and Jewish locals supporting them.

The strike was called by the joint board for coat makers. But the pants and vest makers are joining the strike in sympathy. It is disclosed that the contractors have been forcing the workers secretly to accept lower prices and do more work. The union scale is demanded by the strikers, who organized secretly to combat this condition.

Two conferences between the union and the contractors were held today. Meetings show that the workers are enthusiastic and militant, the strikers wildly applauding Anthony Jenkins, organizer of the strike. More shops are joining.

The Strike is Called.

Unemployed Men Seize Freight Train to Ride to Capital for Aid

EDMONTON, Alta., March 25.—The vanguard of Calgary's unemployed "army," which started to walk to Edmonton, the capital of Alberta, on Saturday, arrived 120 strong traveling on a freight train. A reception committee of city, provincial, and railway police met the men and arrested one on a charge of trespassing on railway property.

The advance guard of the "army" of 400 started to walk here from Calgary, a distance of 196 miles, but after a trek of twenty miles invaded the freight train, the crew of five being powerless to resist.

VIOLENT TRADE WAR IMPENDING BETWEEN RIVALS

Workers Suffer As Big Plutes Compete

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 25.—A great trade "conflict" is impending between the chief exporting nations of the world, but American business men can look forward to it with confidence.

This prediction was made by the department of commerce today simultaneously with the publication of an analysis of foreign trade, which showed that the exporters of the United States are rapidly forging ahead in the great competitive markets of South America and the far east.

Julius Klein, director of foreign trade, called attention to an increase of $430,000,000 in America's foreign trade last year, as compared to 1923, and gains in the early months of 1925.

"These gains have been offset to a certain extent by increasing doubts as to the dangers of competition from our European rivals," Klein said. "So much misinformation, however, has been circulated on the subject, inspired in some cases by our rivals themselves, that a calm, dispassionate view of the actual facts should be taken."

Plutes Will Gain.

Klein believes that manufacturers of the country will reap a ripe benefit from increasing purchasing power of the competitive markets of Latin-America, Asia, Oceania and Africa, which took imports last year of $6,000,000,000 or more than double the 1913 figure.

"The significant feature of this stimulated purchasing power is the fact that requirements are in a large measure for the newer products of American ingenuity," Klein declared. He enumerated automobiles, electrical specialties, motion picture films, labor saving machinery, ready made clothes and office equipment.

Analysing the South American trade Klein said that the United States and Great Britain lead, each holding about twenty-four per cent of the foreign trade, with Germany 13 per cent, since 1913, the United States has doubled her relative strength in this market.

Increased Investments.

Among the factors contributing to the greater volume of Latin-American trade with this country is "our increased investment in commercial securities that territory," according to Klein. Private investors of the United States hold over $3,000,000,000 in Latin-American industrials compared to $1,000,000,000 in 1913.

"In the far east a similar transformation has taken place," Klein continued. "United States now holds 26 per cent of the Japanese trade; Great Britain 12 per cent and Germany six per cent. Our share of the Chinese trade is 16 per cent; Britain's 13 per cent and Germany 3 per cent."

Klein believes that American exporters have little to fear from further price cutting in Europe which he said is on the wane because of high interest rates, accumulation of heavy taxes with no relief in sight for years, and removal of monetary advantages enjoyed by competitors thru currency stabilization.

Japanese Peers, Sore at Workers' Visits, Spurn Voting Bill

TOKIO, March 25.—Because of failure to reach an agreement with the house of peers for the passage of the suffrage bill, the government today decided to prolong the diet two days, ending the session Saturday.

Refusal of the peers to take up the suffrage bill followed visits by crowds of workers to the homes of former Viscount Wanabe and Kusuziki, both members of the house of peers, which held the government responsible for the raiding parties.

An explanation of the raids was demanded by the peers from the government.

FIRST SOVIET SHIP TO ENTER AMERICAN PORT STEAMS INTO MOBILE

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOBILE, Ala., March 25.—The Soviet Russian steamer Watslav Vorovsky, the first Soviet ship to enter a port of the United States since 1917, is unloading a part of its cargo of kainite here.

The Soviet ship will leave for St. Andrews Bay, Fla., when the kainite is unloaded, and will there load a cargo of lumber. The ship came to Mobile from Savannah.

The United States immigration authorities refused to allow any of the crew of 50 to land, confining them to the ship, claiming that "immigration restrictions" forbade a landing of the crew.

DAVID FOSTER, SLUGGER VICTIM, IS OUT ON BAIL

Clothing Foreman Is Frame-up Artist

David Foster, Workers Party member, who was arrested last Tuesday morning at the corner of Green and Jackson, while distributing literature was released yesterday afternoon after bail was raised and reduced in see-saw fashion by judges and police sergeants.

Harry Novak, foreman in the National Tailoring company who claims that Foster assaulted him with a dangerous weapon, was reported to be one of the attackers. That Foster did not have a knife or any other weapon made no difference to Novak and to his shyster lawyer who framed the case against the young Communist.

Foster was booked yesterday afternoon on a charge of assault and disorderly conduct. By agreement with David Bentall, attorney for Foster, the bail was fixed at $600 by the lieutenant. But when Bentall returned with the necessary cash there was a new man in charge of the station who insisted on holding him in $1,000 bail. A night court judge, however reduced it to $600, and Foster was turned loose.

Up Again; Down Again.

Yesterday morning when the defendant appeared before police court Judge McCarthy and demanded a jury trial, which was granted, Novak's lawyer asked that the bail be increased to $1,500. Attorney Bentall had left for the federal building. The judge granted the request, and Foster was again trotted down to the "can." When Bentall heard of the latest development, he returned and after he explained the situation to Judge McCarthy, his honor reversed himself and Foster again was at large.

The case will come up for trial within a week or two. Valeria Meltz who was arrested with Foster also demanded a jury trial. She was released yesterday afternoon.

Novak is reported to be a member of the Levin gang. The case against Foster is a bald frameup.

LEVIN MOVES TO FORESTALL MASS REVOLT

Prepares to Expel Militant Members

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

The Hillman-Levin machine in the Chicago Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union moves on to fresh crimes against the membership, deliberately depriving the members not only of their jobs, but also of their rights within the union.

A sample of this attack, which Levin is making to forestall the mass protest against his outrageous autocracy in taking the bread and butter from the mouths of union members, was seen Tuesday night, when at a meeting of Local 144, Levin sent in charges against Brothers Savanovsky and Rudman, asking that the local send in these two members to the next executive board meeting to appear and hear the charges against them.

No Written Changes Furnished.

This strange notice said not a word of what the charges are that are to be heard, where Levin himself in all his despotism will prosecute the two brothers.

When these two members demanded that the local machine use its good offices to request Levin that he should first put them back to work and then hear the charges against them, they were denied this elementary right.

Sam to Take God's Job, Too.

Birds of a feather flock together, and against this proposal to restore the members to their jobs before trial, Morris Spitzer, business agent, took the lead in opposition. His line of argument was not that Levin had a right to do as he did, but that simply because he has done anything, the local and the members have no right to "dictate" to him—because Levin is omnipotent, all wise, all just—in fact, he is thinking of taking Johovah's job from him if the deity denies Levin authority.

This sort of an offensive to stop a revolt against his autocracy is thoroly understood by the workers in the shops and will meet its deserved fate in due time, just as the conspiracy between Levin and the bosses to drive the militant workers out of the trade will be opposed by the rank and file.

Conspiracy With Bosses.

Another instance of this secret agreement with the bosses is the depriving of Brother Max Dorfman of his job at Hart Schaffner and Marx, who was taken off his job Monday.

The "charge" against him is that he spoke to somebody awout the leaflet of Local 5 of New York. Brother Dorfman has worked for Hart Schaffner and Marx for nine years and is in good standing in the union with a clear record.

The Kind of Members Levin Wants.

When Dorfman told Levin that he could bring the whole shop to testify for him, only the workers are afraid to come before Levin for fear of losing their jobs also, Levin answered, "That's just the kind of feeling we want our members to have!"

In preparation for further crimes against the membership, the Levin machine, with its paid standing army of sluggers to terrorize the membership, has had the bright idea and the peculiar good fortune to have a united front with the Chicago Tribune leading open shop newspaper.

Did It Cost a Lot?

Whether or not there is a financial arrangement between the Tribune and the Levin machine, Levin himself may explain to the workers who are amused at the standing propaganda against

LEN SMALL TO PASS STATE POLICE BILL FOR THE EMPLOYERS

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 25.—Quick passage of the Illinois state police bill, in a technically different form, is expected to be rushed thru the legislature here by Governor Small, who is in control.

The name of the police force which Small and the Illinois employers have determined to create has been changed from state police to "Illinois highway maintenance police." The bill has been referred to the committee on roads. It provides for the organization of a police force of unlimited size, to be under the direct control of the governor. It is known as the Barr bill.

The employers are pushing the bill because it provides for a large force to slug and intimidate strikers.

SEAT SHORTAGE NOW 94,752 IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS OF CHICAGO

There was a shortage of 76,619 seats for Chicago's public school children on Jan. 1, and this number will be increased to 80,160 next year, an engineering company employed by the department of education officially reports.

The above figures are exclusive of the shortage brought about by increases in population. When the growth of the city is taken into consideration, 94,752 school children cannot find seats in Chicago's public schools.

The finance committee of the board of education has postponed indefinitely consideration of salary increases for public school teachers.

DAWES PLAN TO END IN REVOLT, SAYS THAELMANN

German Workers Will Seize Power

BERLIN, Germany, March 24.—The German workers must wait for friendly relations with America until the class conscious workers of the United States have gained power, Ernest Thaelmann, Communist Party candidate for president of Germany, said here.

"The United States is the stronghold of world capitalism," Comrade Thaelmann said. "America is the chief defender of the capitalistic net which has been thrown over the German workers by the Wall Street devised Dowes plan."

Friends of German Workers.

"Russia has the friendliest sympathy of the German workers," Thaelmann said. "When Communists control the German state we shall form the closest union with Soviet Russia," he added. "For the exchange of cultural and economic products in an effort to hasten the coming of the world revolution."

Comrade Thaelmann declared the league of nations to be "merely the larger of two capitalistic gangs determined to exploit the workers of the world. The Communists oppose German entrance into the league of nations, and oppose the security pact, which is an artifice for guarding the Versailles treaty, and would rob the weaker nations of some of their territory," he said.

Comrade Thaelmann declared that the "experts' reparation plan" could not be carried out because the money invested in Germany by Americans cannot be recovered from the impoverished German workers.

End the Reparation Plan

"To pay reparations we must export and produce more cheaply. That means longer hours and even lower wages. The German workers have had their patience exhausted and will not tolerate such conditions. The reparation plan will be ended when the German workers revolt and sieze power for their own interests."

Coolidge's Owners Favor Long Hours of Toil for Women

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 25.—The bill proposing to limit the hours of labor for women in Illinois to 8 hours per day will be voted on next week by the senate and house industrial affairs committee.

The public hearings on the bill have concluded, with representatives of Illinois trade unions and working women favoring the bill, and the representatives of the manufacturers who make their profits by forcing women to toil ten and twelve hours a day opposing the bill.

May Murray, an employe of the Belden manufacturing company, which employs many young girls for ten hours a day, told the committees she "did not want to lose her job." She claimed the hours of work did not interest her.

Dr. Grace Silzer, an employe of the William Wrigley chewing gum factory at Chicago, who has charge of the spies who work with the girls and prevent agitation for a shorter work day, declared she thought long hours of work "makes the girls safe."

Wrigley was one of the biggest contributors to Coolidge's presidential campaign fund.

LEWIS MEN'S BIG FORTUNES EXCITE INVESTIGATION

Millions of Relief Fund Mishandled

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

PITTSBURGH, Pa., March 25—How the personal bank account of John O'Leary, International board member and personal representative of John L. Lewis in the Fayette county coal field, and Bill Feeney, organizer from District 5 in the Fayette field, suddenly swelled, is being investigated.

Their trusteeship of the relief fund of the 40,000 miners in the Fayette field is now being brought out by the investigation conducted by the internal revenue department. This department seems convinced that the income tax of these gentlemen does not correspond with their heavy bank holding. Where did they get the money?

This coal field is the source of supply of the best grade of coke for all of the mills around Pittsburgh, which stretches for miles on both banks of the Ohio, Monogahela, and Alleghany rivers. When the call for the 1922 coal strike was issued by the miners' organization with the appeal to the unorganized miners for support of the strike, it was the coke region miners that responded by the thousands.

Coke Region Struck to Aid Other Fields.

They rallied to the support of the organized miners by immediately going on strike and coming into the union. The officialdom promised in return not to make any agreement with the operators unless it would include the coke field. This promise was broken at the first available opportunity.

The signing of the Cleveland agreement on Aug. 17, 1922 leaving out the coke field meant the first step in the long chain of betrayals by the officialdom. However, they promised relief to these miners in order to enable them to continue the strike in that region.

The Huge Relief Fund.

An assessment was levied on each miner of the organization of [illegible] per month for two months, which is a total of between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000. Besides this international assessment, the members of Sub-District 4 of District 5 assessed themselves 5 per cent of their wages for at least five pays, a total of about $95,000. Also an appeal for funds was issued by O'Leary and Feeney from which the

UNIONS GIVE TO STORM STRICKEN MINING TOWNS

Red Aid Plea Brings Big Response

Class lines are showing in the nation-wide response to the needs of the tornado victims of southern Illinois and adjoining states.

The United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners announces from its Indianapolis headquarters that $500,000 will be raised from its subordinate unions so that no union carpenter in the storm area need depend on stranger charity to rebuild his home. The brotherhood takes pride in caring for its own.

The Chicago carpenters' council has appropriated $1,000 from the district treasury and is calling upon its affiliated local unions in Cook and Lake counties for the remaining $49,000 fixed by the international as the local quota. The Chicago district is expected topraise 10 per cent of the entire half million.

Class Conscious Relief.

More outspoken in its class-conscious plans for storm relief is the Chicago Council for Labor Defense and Relief which is furthering a working class relief fund thru the International Workers' Aid to be used particularly in relieving the militant miners.

"The storm that has just visited inexpressible suffering on a large section of the union coal miners and other workers in southern Illinois and the adjacent fields," the Labor Defense appeal reads, "is likely to be seized upon by the capitalist class to further beat down the workers' resistance and destroy their union organization."

The appeal therefore asks that labor relief funds be sent to the International Workers' Aid, 19 South Lincoln street, Chicago, Illinois, as a means of counteracting "attempts to use the capitalist charitable agencies to discriminate against the more militant workers."

Plutes Lose Interest.

Although the Illinois house of representatives at Springfield passed the

MAYOR REFUSES TO SEE BARRED LABOR PICTURE

Too Busy Talking of Traction to Bankers

The motion picture, "Prisoners for Progress," submitted to Mayor Wm. E. Dever, of Chicago, in accordance with the terms of the city ordinance, has been passed back to the superintendent of police by his honor. There is an election coming on, and the mayor is a candidate to succeed himself. So he does not intend to be mixed up in any "freedom of the films" case.

This film is to be shown at the International Unity Demonstration at Ashland Auditorium, next Sunday afternoon, March 29, a benefit show for the Irish Famine Relief and for the Labor Defense Council. It takes the form of a Paris Commune celebration and very aptly comes at a time which gives Chicago's masses of working class supporters of Soviet Russia a chance to answer the poorly attended anti-Soviet meetings addressed by Abramovich and Mackenzie.

Film Shows Repression.

The film appropriately shows the struggles of the workers in several countries, and efforts at repression by the state power. It demonstrates the need for international solidarity in support of the victims of this bloody repression.

When the film was first submitted the censors were shocked at the militancy of the workers' who marched across the screen. Not the pictures but the events themselves were what drew the disapproval of the gentle ladies. The film was held over night for another review by the federal department of justice and after the local chief spy catcher, Max Burgher, was also properly shocked, the film was rejected because "it might tend to incite to disorder and riot."

Appeal was immediately made to the chief of police. But the chief neatly passed the buck back to the censors and Mr. W. A. Foust, as "acting censor in charge," stuck to his role of lord high executioner and replied; "The board has expressed its intention to stand by the decision reached upon review of the picture of March 3."

Mayor Dodges.

But the ordinance states that the word of the mayor shall be final. So application for a review was immediately filed. But it was too close to election to be committed on anything so fundamental as a free speech issue. He was too busy talking subway traction to automobile owners' clubs, and wrote:

"I regret that I have not the time to personally view moving pictures as I am frequently asked to do. Of necessity I am compelled to refer your letter to the chief of police."

So the matter stands. Censors are shocked, vote to reject. Appeal from the censor to the chief of police, referred back to censor. Appeal from chief to mayor, referred back to chief. Next? It is expected that action on the appeal will permit the pictures to be shown on March 29th, but one way or another the pictured information which the censors seek to keep from the weorkers of Chicago will be shown.

Varied Program.

The picture is only one item of a very rich program which included short speeches by Lovett Fort-Whiteman, Wm. Dunne and Robert Minor. Art Comlacoff, formerly of the Petrograd Opera Ballet will dance with two of his pupils. F. George Laubert, noted Lettish baritone will sing. There will be an Irish play, "The Tinker's Wedding," and a gorgeous pageant showing the Paris Commune.

The affair begins at 2 o'clock at Ashland Auditorium, Ashland and Van Buren streets, Sunday, March 29.

secretary of labor, Calvin Coolidge and the memorandum of the worker's lawyer, we can see no reason why a capitalist government should deport the S. L. P. man unless it be for feeble mindedness. A man with any kind of mental vigor would not belong to a party that has such a shameless lickspittle for secretary.

ONE of the exhibits sent out by the "unknown" secretary of the S. L. P. is a summary of the socialist labor party defense made by the Federated Press. This is the way the "F. P." puts it: "The party (meaning the socialist labor party) emphasizes in its argument that no one is allowed to be a member who believes in violence or in any anarchistic tendencies of the labor movement and that it is an enemy of the Communists." If this does not convince Calvin Coolidge, Senator William Butler and Judge Gary that the S. L. P. man is as harmless as a eunuch in a harem, they are unduly suspicious.

THE secretary of the socialist labor party in his letter to the press, protests against the "alleged gagging (note the alleged) of a distinguished visitor to this country, Count Karolyi" and places the deportation proceedings against Vojnovic, the worker, on the same level as the gagging of the aristocratic Hungarian. Furthermore, the deportation proceedings "constitute an outrage against common justice and against all those traditions and ideals that the world has come to associate with the American republic." That's that. The world is almost as blind to the bloody rule of American capitalism as the S. L. P. But to go on with the story.

THE correspondence between the S. L. P. secretary and Secretary of Labor Davis and Calvin Coolidge, might have been written by the secretary of the American Defense Society in the event of one of that organization's finks getting arrested by some moron in the employ of the department of justice by mistake. The headlines read: "Deporting Alien for Upholding United States Constitution." "Victim not a Communist and Opposed to Violence." The text suggests that the foreign-born members of the Workers Party are fit subjects for deportation, as Vojnovic is an "active opponent of those groups and individuals (including the Workers (Communist) Party of America) which advocates physical force, etc."

THESE are excerpts taken at random from the mass of garbage sent out by the S. L. P. in order to convince one hundred per cent Americans that Vojnovic is as loyal to the United States government of Wall Street as the imperial wizard of the ku klux klan. There is no more useful servant of the department of justice than the shrinking violet who is adding to the infamous record that the socialist labor party has built for itself since its founder, Daniel De Leon passed away. The collection of pseudo-radicals who now eke out an existence keeping the collection of petty shopkeepers and artful phrasemongers together, have neither the intelligence to camouflage their treachery or the courage to affiliate openly with the National Civic Federation. Vojnovic should not be deported. If he is the kind of a soupbone that the secretary of the S. L. P. pictures him, he should be given a job tickling general Dawes' nose with a tickling General Dawes' nose with a over the senate sessions. He might thus support the constitution more effectively than he is now, by keeping Hell an' Maria awake.

senate bill appropriating $500,000 for relief work, relief workers announced from Murphysboro that contribution from businessmen and philanthropists have already slumped.

"More help is needed," is the cry from Murphysboro, Carbondale and West Frankfort, now that the first exxcitement is dying down, the workers must come to the support of their stricken brothers in the storm area.

The towns of Griffin and Princeton, Indiana, are in greater danger from flood than ever, following heavy rains which caused the Wabash and Ohio rivers to rise to a new high level. Food is being conveyed to the storm vicims in these towns by means of rowboats.

More Deaths.

The group of 55 Murphysboro storm injured brought to St. Louis last Saturday, had dwindled to 52 today with the death of Herbert Crisler, 25, whose wife is also being treated here. One member of the party died enroute and a second death came at the hospital shortly after the patients had arrived.

CAL TO PROMOTE OIL TRUST TOOL OF TEAPOT FAME

Admiral Testifies He Is for Sinclair

CHEYENNE, Wyo., March 25.—Rear Admiral Robison, one of the principals in the Teapot Dome oil scandals, who is here aiding the Sinclair Oil company to retain its leases secured from corrupt government officials thru bribery, is soon to be promoted by President Coolidge it is learned here.

Robinson is at present holding temporary rank as chief of the naval engineering bureau of the United States government. As soon as he has completed his services to the oil interests, Coolidge will promote him.

Meanwhile, at the trial here, Owen D. Roberts, appointed by Coolidge to "prosecute" the oil interests, is endeavoring to protect Cal's admiral as much as possible. Roberts declared Robinson was "only a pliant tool in Fall's hands." Atlee Pomerene, however, the other lawyer appointed by Coolidge to represent the "government," contradicted Robert's statement of Robinson's innocence.

"Robinson gave misleading information about the Teapot lease to members of congress," Pomerene said, "Was a prime factor in carrying out the secrecy phase of the transaction, and deliberately set out to evade the laws of the United States."

"Who are the guardians of the United States?" asked Pomerene. "Are Messrs. Fall, Robison and Sinclair those guardians? It is true Robison says he submitted every detail to Denby, but when it came to the actual transaction Denby only O. K.ed it."

Sinclair Loses Concession

CHEYENNE, Wyo., March 25.—Representatives of Harry Sinclair said here that Sinclair would fight to regain his concession of Saghalin oil fields from Soviet Russia. The Soviet government district court has ruled that Sinclair violated has contract with Russia and forfeited his concession. The case will now go to the Soviet supreme court.

The court ruled that Sinclair had not begun work on the concession within a year as he had agreed to do.

Albert Fall negotiated the Russian concession for Sinclair, and the oil trust later made Fall secretary of the interior. Fall then turned over fifty million dollars worth of government property to Sinclair and other large oil interests.

To Sidetrack Waste Charge.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 25.—A battle royal was precipitated in the state senate today when the executive committee reported back a recommendation that the resolution, asking for an investigation of the Chicago sanitary district, be tabled. Waste, extravagance and illegal expenditure and presence of members of the general assembly on the payroll, is charged.

COMMUNIST SPEAKING AGAINST WAGE CUTS JAILED AT LAWRENCE

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LAWRENCE, Mass., March 25.—Albert Weisbord of the Workers (Communist) Party of Boston was arrested by the Lawrencec poicle yesterday noon when he spoke at the gate of the American Woolen company for the United Front Textile Committee of Lawrence.

The charge against Comrade Weisbord was "speaking without a permit." But as the commissioner had refused a permit upon application, the workers are aroused at the display of police power against the rights of the workers.

A mass meeting at Ideal Hall was held last night, where Weisbord, released on bail, addressed the audience of workers. Friday in the same hall a meeting will be held at which Weisbord and others will address the textile workers against the wage cuts.

Sam Levin Moves to Forestall Mass Revolt In "The Amalgamated"

Phil Aronberg running day after day in the Tribune.

Tuesday morning's Tribune carried a distorted and totally idiotic report of the meeting called by the members taken off the job, and prevented by Levin and his army. The only true thing in the story was that something happened in that neighborhood. The story, recognized by all as propaganda preparatory to expelling Phil Aronberg, attacked Aronberg viciously with all the crimes in the Tribune's category of offenses.

Preparing to Expel Aronberg.

On Wednesday morning, the same story came out again in the Tribune, with only a change in date, looking suspiciously like a paid advertisement, with the purpose of preparing the ground for the unjustified expulsion of Phil Aronberg. The workers are wondering how long it will be until Aronberg is expelled or when Levin's press agent will be sober enough to write a different story.

Chicago Parasites Pay Rent of Czarist

Chicago capitalists and their wives are supporting the czarist White Russian "Captain" Ivanenko, brother of "Baroness" Wrangel, and his family, in a costly flat at 230 East Superior street. Included among the Chicago parasites who are paying the rent and who furned the apartment are Potter Palmer, William Prescott Hunts, Marie Rozet and E. W. Cramers.

"Captain" Ivanenko was thrown out of Russia with Wrangel, who attacked the workers' and peasants' Soviet government.

Franco-Polish Pact Continues.

VIEENNA, Austria, March 25.—Alexander Skrzynski, Polish foreign minister, upon his return from Geneva and Paris, declared that the alliance of France and Poland would continue. "France can see in Poland a firm ally for its defense," Skrzynski said. He declared that Poland would not consent to changing her frontiers, and claimed to have the support of England as well as France. The Poles are contending with the German government for complete possession of Danzig.

German Election Expensive.

BERLIN, Germany, March 25.—The cost of the German presidential elections this Sunday is expected to exceed one-half million dollars. Over 40 million ballots are being printed as there are 39 million eligible voters in Germany.

The German newspapers predict that Ernst Thaelmann, candidate of the Communist Party, will poll over 2,500,000 votes.

W. Va. Miner Arrested.

FAIRMONT, W. Va., March 25.—The last body of the 34 four miners killed in an explosion at the Barracksville mine, near here, has been recovered. Two of the bodies have not yet been identified. State police have arrested another miner, Charles Groves, a union man who quit working for the mine when it went on a non-union basis, has been arrested by the state police, "for investigation."

Girl Slayer Break Down.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., March 25.—Just as she was about to enter the courtroom today for the third day of her trial, Dorothy Ellingson brokedown for the third time since the trial started. Piercing shrieks from the jury room were heard in the court room and the girl became so hysterical that her entry to the courtroom was halted and opening of court delayed.

Nurses Quench Hospital Blaze.

BALTIMORE, Md., March 25.—A bucket brigade formed by alert nurses averted what might have been a serious fire at the infirmary hospital here today.

France Not to Aid Haiti.

PARIS, France, March 25.—France has refused to request the American government to withdraw American marines from Haiti.

Mules Do Not Lose Jobs When Electricity Enters Coal Mines of Kansas

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL

TODAY, electrical equipment displaces 11 mules in the Kansas state prison coal mines. Some of them had spent more than a decade working and living in the dark passages underground.

The Associated Press duly wires over the country to its constituents that these working mules have been brought to the surface, introduced to the light of day, giving most attention to their reactions as follows:

> "Tony, a black mule that spent 13 years 700 feet below the surface was the first out. He sat on his haunches and brayed lustily when the door of the cage was opened. Urging failed to budge Tony until one well versed in mule manners turned him around and got him to back out.
> "Duke, 14 years in the mine, protested loudly; Old Shorty, veteran, was calm and philosophical, and Jerry, of five years' service, pawed joyously and sniffed the spring air."

These working mules may well be happy. The electrical equipment that has replaced them in the mine has not put them out of a job. They are going to work on the prison farms. They will not join the army of unemployed.

• • • •

There is another kind of "working mule," however. Workers often refer to themselves in jest as "working mules." This is a serious reflection, however, on the mule. The mule works as he is forced to do, complaining bitterly, nevertheless. He is one of the most stubborn animals. But no one ever heard of a mule being out of work, being forced to hunt for a job. He is well taken care of by his owner, sheltered and fed.

The "working mule" in human form accepts too easily the life that is forced upon him. He hasn't got the kick against conditions that the real mule often displays.

Reductions in wages, the lengthening of the workday, and the curse, too often, of unemployment are too easily accepted. In the mines, when there is no work, the coal miner is out of job, his wages stop, and his family begins to go hungry. The mules, in Kansas for instance, Tony, Old Shorty, Duke, Jerry and the rest, are fed and housed, even when there is no work for them.

• • • •

Yet the human "working mules" of Kansas have waged many brilliant battles. Under the militant leadership of Alexander Howat, they have fought not only the mine owners, but also the traitor officials at the head of their own organization.

They have been forced to wage war against the capitalist state itself, that came to the aid of the mine owners. When former Governor Allen put thru his state industrial court act to prevent the mine workers from organizing and fighting for their interests, the miners stood together and fought together until Allen and his slave act were both in the discard. Howat and others went to jail. But they won their fight and they are now at liberty ready for future battles.

If the coal miners of all other states were as militant, if they put their heads together and all heels toward the enemy with the same unity as that displayed by the Kansas miners, then victory against oppression would be nearer.

• • • •

"Work or wages!" is a slogan advanced against unemployment. Every employer hails that demand as pure Bolshevism. But its complete fulfillment would only put the human worker on a mule basis.

While toiling at his job, all that a worker gets is enough to provide for himself, and those who are to come after him, a bare living. Every mule gets that. But the mule gets more. When out of work, a mule gets a living just the same. If the worker were to receive his wages when unemployed he would get no more than the mule receives.

It is well for workers under capitalism to consider thoroly this humiliating condition. Then they will not only unite solidly in support of the demand, "Work or wages!" but they will fight to abolish the capitalist system that gives them less consideration that is bestowed on beasts of burden. They will decide to come up out of the dark pits of oppression and greet the daylight of their emancipation.

Look at the workers and peasants of Soviet Russia, for instance. They have decided to free themselves from this capitalist despotism. They have triumphed in their struggle to become real human beings, not to remain mere "working mules" forever.

2,000 Baltimore Clothing Workers Strike Against Cuts

of the general organizer of the A. C. W., the strike is being called because of the frequent wage slashes being made by the manufacturers and bosses. The correspondent was informed that the coat makers especially are working for all sorts of low wages ranging from $2.00 to $3.50 on the coat. The union is demanding a wage scale to be uniformly adopted. This scale ranges from the lowest priced coat, $4.40 to the highest priced coat, $5.00. The clothing workers of Baltimore are actually scabbing upon each other. There is no regular wage rate.

Strike Solidarity.

Altho the coat makers only are affected by the proposed wage rate, the pants and vest makers are going out on a sympathy strike. It is hoped by those who expressed their opinions at the meeting that the strike will be very effective. The strike is to affect approximately 2,000 workers who will be out on the streets at 9:15 a. m. tomorrow.

If the enthusiasm of the delegates and chairmen present at the meeting is to be taken as a sample of the determination of the workers to end this tyranny of the bosses, then it is certain that the workers will be granted their demands.

Church Divided.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—The ancient differences of opinion that more than eighty years ago split the methodist episcopal church over the questions incident to the civil war, flared up again today in the Baltimore district conference of the methodist episcopal church, south, and resulted in the defeat of the proposed unification of the northern and southern branches.

The vote was close—137 to 141—and was preceded by considerable parliamentary maneuvering and speeches.

More War Maneuvers.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—The United States naval dirigible Los Angeles will make a second trip to Bermuda on April 12 or 13, the navy department announced today. It is planned to anchor the huge dirigible to the mooring mast of the U. S. S. Poatoka there, and after re-fueling to make an extended trip to some point in Porto Rico or Cuba.

W. P. LEADS IN CASH AID TO TEXTILE STRIKE

Workers Party Local Collects $171.05

By WILLIAM SIMONS,

(Special to The Daily Worker)

District Organizer, Workers Party

WILLIMANTIC, Conn., March 25.—That the Communists prove by deeds that they support the working class of which they are a part is borne out by the speed with which they have come to the relief of the courageous Willimantic textile strikers.

Sunday, March 22, twenty-four members and sympathisers of the Workers (Communist) Party, local Hartford, went from house to house collecting funds for the Willimantic Textile Strikers, and obtaining in all $171.05.

Largest Individual Contribution to Date.

The amount announced by the strike committee, as coming from sources other than collections by strikers, amounted to $1,155.00. The largest sum given was $100 from the Willimantic Carpenters' Union. This means that the Workers Party, local Hartford, has collected more than any other group of non-strikers. This is a splendid achievement for the party and the Hartford comrades.

Further Efforts

A week ago, a letter was sent out by the district executive committee of District 15, calling upon all units to collect funds for the strikers. It is expected that other locals will follow the lead of local Hartford.

The district executive committee of the New England and New York districts have been instructed by the national central executive committee to do similar work. The work will then be extended to other places. The Workers Party is more determined to do all in its power to help win the strike against the Thread trust.

The Collectors' Story

A member of the Young Workers League who collected on Zion St., a workingmen's district, was informed in every other house that they were unemployed, but still they helped with the little that they could. Such display of solidarity with the Willimantic strikers will serve to encourage them in their wonderful fight.

Workers Rally to Los Angeles Paris Commune Celebraion

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March [illegible]—In our city hundreds of workers gathered to commemorate the Paris Commune. This anniversary celebration was conducted under the auspices of the International Workers' Aid and the Labor Defense Council.

Comrade William Schneidermann, secretary of the Labor Defense Council, was chairman and the speakers were Comrades Emanuel Levin and Sydney Bush. Comrade Levin spoke on Criminal Syndicalism Laws of which he happened to be one of the first victims. He gave a brief historical sketch of these laws in California and 31 more states in the United States and showed that in reality these laws are enacted everywhere where the class struggle is in progress. Comrade Bush outlined the significance of the Paris Commune and its lessons. Comrade Regina Karasick's proletarian recitation was received with applause and enthusiasm.

Indiana Railroad Squirms at Being Absorbed by Trust

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 25.—Officials of the Chicago, Attica and Southern railroad visited Governor Jackson and Attorney General Gillion at the state house today and requested that action be taken through the Indiana public service commission and the interstate commerce commission against the intended merger of the Nickel Plate lines, which would virtually choke off all the business of the Indiana road.

FAGAN AND HIS LITTLE PARTNER VISIT A LOCAL

Attack the Communists But Find Miners Cool

By A COAL DIGGER.

VESTABURG, Pa.—The officials of District 5, U. M. W. of A., travel from local to local spreading bunk and lies. They visited us at Vestaburg Local 762, both President Patrick Fagan and Secretary-Treasurer Hargest.

After the local business, the local president introduced Fagan. He expected to be welcomed and he was sure the miners would meet him with applause, but he and his partner were surprised. No applause for these fakers, even tho there were a few members of his machine.

Otis Worries Mr. Fagan.

Fagan started with his "Umm, ah, mum." First saying that the Workers Party is a "dual organization," that Foster and his men were spreading propaganda all over the district during election and some persons were traveling from local to local "poisoning" members. Then he said for the "loyal" machine members to "keep their eyes" on all who were having correspondence with James Otis.

He talked about Nova Scotia, saying that the Canadian miners "took orders from Russia from Leon Trotsky. We don't want any Communism in America," he said. Then he praised himself and Lewis. He told the ridiculous lie that Foster and Ruthenberg were once in the miners' union, and quit to fool people with their "new organization."

Fagan's Fairy Tales.

Fagan continued to tell about how Lewis had got "thousands of letters" asking him to call off the 1922 strike, and he tried to excuse himself for the treachery against the Moundsville prisoners, saying that he had "talked with the prosecutor and interviewed the governor, who pardoned some men, but who passed the buck to his successor, Governor Gore, who took office on March 4.

Then he wound up, "Dig clean coal and co-operate with the coal companies and don't listen to the Reds." That's Fagan's program.

"Watch the Reds" Only Program.

Bill Hargest got up and said, "I am not a good speaker, because I am not a Red." He is right. He is both yellow and a rotten speaker. All he could say was that the Crotian members "make trouble" and that the members must "watch the Reds."

This is the whole and only program of these fakers who live from the blisters on the miners' hand. But the Progressive Miners' Committee, with their program of nationalization under union management and a short work day, this is the hope of the miners in District 5 as elsewhere.

Scab Feels Sore All Over After Strikers' Interview on Street

UTICA, N. Y.—John Brykla was discharged by Judge Buckley of the municipal court from the assault charge preferred by Harry Macaly, a scab in the Utica Steam Cotton mill.

Macaly said that when he was going home with two girls, four men jumped on him. Brykla asked him where he was working and when he told them he was working at the mills, Stanley Potter, along with Brykla, threw him down on the sidewalk and the whole four men kicked him. Potter is a striker as is Brykla.

When Brykla's attorney asked where the men had kicked him, Macaly said: "I don't know. I feel the same soreness all over."

The strike in the Utica cotton mills is still going strong.

Want Amalgamation in Australia.

MELBOURNE, Australia— (FP)—A single industrial transport union taking in railway, streetcar, motorbus, trucking and teaming employes is urged by the annual conference of railway labor unions held at Melbourne. Negotiations will be opened with the other unions and meanwhile amalgamation of craft unions on the railways is to be attempted.

CHINESE SEAMEN IN APPEAL FOR UNITED FRONT AGAINST BRITISH IMPERIALISM, ASK OUR SUPPORT

By SAN CHEN QING

(Secretary Chinese Seamen's Union)

HONG KONG, China.—There is a growing discontent and indignation among tens of thousands of Chinese seamen at the shipowners' non-observance of the agreement concluded between the Chinese Seamen's Union and the shipowners' committee as a result of the seamen's victorious strike in 1922.

The agreement, containing three clauses, was signed by R. Sutherland, chairman of the shipowners' committee, A. Jamiesen, British consul-general at Canton, Luk King Fo, secretary to the commissioner for foreign affairs at Canton, and Chak Hon Ke, delegate of the Chinese Seamen's Union. It was further guaranteed by Sir Robert Hotung.

Be that as it may, the shipowners and the British colonial government in Hong Kong have violated every one of the three clauses, while the Chinese seamen in the person of the Chinese Seamen's Union have kept strictly to the agreement ever since its solemn conclusion.

In order to substantiate this statement, the agreement is reproduced here in full, followed by iron proofs of the flagrant violations deliberately committed by the shipowners in coalition with the British colonial government:

Agreement.

"It is hereby agreed between the undersigned parties that the following are the terms of settlement of the matters in dispute between them.

"I. The scale of wages paid at Hongkong and in force on the 12th day of January, 1922 shall be increased as follows; and shall apply as from the first of January, 1922.

"1. Chinese river steamers 30 per cent increase.

"2. Other Chinese steamers up to 1,000 tons deadweight 30 per cent increase.

"3. Hongkong Canton & Macao Steamboats Co., Ltd. 20 per cent increase.

"4. Other British companies' steamers taking the scale of the Canton Macao Steamboats Co., Ltd. as a basis 20 per cent increase.

"5. Coasting steamers 20 per cent increase.

"6. Java lines 15 per cent increase.

"7. Pacific Lines 15 per cent increase.

"8. European Lines 15 per cent increase.

"9. Australian Lines 15 per cent increase.

"2. A date will be fixed for the general return to work.—From the time of leaving until such date, men will receive half pay according to the new scale. Men may be reinstated on any of their own company's vessels, or such other vessels as may be mutually agreed upon. If positions are not available for men ready to return to work as above, it is agreed that half pay shall continue for such period as the men are not employed, but not exceeding five and a half (5½) months from the date of the general return to work. This half pay will be administered from a fund under the control of a duly appointed commission.

3. The owners agree to assist in inaugurating a system of engaging crews which will minimize as far as possible any irregularities which may exist in connection with the pay of seamen.

"Signed at Hongkong, this fifth day of March, 1922.

"R. Sutherland, chairman, Shipowners' committee.

"A. Jamiesen, H. B. M. Consul-General at Canton.

"Luk King Fo, Delegate, Chinese Seamen's Union."

In gross violation of clause 1, the Blue Funnel Line of the Butterfield & Squires Co. in April, 1923, decreased the wages of the men in its ships to the former scale. The British colonial government, a signatory to the agreement in the person of the N. B. M. consul-general, ignored the protest lodged by the Chinese Seamen's Union. Moreover, in violation of clause 3, stipulating a minimizing as far as possible of irregularities connected with the engaging of crews, the colonial government abetted the labor contractors of the "B House Union," thus enabling the replacement of the original crews of the Blue Funnel Line by strike-breakers from this scab organization. Again, abusing its military authority and extending its iron rule to the water surface the colonial government authorized the strike-breakers in the ships to carry arms.

The colonial government does not even refrain from openly supporting the labor exploiters by allowing them the extraordinary privilege of carrying arms in the colony. Further proof of the violation of clause 3 will be superfluous.

Lest it should seem that the first and second clauses are much too liberal on the part of the shipowners, it must be explained here that, firstly, the said pay for a period not exceeding five and a half months is no more than a beggarly compensation for hundreds of the victorious strikers whose positions had been taken by the Philippine and other strike-breakers, called to Hongkong by the shipowners.

Understand Capitalist Society.

Be it understood, that the Chinese seamen have no grudge against the strike-breakers, for they know that unemployment is an inevitable characteristic of the capitalist society and unemployment is the mother of strike-breakers.

Secondly, these clauses were won by the seamen as a result of a victorious life and death struggle for fifty-six odd days. Settlement was delayed just because of the shipowners' reluctance to accede to these very clauses, thereby prolonging the unheard of hardships and damages suffered by the seamen and the common masses of Hongkong.

However, up till now, not a cent has been paid by the shipowners, in spite of the agreement in black and white. Where is "fairness" in the hands of the capitalists? Where is the "sacredness" of agreement with the capitalists? And where is the "law" in a colony?

British Colonial Government Ignores Seamen.

The Chinese Seamen's Union in 1923 referred the matter to the British colonial government in Hong Kong, but the latter washed its hands of the matter, despite the fact that his majesty's consul-general was a signatory to the agreement.

Chinese seamen demand the British colonial government, signatory to the agreement, besides protecting the shipowners, to heed the seamen's demands. They demand his excellency, Robert Hotung, a British knight who has proiclaimed a so-called peace conference professedly in the interests of the Chinese people, to fulfill his duty as guarantor ere he speaks again. They demand the coming British prince investigate into the scandalous deeds of the colonial government and the shipowners and to mete out due punishment, lest he should reveal a princely imperialism.

Several thousand Chinese seamen are entitled to five and a half months' pay, the total sum exceeding $200,000. They are clamoring for their rightful compensation. The Chinese Seamen's Union, representing their interests, will never neglect its duty and will realize at any cost the conditions won by the victorious struggle and heroic sacrifices. These conditions were by no means gifts from the shipowners.

The Great Battle With Imperialism.

Those who will recall the fifty-six odd days of a life and death struggle in 1922 of more than sixty thousand seamen and eight combatant unions, the sacrifices of the workers and the panic caused by the blockade of Hong Kong as a result of the interruption of communication, will agree that whatever was acquired was acquired by the united gigantic power of the workers themselves. There is no need to recall already the machine-gun patrols of the colonial government ready to massacre the workers at the time.

For a United Front.

The whole body of Chinese seamen, 100,000 strong, are prepared! They appeal to their brother workers in China and in all countries, particularly the seamen, and their organizations to help their Chinese boothers in their present just demands! Hand in hand in a glorious united front, they have every reason to expect the day in the immediate future when the British colonial government and the shipowners must redeem what they have hitherto atrociously violated.

Left Wing of Local 140 A. C. W. Defeats Reactionary Officers

PHILADELPHIA, March 25.—"The red flag flies over Local 140, A. C. W." With this attempt at irony, the manager of the Philadelphia joint board of the Amagamated Clothing Workers announced the victory of the left wing administration of the local.

The fight is of long standing. Many attempts had been made by the yellows to undermine the influence of the left wing and to unseat the progressive left wing administration. The membership refused to budge and continued its support of the left wing.

The struggle culminated in a decision of the joint board (by a majority of one) to call a new election by secret ballot. The membership of the local accepted the challenge since it gave them another opportunity to voice their unconditional confidence and trust in their left wing administration.

The election was held, and with a huge majority the left wing chairman, secretary and treasurer were elected. Six out of seven members of the local executive board and six out of seven delegates to the joint board are left wingers.

Thus ends one of the crudest attempts of the local politicians in the Amalgamated to override the will and desires of the membership of Local No. 140.

DETROIT DISTRICT COUNCIL ALMOST PEACEFUL AGAIN

Rank and File Step on Disturbers

DETROIT, Mich., March 22.— (By Mail))—Injunction Sharrock ruled for about 20 minutes as president of the Carpenters' District Council here Thursday, Mar. 19, and was then placed by the horny hand of a husky carpenter just as the hand of fate is inexorably pushing him aside as a factor in the Carpenters' Union. When Sharrock tried his old trick of refusing a motion, he found that he had gone "just a little bit too far." The meeting was presided over by Vice-President Reynolds from that time on, and the accumulated business of some six weeks, during which the officials have been on their injunction jag, was taken care of.

Remove Administration Tool.

It was reported to the council that a rat by name of Albert Pollack, who has been spying on the Workers' Party and Local Union 1191 for "Fossil" Botterill, has been employed by the latter as an "assistant" general organizer. The constitution provides for no such office, but what's that among highbinders? The council repudiated this fink, and ordered his removal from the local field. A motion was made to hold a referendum within thirty days to recall the present officers.

The delegates seem about fed up with Sharrock's wise-guy stuff and show very little sympathy for the pathetic figure he cuts nowadays. When removed from the chair, he whined "You're expelled" at his remover, and the crowd laughed uproariously. Expulsions by Hutcheson and his "little tyrants of the field" are a huge joke since recent proceeding put the ex in expulsions.

Delegate Pat Coil, one of Sharrock's supporters from Local Union 1805, who hadn't quite sobered up from St. Pat's day, was noisy with Dutch courage and Irish bull, but aside from this the meeting was orderly.

Decatur Is a Nice Town for Mr. Mueller and Scab Plumbing

DECATOR, Ill., March 24.—The H. Mueller company, makers of plumbing goods, have started a series of meetings to scare the workers. The main speaker was Adolph Mueller himself. He said:

"Men, I am glad to see so many familiar faces again. (Some of these faces have been with Mueller for 35 years because they could never save money enough to go elsewhere.) Then he went on:

"Men, I will not allow any unions in this factory. If you begin to organize, beware, I will shut the plant down. But I know you won't give me any trouble and so I won't shut the place."

I believe he is right, as any man who would try to organize there would not last long, for every other worker there is a stool pigeon and a handshaker. However, a few DAILY WORKERS get passed around.

Mueller has about 2,000 employes, mostly boys and girls, some boys under sixteen. The average pay in the production department is 35 cents an hour.

O'FALLON MINE CLOSES AS OPEN SHOPPERS PLOT

Union Officials Side with Operators

By A. W. YOUNG.

The conditions in O'Fallon, Ill., which were bad to begin with, are gradually getting worse and worse. Another mine closed down here on March 11, throwing 225 more miners out of work and adding 225 more miners to make up the total of John L. Lewis' 200,000 which must be "eliminated" from the industry. This means not only miners but their wives and children left to starve.

All this comes as a result of the Jacksonville agreement, perpetrated by the Sub-Scale Committees and our treacherous leaders. The mine mentioned above is the one where the men were willing to share work with 248 men that had been idle for 11 months on account of their mine closing down. However, we failed to get a decision handed down according to contract. The operator said he wouldn't let the men share the work, and our executive board helped the operator in making his word good.

A Contrast of Action and Inaction.

Local Union 705 had to wait 11 months to get a decision on the division of work. But when we appealed to the rank and file to force Farrington and his executive board to hand down a decision as per contract, it only took this same board two weeks to hand down a decision that it was dual and illegal to organize the unemployed. And they circularized this district and advised the members of the U. M. W. of A. to stay away from the unemployed meetings because it was illegal.

Fellow workers! How long are we going to stand for officials at the head of our organization who hand down decisions whereby we are branded as dual and illegal if we congregate together to devise ways and means to find relief for our unemployed and their starving wives and children? The time has come when we should defy the enemies of our class, the tools of the operators.

Class Difference in the Union.

There is something most damnably wrong, when the officials of our organization eat at banquets and live in the best hotels, ride in Pullman cars, and hob-nob with the operators, while the rank and file have to ride in box cars on the road and sleep out in the cold while looking for a master to give them a job—and their little children at home with not a bite of bread in their rented shacks.

John L. Lewis didn't say half what could have been said, when he mentioned that Brother Frank Farrington had received a round sum of money from W. J. Lester for a permit to remove dirt off his strip mine. And Frank Farrington made a very mild assertion when he said that his Brother, John L. Lewis, had descended to the level of a louse. They both contended they were telling the truth, and we have good reasons to believe them both when they get to telling of each other's misdoings.

Open Shop Drive Starting.

The Pary Coal company and the Business Men's association, on Feb. 23, held a meeting in the city hall. They said the purpose of the meeting was for the coal company to get the business men of O'Fallon to donate $3,000 to the Pary Coal company to fight the high freight rates that prevailed within 20 miles of St. Louis. But the coal miners in O'Fallon know that the "open shop" drive is on and it is a good time for the coal operators and the business men to get together and help John L. Lewis and his gang of blood suckers to destroy the U. M. W. of A.

The coal companies are calling on the chambers of commedce in all cities within 20 miles of St. Louis to raise large sums of money to fight the high freight rates—so they say. In 1922 the chambers of commerce raised $50,000 for the prosecution of the Herrin coal miners because they had the guts to defend themselves against thugs and a bunch of scab herders. At that time also a number of union coal miners fell in the battle at Herrin, Ill.

Must Prepare for Struggle.

With or without our officials we must prepare to fight against wage cuts. The Connelville miners are striking against wage cuts. They are unorganized and were basely betrayed by Lewis during the last strike. It is a crime that they are not members of our union.

Nova Scotia is striking against wage cuts, their enemy, the British Empire Steel corporation, one of the most powerful corporations in America.

Everywhere we see the coal operators closing in on us, yet our officials tell us that nothing can be done, except to produce more and cheaper coal. The rank and file must act. Come to the support of the miners on strike by demanding that the strike front be broadened to cover the entire industry!

Building Trades Firms in National Capital Begin Open Shop War

WASHINGTON.—Speculative build-contractors in Washington are completing a new organization to fight the wage increases demanded by the building trades unions and to impose a secondary boycott, through the banks and building loan concerns, on all builders who refuse to obey their dictation. Already the discharge of union bricklayers, plasterers, etc., and their replacement by nonunion men is well advanced.

There are 40,000 building mechanics and building laborers in the local field. A large majority are employed on housing construction, which is controlled by the new organization of builders. If these builders refuse to pay $11 a day to plumbers and painters and others who have asked for that rate, and if they enforce discipline on the smaller contractors by shutting off their bank credit, the situation will become similar to San Francisco for nearly four years after the spring of 1920.

In San Francisco, the secondary boycott was worked through the building material concerns, but it had also its banking features. Yet the building trades unions were not destroyed, and the anti-union contractors lost a vast sum of money during the struggle.

BOSSES PROFIT BY SPEEDING UP TEXTILE WORKERS

Automatic Looms Make Weavers Jobless

MANCHESTER, N. H.—Amoskeag Manufacturing company, largest cotton and worsted mills in the country, is installing the latest automatic looms to profit from the reduction in the staff of workers. The facts came out in Superintendent Arthur P. Roberts' speech before the legislative labor committee in Concord. Roberts argued against the bill relating to fines for imperfect weaving.

Workers in textile mills are always complaining of the methods employers use in fining them for imperfections in weaving. The company's inspector too often deducts many more yards of the material than the imperfections justify in order to make the pay to workers that much less.

Roberts explained that at Amoskeag with automatic looms the deductions for fines have amounted to only one-tenth of one per cent of the $9,300 average wages for a two-month period. Under the old system of one worker to 12 looms the wages totalled $14,000 for the two-month period and deductions for fines amounted to three-tenths of one per cent, he claimed.

Under the new weaving system Amoskeag saves about $5,000 in wages every two months. Weavers now manage 24 looms apiece. Meanwhile the excess textile workers wonder when business will boom enough to give them jobs again and few of them realize that the machines have permanently crowded them out of their old jobs.

Turncoat Wills Has His Say, But Members Remind Him of Past

At the meeting of the District Council of Machinists, Charley Wills, under "good and welfare," attacked the Communists, saying that, "Since the Communists made a united front with the Anderson slate—it meant sure defeat to that slate.

"The super-radicals," he said, "are a detriment to our organization," and he cited the left wing fights against the labor fakers' schemes of class collaboration in the miners,' carpenters' and clothing workers' unions. Wills evidently thinks that the "organization" means the traitorous officials.

To this palavar, the members made vigorous remonstrance, one speaker saying, "You, Brother Wills, were one of those 'super-radicals' a couple of years ago in order to get along with the Chicago Federation of Labor. But since the Chicago Federation changed its policy and went back to the camp of Gompers you have seen the buttered side of your bread and have betrayed your principles, the principles you claimed previously were fundamental to labor organization. You did it to hold your job in the federation."

At this sally the delegates and visitors applauded uproariously. Wills tried in vain to answer, but the delegates would not listen. The Johnston machine has poor apologists.

'NO DUAL UNION', T. U. E. L. WARNS CARPENTERS

Tells Detroit Members to Stick by Union

A great fight to restore and protect the constitutional rights of members, which have been trampled underfoot by the reactionary officials has been made and is being carried on in Detroit. During this fight which arose out of the illegal and autocratic expulsion of a member, the fakers acting as your spokesmen and representatives have resorted to the use of thugs, police, injunctions, threats, bribery and fraud in their efforts to maintain themselves as parasites feeding on the organization.

This fight has been signally successful. Every foul blow struck by Hutcheson and his flunkeys has strengthened the rank and file and exposed the treachery of those would-be czars.

Beware of Dual Unionism.

Now that the rank and file are a unit and the fakers stand exposed and defeated, your enemies and some misled friends are hoping that you will be so stupid as to fall for the dual union trap which has been laid for you and abandon your fight against Hutcheson and his clique when you are on the very brink of victory.

Hutcheson has made the lying charge of dual unionism against many staunch unions. Of the dual union organized by the building trades department of the A. F. of L. he has been silent. The reasons for this silence are several. First he is so corrupt and his corruption and autocracy is so well-known that many thoughtless members would join a dual union to escape his domination and he would lose per capita. Secondly his stand against dual unionism is a fraud, it is a sham fight to rid himself of all elements opposed to him. Most important of all he wishes all those intelligent and militant members and groups who oppose him within the Brotherhood to join dual unions or form little unions of their own. Then he and his corrupt gang can rule unchallenged over the Brotherhood.

It should be readily seen that this building trades dual union is a club used by the building trades to drive the Carpenters' Union to accept the jurisdictional award on metal trim. These officials are exactly like Hutcheson. They are warring now and they wish to use the rank and file to fight their battles. Once peace is declared with Hutcheson they will turn on the rank and file, and those who have been their dupes will become their victims. You should and must co-operate with the building trades but not to knife your own organization.

Stand by Your Supporters.

We point out that hundreds of local unions thruout the country are backing the Detroit carpenters in this fight. They too have grievances to settle with Hutcheson and his gang. To turn aside from the struggle now or to abandon the fundamental constitutional basis of our fight on which basis we have enlisted their support would be open treachery to them. Detroit's carpenters are fighters. They have the courage to stay in a fight even when the strategy of battle necessitates some painful patience. The forces of corruption against which you struggle have been gathering and entrenching themselves for years, they will not be dislodged with a skirmish.

A bunch of robbers have taken possession of your organization. It is the part of weakness to say "Let them have it, we will build another." We call upon the carpenters to rally to the defense of their organization against all enemies both without and within. By their actions the carpenters of Detroit must brand as a lie the charge of Hutcheson, that those whose constitutional rights he violates are dual unionists.

Carpenters! stand staunch for your Brotherhood!

Keep up the fight within your union!

Patience, courage and intelligence will right every wrong!

Make your union worthy of your best efforts and most sacred devotion!

PARTY SCHOOL STUDENTS ASK MANY QUESTIONS

Miners Say Classes Are Very Interesting

By Alex Reid and Arley Staples.

The Workers Party school, historical in the sense that it is the first school of its kind in America, has started into its second and final week with the students and teachers in high enthusiasm.

The courses so far have been attentively received and attended by the students and their interest is manifested in the divers questions shot to the teachers on the particular subject at the close of each lecture, and their answers to the questions of the various teachers.

The fraternization of the comrades is remarkable, and to us seems a splendid testimony to a keen understanding of the reason they are at school, that is, to fit themselves for more responsible work in the party.

As part of the agenda we attended the North Side English branch on Monday the 16th, and enjoyed the discussion immensely. The comrades there treated us to a fine example of how a branch should be run and no doubt, the students will take advantage of the lesson received.

A notable instance was the absence of technical parliamentary rulings and interferences generally resulting therefrom.

The hospitality of the Chicago comrades to the out of town comrades is worthy of mention, it would be impossible to surpass it any way, and place, and we are sure is only one more instance to be pleasantly remembered by the students at this school.

Other invitations to the comrades to attend meetings have been received and appreciated. We have only one fault to find, and that is we cannot have two years at it instead of two weeks.

We sincerely hope this is the first of many courses of its kind and we take this opportunity in closing to extend to the party and to our teachers, our sincere appreciation for their splendid efforts and to our comrades at the school likewise, for their consideration of each other, and to our many comrades and friends in Chicago our sincere appreciation for their many entertainments.

By GERMINAL ALLARD.

THE party intensive training school is in full bloom. It has proven to be successful in carrying out its work among the students of Marxian philosophy.

Its purpose as we know is to educate the active ones, to acquaint them with the principles and tactics of the subject in order to properly understand the real function and mission of the Communist international movement.

The school is successful due to the fact that the qualified instructors have laid down the program very briefly so as not to let any important gaps to isolate the students. The lectures are very well linked together so as to teach us the significance of different subjects.

We wish to extend our gratitude to the C. E. C. and the wonderful hospitality rendered us by the comrades of Chicago is great appreciated. It is their hospitality that has enabled us to attend the school. It is necessary to give the comrades credit for accomodating us into their homes.

In order to repay our debts to the party we will return to our respective communities and agitate our propaganda with more determination, carry our duties with more accuracy and activity with the weapon of the C. I. and the DAILY WORKER; the only weapons for the working class under the parasite dictatorship.

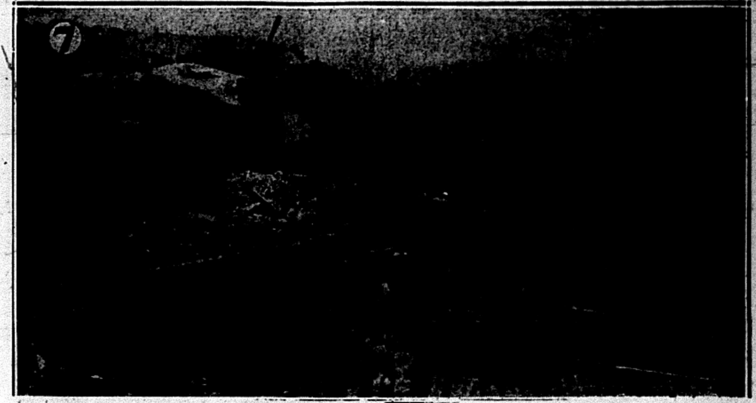
"Storm Brough Suffering on the Workers," Says International Workers' Aid

A relief worker cares for a child victim of the storm.



The big storm in southern Illinois junked locomotives and other railroad equipment. But in the treasuries of the great railroad corporations are huge funds for new equipment and repairs. Nearly all workers, especially the unemployed coal miners and railroad workers, have no funds with which to rebuild their shattered homes.

Workers Invited to Attend Lecture on Imperialism Tonight

Imperialism is a subject upon which many workers are not fully informed. Many think it concerns only far-away peoples, and has nothing to do with themselves. To enlighten them upon this subject, the Mid-City English branch of the Workers Party is holding a meeting Thursday night, to which all workers are invited, especially those not yet members of the party.

Manuel Gomez will lecture upon "Imperialism" the meeting to begin at 8 p. m., Thursday evening at 722 Blue Island avenue, in the Greek Workers' Hall. All workers invited, no admission charged.

Comrade C. A. Hathaway, Minneapolis district organizer of the Workers (Communist) Party, told how religion dopes the workers and is used by the capitalists to make the workers forget their small wages and long hours of labor.

The marriage register was signed before a commissar, as is the practice in Soviet Russia.

Capital and the clergy, in effigy, were swept out of the hall, and the audience of 300 sang the International. Anna Quartermaster came from Moscow nine months ago.

MUST RECOGNIZE SOVIETS, SAYS YALE PROFESSOR

Davis Attacks American Prejudice Against Russia

WORCESTER, Mass., Marche 25.—"The United States may withhold recognition of Russia for a number of years, but eventually she must recognise the Soviet government," was the prediction made by Prof. Jerome Davis of Yale university in his address, "Russia in Revolution and After," before 125 members of the Worcester congregational club at its 279th meeting and meeting and banquet here.

Prof. Davis exploded many current beliefs as to the chaos and confusion existing in Russia, and directly charged that most of the fanciful reports had their origin in the minds of propagandists. "Whatever trials and misery the Russian people have experienced during the past decade have not been due to the activities of the Reds, but to the heritage of injustice and inequality left by the Romanoff dynasty."

Country Recovering.

Prof. Davis, who served in Russia during the world war, told of the sufferings of the Russian people, 82 per cent of whom were totally illiterate and for whom the czar did nothing but levy taxes. Even the windows of the homes of the peasants were taxed he said which led the peasants to board up the windows and give tuberculosis a chance to decimate the poor people.

Speaking of Russia today, Prof. Davis said that the country has been rapidly recovering, the currency has been stabilized on a gold basis and altho antagonists of Communism and Bolshevism have predicted the collapse of the Russian state it has actually grown stronger and continues to grow.

LOW WAGES AND HIGH PROFITS IN WILLIMANTIC MILLS SHOWN DESPITE THE COMPANY'S BOASTS

By WILLIAM SIMONS.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WILLIMANTIC, Conn., March 25.—As the strikers marched to the hall from the mill yesterday morning some well dressed freak remarked: "Why, what are they striking for? It looks like a Fifth Avenue parade." Evidently, strikers must appear on the march in rags to satisfy some capitalist apologists.

What are the wages in the mills? When the workers have any grievance, the company always trots out the figures of a few well paid girls, as proof that wages are high. Just as capitalist colleges when charged with suppression of freedom of speech among the instructors and professors would point to one individual professor who is given some latitude of expression as proof that anyone could express himself.

The Bell Ewe.

They point to a girl making $35 in a certain week, forgetting that the highest wage for a girl for the year was an average of $28 a week; and that in the same department, many of the women were making $12 a week before the cut, and $10.80 now, and that some women who have been working in the mill all their lives get in some departments only $9 a week.

In the shuttle bobbin department, the maximum wage of the women inspectors is $13.50 a week.

The company omits the fact that women making these so-called high wages work at top speed, and do odds and ends even at noon, so that their hours are more than 48 a week. They come to work early in the morning, too.

When the low wages are pointed out to the company, they reply: "Those who can't make more, should not be working in the mill." Nothing remains than for the company to throw out those who do not yield sufficient surplus value for the shareholders. But this they will not do, unless they can replace them with others.

The American (!) Thread Co. finds it to their advantage to have a few girls speed up and make higher wages than the rest, and to give them more work than to others. The work is not fairly divided among the workers. This favoritism tends to keep the workers divided.

How Many Workers Are There?

The American Thread Co. plant in Willimantic employs about 5,000 workers, divided in three departments. Finishing, 1,500; works, 200; manufacturing, 800. In the finishing department there are about 1,275 women and 225 men; in manufacturing, 450 women and 350 men; in works, 200 men and no women. Like the average mill town, it is a girls' town. The dye room is filled with men only.

A Man's Wage.

The aristocrats of the mill, the dresser tenders, got $32 before the cut, which brought it down to $28.85. One worker has been in the mill for twenty years, and at the end of that period gets the wage of $28.85 as a dresser tender.

In the printing department, a beginner gets $18 a week on a job press. If he gets to work on a cylinder (and it takes about ten years to attain that dizzy height) he gets $24, and after ten years of that, gets $33 (B. C.) before the cut. After working seventeen years in the mill a printer gets $29.70 a week.

In the finishing department, men running assembling machines for shell bobbins get $18 at the start, and not over $23; after the cut, $20.70. Men running the embossing machine start at $18, with a maximum of $24 (now $21.60.)

The "Die" House.

In the dye and bleach house, the 100 men were getting $24.90 for 48 hours a week, that is, if they worked there six months or more. Here the company pulled one of its skin games. I am assured by several workers of that department that after one week, a man can do the work. It is heavy work, but can be picked up quickly. Having seen a dyeing machine in motion, I can bear this out. Still, for the first three months, a man gets only $17.26, and for the next three months, only $19.25 a week. The highest paid wage after the cut is only $22.40 a week, for strong men, putting in a hard day's work.

Before the war, wages in this dye house were $11, which was forced upward by workers taking advantage of war orders to a maximum of $28. But the company shut down the mill on Saturdays, and so the real wage was $26. Then came the wage cut of 22½ per cent, bringing it down to about $22. Again an increase was forced, in 1923, of 12½ per cent, bringing it up to $24.90, the recent cut lowering it to its present level of $22.40.

The Contrast.

Wages low. Dividends high. Workers exploited in the mill. Parasites at Bermuda and other summer resorts, basking in the sun. Workers wages cut. Dividends up. Workers fighting for themselves and children. Capitalists crushing the mill slaves.

This conflict cannot be bridged despite the preaching of harmony between labor and capital by so-called "labor leaders." Many of the exploited mill slaves know from bitter experience that there is class war between them and the American Thread Co. And those who do not know it will yet learn the lesson, when this industrial conflict which now raging assumes a more determined character.

NEGROES BARRED FROM BUILDING IN NEW ORLEANS

Must Stay Within Own District

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 25.—An ordinance passed by this city definitely forbidding a Negro to build or occupy a home in any section of the city where a majority of the people are white, has been upheld as constitutional by the supreme court of Louisiana. Plans are being made to carry it to the United States supreme court.

The state supreme court decision construes the law as coming within the "police powers" of that state. This ruling gives the cities of Louisiana the right definitely to outline and restrict certhin sections of a city for whites and others for blacks. In no instance must the two intermingle. The chief justice, in delivering the opinion of the court, made frequent reference to "social equality," "amalgamation," and their attendant "terrors."

In an effort to make the law hold water, and prevent its coming under the rule that no law must single out a particular group for discrimination, the New Orleans ordinance also specifies that white people must not live in a neighboorhood in which the majority of the people are colored.

Cloak of Impartiality

This portion of the ordinance is making the judges of the Louisiana courts chuckle audibly. It performs for the audience two needed functions—it gives it an air of impartiality, thus preventing the ordinance from being set aside by the courts, and it means—absolutely nothing. No white person, even one free of all prejudice, will deliberately choose to put up with the extortionate rents wrung from Negroes, not to mention the many petty injustices attendant upon residence in the Negro district.

Whites Exploit Negroes

While the law prevents a Negro from buying a house in the white district, even when he proposes to rent it to white tenants, it does not in practice prevent whites from buying houses in the Negro district. There are hundreds of apartments, restaurants, theaters, in almost every city, owned to all appearances by Negroes and catering to Negroes. They are owned in reality by a white capitalist, for whom some Negro, willing to betray his race for the sake of a few dollars, acts as a foil.

Look at the law from any angle you will—it shows a face favorable to the white capitalist, and to a few Negro traitors. That is what the law was made for.

Clothing Concern Tries to Smash the Granville Unions

GRANVILLE, Ill., March 25. — In this mining town, which is also surrounded by mines a new factory building (clothing factory) is being erected.

For the privilege of putting up this factory in the town, the manufacturers want the citizens to pay for the factory, and if possible after six years the manufacturers will try to pay the money back. The workers are to be exploited no doubt, when the factory is finished.

Granville has a main street, bank, postoffice, a depot, and about four blocks of stores, and several churches, but as soon as the young people leave school it is necessary to go to other localities to seek work.

An eastern clothing concern is transferring their factory to this place, and will likely see that this place is not molested by unions.

BUILDERS AT WORK

DETROIT WANTS 20,000

How Many Will You Get?

The present DAILY WORKER committee of Detroit, headed by Comrade Goetz, have not only retained an exceptionally high number of expiring subs by visiting them for renewal, but they have also added enough new subs in the past two months to reach the highest mark ever held in Detroit.

The reasons are simple: they are always ALIVE. The committee is daily getting more co-operation from branches thru persistent work; and on every occasion they have ordered either a special edition for free distribution (paid by advertising secured) or a large number of a regular issue.

The DAILY WORKER committee has already laid plans for May Day. In writing us of its decisions, Comrade Goetz says:

> "The matter of the special issue has been taken under consideration and we have decided that the mass distribution of the DAILY WORKER is the most important thing, regardless whether it was a special issue or not. For this reason we are just going to order a large number of DAILY WORKERS for May Day as we think that the distribution on that day ought to be especially successful both from the view of distribution as well as from the propaganda value associated with May Day.

Their order for 20,000 copies of this issue was without solicitation and without having seen a word about it in the DAILY WORKER. It is simply a case of being energetic and far-sighted Communists ever looking for methods to build our movement.

On May 10 they are having a mass meeting for the DAILY WORKER at which Comrade Dunne, editor of "our daily," will speak. These are the methods of Detroit: no fancy program, just plain, hard "plugging."

How many copies of the May Day number (it will be a special of 12 pages!) is your local going to order? Get your Communists busy now on this question of the May Day issue of the DAILY WORKER!

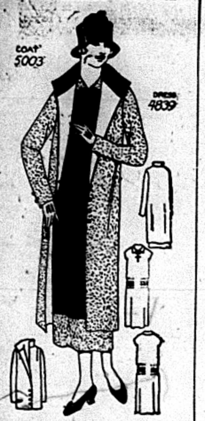
OUR DAILY PATTERNS

AN "ENSEMBLE" COSTUME



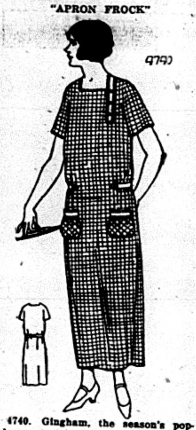
5003-4839. The most popular style of the season is here pictured. It combines in this instance ladies' coat 5003 and one piece dress 4839. Broadcloth, and a wool mixture in black and gray are used together. One could have satin or faille in two shades or in contrasting colors. The smartness of the "ensemble" depends on the combination that expresses harmony with just the right contrast. The coat may be nished in the shorter length that is illustrated in the small view. The fronts may be buttoned to the neck, or rolled open as in the large view. The dress is a simple one piece "slip on" model, with the fulness caught in rows of upright plaits or tucks.

The coat pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. The dress is cut in 7 sizes; 16, 18 and 20 years for misses and 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure for ladies. To make the costume for a 38 inch size as illustrated in the large view, will require 2⅝ yards of the wool mixture and 2½ yards of the broadcloth, 54 inches wide with ⅝ yard of contrasting silk for facings on the coat, or the coat may be lined entirely, the lining to serve as a facing. This will require 4⅝ yards.

TWO separate patterns mailed to any address on receipt of 12c FOR EACH pattern in silver or stamps.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in silver or stamps.

"APRON FROCK"



4740. Gingham, the season's popular material, was chosen for this garment. In green and white or brown and white gingham, this would be very pleasing with trimming of linene and rick rack braid in self color or white.

The Pattern is cut in 4 Sizes: Small, 34-36; Medium, 38-40; Large, 42-44; Extra Large, 46-48 inches bust measuse. A Medium size requires 4½ yds. of 32 inch material. The width at the foot is 2 yards. For band on pocket, and at the opening, and for belt ½ yard of contrasting material 36 inches wide is required.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in silver or stamps.

Europe Bickers—Soviet Russia Builds

The speech of Austen Chamberlain, British foreign minister, delivered Tuesday in the house of commons is the most friendly expression of official British feeling towards Germany made public since the outbreak of the war.

It is probable that the speech marks the definite alignment of Britain and Germany against France—an alignment having as much organizational character as is possible under circumstances that make each new German regime a temporary and ineffective instrument for treaty purposes.

Great Britain is just as much interested in the German frontier questions as Germany is. The power of France in Europe is based on a system of alliances with small nations like Poland that have received territory and natural resources formerly German. Great Britain may be willing to perpetuate the present Rhineland frontier, but she is not willing to have Germany, whose industrial and military revival is necessary as a weapon against France, stripped forever of the coal and iron of Silesia that would form the basis of her heavy industry.

Neither is Great Britain willing to give France guarantees of security enabling her to make Germany a French colony. The British dominions have put their collective foot on this proposal as the British foreign office probably expected they would.

France now flirts again with Turkey as a means of bringing pressure upon Great Britain so that in the Balkans and in Asia Minor the threat of war continues. Turkey and Great Britain are at swords' points over the Mosul oil fields and France is thus able to make considerable inroads on British diplomacy at Angora.

It is now more than seven years since the armistice was signed and there is no sign that the allied governments are any closer to a settlement of the national rivalries than they were at that time. The Versailles treaty has increased the antagonisms rather than eliminated them.

To the east of the European war pot Soviet Russia goes calmly along strengthening herself internally—winning the confidence and support of the great masses of the orient as well as the fraternal sympathy and aid of the oppressed workers of the western nations.

Class and Racial Unity in the Coal Fields

It is no light matter to decide to fight the steel trust in the coal fields of Pennsylvania. It is a still more serious matter in the Fayette coal fields where the Frick Coal company carries out the policy of shooting and clubbing workers that the man for whom it is named began in the great steel strike in Homestead.

A strike in this district and under these conditions is no Maytime gambol. It is something that involves the very lives of thousands of miners and their families. The miners are unorganised, due to the treachery of the Lewis officialdom of the miners' union, but they have been in more than one struggle and have a great fund of fighting experience to guide them.

In this situation it is heartening to read our news of yesterday which tells of the Negro miners on strike with the white workers. Some time ago we wrote that given the same industrial experience as the white work the Negro toiler would show just as much militancy and loyalty to his class. In the Fayette coal fields there is now living proof of the correctness of this statement.

Upon the militants in Pennsylvania organized in the Workers (Communist) Party of America and the T. U. E. L. is the responsibility for providing speakers, organizers and relief just as they did in the strike of 1922.

That they are on the job is shown by the news we receive every day of the struggle as it develops.

"Call a Cop!"

The close connection between the police department and the low wage mercantile establishments is shown by the arrest of three members of the Chicago local of the Workers (Communist) Party.

These comrades were distributing a leaflet detailing the grievances of the workers in the Boston Store. They were arrested on the complaint of the management altho no law had been violated. The usual investigation to determine the existence of "foreign influence," if any, was conducted by the police and the comrades were then released after spending many hours in the noisome city jail.

This country is ruled by the club of the police.

Every labor skinner, when his misdeeds are made public by militant workers, calls a cop and wants the offenders locked up for life or deported.

The bosses have every reason to be loyal to their government. It certainly is on the job—for them.

The Baltimore members of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers seem to have recovered from the poison injected into them by the Hillman machine two years ago.

They are now out on strike for a new schedule of wages and working conditions. From all reports the spirit of the workers is splendid and their fight of the most militant character.

Members of the Workers (Communist) Party are taking an active part in the strike. This should be brought to the attention of Sam Levin, manager of the Chicago joint board, who is blacklisting all members of the party he can induce the bosses to fire. He might be able to make it the basis for another story in the labor-hating Chicago Tribune centering around a new Communist plot in Baltimore.

The news of the Amalgamated strike is carried by us just as we carry the news of the coal miners' strike in Pennsylvania and all other news of workers' struggles. The attitude of the officialdom does not influence us in matters of this kind. The Communists are slugged and arrested on the picket line by the thugs of the bosses; in the unions they are persecuted and beaten by the thugs of the bureaucrats and the bosses.

We know that our enemies are enemies of the working class and one of these days the working class will also know it.

The activity of our comrades in Baltimore is much more damaging to the poisonous influence of the Hillmans and Levins than a thousand speeches and articles.

The Communist Press

The Communist press is something more than an organ of the advance guard of the working class, the Communist parties of the countries in which it is published.

It is, in addition to portraying the struggles of the workers at home, the medium thru which the workers of all countries talk to one another and unify their forces in the international battle line.

We have published this week the news that the Red International of Labor Unions has sent $5,000 to assist the striking Nova Scotia miners, that a still larger sum has been sent to the striking Chinese workers; we have published the appeal for aid from the Japanese workers who groan under the pitiless provisions of the new anti-sedition law of the Japanese exploiters; we carry the story of the persecution of the Polish Communist workers and of the drive against the revolutionary workers in Palestine.

No grievance of the workers is too small to find expression in its columns nor does the tremendous power of world imperialism cow it to silence when the shrieks of tortured workers in other nations reach our ears.

The struggle against world capitalism is worldwide. The Communist press is neither American, German, French, English, Italian or Chinese—it is working class and it forms the chain which will one day link the world's workers to the World Soviet Republic.

Chicago Carpenter Militants Win

The militant carpenters of Local 181 are back in the union. The expulsions were never ratified by the union and with the retreat of International President Hutcheson to a petulant demand for an apology for vigorous language in the resolution which caused the trouble, the local union, which had stood by the expelled men all the way thru, decided that the militants should come back. They go back to resume the work of exposing the anti-working class character of the Hutcheson administration and building the union into an efficient weapon in the daily struggle and the combat against capitalism.

The sturdy fight and victory of the Detroit carpenters on a more clear cut issue unquestionably had much to do with the lifting of the ban on the Chicago militants. This goes to show that broadening the struggle, bringing as many workers into is as can be reached, is the best way to fight trade union bureaucrats just as it is the best way to fight the capitalists and their government.

French Lose Interest in Haiti

The French government, as we predicted, has backed down on the protest to the league of nations on the occupation of Haiti by American marines since 1915.

We do not know, of course, just what has been said and done, but very likely a short cable message or a call from the representative of the House of Morgan was enough to cause several cases of cold feet among the sudden converts to self-determination in the French foreign office.

The French imperialists would undoubtedly like to embarrass their Yankee creditors, but the vision of the franc falling below zero was enough to cool their enthusiasm.

"If you don't like the way we initiate the backward nations of the western hemisphere into the sacred mysteries of American democracy, pay us what you owe," is the verbal club with which the House of Morgan is today cracking the head of more than one spokesman of the European nations.

"It Can Be Done by Communists!" For particulars see page four.

The Communists alone are fighting for working class interests in the election campaign that goes to polls on Sunday in Germany.

DEATH AS AIDS SPLIT FASCISTI

Cancer of Stomach Is Bringing End

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ROME, Italy, March 25.—Benito Mussolini, the fascist dictator of Italy, is in a critical condition, following his public appearance for a brief speech from the Palazzo Chigi balcony. Mussolini is afflicted with cancer of the duodenum, the upper part of the small intestine, from which he will never recover, his lieutenants say.

Mussolini, who kept his power by his violent terrorization of all opposition will pass from the scene a broken, beaten man, just as Woodrow Wilson, servant of American imperialism, was obliterated from the political arena.

The workers of Italy are heartened by the divisions existing within the fascist party, and are uniting solidly behind Communist leadership.

Too Weak for Operation.

The doctors refuse to operate on Mussolini, declaring that a venereal disease contracted by Mussolini in his youth has so weakened his constitution that an operation would be too dangerous.

Mussolini's condition was first made known to the public when he was forced to take to his bed after a series of fainting spells, followed by a slight stroke which impeded his speech and paralyzed his face.

Mussolini is admittedly not responsible for his acts, as his brain is not clear, fascist leaders close to Mussolini admit. Mussolini gives orders and then attempts to revoke them after they have already been executed. He has grown morose, and laments that he is drifting into such a miserable end.

Ordered Murders.

Mussolini's illness came at a time when he was growing increasingly unpopular with the masses of the Italian workers, because of the shocking disclosures that Mussolini had ordered the murder of the socialist deputy, Matteotti, and was responsible for killing many other opponents.

The dissension within the fascisti is now more acute than it has ever been. With the elimination of Mussolini, the general secretary of the fascist party, Farinacci, who is the extremist, is attempting to inaugurate a reign of open murder and violence. Federzoni, minister of the interior, is the leader of the more conservative element within the fascisti, who would rely on the industrialists and on secret intrigue rather than open violence to keep the fascisti in power.

Split Among Fascisti.

While these two wings of the fascisti are fighting for power, many rank and file members of the fascist party are enlisting behind the Communist slogan of "all power to the workers," and are aiding in the campaign to get control of the industries thru factory committees and strikes.

Teachers' Wages Do Not Meet Needs of Mere Living Costs

NEW YORK, March 25.—Backing up its arguments for the passage of the teachers' salary increase bill at Albany the joint salary committee of Teachers' Associations are publishing a series of graphs showing how the cost of living has risen at twice the speed of teachers' salaries so that the city's educators are worse off than in 1920.

For instance: Men kindergarten teachers in the 6-B group got $2,160 in 1900. To purchase as much as they could purchase then the wage should now be $3,920. It is actually $2,875.

A graduating class teacher (now as a 7-A to 8-B man) got $2,400 in 1900. To prevent a reduction in his living standard his wage should be $4,365. It is actually $3,250.

An elementary school principal in 1900 got $3,500. His wage, proportionate to living costs should be $6,360 now. It is actually $4,750. A high school assistant in 1900 who got $2,400 should now get $4,365 but actually gets $3,700. A high school principal in 1900 got $5,000; should get $9,090, but actually gets $6,500.

The graphs do not give comparative salaries for the lower classifications of teachers; when these are compiled the comparisons will prove far more striking.

French Seek Pact with Turks Against England and Russia

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 25.—Henri Franklin-Bouillon, has been sent to Turkey by the Herriot government to attempt to influence the Turkish government to break with Russia and form an alliance with France.

The French representative wants the support of Turkey in North Africa, the middle east and Syria against England, with Russian influence excluded. The Turks have been offered use of the Bagdad railway, munitions and credits and support against English influence in Mosul, it is reported.

the efforts of workers demanding increased wages and improved conditions of labor.

The form of organization and the numbers of the state constabularies vary from state to state. Some are called "departments of public safety," some "rangers," some "state detective bureaus."

Some sort of state police laws are found in the following states, passed in the years indicated: Arizona (1919), Connecticut (1921), Delaware (1915), Idaho (1921), Kentucky (1921), Maine (1916), Massachusetts (1922), Michigan (1919), Nebraska (1913), Nevada (1919), New Jersey (1921), New York (1917), Pennsylvania (1919—revised), South Carolina (1912), Tennessee (1919), Texas (1920), West Virginia (1922).

Cossacks Not An Exception.

It is impossible to go into detail here, but instances can be cited showing that the Pennsylvania cossacks are the type and not the exception.

The state constabulary in New York has only a short history thus far but that history is black with crimes against the workers who move the wheels of industry in the great empire state. Stories printed in the capitalist press itself show that the state troopers sent to Buffalo "to head off expected violence" in the street railway strike of 1922, behaved so outrageously that they were opposed even by Mayor Schwab and all the city councilmen. A petition signed by 265,000 names called upon the governor to withdraw the troops and stated that the troopers committed "unmanly and brutal actions," that they "maliciously attacked" peaceful citizens and that they "have irrationally ridden on sidewalks dispersing innocent pedestrians."

These "Rural" Communities

Buffalo is not exactly a rural community—nor is Utica, nor Rochester, nor Schenectady; but these are the places where the New York state police appear to be most needed.

West Virginia, is another state in which a state constabulary has been just recently set up. The West Virginia force is only a few years old and every class conscious worker in the state looks upon it as a deadly enemy. It is in fact a mere auxiliary of the private gunmen and Baldwin-Felts detectives employed by the business interests.

Constabulary Protects Company Killers

Bloody indeed is the anti-labor record of the West Virginia troopers. Five of these state troopers were on the scene when C. E. Lively, company stool pigeon, shot Sid Hatfield and Ed. Chambers on the steps of the Welsh court house in the summer of 1921, because Hatfield and Chambers had shown themselves to be stunch of the troopers moved to arrest the murderers who walked calmly away under the aegis of the representatives of capitalist law and order.

While playing the role of mildly amused spectators when company gunmen committed outrages, the state troops regularly arrested and clubbed workers. Even as I write, dispatches show that the West Virginia state police are "framing up" miners suspected of union sympathy at Fairmont, endeavoring to use the fact that the known disregard of safety laws rules in the open shop Bethlehem mines caused an explosion, to accuse union miners of destroying the mine and killing their fellow workers.

The chief work of the state troops in West Virginia for the year ended June 1922, was to prevent the organization of the miners. An indication of this is seen in the fact that the overwhelming majority of the 4,304 arrests made were in Logan and Mingo counties, the seat of the most vicious anti-union efforts.

State Police Enforcing "Law and Order"

On June 2, 1922, the state troops raided the strikers' tent colony at Lick Creek, wrecking property, cutting the tents, destroying the miners' stock of food, pouring kerosene in the milk, etc.

Hundreds of affidavits show that during strikes in states having state constabularies, the troopers broke up strike meetings and conducted a systematic warfare against the strikers. Free speech, freedom of assembly and other "rights" guaranteed by the constitution were ignored in the districts under their control.

Rockefeller's Little Army

The experience with the "rangers" in Colorado during the great coal strike of 1922 is worth calling to mind. The rangers were ordered out by Governor Shoup in November, 1921, even before the miners had declared a strike and when there was not the slightest indication that violence might ensue. The man in charge of the troops was none other than Pat. J. Hamrock, the same who led the Rockefeller-bought militia in the notorious massacre of the miners and miners' families in Ludlow tent colony, in 1914. The results resemble those described in Pennsylvania, West Virginia and other states. So brutal were they in their conduct, and so great was the pressure of working class protests, that the succeeding governor, William E. Sweet, was obliged to disband the rangers soon after he took office.

Why then, this pretense that the "law and order" gang of Illinois want a state police here for any different motive? The workers do not want more police of any kind. They have had too much experience of policemen's clubs already.

Big Fortunes Stir Investigation

returns are not known.

These miners are the victims of the worst kind of treachery. Outrages were committed against them by the private gunmen and state police cossaks. Suffering and starvation was rampant in every camp.

Got Little Relief, But Much Treachery.

On August 17, 1922, they were deserted by Lewis and company. But in order to pacify any rebellious spirit among the miners, he promised the Fayette miners relief. The following February the betrayal was completed by Lewis' tools Feeney and O'Leary. They ordered the men to go back to work without making any provision to go back organized. The miners were simply thrown to the "mercy" of the coal operators and steel barons.

The miners never have been able to find out what became of the greater part of the money raised by their organization for the Fayette relief. Now two years after, it appears that the personal bank accounts of the Lewis henchmen have become swelled to the extent that the internal revenue officers found it necessary to conduct an investigation.

Fakers' Bank Accounts Investigated.

O'Leary did everything possible to evade an investigation but was finally apprehended. He was brought to the First National Bank of Charleroi between two internal revenue officers. An hour later Bill Feeney appears at the bank and both remained there for several hours.

From the bank they went to the Charleroi post office accompanied by the two revenue officers. Other banks were also visited by this same group in Brownsville and other nearby towns. Both Feeney and O'Leary were a mighty sick looking bunch.

Even by their own figures these fakers were drawing big salaries and equally large expenses while the miners and their famalies were starving. The amounts claimed to have been paid for relief by these officials is far above what the printed reports show.

It is these fakers and their methods that are wrecking the miners' organisation. They are weakening it at every turn and in every district. They are making it an easy prey for the operators either to destroy or render harmless. If any miner raises a protest he is immediately branded as a "disrupter" and becomes the target of the officials.

The Hope Ahead—The Progressives

The coal diggers are slowly being organised on the basis of a constructive program and to rid themselves of these leeches that suck their life's blood. Only the miners themselves are able to clean house and place leaders at the head of their district and international that will fight in the interest of the miners in the pits. The program is that of the Progressive Miners' Committee, under the direction of the Trade Union Educational League. It is a rank and file program calling for rank and file struggle, and thru the program which must be fought out by the miners themselves in militant mine committees, the coke region miners have a chance of victory in spite of both the Lewis machine and the vicious operators and their capitalist state power.

OFF FOR RUSS

450 Tractors Off to First Workers' Republic

NEW YORK, March 25.—New large shipments of agricultural machinery for Russia, amounting in value to $2,000,000 have been effected by the Amtorg Trading corporation, agents in this country for the Gostorgs, or state export and import bureaus of the several Soviet republics.

The Dutch steamer Aalsum, just loaded, will sail from New York today with a cargo of 5,000 tons of plows, mowers, reapers, binders and other machinery and agricultural implements destined for the Russian Black Sea ports of Odessa and Novorossisk.

Two more cargoes, totalling 9,000 tons of agricultural machinery, including 450 tractors, destined for the same ports, are now under way on the steamer Alcor, which sailed from New York on February 20, and the Algenib, which sailed March 1.

Bill Bars Teaching of Evolution in Tennessee Schools

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 25.—A bill prohibiting teaching the theory of evolution in the public schools, normals and colleges of the state, was signed by Gov. Austin Peay and passed in each house of the assembly by a heavy vote. The governor gave as his reason for backing the bill that evolution was "at variance with the teachings of man's creation as related in the bible."

The new act makes it unlawful for any teacher in the universities, normals, or other schools of the state which obtain state funds "to teach any theory that denies the story of the divine creation of man as taught in the bible, and to teach instead that man has descended from a lower order of animals.

Federal Judge Is Harsh and Corrupt Tyrant, Is Charg

ST. LOUIS, Mo., March 25.—Further testimony tending to substantiate claims of government counsel that Federal Judge George W. English ruled from his bench in a tyrannical and arbitrary fashion was expected to be extracted from half a dozen witnesses today in resumption of the congressional sub-committee hearing here looking toward possible impeachment of the jurist.

Testimony bearing on charges of financial irregularities in the handling of bankruptcy cases was expected to be reached in several days.

Testimony thus far offered has painted Judge English as a fiery, tyrannical judge who disbarred attorneys without just provocation, jailed newspaper reporters and carried a revolver which on one occasion he drew and pointed at a reporter declaring: "I've been shot at three times and hit. It hurts like hell and I'm not going to be shot at again. If there's any shooting I'm going to do it first."

This testimony was offered by Frank L. Munie, publisher of an Edwardsville, Illinois, newspaper.

Charles Karch and Thomas Webb, two disbarred attorneys, testified the judge was a "tearing, swearing man, who used vile languages on all occasions and was unreasonably harsh."

LOW WAGES BUT HIGH PROFITS

By LELAND OLDS
(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

CASH dividends totalling 647 per cent in 10 years is the record achieved by Utah Copper Co. with its 1924 report. How did it do it?

Ask the mine, mill and smelter workers who are sweating for wages less than 50 per cent above 1914 in the face of a cost of living which has increased more than 70 per cent. At times during the 10 years their wages represented only about one-fifth of the price paid by consumers while the owners were taking one-half in rents, royalties and profits.

For 1924 Utah reports a profit of $9,090,109 giving common stockholders a return of 64.6 per cent on their investment. This is just one of the generous profits for the owners of industry reported recently in the financial news. Among them:

National Tea Co., known to most housewives, turns in the highest profit in its history. A net profit of $1,472,993 after all deductions means $27.66 a share on the no-par common stock. But as each no-par share stands for an investment of about $20 this profit is really a return of 138 per cent for a single year's business. After generous dividends this company retains undivided profits more than 5½ times the common stock.

American Radiator Co., which takes its toll on a large part of the country's building, reports a 1924 profit of $11,156,728 after all taxes and interest charges have been paid. This means more than 34 per cent on the present par value of the common stock. But within less than 10 years there have been three 50 per cent stock dividends increasing the stockholders' investment by nearly 240 per cent without their risking an additional cent in the business. So the 1924 earnings mean a return of about 115 per cent. One reason why the cost of building is still high!

Otis Elevator Co. is another concern which has helped jack up the cost of building. Its 1924 profit of $4,161,510 means over 22 per cent on the common stock and if recent stock dividends are taken into account it apears that stockholders have a profit of over 38 per cent.

Fleischmann Co., with its toll on a large part of the country's breadstuffs, shows net income after taxes and interest charges amounting to $9,843,233. This is a return of about 29 per cent for the owners of common stock.

North American Co., a holding company owing public utilities serving over 700,000 customers, reported a profit of $10,582,764 equivalent to 31½ per cent on the stockholders' investment.

But for return on investment the Orpheum Circuit Corp. is in a class by itself. The 1924 net income of $2,987,314 means a return of $4.29 on each $1 invested by common stockholders or 429 per cent. Cash dividends are running at the annual rate of 150 per cent. Evidently amusement is one of the aspects of life which communities could provide much more reasonably on a co-operative basis.

AS WE SE[illegible]

By T. J. O'FLAH[illegible]

ONE of the many retired [illegible] rals floating around [illegible] forums of the country rec[illegible] mitted that wars are caused [illegible] flict between nations over spheres of influence, markets and concessions. The old salt did not see anything wrong in this and thot that pacifists and others who had moral scruples about slitting other people's throats over a "port to export prunes" should be conveniently hanged on general principles. The admiral's frankness is a delightful relief from the hypocritical twaddle put out by the sanctimonious capitalist apologists who reduce all wars in which their own burglars are involved, to crusaders in behalf of civilization, female virtue or religion.

THE department of commerce now predicts a "great trade conflict" between the chief exporting nations of the world, but expresses confidence in the ability of the United States to hold its own. A table of trade statistics published by the department shows the exports of the United States crowding those of England into a corner in every market in the world. This is where the shoe pinches. This is why the prince of Wales is following "Black Jack" Pershing's trail in South America. This is why there will be a war between the United States and England no matter how many wreaths British ambassadors lay on the graves of George Washington, Jess Smith and the unknown soldier.

ONE of William Randolph Hearst's highly paid feature writers is carrying on a campaign for the abolition of the seven-day week. B. C. Forbes thinks if he had to work seven days a week he would be a revolutionist. We think not. It is more likely he would be the chief witness for the boss to show investigating committees that the seven-day-a-week men would revolt if they were forced to rest one day in seven.

BUT Forbes like any ill wind, blows some good. President Willard, [illegible] friend of "B. & O. Bill" Johnson, [illegible] the seven-day week [illegible]. It seems that the seven-day week is one of the blessings of the famous class collaboration plan, that was to revolutionize the railroad industry. Forbes has nothing to say about scab publishers. He gets part of his salary from Hearst who has a six months old strike on his hands in Seattle, where he refuses to recognize the Typographical Union. Whatever concessions the workers have secured from their bosses have been won thru their unions and their collective power and not thru the questionable efforts of fakers like Forbes.

WHOINELL is the Russian consul in Chicago? Not wishing to leave you long in suspence, he is none other than A. Volkoff, and he broke into print thru having received an invitation to gaze on some Bolshevik and anti-Bolshevik posters which were exhibited yesterday afternoon at the Arts Club, Chicago. The consul has not applied for a berth in a sanatarium on the ground of overwork; neither is he very active in the movement for the recognition of Soviet Russia. No doubt he is making himself generally useful around the Chicago Gold Coast where Russian aristocrats were always in great demand.

IT is reported that the anti-Bolshevik posters, which are being exhibited by some of the wealthiest female parasites in Chicago, were secured

RED DEPUTY IN LAST TALK HIT WHITE TERROR

Communism Will Beat You, He Declares

WARSAW, Poland, March 26.—Comrade Stanislav Lanzutsky, Communist member of the Polish diet, has been sentenced to die because of a speech delivered to the railroad workers in Przempl, on Nov. 11, 1923.

In his last speech before the Polish diet, Comrade Lanzutsky defied his persecutors with the slogan "Communism will defeat you." Comrade Lanzutsky described the blight of unemployment, hunger and white terror, which capitalism has imposed upon the Polish workers, and declared that the Communists would sieze power and liberate the workers of all nationalities rotting in capitalist jails.

The New York workers held a mass meeting yesterday in the Central Opera House, protesting against threatened execution of Comrade Lanzutsky.

The speech of Comrade Lansutsky, delivered on December 18, 1924, is given below:

Lanzutsky States His Position.

"I AM firmly convinced that I haven't a single friend in this house, beginning on this side, (pointing to right) and ending on this (ponting to left)

Members of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America!

What Do You Want in the Coming Agreement?

Negotiations are now proceeding between the Chicago garment bosses and the officials of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union in an effort to reach a new wage agreement to take the place of the present agreement that expires May 1. The issues brought to the front in these negotiations are clearly explained in a statement issued by the national committee of the needle trades section of the Trade Union Educational League. This declaration urges the 40-hour week, week work as against piece work, genuine unemployment wages, the organization of the industry and shop committee control of the union. This statement in full follows:

• • • •

You, a fighting member of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, will read and think about this leaflet. Our officials are now negotiating the new agreement. That agreement effects our very lives. Our officials, instead of following a militant policy of fighting the bosses, are adopting the method of aiding the employers at the expense of the workers.

The Amalgamated Clothing Workers was born during a militant fight against the reactionary and corrupt leadership of the United Garment Workers, that continually betrayed the interests of the workers. We, the rebels, knew that only thru militant struggle against the bosses would it be possible to improve the conditions of the workers.

The 44-hour week and all other improved conditions were only gained thru hard struggle on the picket line. The Amalgamated Clothing Workers in its early days, did not tolerate collaboration with the bosses.

In recent years, there has been growing swiftly an unwillingness on the part our officials, nationally and

LET QUARRELING FACTIONS OF THE I. W. W. AID INDUSTRIAL WORKER, SAYS R. I. A. C. CALL

The Red International Affiliation Committee has issued the following statement to the membership of the I. W. W.:

Fellow Workers: It is apparent that the capitalist class thru the "Our House" injunction against the Seattle Industrial Workers, together with stupid and factional editors and managers of that publication, have brought the paper to the brink of the grave. Its situation is said to be so desperate that it may suspend, if aid is not given, by April 1.

The Industrial Worker, as an organ of the class struggle has existed too many years and has too many possibilities if it were freed from the burden of the incredibly sectarian and fanatic policies which have been inflicted upon it, for the workers to allow it to perish. The Industrial Worker, and the whole I. W. W. could not be destroyed by capitalism so long as their policies were true to the interests of the working class.

Committing Suicide.

As long as the Industrial Workers' policies harmonized with these interests, the workers supported it thru many a bitter adversity. As it departed from them—as it put aside with scorn the basic principles of complete working class unity and implacable revolutionary class struggle, and adopted a hostile attitude, a policy of destruction toward all other workers' organizations, as it turned from struggle against the capitalists to a fight upon Communists and attacks, on the workers' Soviet republic of Russia, the workers gradually stopped supporting it.

The final, and perhaps fatal suicidal act was its rather open support of the "injunctionite" split movement in the I. W. W. Not until it had weakened itself with the working class did the "Our House" masters dare to attack it.

This sick and tottering condition afflicts the whole I. W. W. which is perishing without any outside attack, merely from internal decay under the confused and sectarian leadership of those who will not yield to history

"COUNTRY IS FULL OF COMMUNISTS," RAPHAEL COMPLAINTS TO BABBITT

OMAHA, Neb., March 26.—Professor Raphael Abramovich appreciates Main street. In an interview given the capitalist press before leaving for Denver, the counter-revolutionist complained bitterly about the big cities of America.

"The country is so full of Communists in your larger cities," he said, "that they prevented me speaking in New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, Pittsburgh and other large centers."

This probably will be sad news for Hillquit-Cahan and company, as these worthies have been insisting that Communism was dying out in America. And now little Raphael finds that "the country is full of Communists!"

But there is hope in the provinces, in the villages ruled by Babbitt and the god of Mrs. Bogart along Main street. There every "red" is known and can be rigidly excluded from entering the tearoom with the select group of wealthy Jewish merchants. There is "free speech" and perfect democracy rules over socialism and the police department.

And so it came to pass in Omaha, that the chosen few were admitted and the abandoned reds, and every worker were excluded.

COMMUNIST INTERNATIONAL CALLS WORKERS TO FIGHT CORRUPTION AND UNITE AGAINST CAPITALISM

The executive committee of the Communist International, leading organ of the proletarian revolution, taking cognizance of the disclosures recently brought to light in Germany, wherein it was exposed that the most exalted officials of the Second (yellow socialist) International were involved in incredible corruption of the same sordidity as the Teapot Dome case in America, has issued the following address to the working class of the world:

• • • •

To the Workers of All Countries:

The legal inquiry into the scandalous Barmat case in Germany has become an indictment of the leaders of the Second International. We see no longer in the dock the usurer Barmat who made use of the blessings of capitalist democracy of Germany to enrich himself at the expense of the starving masses, but the leaders of the German social-democracy who had not only made the most of their political influence to enable this capitalist profiteer to do his work, but have also accepted cash for their services. It is the entire leading organ of the Second International that is in the dock, from Troelstra down to MacDonald, for all of them are mixed up with the international speculations of Barmat.

Never before has there been in the international labor movement such shameless corruption and bribery, as we see in this lawsuit of the Second International.

"Socialists" Unite with Profiteers.

Capitalist jobbery, the most abominable exploitation in the closest relationship with social-democratic policy, social-democratic leaders as superintendents and advisors of capitalist profiteering firms, an entire large social-

NEW YORK, N. Y., March 26.—A mass protest meeting against House Bill No. 11,796, will be held here on Friday evening, April 3, in Manhattan Lyceum, 66 East 4th St. This is a deportation bill and one of the most drastic ever put thru Wall Street's house of representatives.

The bill is expected to meet with opposition in the senate and the workers thruout the country must be mobilized to fight it.

The meeting will be held under the auspices of the Labor Defense Council.

IRISH RELIEF AID URGED IN CABLE APPEAL

Irish Relief Committee Sends First Donation

Immediate relief for the famine stricken workers and peasants on the West coast of Ireland is urged in a statement issued by the Irish Workers' and Peasants' Famine Relief Committee at 19 South Lincoln St., Chicago. "One hundred dollars now is worth one thousand dollars one month from now," cables Helen Crawford, secretary of the British section of the Workers' International Relief who is supervising the distribution of relief in Ireland.

The statement in full reads:

The suffering among the famine victims on the West coast of Ireland is increasing. The money raised by the Workers' International Relief has not been sufficient to cope with the requirements of three-quarters of a million destitute peasants. Help is needed at once. The following cable from Helen Crawford, secretary of the British section of the Workers' International Relief, shows the need for immediate action:

"Irish Workers' and Peasants' Famine Relief Committee.

"Chicago, U. S. A.

"Rush immediate assistance for Irish famine victims. Need urgent, children dying cold and hunger.

"CRAWFORD."

On receipt of this cable, the Irish Workers' and Peasants' Famine Relief Committee cabled two hundred dollars for use among the famine sufferers. Now, that the machinery for raising funds is established, the committee expects to send larger contributions frequently until the necessities of the famine victims are taken care of.

Give Lie to Free State.

In refutation of the statements of prominent members of the Free State government and equally prominent politicians in the conservative wing of the republican party of Ireland that the famine was "greatly exaggerated" the following editorial from the Manchester Guardian of Feb. 6 is quoted:

"Detailed information about the distress in Western Ireland, unhappily, shows that there has been no wild exaggeration. From Donegal to Kerry the potato crop has either been poor or worthless. Without peat and with diminished milk supplies the lot of the poor peasant is a melancholy and hopeless one. Should the bad weather of 1924 continue into the spring, this year may easily be of more evil memory than '79. Three-quarters of a million people inhabiting an area lying west of a line drawn roughly from Malin Head in the North to Bantry in the South are affected in varying degrees."

American workers and farmers are urgently requested to send in their contributions at once. We want no capitalist charity for these workers and peasants. We want aid from brother to brother and sister to sister, men and women of the same class and common victims of the same robber system, even if divided by three thousand miles of ocean. Send in your donation to the Irish Workers' and Peasants' Famine Relief Committee, 19 South Lincoln street, Chicago, Illinois.

COKE MINERS BATTLE NEW WAGE CUTS

Strikers Seasoned in Past Struggles

(Special to The Daily Worker)

REPUBLIC, Pa., March 26.—The present strike of the coke region miners against wage cuts has a history dotted with one strike after another against the encroachment of the operators. This territory lays between Uniontown and Brownsville and is the heart of the coke field.

The Republic Iron and Steel Co. was to lead the fight on the miners in its mine at Republic. In September 1921 the men struck 100 per cent against a wage cut. After a week the company conceded and the men won the strike.

Gave Full Support to 1922 Strike.

On April 1, 1922 this entire section responded immediately to the national strike call by the United Mine Workers. The men went into the miners' organization by the hundreds and, with the miners in the other fields, struggled for the betterment of their conditions.

Lewis and his executive board saw fit to leave them out of the Cleveland agreement and later in February 1923 completed his dirty work by calling off the strike.

Bosses Try Starvation—Then Reduction.

Those that could get work did so, until again the operators prepared for an onslaught, but this time they were first going to starve the workers. The mine at Republic was closed down on May 10, 1924 and did not reopen untill Nov. 15 of the same year.

At the time the men started to work they were given to understand that the scale of wages was to be the same as paid before the mine shut down. Their first pay day came around and they found that their wages have been cut. Immediately they struck against the cut.

Coke Miners Stand Pat.

Although just going through a forced idleness of 6 months, nothing could stop them from fighting against wage reduction. The company tried the old ruse to get the miners to return by threatening to cease operations at this point, but it didn't work with the men.

Today these men are assisting the miners in the other mining camps that are now on strike against wage cuts.

Reorganizing Old Locals.

Although the betrayal of their struggle by Lewis is fresh in their mind, at the same time they realize the importance of organization. They are reorganizing their old locals and linking up their fight with the rest of the rank and file in the miners' organization.

Japs Plan for Poison Gas.
